
CONTRIBUTORS

Benedict R. O'G. Anderson is the Aaron L. Binenkorb Professor of International Studies, Government, and Asian Studies at Cornell University, New York.

Siddharth Chandra is Assistant Professor of Economics in the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. His research focuses on the economic history of Indonesia during the colonial period.

Andrew Goss is a PhD candidate in the History Department at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Hotze Lont is preparing a PhD thesis on financial self-help organizations and social security in Indonesia. He is affiliated with the Amsterdam School for Social-science Research/Center for Asian Studies, Amsterdam.

Tamara Loos is Assistant Professor in the History Department at Cornell University, New York. Her research interests include colonial jurisprudence, gender, and sexuality in Southeast Asian history.

Pamela A. Moro is Associate Professor and Chair of the Department of Anthropology, Willamette University, Oregon. Since 1985, she has studied and published about music in Thailand.

Rudolf Mrázek is Professor in the History Department at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Geoffrey Robinson is Assistant Professor in the Department of History, University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA).

James T. Siegel is Professor of Anthropology at Cornell University, New York.

Patricia Spyer is a Lecturer at the Research Centre for Religion and Society, University of Amsterdam. She is the author of The Memory of Trade: Modernity's Entanglements on an Eastern Indonesia Island, and the editor of Border Fetishisms: Material Objects in Unstable Spaces. Her current project concerns the role of the media in the unfolding conflict in post-Suharto Maluku, Indonesia.

(continued)

Contributors

Karen Strassler is a PhD candidate in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She recently returned from Yogyakarta, where she was conducting research since late 1998. Her research on photography and visual culture in contemporary Java was supported by a Fulbright-Hayes Dissertation grant.

Eric Tagliacozzo is Assistant Professor in the History Department at Cornell University, New York. He works on the history of maritime Southeast Asia.

Jeffrey A. Winters is Associate Professor of political economy at Northwestern University, Illinois.

Ken Young is Professor of Asian Studies at Swinburne University of Technology, Victoria. He leads the Globalization, Identity, and Citizenship program in the Institute for Social Research at Swinburne. He is currently investigating the political and cultural consequences of decentralization policies on Indonesia.