ITHACA, N. Y., MARCH 1, 1923

PRICE 12 CENTS

OFF-SEASON on the Campus comes at this time every year, a taking of breath after the strenuous end of the first term, and a general girding up before the swing into the activities of the second. Winter is beginning to pall a bit; folks ask, "Can Spring be far behind?"

THE DEATH of Bishop Charles David Williams came as a distinct shock to Cornell and Cornellians everywhere, for he has been a regular visitor among the Sage Preachers for the past sixteen years, and had officiated at the Chapel as recently as January 7 and 14.

ALL CORNELL PUBLICATIONS are having difficulty in getting enough men on the various competitions, and most of them have had to reopen the lists and to put late-comers on an equal footing with those who have already been at work some time. Questions are arising as to the efficiency of the "compet" system, and some of these questions have to do with the relation of the system to scholarship. In recent years, the Sun has decidedly lessened the strain on its competitors.

THE UKRAINIAN National Chorus delighted a comparatively small audience in Bailey Hall Friday evening; and on the Wednesday evening before the Salmond-Golde concert of 'cello and piano music under the Coolidge gift was well received by a very large audience.

RED AND WHITE, appropriate Cornell colors, are adopted by a new taxicab company in Ithaca, which announces prices lower than those of the black-and-white and yellow taxi services. The new rates are the same as those in New York City; so it remains to be seen whether the hills of Ithaca or the traffic-waits of the metropolis furnish the greater bar to profits.

FINAL FIGURES for Farmers' Week give the attendance as 2,987. Officials at the College of Agriculture are gratified at the attendance, especially in relation to weather, transportation, farmers' funds, and prevalent illnesses.

THE SAGE CHAPEL Preacher for March 4 will be the Rev. Dr. Andrew Barclay Mel-drum, Presbyterian, minister of the Old Stone Church, Cleveland.

LECTURES for the week, besides those delivered by Professor de Margerie, included "Some Australian Geology and Natural History" by Arthur R. Riddle, instructor in physics, before the Agassiz Club; "Tutankhamen" by Mrs. Eugene P. Andrews, under the auspices of the Women's Cosmopolitan Club; "Legislation" by C. Tracey Stagg '02, formerly professor in the College of Law and later counsel to the Governor of New York; a public lecture at the Fuertes Observatory by Professor Samuel L. Boothroyd; and "Preparation and Argument of Appeals" by Judge Cuthbert W. Pound '87, of the New York Court of Appeals. On March 2 Gerhard Hauptmann's "Hanneles Himmelfahrt" is to be read in German before the Deutsche Verein by Professor Albert W. Boesche. The speaker at the Current Events Forum next Sunday is to be Charles H. Johnson, secretary of the New York State Board of Charities, who will speak on his experiences as Mr. Hoover's agent in the investigation of American relief in Russia.

INDOOR TENNIS championships have started with thirty-two entrants in the higher ratings, and thirty in the secondary, or class B events.

THE ANNUAL RALLY of Ithaca Boy Scouts interested many members of the Faculty, not only because some have sons in the various troops, but also because the scout leaders are, in the main, members of the Faculty. Troop 1, under Lieutenant William Barton of the Department of Military Science, who is the son of the late Colonel Frank A. Barton '91, won the first prize in the various contested events.

THE MUSICAL CLUBS will be under the direction of Harold E. Deuel '24, Arts, of Lewistown, Pennsylvania, and of Alexander H. Gardner '25, Agriculture, of Brooklyn, as manager and assistant manager, respectively, following the annual election held last week.

LOUVAIN UNIVERSITY will be helped by Cornell, in common with other American universities, through a publicity campaign now being conducted on the campus. No active solicitation is planned, as it is expected that voluntary contributions will be tendered.

KAPPA ALPHA won the interfraternity hockey championship from Eleusis, the runner up, which had not yet made its way to the finals at the time of the report on this page last week. The competition this year was the best ever, largely owing to the weather and to the participation of more than two hundred students.

IF I WERE KING, in which E. H. Sothorn once starred, is the ambitious offering of the Women's Dramatic Club for April 21 in the Lyceum Theater. It was written by Justin Huntly McCarthy.

POLO PLAYERS at Cornell have been invited to take part in an intercollegiate tournament to be held at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., May 2 to 15. Seven other institutions in which military training has a part are expected to participate. These are Yale, Norwich, Virginia Military Institute, Princeton, Harvard, West Point, and Pennsylvania. Expenses are guaranteed by the athletic fund of the Second Corps area, and the ponies will be furnished by the Fort Hamilton stables.

THE ANNUAL BANQUET of the College of Agriculture will take place March 9, and Charles H. Tuck '06, formerly head of the extension service of the College, will be the principal speaker. Lawrence B. Pryor '23, of Memphis, Tennessee, winner of second place on the last Eastman Stage, is to be toastmaster.

THE ANNUALS promise a new arrangement of Faculty pictures, to be presented in groups by colleges or departments.

TWELVE TEAMS are still in the running on the Interfraternity Basketball League schedule, which is soon to be finished.

LAZINESS, according to the Sun, is the besetting sin of the undergraduate; it offers, in the place of the ancient triumvirate of sin—wine, women, and song—the modern one of movie, magazine, and morris-chair.

THE ADIRONDACK CLUB, the latest undergraduate regional organization, has as its members students whose homes are in northern New York.

FINAL NOTICE of the seventh annual Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest, to be held in Carnegie Hall, New York, on March 3, says that eleven colleges and universities are entered. Besides Cornell, glee clubs from Amherst, Columbia, Dartmouth, Harvard, New York University, Penn State, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Wesleyan, and Yale will sing, and the University Glee Club of New York City will join with all contestants to make a chorus of five hundred male voices in Kremser's "Prayer of Thanksgiving."

UNIVERSITY WRESTLING champions, determined by bouts on January 26, are: 115-pound class, C. M. Williams '24; 125-pound, H. A. Roberts '23; 135-pound, R. Ayau '24 of New York; 145-pound, B. F. Hall '24; 158-pound, G. H. Freer '23 of Ellenville and C. R. Burr '24 of Pawling, draw; 175-pound, L. C. Hanson '23 of Veblen, South Dakota; unlimited, W. D. Wright, Jr., '24 of Webster. Prospects seem good for another season.

ADVERTISEMENTS currently appearing in undergraduate publications would lead the unsuspecting to think that all that is needed for high scholarship is a liberal indulgence in shredded wheat biscuits and milk chocolates. Perhaps some of the bustees banked unduly on this food, or pabulum.

President Returns from Trip

Eastward Journey Includes Enthusiastic Cornell Meetings in Portland, Seattle, Spokane, and Ames.

President Farrand returned to Ithaca just before midnight on February 21 from the western trip which consumed more than three weeks and covered approximately six thousand five hundred miles.

The trip was everywhere voted a complete success. The President was greeted by large delegations of Cornell alumni who showed intense interest in the ideals, accomplishments and problems of their University. The only incident that might be called a hitch in the program was a blizzard at Seattle which stopped all transportation throughout the city and shut down business generally. As a result the attendance at the banquet was below expectations.

Dr. Farrand visited Chicago, Indianapolis, Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, and Spokane. On his return trip he stopped at Ames, Iowa.

The meetings at Chicago, Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and San Francisco have already been described. Reports of all the other meetings have been received except from Seattle where the storm has evidently delayed communication.

