

INDONESIAN ARMY TERRITORIAL COMMANDERS
1950—MARCH 1983*

Compiled by the Editors

In July 1950, seven months after the transfer of sovereignty the Indonesian Army Chief of Staff (KSAD) Col. A. H. Nasution, issued an order dividing Indonesia into seven military territories (Territorium dan Tentara, T & T), each under a divisional command.<sup>1</sup> Two were on Sumatra, three on Java, the sixth was for Kalimantan, and the last covered the "Great East."

Command	Division Name	Territory	HQ
T & T I	Bukit Barisan	Aceh, North & West Sumatra, Riau	Medan
T & T II	Sriwijaya	South Sumatra, Jambi	Palembang
T & T III	Siliwangi	West Java	Bandung
T & T IV	Diponegoro	Central Java	Semarang
T & T V	Brawijaya	East Java	Malang
T & T VI	Tanjungpura	Kalimantan	Banjarmasin
T & T VII	Wirabuana	Eastern Indonesia (including Sulawesi, Maluku, Bali, & the Lesser Sundas)	Makassar

These military territories were unrealistically large and corresponded to no historical or natural territorial divisions; nor did they approximate the local boundaries between military commands during the Revolution. From 1955 on, they underwent major reorganization, eventuating in seventeen Regional Military Commands (Komando Daerah Militer, KDM, later Kodam) by 1962, a number that was reduced to sixteen when Kodam XI (Central Kalimantan) was abolished in 1974. Most of these changes were initiated in response to the regional crises of the mid-1950s, and were part of an effort by the army high command to institutionalize its authority and increase its control over the regional military leaders. These changes will be noted under the individual territorial listings.

The basic pattern followed in the listing is that of the "Current Data on Indonesia's Military Elite," periodically appearing in Indonesia. Less information, however, is given on the men holding the post of panglima than is usually provided on the members of the military elite. Where it is available, only the following data is given for each position: the name of the occupant, the date of his assumption of the office, the length of his term, his divisional or service background, and his ethnic origin. (For those early officeholders who had no previous divisional affiliation, we have listed the region where they were active during the Revolution.)

* So far as we can ascertain this list is accurate up to the March 1983 MPR session at which Soeharto was elected to a fourth Presidential term.

SUMATRA*T & T I*

The territorial command in northern Sumatra was established on November 1, 1950. It was officially designated T & T I Bukit Barisan (Aceh, North, and Central Sumatra [including West Sumatra and Riau]) on June 21, 1951.

In December 1956 dissident military officers took the first steps that led to the 1958 PRRI/Permesta rebellions against the central government. A "Banteng Council" seized control in West Sumatra on December 22 and Col. Simbolon formed a military junta two days later to seize power in North Sumatra. His Chief of Staff, Col. Djamin Gintings, with backing from the army high command, ousted him on December 27, but was unable to assert himself in his predecessor's office. Within three months, T & T I had effectively collapsed into three independent regions: Lt. Col. Ahmad Husein headed the Banteng Council in West Sumatra, which claimed authority over the whole of Central Sumatra; Major Sjamaun Gaharu established a KDM in Aceh; and Col. Djamin Gintings was panglima of the remnants of the Bukit Barisan command in North Sumatra. The autonomous territories in Central Sumatra and Aceh were reluctantly recognized by the central government on March 31, 1957. When the full-scale rebellion broke out nearly a year later, the Army Chief of Staff responded by issuing a decree freezing the military command in Central Sumatra on February 12, 1958, and sending in an expeditionary force to suppress the Banteng Council. This meant establishment of the August 17th Operational Command in March 1958, which was transformed into a Komando Daerah Militer (III, 17 Agustus) in April 1959. The territories of T & T I in Aceh, North, and West Sumatra were then officially designated Kodam I, Kodam II, and Kodam III.

2. As Acting Commander at the time of the October 17, 1952 affair, Lt. Col. Kosasih was unwilling to take sides in it, and a group headed by Lt. Col. Kretarto seized power from him on November 23, 1952. The central government condemned the action, and reappointed the former panglima, Col. Bambang Utojo, who was acceptable to both sides. After Permesta was proclaimed in June 1957, the Army Chief of Staff attempted to restrict the potential area of dissidence in eastern Indonesia by dividing T & T VII into four military districts. These were designated as: North and Central Sulawesi, which later became Kodam XIII Merdeka; South and Southeast Sulawesi, which later became Kodam XIV Hasanuddin; Moluccas and West Irian, which later became Kodam XV Pattimura; and Bali and Sunda Kecil, which later became Kodam XVI Raksabuana (and changed its name in 1960 to Udayana). Lt. Col. Somba was appointed first commander of North and Central Sulawesi, but was dishonorably discharged after the PRRI/Permesta ultimatum of February 1958.
