

---

CONTRIBUTORS

Benedict R. O'G. Anderson is the Aaron L. Binenkorb Professor of International Studies, Government, and Asian Studies at Cornell University, New York.

Thak Chaloemtiarana is Director of the Southeast Asia Program and Associate Professor in the Asian Studies Department, Cornell University, New York.

Thomas Gibson is Associate Professor and Chair of the Department of Anthropology at the University of Rochester, New York. He studies mystical and political power in Southeast Asia using ethnographic, comparative, and historical methods.

George McT. Kahin was Aaron L. Binenkorb Professor Emeritus of International Studies, Government, and Asian Studies at Cornell University, New York. The editors of Indonesia are grateful for this contribution from Professor Kahin, which was revised shortly before his death and which so strongly reflects his life.

Jan Mrázek has studied art, music, and puppetry in Central Java and is currently a post-doctoral researcher at the Leiden University in the Netherlands. His current research focuses on the interaction of puppetry and film/television in Indonesia, Czechoslovakia, and the United States.

Stanley J. O'Connor is Professor Emeritus in the Art History and Asian Studies Departments, Cornell University, New York.

Tessel Pollmann was born in Amsterdam, The Netherlands. She studied Dutch linguistics and literature and was for a long time a reporter of the weekly Vrij Nederland. Together with Juan Seleky she wrote, Istori Istori Maluku (1979) and Terug op de Molukken (1982). Together with Ingrid Harms she wrote In Nederland door Omstandigheden (1982) which is part of her new book of collected essays, Bruidstraantjes en anders Indische geschiedenissen (1999).

John Saltford is a PhD student in the Department of Politics and Asian Studies, University of Hull, and a Southeast Asian Specialist at the Public Record Office, Kew, United Kingdom.

James T. Siegel is Professor of Anthropology at Cornell University, New York.

Andrew Willford is currently a Mellon Post-doctoral Fellow at the Society for the Humanities at Cornell University, New York.