Forty Indiana men attended the Cornell dinner at the University Club of Indianapolis on January 30. That noon the president lunched at the University Club with President Robert J. Aley of Butler College; Meredith Nicholson, the author; the superintendent of public schools; Nicholas H. Noyes '06; Owen Mothershead '00, president of the club, and Merritt Harrison '11, secretary.

President Farrand was in Portland from the evening of February 12 until the midnight train left for Seattle on the following day. His program included a visit to the new buildings of the Medical School of the University of Oregon, where he addressed the students, emphasizing the importance of research and preventive work as contrasted with the old school of physicians which confined itself to curative methods.

A severe snow storm covered Portland's spring flowers and blocked traffic so badly that many Cornell men throughout the state and even the suburbs were unable to get in. Nevertheless more than a hundred college men attended the luncheon tendered him at the University Club. Dr. Farrand gave a very interesting and scholarly address on the needs and problems of American colleges and was accorded an ovation at its close. Many leading citizens, including President Richard Frederick Scholz of Reed College, attended and many remained after luncheon and enjoyed an informal conference with him.

In the evening thirty-five Cornellians entertained the President at dinner at the club. President William Jasper Kerr and Dean Covell came up from the Oregon Agricultural College. President Farrand told in detail of the building progress at Cornell; of future plans; of the many problems growing out of the increasing attendance; and made an eloquent appeal for alumni co-operation. It was nearly eleven when the meeting closed and all said it was the best local gathering since President Schurman was in Portland years ago.

Henry W. Wessinger '10 acted as chairman of the dinner and Hugh P. Henry '05 assisted him. Wells Gilbert '93 is president of the Portland Alumni Association.

In Spokane President Farrand spoke at luncheon at the University Club to a capacity attendance, his speech directed chiefly to an appeal for education along broader and more fundamental lines, as against the highly specialized fields. The afternoon was devoted to a trip about the city, taken against the handicap of a foot or more of snow.

The banquet in the evening was attended by forty Cornellians from Spokane and surrounding territory. Edwin D. Ham '10 was in charge of the Cornell arrangements in Spokane.

The visit in Ames, the seat of Iowa State Agricultural College, was a hurried one. In the few hours between seven o'clock in the morning and half past twelve that noon, the President breakfasted with the Cornellians of the city, most of whom are connected with the university, and addressed a convocation of the entire institution. Raymond A. Pearson '94 is president of the College.

ENGINEERS TO MEET HERE

The Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education will meet at Cornell as the guest of the University on June 20 to 23, the last four days of Commencement Week. The society has about sixteen hundred members, representing eighty-seven engineering schools. It is also interested in such subjects related to engineering as English, mathematics, physics, chemistry, economics, and the broader educational and administrative problems.

The committee on arrangements, of which Professor William N. Barnard '97 is chairman, expects that between three and four hundred members, principally presidents, deans, department heads, and professors of engineering schools of this country and Canada, will attend.

Coffin Back From South

Two Weeks Travel Result in Eight New Cornell Clubs—Speaks to About Four Hundred

Eight new alumni clubs have been added to the roster as the result of a trip just taken into the south and southeast by Foster M. Coffin, the alumni representative. He spent the two weeks between February 11 and 25 traveling through nineteen states, covering over 3400 miles, and meeting with alumni at thirteen centers.

Meetings were held at all of the cities visited, most of them dinners, but some taking the form of luncheons when train connections made evening meetings impracticable. Cornell motion pictures were shown at most of the evening meetings. The attendance varied from twenty to fifty, according to the size of the Cornell communities. About four hundred alumni in all were reached.

In some cases the new clubs have taken the name of the state, in others of the city. In all cases it is contemplated to include alumni of the surrounding territory.

After a luncheon meeting with the Cornell Association of Maryland at Baltimore on February 12, and informal meetings that evening with the officers of the Cornell Club of Washington and the Cornell Alumni Society of Washington, Coffin attended a meeting at Newport News on the following day. The Cornell Club of Hampton Roads had been organized last spring, to include Cornellians in Norfolk and other neighboring points.

The meeting in Raleigh, North Carolina, was the first where there was no existing alumni organization. Following the luncheon the Cornell Club of Raleigh was formed, reviving the organization which had functioned until the war. William J. Andrews '94 was elected president; Dr. Julia Harris '09, vice-president; and Rowland W. Leiby '15, secretary-treasurer. The meeting was attended by twenty Cornellians, of whom three were alumnae.

The Cornell Club of Atlanta was organized the following day, at an evening meeting of twenty men and five women. Howard See '09 was elected president, with Mrs. Newton C. Wing '05, and W. T. C. Spiker '00, vice-presidents, and Charles D. Orme '17, secretary-treasurer.

The Cornell Club of Birmingham was the third club to be born in as many days. Between twenty-five and thirty attended the dinner. The officers of the club are William B. White '08, president; Ernest F. Hettrick '10, vice-president; James DeW. Willcox '07, secretary; and James A. Meissner '19, treasurer.

New Orleans marked the half-way point of the trip, the only city where Coffin spent more than one day. The Cornell meeting was held on Saturday evening, February 17, with forty alumni at the dinner. Talks were given by Professor Henry

S. Jacoby, formerly of the College of Engineering, and Dr. Brandt Van B. Dixon '70, who recently retired as president of Newcome College in New Orleans, as well as by Coffin. The Cornell organization which had formerly existed was revived as the Cornell Club of Louisiana. The new officers are Robert T. Burwell '91, president, and E. L. Aschaffenburg '13, secretary-treasurer.

Two days were spent in Texas, at Houston on February 19 and at Dallas on the 20th. At the dinner in Houston it was voted to organize, the details to be left to a committee of Otis S. Van de Mart '10, George L. Noble '18, and Robert B. Bowles '19. This committee will call a meeting at another date.

The Cornell Club of North Texas was organized at Dallas. William H. Flippen '98 was elected president, with Owen Carter '13 as secretary-treasurer. The executive committee comprises Edward A. Wood '08, Cedric Burgher '13, and Sawnie R. Aldredge '13. Aldredge is this spring completing a term as mayor of the city of Dallas.

At the dinner in Tulsa on February 21 the Cornell Club of Oklahoma, which was organized only a year ago, was represented by forty per cent of the Cornellians of the state. The party of forty-five comprised Cornell men and women, with wives of some of the men. Herbert D. Mason '00 presided as president of the club.

The last two clubs to be formed came as the result of meetings in Little Rock and Memphis on February 22 and 23. The new Cornell Club of Arkansas has as its officers Henry H. Tucker '09, president, and Thomas N. Doyle '12, secretary-treasurer. Bryan M. Eagle '19 is president of the new Cornell Club of Memphis, with William F. Moffitt '14, as secretary-treasurer. Additional members of the executive committee are Harry N. Howe '04, Frank A. Mantel '06, and George S. Miles '17.

The trip came to a close on Saturday noon, with a luncheon at the University Club in Cincinnati of the Cornell Association of Southern Ohio.

SEAMAN '72 GIVES PRIZES

Dr. Louis L. Seaman '72 has established five prizes which will be awarded this year to the undergraduate members of the R. O. T. C. who have made the best records in each of the five units of the Corps. By the terms of Major Seaman's gift $50 will be awarded in the Infantry and in the Artillery Units, while the Signal Corps, Ordnance, and Veterinary Units will each have $25, making a total of $175. The prizes will be administered by the Army officers at the head of these units under the direction of the Commandant, Colonel J. C. Nicholls.

Dr. Seaman has been a distinguished practitioner of medicine for many years and has served in nine wars on every continent of the world. His medical career includes service as head of various civilian and military hospitals, a trip around the world with special study in Indian hospitals of contagious and epidemic diseases, and as delegate to a number of international medical congresses. He served as Major and surgeon in the Spanish-American War, with the Japanese Army at the Manchurian front in 1905, and as correspondent of The Independent at the front in the European War. He was decorated with the Belgian Order of Leopold.

Besides being a Trustee of the University, Major Seaman is emeritus president of the China Society of America, president of the British War Relief Association, and United States Trustee of the Sulgrave Institution of England, the ancestral home of George Washington. He has written extensively on medical and military subjects, and has always been intensely interested in training the youth of this country in patriotism.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

Yonkers Club Smokes

About fifty members of the Cornell Club of Yonkers attended a smoker at the home of the president, Egbert J. Moore '99, on February 5. Frederick R. Slater '94, the club's first president, outlined the part that the Yonkers Club would take in the newly formed Cornell Association of Westchester County, and President Moore told the plans of the club for the year. Slides of the Campus and Cornell songs led by Percy W. Simpson '98 were followed by a radio concert broadcast especially for the smoker by Station WRW, the Tarrytown Radio Research Laboratory.

The president appointed the following committee to cooperate with the Westchester Interscholastic Athletic Association: Fred P. Schlieter '16, chairman, Herbert L. Trube '08, and Ivan C. Dresser '19.

New York Plans Its Drive

At a special meeting held at the Cornell Club of New York on Friday evening, February 16th, general approval of the plans for the new club rooms at 38th Street and Madison Avenue was expressed by the more than 100 members in attendance. Slides showing the plans for furnishing and decorating were exhibited and illustrated booklets describing the new club house and plans for the future were distributed.

Neal D. Becker '05, president of the club, presided over the meeting. J. Dugald White '10, chairman of the special membership committee explained the plans for a membership drive which will include a special campaign in each class. From this drive it is expected that 1,000 new members of the club will be accepted. Jansen Noyes '10, chairman of the finance committee, outlined the financial plan for furnishing the new club house, which includes a $100,000 issue of 6% sinking fund bonds. This amount will provide for the comparable to the best New York clubs. The funds from this bond issue will be used to decorate and furnish the club floor only. The sleeping rooms will be furnished by the owners of the building. In a circular describing this issue, it is said that nothing will be spared to make the new quarters of the club among the most attractive in the city of New York. A sinking fund is provided which should retire the entire issue by maturity.

At the conclusion of Noyes's talk the first one to volunteer a subscription was E. N. Sanderson '87, who subscribed for $3,000 of the bond issue and in addition, $1,000 towards the expenses of a house warming next autumn when the club opens its doors.

Francis Y. Joannes '01, the architect appointed by the board of governors of the club to draw the plans for the Cornell Club rooms, gave an illustrated talk describing the advantages of the new club.

John W. Ross '19 and W. H. Whittemore '21 entertained the members with stunts following the business meeting.

During the business meeting a resolution was passed authorizing the board of governors to suspend the initiation fee and dues at its discretion and at a meeting of the board of governors immediately following the business meeting, a resolution was passed suspending the initiation fee for the period of a membership campaign lasting until July 1st and also allowing new members the privileges of the club until January 1, 1924 upon payment of dues for the six months from July 1, 1923 to January 1, 1924. With these added inducements, it is believed that a large number of Cornell men in the metropolitan district and all over the country will become members before July 1.

Michigan Banquet Bully

The annual banquet of the Cornell University Association of Michigan, held at the University Club in Detroit on February 21, was an outstanding success. The entertainers included Romeyn Berry '04 and Professor Charles L. Durham '99, imported from Ithaca, Alfred W. Conklin '10, famous in his undergraduate days as a mandolin manipulator, and John L. Dole '18 of Chicago, who performed on the piano.

"Rym" and "Bull" offset each other effectively. The manager of athletics laid aside the carefully prepared essay on student life which he had prepared with the assistance of his colleague Professor Durham, and spoke in confidence of the hopes and aspirations of the Athletic Association. The professor of Latin sketched the part which Cornell men have played in the development of the country, and emphasized that the real spirit of Cornell is not at Ithaca but wherever alumni are.

Harold Hastings '10 was toastmaster of the evening. Henry H. Sanger '91 was general chairman. The only disappointment of the evening was the inability of Coach Fielding H. Yost of the University of Michigan to make the necessary train connections.

New England Meets Team

The Cornell Club of New England held its annual dinner with the track team at the Hotel Lenox, Boston, before the Harvard-Dartmouth Track Meet last Saturday. This time it was called the "High Ball Special."

Little Speaks in Cleveland

Bascom Little '01 was the speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Cleveland Club on Washington's Birthday at the Hotel Statler. The announcement of the meeting asked all Cornellians to "Bask-a-Little in the sunshine of the wit, smiles, and fluent oratory of Cornell's own Bascom Little '01."

Syracuse Hears Psychologist

Professor Paul J. Kruse of the College of Agriculture spoke on mental tests before the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Cornell Club of Syracuse, held at the Onondaga Hotel on February 8. He said that although the full possibilities of mental tests have not yet been fully worked out, they are useful in discovering students of both superior and inferior ability, and to support or eliminate such theories as whether students entering college from private schools have most ability; whether self-supporting students have more ability than others; and whether there is a difference in mental ability between fraternity and non-fraternity groups.

The club elected the following officers for the ensuing year: William P. Baker '91, president; Livingston M. Whitwell '00, vice-president; Elwyn L. Smith '17, secretary and treasurer; and John B. Tuck '93, Raymond W. Barnes '15, and Harold Edwards '14, directors.

Ithaca Women Active

Members of the Cornell Women's Club of Ithaca and their guests heard a series of talks on "Who's Who Among Cornell Women" in the Sage College drawing room on Washington's Birthday. The speakers were Martha Van Rensselaer '09, Mary Fowler '82, Mrs. George R. Chamberlain (Grace W. Caldwell) '92, Mrs. Blin S. Cushman (Jessie R. Manley) '96, Mary V. Waite '05, and Mrs. Clark S. Northup (Carrie L. Myers) '96.

The speakers mentioned Mrs. Julia Thomas Irvine '75, M. Carey Thomas '77, Kate Gleason '88, Mrs. Mary Relihan Brown '93, Mrs. Harriet Tilden Moody '76, Harriet May Mills '79, Mrs. Anna Botsford Comstock '85, Ruth Putnam '78, Emma N. Bassett '84, Mrs. Florence Kelly '82, Mrs. Margaret Mooney Milmoie '86, Dr. Georgia L. White '96, Dr. Mary Crawford Schuster '04, Bertha Stoneman '92, and Mrs. Gertrude S. Martin '00.

The series will be continued at the March meeting of the Club.

On February 21, the Ithaca women heard Alexey Vasilyevich Babine '92, recently returned from Russia, who spoke before the luncheon in Barnes Hall on conditions in that country.

Binghamton Banquet Next

The Cornell Club of Binghamton will hold its annual banquet on March 3. The speakers will include Dean Kimball of the College of Engineering, and Edgar L. Kaw 23, football captain. The Glee Club quintette will perform.

On February 20, Professor Bristow Adams spoke at a joint meeting of Cornell and Pennsylvania alumni at Binghamton, stressing the advantage which a professor has in reinvesting in friendships year by year, whereas most men are likely to lose their capital of friendships as the years pass.

Rochester Studies Religion

At the regular luncheon meeting of the Rochester Cornell Club held on February 14 in the Powers Hotel, the Rev. William C. Nelson assistant minister of Westminster Presbyterian Church, spoke on "The Evolution of Religion."

New York Women to Meet

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of New York will be held on Saturday, March 19, at 2.30 p. m. at the New York League of Girls' Clubs, 15 East 60th Street. Dr. J. E. Robbins, head of the College Settlement, will talk about that work. Tea will be served. All Cornell women are cordially invited.

Pittsburgh Hears Doctors

Dr. Alexander Mann, Episcopal Bishop of Pittsburgh, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of Pittsburgh men held February 16 at the William Penn Hotel. Dr. Mann has only recently become bishop of the diocese and gave an interesting talk on what he hoped to accomplish. Incidentally, being a graduate of Hobart, he told those present how the Hobart men came over to Ithaca one afternoon and defeated Cornell in baseball in what was intended to be a practice game for Cornell.

Dr. W. T. Root of the University of Pittsburgh delivered a talk on "The Value of the Psychological Test" at the luncheon February 23. Although the Arts men claimed it was somewhat over the heads of the engineers present, Dr. Root had his subject well in hand and gave some interesting results of the test applied to the present freshman class at Pittsburgh.

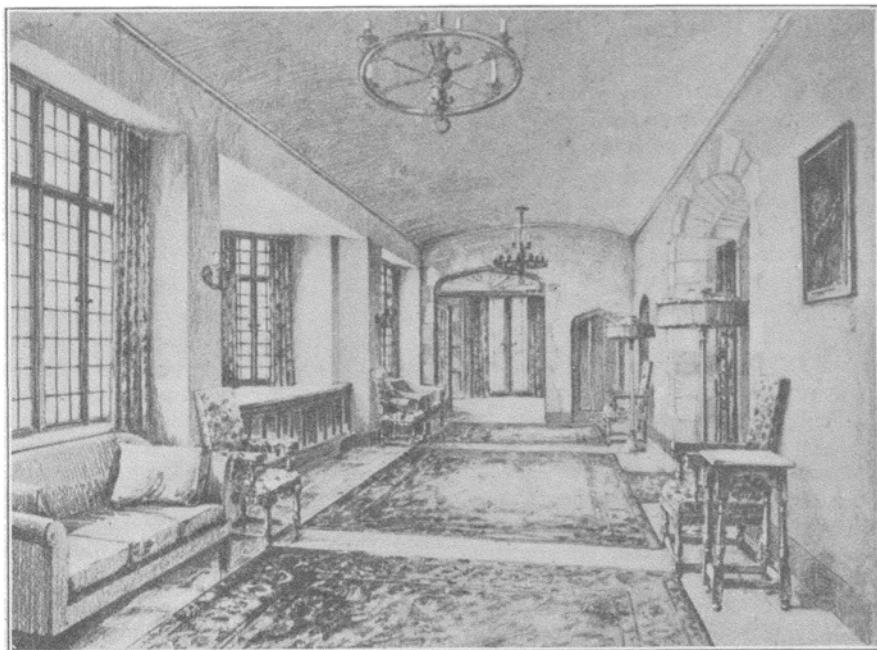

Friday, March 2, will be Visitors' Day at the Pittsburgh luncheon. Each man is supposed to bring a guest, preferably a college man, and the entertainment committee is working on some special stunts.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

OREGON AGRICULTURAL College has adopted the Dix Reunion Plan.

THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN is having another of its periodical bursts of publicity about radicalism, in connection with the censorship of a student paper called The Scorpion, edited in part by David Sinclair, son of Upton.

THE PHYSICS Laboratory of the University of Toronto scored a great triumph when Professor J. C. McLennan, head of the physics department, and his assistant, G. M. Schrum, recently succeeded in liquefying helium gas under circumstances which will be commercially useful. Being non-inflammable and non-explosive, it is the ideal filler for dirigibles and captive balloons. It is interesting to note, moreover, that while a temperature of -200 degrees centigrade is obtainable with liquid air, a temperature of -272 degrees has been attained with liquid helium; this is within one degree of absolute zero.

LOUNGE GALLERY, NEW YORK CORNELL CLUB

This room will serve for office, reception, and waiting room, with its windows facing the south, and will connect the lounge at its west end with the main dining room at the other.

SPORT STUFF

Here it is March and the basketball team is still leading the league even though it can constantly feel Yale's hot breath on its quivering flanks.

It has been years since Cornell has been a contender at this game after the middle of the season. Consequently the situation is making the University community feverish and wakeful.

Basketball is an uncertain pastime. Our strategical position is rather good, however, because we wind up the season with three games at home—Columbia on the 6th, Yale on the 10th and Dartmouth on the 17th. The Drill Hall isn't going to be a bit too large for these contests.

After their respective tours to the coast and the sunny south President Farrand and Foster Coffin have returned to Ithaca. This is the first time I've ever found either of them using bad judgment. You know what Ithaca is in March, melting ice, rain, and fog! (Loud and repeated calls for Professor Bancroft, the cloud dispeller to do his little stunt.)

LOUIS FUERTES PRAISES MASQUE

Editor, ALUMNI NEWS:

I do not think that any of the notices of the Masque show, "Ulysses of Ithaca," have fairly represented the offering this year. In my opinion and that of many with whom I've discussed it, the Masque deserves unreserved credit, first for discontinuing the competition with the Messrs. Shubert in the production of the Broadway musical show—doomed before birth to the ridicule of anybody over twenty on its demerits alone—and second for the presentation of a really original, highly amusing, and beautifully staged comedy, to my mind exactly suited to the occasion, the place, and the audience. Of course, as always in Junior week, the last entered talking and laughing loudly, and rattled chairs and Adam's apples profusely all during the first act. The essential prologue which gave key to the whole play was witnessed by only a third of the audience, as the visitors didn't begin to arrive till about nine o'clock.

The Masque, it seems to me, deserves a warm hand for its noble and, I think, effective effort to snap out of its long history of impossible plays and present a real playlet that carries with it a memory of something besides baritone soubrettes, pink cotton tights, spavined knees, and basketball feet, and of having produced instead a really amusing play, exquisitely staged.

Such faults as invariably accompany a single-performance show were of course there for the critics, but less in evidence than is usually the case. A more snappy finale would have helped. Words for a fine closing were written, but, nobody coming through with a tune, they had to do without it.

Milliken's stage design was nothing less than a stroke of genius, and his almost single-handed production of it the charette of the season. It helped enormously toward the success of the show, but even with a less beautiful background the Masque would have set a new mark, and is to be warmly congratulated. As I was never on the Masque, and have at times been a fierce critic, I take pleasure at least in rendering homage where (and when) homage is due.

BRIEF UNIVERSITY NEWS

HAROLD W. STRATHMAN '24, of Rochester, has been added to the board of editors of The Cornell Law Quarterly.

JOHN H. LAWRENCE '09 spoke recently before the Cornell chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers on the new Hell Gate power plant.

THE EASTMAN PRIZE for public speaking, contested before a Farmers' Week audience, was won by W. A. Flanagan '25, of New York City, who answered the question, "Is an Agricultural College Worth While?" Second place was won by Lawrence B. Pryor '23, of Memphis, Tennessee, who discussed "The Place of the Negro in Southern Agriculture"; and honorable mention was accorded Florence L. Becker '23, of Brooklyn, for a talk on junior extension.

COLONEL WILLIAM G. ATWOOD '92 and Herman von Schrenck '93 recently visited Ithaca for the purpose of consulting with Cornell chemists and foresters about methods of combating the effects of the teredo, a marine borer which honeycombs timbers used for wharves and piling.

FACULTY NOTES

DR. RALPH M. HOLMES of the Department of Physics is working on a new way of generating electricity directly from heat, which was the subject of his address at the science meetings in Boston during the holidays.

PROFESSOR FILIBERT ROTH, formerly of the Cornell College of Forestry, and for many years head of the department of forestry in the University of Michigan, has resigned his chair, but will remain at work until the end of the current year.

DEAN WALTER L. NILES '02, of the Medical College in New York, was one of the "leading medical men of the State" invited to confer with Governor Smith on February 26 with a view to formulating a health program for New York. The topics discussed included narcotic drug control, medical service in rural districts, standards of medical education and research, and the enforcement of the Medical Practice Act.

PRESIDENT FARRAND is to be one of the speakers at the fiftieth anniversary session of the National Conference of Social Work, to be held in Washington May 16 to 23. Five thousand delegates are expected. Dr. Farrand will speak at the general session on the day devoted to health on "The Place of Health in a Social Program."

PROFESSOR NATHANIEL SCHMIDT has been asked to take the directorship, for at least a year, of the Archeological Institute of Palestine. He has been working with the Institute for some time in deciphering and interpreting inscriptions sent to him.

THE LOUNGE, CORNELL CLUB OF NEW YORK

With French windows opening on a terrace which overlooks Madison Avenue, the Club's largest room, with the library at one end and the game room at the other, occupy the whole west side of the building.

MAJOR Seaman, in offering five prizes for the best records made by members of the Cadet Corps, furthers a cause that is dear to his heart. The Major has always been willing to spend more than he could spare of both effort and money for the instilling of patriotism and of interest in military affairs. This is not the popular occupation it was five years ago, but there are many clear thinkers who agree with him that the recent war is not likely to be our last. If so it is essential that Cornell's record of readiness for service be maintained.

If, then, this year's essays turn out to be worth the prizes they win, it is hoped that a means will be found to perpetuate the idea thus given shape by Dr. Seaman, looking to the establishment of a permanent prize of some such sort.

THE DEANS' REPORTS

We continue our summaries of the recent reports of the Deans for 1921-2.

Dean Moore of the Veterinary College reports that "the veterinary profession is undergoing a very rapid evolution. Its artisans are passing from 'tinkers' of animals suffering from disease and injury to constructive leaders in live stock sanitation. The veterinarian is no longer the occasional adviser of breeders but he is becoming the counselor whose advice is most sought and most heeded. This change in the purpose of the profession calls for continuous readjustment in the curriculum and methods of teaching."

There were 79 undergraduate students registered and five graduates. The teaching of obstetrics, medicine, and surgery has been aided by large clinics. "In the ambulatory clinic, there were 3,400 cases; in the consulting and surgical clinic, there were 1,053; and in the small animal clinic, 1,000 cases. They include practically all the diseases of the lower animals encountered in this latitude. The relatively small number of students made it possible for each to have exceptionally valuable practical experience. The teaching of obstetrics has been improved by placing it in the Department of Medicine and Ambulatory Clinic, where there is an abundance of material for practical instruction."

Since the veterinarian cannot specialize as can the practitioner in human medicine, the College must furnish instruction adequate for all the so-called specialties. Many pieces of research are being carried on. Construction is soon to be started on the south wing of James Law Hall. The appropriation for the maintenance of the College by the Legislature was $110,960, or $5,000 more than for the previous year.

Dean Bosworth reports that the transfer of the Department of Landscape Architecture from the College of Agriculture to the College of Architecture on July 1, has furnished the most important of the educational problems confronting the College during the year. In solving the problem the Faculty has definitely attempted to coordinate and amalgamate the work of the architect and of the landscape architect to as great a degree as possible. The College now has a five-year course for B.Arch., being the first of the American architectural colleges to go upon such a basis. The problem facing the College for the next few years will be largely that of making all its work cohesive and eliminating the danger of what might be called eccentricity in so small a college.

Dean Kimball reports that the consolidation of the engineering work into a single college has worked well and no changes of importance have been made or are contemplated. Minor adjustments have been made in a fine spirit of harmony and without interrupting the work of any of the constituent groups. The College now admits only students who present the full fifteen units for entrance. The School of Civil Engineering is sadly in need of better housing, having outgrown its present quarters. The School of Mechanical Engineering, with 12 professors, 10 assistant professors, and 41 instructors, is in need of more teachers of the higher ranks, and the same is true of the School of Electrical Engineering, which has 2 professors, 3 assistant professors, and 19 instructors. The latter school also needs a properly equipped laboratory building. The whole College needs more up-to-date equipment. A considerable amount of research has been completed during the year, partly through the help of the Heckscher Foundation.

The Administrative Board of the Summer Session reports that the attendance in 1921 was 2,557, of whom forty-three per cent were men. Of the total number there were 1870 in the Summer Session proper and 924 in the Summer School of Agriculture (with 237 double registrations). There were 452 students in the Department of Music. The income was $66,199.91; expense, $52,497.05; balance, $13,702.86. The trend of registration indicates that the earning capacity of the Music Department, which has now been withdrawn, was only slightly greater than that of the remainder of the Session; also that the Summer Session will continue to be self-supporting.

The Dean of Women reports that in Ithaca there were 1,155 women. Of these 667 were in Arts, 386 in Agriculture, 8 in Medicine, 8 in Engineering, 19 in Architecture, 7 in Law, 2 in Veterinary Science, and 64 in the Graduate School. During the first term 39.17 per cent of the women lived in residential halls, 16.46 per cent in approved houses, 1.76 per cent worked for room and board, and 18.21 per cent lived in sorority houses. 350 women did some sort of remunerative work during the year. The Self-Government Association had a busy year, and did essentially constructive and forward-looking work. A committee of the Association helped the Dean to carry on work in vocational guidance. A questionnaire was sent to 3,600 alumnae and former students asking for information concerning their own training and experience; the response has been gratifying but is not yet sufficiently complete to make statistics based upon it of great value.

The Registrar reports that the University was in session, during the regular year, 208 days. Of the matriculates 600 entered on school certificates, 527 on Regents', 8 on University examinations, and 22 on College Board examinations. The total attendance for the year was 7,980, of whom 5,345 were men. The total number of degrees conferred was 2,378, which brings the total number of degrees conferred since the opening to 23,640.

The Librarian reports that during the year there were added to the Library 20,722 volumes; this brings the total number of volumes to 671,352. The number of periodicals received was 2,132, of which 750 were kept on open shelves. 22,008 cards were added to the catalogue. The Library was open for users on 308 days. The list of publications by the University and the members of the staff fills about twenty-four pages. The number of names represented is 237, or 23.7 per cent of the entire staff of instruction.

DEAN GEORGE G. BOGERT 'c6 and Professor Charles K. Burdick of the Law School recently attended a meeting in Washington to establish a permanent organization for the improvement of the law, through a study of the defects of American jurisprudence and a recommendation of remedies to overcome them.

Defeat Penn State

The game with Penn State last Thursday was one of the closest of the home season, the varsity finally winning by a score of 27 to 25. State came to Ithaca undefeated; for a time it looked as if they would maintain that record. They led at half time by a score of 17 to 12, having outplayed Cornell with the help of two long baskets and superior foul shooting by Reed.

In the second half, however, the Cornell five proved again that it was never beaten until the game ended; it had the skill and courage to come up from behind and by the time this period was half over, had drawn even with State. The last ten minutes were packed with tense moments. With about five minutes to go, Reed sent State ahead with two fouls and a field basket, to a score of 24 to 23; but Luther's field basket and foul put Cornell ahead again and Capron's splendid dribble and goal gave Cornell twenty-seven points, Loeffler caged a basket for State just before time was called, but Cornell had won.

The summary shows that Cornell scored twelve field baskets to eight for State, but Reed's foul shooting nearly proved Cornell's undoing. State played cleanly and carefully, Luther having only a few opportunities at fouls, making only three out of five. The line-up and summary:

Cornell (27)		Penn State (25)
Capron.....	L.F.	Gehr
Wedell.....	R.F.	Reed
Luther.....	C.	Shair
Crabtree.....	L.G.	Koehler
Maier.....	R.G.	Loeffler

Goals from floor: Cornell, Wedell 5, Luther 3, Capron 3, Crabtree; Penn State, Gehr 5, Reed 4, Loeffler.

Foul goals: Luther, 3 out of 5, Reed, 3 out of 11.

Substitutions: Curnell, Byron for Maier, Maier for Byron.

Referee: Campbell of Rochester.
 Umpire, Bloss of Rochester.

Wrestlers Win Twice

The wrestling team won two matches in its week-end trip to New York taking Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute into camp Friday by a score of 24 to 0 and downing Columbia in a closely fought match Saturday by a score of 13 to 11.

In Brooklyn the team had a fairly easy time. Ackles, in the 115-pound class, wrestled to a draw. McWilliams won the 125-pound class by time advantage while Ayau secured a fall in the 135-pound affair. Hall won his match in the 145 by forfeit and Burr took the 158-pound match by a fall. Hanson in a hard match won a decision in the 175-pound division, and Captain Wright secured a fall in the heavy-weight.

In the Columbia meet McWilliams, after winning a time decision in the 125-pound class, entered the 135-pound match in place of Ayau, injured the day before and though his opponent won on time advantage the Cornellian avoided a fall and thus saved the day for his team. The surprise of this meet was the victory of Hall, who threw Captain Johnson of Columbia, Intercollegiate champion in the 158-pound class.

The summary of the Columbia meet:

115-pound class: Rite, of Columbia, won from Ackles, of Cornell, on referee's decision. Time advantage 2:58.

125-pound class: McWilliams, of Cornell, won from Reisner, of Columbia, on referee's decision. Time advantage 3:45.

135-pound class: Schwartz, of Columbia, won from McWilliams, of Cornell. Time advantage 4:30.

145-pound class: Donohue, of Columbia, threw Hall, of Cornell (rolling hold). Time 2:37.

158-pound class: Burr, of Cornell, threw Johnson, of Columbia, (body hold and half-nelson). Time 4:46.

175-pound class: Draw between Hanson, of Cornell, and Parsonnet, of Columbia.

Unlimited class: Wright, of Cornell, threw Blaine, of Columbia (chancery hold). Time 0:62.

Referees: Jackel, Williams, and Morgan, Navy.

Dartmouth Wins Meet

The track team finished in second place in the triangular meet at Boston last Saturday, which was won by Dartmouth. The score was: Dartmouth 50, Cornell 38, and Harvard 28.

Dartmouth had the better balanced team of the three.

Cornell's showing was about what Coach Moakley had expected from a team that contains not many first class, experienced athletes. Lovejoy won the 40-yard dash equaling the record for these games of 4 4-5 seconds. Kirby won a creditable victory in the mile and followed that by giving Burke of Harvard a real battle in the 1,000-yard race. Bonsal beat Young of Dartmouth to the tape by three yards in a driving finish in the two-mile run. These three were the only first places captured by Cornell.

Second places were taken by Niles in the 40-yard dash; Crozier, who lost to Burke, the Harvard star, by five yards in the 600-yard run; Kirby, who ran second to Burke in the 1,000-yard run; Gouinlock, who tied with Skiles of Dartmouth at twelve feet in the pole vault and won the toss for the medal; Nichols, who cleared 5 feet 11 1/2 inches in the high jump; Mott-Smith in the shot put, and Bullen in the mile.

The Cornell relay team, composed of Rosenthal, Coville, Coykendall, and Crozier, finished second to Dartmouth in the varsity relay race. Cornellians taking third places were Bowen in the shot put and Weissenburger in the 35-pound weight event. The freshman relay team finished third.

In the 300-yard run Righter, one of Cornell's best entries, was eliminated when he fell at the turn, and Treman fell at the last hurdle while leading in his trial heat. Cornell thus failed to score in the 300 and hurdles and also was shut out of the broad jump. Libbey of Dartmouth set a new pole vault mark for this meet of 12 feet 5 3/4 inches. This performance, the running of Burke of Harvard, Kirby, Bonsal and Lovejoy of Cornell and Brown of Dartmouth's high jumping were the high lights of the meet.

The team competes in the indoor intercollegiate games in New York Saturday.

Hockey Ties Pennsylvania

The hockey team managed to tie Pennsylvania in the final game of the season, played at Philadelphia last Wednesday. Burnett of Cornell scored twice in the first eight minutes of play. Cornell retained this lead until the close of the third period when Pennsylvania scored twice, the last time within less than a minute of the end.

FRAUDULENT CORNELLIAN?

This is the man arrested at Columbus, Indiana, and now serving a term in the State Prison, whom the police believe to be the same who used the name "Professor Amos Churchill, of the Cornell Athletic Department" to aid him in cashing bogus checks. He gave the police the names J. S. Gilman and J. S. Wheeler when arrested.

Three overtime periods were played without result, the game ending 2 to 2.

The Cornell hockey team lost to Harvard in the Boston Arena on February 17, by a score of 5 to 0. Harvard has one of the best hockey teams in the Intercollegiate world, and in team work, skating, and speed they were superior to the Cornell five, which was playing its first game on artificial ice.

Fencers Defeated

Yale won a triangular fencing meet with the Army and Cornell at West Point Saturday. The score was Yale, 24, Army 18, and Cornell 6.

Freshmen Lose and Win

The freshman basketball team defeated the Columbia yearlings in New York last Saturday; score 28 to 15.

The Pennsylvania freshman wrestlers defeated the Cornell cubs Saturday in the Drill Hall by a score of 21 to 9.

The freshman basketball team lost to the Pennsylvania freshmen by a score of 26 to 19 in the Drill Hall on February 17.

The freshman wrestling team lost by one point in a match with the Lehigh yearlings at South Bethlehem on the 17th the score being 16 to 15.

OBITUARY

William H. Prentiss '74

William Herbert Prentiss, for many years editor and part owner of The New Hampshire Sentinel, published in Keene, N. H., died in that city on February 10, six weeks before his seventieth birthday.

Mr. Prentiss was born in Keene on March 22, 1853, son of John William and Eleanor (May) Prentiss. He was well born. His grandfather, the Hon. John Prentiss, founded the Sentinel in 1799, and after being connected with that paper for seventy-four years, first as editor and proprietor, and then as a contributor, died in 1873 at the age of ninety-four years. His father was connected with the paper until he was hopelessly paralyzed when William was but five years old, and he died soon after. His uncle, Commodore George Aldrich Prentiss, was a distinguished Naval officer of the Civil War. His maternal grandfather May was a bookseller, publisher, and author of "A History of Evesham, England," where he lived until coming to America.

Prentiss attended the public schools of Keene until 1867, when he was sent to the Greenfield, Mass., High School. While there he lived in the family of the Rev. John F. Moors, D.D., a prominent Unitarian minister, and paid his board and tuition by helping in the family duties and in caring for the garden.

Attracted to Cornell, as many of the early Cornellians who have become prominent were attracted, by the promise of employment, he came to Ithaca in 1869, but failing to pass the entrance examinations, attended Professor Kinne's preparatory school for a year, and entered with the class of 1874. He lived much of the time in Ithaca in the family of Mr. Williams of The Ithaca Democrat, and became interested in the printing business. After a short time he gave up the struggle to work his way through college, entered the Democrat office as a compositor, and began his life work as a newspaper man.

He returned to Keene during the year and entered the Sentinel office, with which paper he was connected, except for a short time when he was with Mudge and Son and Rand and Avery, Boston printers, until obliged to leave by sickness in September last. He bought a third interest in that paper in 1883 and was city editor from that time until shortly before his death.

He was a charter member of the Keene Light Guards and later a lieutenant; a member of the Unitarian Church, of which he was for several years clerk and a trustee; an early and active member of the Keene Commercial Club; and one of the founders of the Cheshire County Telephone Company, which built the first exchange in Keene; and was prominent in promoting progressive improvements in his community.

He was married on November 21, 1892, to Miss Mary Adams Hurd. Besides his widow he leaves a daughter, Mary Eleanor, now a teacher in Walnut Hill School, Natick, Mass., and a son, John William, who is connected with the Sentinel, making the fourth generation of a family that has been closely associated with that paper for a hundred and twenty-four years.

While Mr. Prentiss's stay was brief, he was one who early heard the Cornell call and during a long and active career worked for the upbuilding of his community, maintained a high standard of business and personal integrity and, with the Cornell get-there spirit, achieved an honored position in his home city.

E. V. WILSON '72

Mr. Wilson's acquaintance with Mr. Prentiss began after he had left Cornell, and while he was reading law in Keene. Mr. Prentiss was ill with typhoid fever and Mr. Wilson was one of those who watched over him during that illness, as it was before the day of trained nurses. Naturally this brought them into close relationship, and Mr. Wilson has written the above sketch largely from his personal knowledge of the man.—Ed.

William E. Tuttle, Jr., '91

William Edgar Tuttle, Jr., former Congressman and prominent New Jersey politician, died at his home in Westfield, N. J., on February 11, after an illness of several months. Last August he was about to announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor when he was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism. Complications developed and blood transfusions were recommended, several of which were given, without success.

Tuttle was born in Horseheads, N. Y., on December 10, 1870, a son of William E. and Frances M. Boreham Tuttle. He attended the public schools of Horseheads, and the Elmira Free Academy, from which he was graduated in 1887. Entering Cornell, in the course in science, he remained two years. For a short time he was engaged in the lumber business in Horseheads, and in 1897 he went to Westfield, where he and his brother, A. D. Tuttle, purchased a lumber business and organized the firm of Tuttle Brothers. Mr. A. D. Tuttle has succeeded to his brother's interests and will continue the business under its present name.

Tuttle entered New Jersey politics at the age of twenty-eight, when he attended the Democratic State Convention in 1898 as a delegate, and was made chairman of the rules committee in that body which nominated Elvin Crane for Governor. In 1910, while chairman of the Democratic County Committee he was nominated and elected to Congress, being reelected in 1912. He was a candidate for reelection in 1914 and 1916, but was defeated, although running ahead of the ticket each time. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Conventions of 1908 and 1918. In 1915 he was selected by President Wilson as commissioner of the United States to the National Exposition of Panama. By appointment of Governor Edge Mr. Tuttle became a member of the State Board of Conservation and Development in 1918, and in 1921, he was chosen by Governor Edwards for the post of State Commissioner of Banking and Insurance. During the war he served as a director of the Northern American Exploration Company of Passaic, and the New Brunswick Chemical Company of New Brunswick, and was receiver of the C. & C. Electric and Manufacturing Company, of Garwood, which he placed on a money-making basis.

Mr. Tuttle had always taken an interest in Westfield civic affairs; he was president of the Memorial Commission, and of the Westfield Civic Association, and an exempt fireman, and had served as a member of the Free Public Library. He was one of the organizers of the People's Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, of which he was vice-president and a director, a director of the Mutual Building and Loan Association, and the Lumber Mutual Casualty Company of New York, and president of the New Jersey Lumbermen's Association.

He had been president of the Westfield Club, and at the time of his death he was a member of the Shackamaxon Country Club, the Echo Lake Golf Club, and the Baltusrol Golf Club of Westfield, the Cosmos Club of Washington, D. C., and the Carteret Club of Trenton. He was a member of Atlas Lodge, F. and A. M., and the Masonic Club of Westfield, and was actively identified with the Congregational Church, having served on the board of trustees.

He was unmarried; he is survived by a brother, Arthur D. Tuttle of Westfield, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas H. Judson of Horseheads, N. Y.

Frederick C. Fabel '96

Frederick Charles Fabel died in Philadelphia on January 25, following a surgical operation. He had been ill for many months, as the result of an ulcerated tooth, but last fall his condition seemed to improve; and it was thought that he would recover.

Fabel was born in Louisville, Ky., on May 16, 1874, the son of August and Theresa Good Fabel, and a nephew of Richard Good of Paris, who was decorated as a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for distinguished service in the Franco-Prussian War. His early education was received in Paris, and he prepared for college in the famous old Chickering Institute in Cincinnati. In 1889 he entered the University of Rochester, receiving the degree of B.A. when he was but nineteen years old. In 1893 he came to Cornell, taking the course in electrical engineering, and remained three years. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi, Aleph Samach, and Bench and Board.

For six years after leaving college he practiced engineering in Cleveland and Cincinnati, removing to Hackettstown, N. J., in 1903 where, with his cousin, Robert Good, he organized the Lackawanna Leather Company, an industrial enterprise of considerable magnitude, of which he was secretary-treasurer. He returned to Cincinnati in 1910 as secretary-treasurer of the Aldine Company, and soon succeeded his father as vice-president of the American Oak Leather Company of that city. He was also treasurer and general manager of the company at the time of his death.

He had been a director of a number of tanning and leather organizations, and rendered valuable services to the War Industries Board of the United States during the War.

He was a member of the Cornell Club of Southern Ohio, the Alpha Delta Phi Club of New York, the University Club, the Queen City Club, the Business Men's Club, the Chamber of Commerce, and a number of social and athletic clubs of Cincinnati.

He leaves his widow, Mina Keggan Fabel, whom he married in 1904.

TEACHERS COLLEGE, Columbia, of which Dr. James E. Russell '87 is dean, has lately secured gifts amounting to three millions, and will use two millions for a new building and one million for endowment. There were 3,200 donors "who know Teachers College from personal contact and have given with a full heart in appreciation of what the college means to them." In 1897 the college had 169 students; last year there were 4,247, from the forty-eight States, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippines, and thirty-seven foreign countries. More than 50,000 former students are in the field, including twenty-four college and university presidents.

LITERARY REVIEW

Our Resources in Clays

High-Grade Clays of the Eastern United States, with Notes on Some Western Clays. By Heinrich Ries, W. S. Bayley, and Others. Washington. Government Printing Office. 1922. 24 cm., pp. xiv, 314. 38 Illustrations. Department of the Interior, U. S. Geological Survey, Bulletin 7c8.

Before the War began in 1914, the United States had been large importers of high grade clays for the manufacture of white-ware pottery, floor and wall tiles, electrical porcelain, paper, graphite crucibles, glass refractories, linoleum, paint, etc. In 1914 the value of these imports exceeded two and one-fourth millions. The quantity fell off during the War, but in 1920 had jumped up to four millions. Ninety per cent of this was English kaolin or china clay.

With the entry of the United States into the War in 1918, anxiety arose in the clay-using industries over a possible deficiency of clay. In the summer of 1918, therefore, the field investigations were carried on which are now described in this book. On the whole, the facts concerning the domestic supply of clays are most encouraging. Of the kaolins or white residual clays there are large deposits available; the most evident are in North Carolina and Virginia, but they are somewhat widely distributed throughout America. Not all these clays burn white, but for paper and paint manufacture the color does not matter. Then in the carboniferous rocks there are abundant supplies of refractory clays, which have refractoriness and bonding power that make them valuable for glass refractories, for crucibles in which to melt steel and brass, and to a less extent for the bond of abrasive wheels. There is much of such clay around St. Louis, which has long been an important center of the refractories industry. About half of the book is given to sedimentary clays of the Eastern Coastal Plain (which swings round into the Gulf States) and the Embayment Area, that is, the extension of the Coastal Plain northward in the Mississippi Valley from Mississippi and Texas as far as southern Illinois. The Lower Cretaceous deposits are of especial value, since they contain some of the purest clays found in the Coastal Plain area, which have in part replaced some of the white clays formerly imported from England; unfortunately these deposits are not extensive. The Upper Cretaceous clays are of importance. New Jersey, where they occur extensively, is one of the three leading States in the ceramic industry. Moreover a deposit of clay has been discovered in New Jersey which proved a good substitute for the German Klingenberg clay formerly imported for the manufacture of pencil leads. About ninety per cent of the leads now made in the United States contain this clay. Tertiary clays are widely distributed, but clays of the type included in this volume are found only in South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, and Arkansas. Refractory clays occur in several places in these States.

Manufacturers of vitrified table ware and sanitary ware, hardfire porcelain, chemical porcelain, and linoleum have not yet found it possible to get along without the English clays, but may find a way in time. Electrical porcelain and paper need only a small amount of English clay. White earthenware and floor and wall tiles need no English clay at all, while glass pots, graphite crucibles, abrasive wheels, pencils, and possibly paints need no foreign clay at all.

Possibly one or two more summaries would have added to the usefulness of the volume; but the handling of detail is good. The treatment is systematic, and there is a good index.

Books and Magazine Articles

The Stevens Indicator is now printed by the Cornell Publications Printing Company.

The Rutgers Alumni Monthly for February prints an obituary of the late Professor Louis A. Clinton, '99-'02 Grad., of Rutgers, with a portrait.

In The Cornell Era for February 1 Dr. Leon A. Hausman '14, of Rutgers, has a poem on "Arion."

Dr. Thomas F. Laurie '07 contributes to The Journal of Urology for December a "Report of a Case of Extreme Dilatation of the Ureters." The article, which is illustrated, has been reprinted.

The Harvard Business Review for January contains an article by Malcolm C. Rorty '96 on "Statistical Control of Business Activities."

Morris G. Bishop '13 contributes to The Saturday Evening Post for February 3 a skit on "Preceding Chapters." In the issue for February 10 he has a short article on "The Fascination of the Newspaper Game," in lighter vein.

Francis R. Molther '17 contributes to The Engineering News-Record for December 14 an article on "Plotting Transit Lines by Natural Tangents and Cotangents." The article is illustrated.

In The Survey for January 15 Professor Dwight Sanderson's "The Farmer and His Community" is reviewed by Warren H. Wilson. Professor Charles A. Ellwood's "The Reconstruction of Religion" is reviewed by J. K. H. Mrs. Florence Kelley '82 continues her discussion of "The Right to Differ," replying to a criticism of her former paper.

"Sonnets of the Cross," by Thomas S. Jones, Jr., '04, has just been published in London by the Society of SS. Peter and Paul in a small booklet which forms No. 37 of the Canterbury Books. It contains twenty-six sonnets dealing with various topics and themes connected with Christianity ancient and medieval, in Palestine and in Britain. The beauty of these sonnets is moving to an extreme degree. The author has a sureness of touch that comes only from long and rigorous training. No one who reads these gems can doubt of Jones's calling and election as a poet.

"Temporary Versus Permanent Detail of Specialists: Experience of Army Ordnance Department" by Lieutenant Robert E. Bassler '17, of the Navy, has been reprinted from the Proceedings of the United States Institute for December.

A valuable study of the Icelandic element in America, under the title of "Ís-laenderne i Amerika," by Professor Halldór Hermannsson, forms No. 12 of the "Dansk-Islandsk Samfunds Smaaskrifter," recently published in Copenhagen by Andr. Fred. Hoest og Soens Forlag. It fills 43 pages. The frontispiece is a portrait of Vilhjálmur Stefánsson.

In The Cornell Civil Engineer for February Edward J. Pearson '83, president of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad, gives good "Advice to Young Engineers." Walter J. Ryan '06, civil engineer for the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company of Washington, discusses "Logging Engineering." The cover picture is the Johnny Parson Club House.

"The Poets of the Future," a college anthology edited by Henry T. Schnittkind, of Boston, and recently published, includes one poem written by a Cornellian, Ralph Gordon, Grad., entitled "Hudson." In blank verse it describes a sunny autumn day on the river.

"English Metres" by Professor William Strunk, Jr., Ph.D. '96, is a recent publication that will serve a useful purpose. It is a modest pamphlet of sixty-one pages giving all the needful information about the different kinds of verse, the varieties of metrical feet, rime, etc. The treatment is clear. Experts will not agree, it may be, as to the wisdom of recognizing the double iamb and the double trochee; but then experts never do agree, anyhow. In general the point of view of the writer is conservative. The pamphlet is published by the Cornell Cooperative Society, Ithaca.

In The Classical Weekly for January 29 Professor William L. Westermann reviews Michael Rostovtzeff's "A Large Estate in Egypt Three Centuries B. C.: a Study in Economic History."

In School Science and Mathematics for February Professor Stephen G. Rich, A.M. '15, writes a "Note on the Anti-Evolutionist Attitude."

Modern Language Notes for December includes an article on "Keat's Ode to the Nightingale" by Professor Alexander W. Crawford, Ph.D. '02, of the University of Manitoba.

Professor Everett L. Hunt writes in The Alumni Quarterly of Huron College, of which he is the editor, on "East and West."
