The death of White's daughter in September brought letters from Walter C. Kerr and Horatio S. White, among other Cornellians, and led White to review the financial provision he had made for the remaining members of his family. On October 19th Theodore Stanton suggested a plan of resident tutors to improve the tone of campus fraternity life. He referred to the high quality of the Cosmopolitan Club, and in November a Harvard man wrote for advice about establishing a Cosmopolitan Club at Cambridge. Schurman wrote that in his annual report he was proposing that one year of arts and sciences be required of all candidates in Cornell's professional schools. White and Wheeler were in consultation with the President about a plan for the federal government to establish commerical courses in a number of universities for the benefit of students from South America and the Orient. On December sixth the principal of Ithaca High School proposed the teaching of American history and government in all tax-supported high schools.

Dear ~~Sir:~~ Friend:

Confident that your interest in the National University cause still endures, in spite of the delays consequent on the neglect of faithless chairmen of the Senate's committee, and such prostrating attacks of brain congestion as have made it impossible for me, during the past year and more, to visit the Capitol and bring Chairman Hemenway to a fulfilment of his promises, I am now pleased to inform you that I am again "on my feet", with undiminished purpose, and anxious for another meeting of the Executive Council of the National Committee, at as early a day as will suit their convenience, for an agreement on the course to be pursued during the coming Congress. I have suggestions to offer and questions to ask.

Kindly inform me of the date when you, ~~will~~ could again be in Washington, that I may plan accordingly. The need is great, and the meeting should be both full and earnest.

With great respect,

Your friend and obedient servant,

Hon. Andrew D. White — New Britain, Connecticut, Sep. 19. 1907
Ithaca
New York

Dear Sir:-

Permit us to call your attention to the fact that the citizens of New Britain are planning to erect a suitable memorial to their distinguished townsman--Elihu Burritt--with whose linguistic attainments and philanthropic endeavors you are doubtless familiar.

Fifty years before the first Hague conference was called, this Connecticut scholar was going up and down the world advocating a permanent International Tribunal as the only adequate substitute for war. His plea for a "High Court of Nations" made at Brussels, at Paris, and at Frankfort in 1848, '49 and '50 is familiar to many persons who are to-day promoting the Interparliamentary Union and other agencies for a better international understanding. It is this international character of Mr. Burritt's services which the people of New Britain seek to commemorate and toward which the many nationalities represented in the population of this city are contributing.

Mr. Burritt's services in behalf of better popular education, of the emancipation of the slaves, and of other domestic reforms were signal, but it was as a pioneer in the effort to bring the nations into closer relations by means of a CHEAPER OCEAN POSTAGE and the establishment of an INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL that his services were most distinguished. It is for this reason that the committee ventures to ask the cooperation of all persons interested in any or all of Mr. Burritt's varied activities.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

It is natural that this memorial should be erected in his native town, though his work had far more than local or temporary significance and seems to demand, at this era of the world, wider recognition than it could receive from the people merely of his own town or state.

The names and addresses of the contributors (the amount not mentioned) will be kept in the Burritt Memorial Book, to be placed in the New Britain Public Library. It is hoped that the list may not only be a long, but a significant one, including many nationalities and the names of many persons now identified with the causes for which Mr. Burritt worked with fine, prophetic feeling.

All contributions, however slight, will be gratefully appreciated as expressions of interest and may be sent--in any form most convenient to the sender--to the treasurer, Mr. George S. Talcott, to the assistant treasurer, Miss Harriet C. Bliss, or to any member of the committee.

Very truly yours,

The Burritt Memorial Auxiliary Committee,

Mrs. F. H. / Annie L. Churchill Sec'y.

Extract from a Fourth of July Oration delivered in Boston by Edwin D. Mead in 1903

REFERRING to the International Peace Congresses held at Brussels (1848), Paris (1849), and Frankfort (1850), Mr. Mead said: "The impulse to these historic International Congresses came from ELIHU BURRITT – venerable name—who was the original and the chief organizing force. His word at Brussels, at Paris, at Frankfort, at London, was the strong constructive word. 'A High Court of Nations!'—that was always his one definite demand, in 'the same old speech,' as Dr. Hale used to denominate his own speech at Mohonk year after year demanding the 'Permanent International Tribunal'—ELIHU BURRITT'S own term also—which the scoffers told him he would not live to see. The 'American' proposition—that was what the Congresses called BURRITT'S plea for the Court; and American, not Russian, it is—not the conception of the Czar, but of Worcester and Channing and Sumner and BURRITT. Son of Connecticut, it was as a citizen of Massachusetts, his home at the heart of the Commonwealth, that ELIHU BURRITT did his momentous work—how momentous few seem to remember—for the peace and better organization of the world. It was in England that he organized the 'League of Universal Brotherhood'; but it was in Boston, years before, that he gave his prophetic address on 'Universal Peace'; in our state that he issued year after year his 'Christian Citizen,' his 'Peace Papers to the People,' and his 'Olive Leaves.' The effort—the successful effort—to secure cheap ocean postage, whose results in bringing people close together and helping scatter the fogs of ignorance in which fears and jealousies and strifes are born, are incalculable, was the effort of ELIHU BURRITT. Each bursting mail-bag on the 'Cedric' and the 'Oceanic' is his memorial. The Hague Tribunal is his memorial. But where is Connecticut's monument to this great servant? Where is ours? When the last brigadier has had his bronze, and the last commodore, may we not hope for it?"

Hon. and Dear Sir:-

Yours of the 17th, received. You are quite right; it was part of our contract to furnish the outside screen, and in order to save time - there being a striked here in New York among the screen makers - we directed our window-setter, when in Syracuse, to get some local firm to make the screen and put it in position, and to order it at once on his arrival in Syracuse. He reported to us that he had found such a firm and ordered them to go ahead, that it was not finished when he left, but they had agreed to put it in place. Stupidly, he neither brought with him their card nor remembered their name, but we supposed everything was all right and some days ago we wrote to the sexton of St. Paul's asking if the screen were in, but up to the present time we have heard nothing from him. We cannot tell you how annoyed we are at this matter, and we will see that it is attended to at once. Our Mr. Nye will be in Syracuse in a day or two, and we will have him get the screen.

It so happens that our window-setter is now in the shop and by a series of cross questions we find that the firm with whom he left the order is located on the corner of University and Water Streets. We shall write at once to Mr. Nye and also to this firm, at least to their address, and have the screen made.

Regretting the annoyance we have caused you, we remain,

Very truly yours,

Her father - Sir Nathaniel Borden Smith - is an admiral whom I met in Egypt, years ago, when this daughter was a very young girl. Her mother has written me a request to commend her to my friends at Cornell. The only one of the present faculty whom I know well is Wilder D. Bancroft, who visits most cordially that he will welcome her. I need not say how deeply I shall appreciate any kindness which you may perhaps be able to show her.

It is interesting, I think, that an Egyptian girl of this quality should come to study in America. Any such strengthening of intercourse from childhood and

PLYMOUTH CHURCH,

Mr. Albert L. Blair gave his lecture, "The Whir of the Printing Press, and What It Says", for the second time last night in Plymouth Church. It was a most fascinating lecture, full of the atmosphere of the great newspaper room, where all the telegraphic lines of the world converge, and where all great events and public measures and forceful men report themselves.

Mr. Blair is a strong platform speaker, who holds his audience from the first word to the last.

ALBERT L. BLAIR is well fitted to talk upon the subject of newspaper making and newspaper makers, for he has spent his life amid the roar of presses and the click of type. He is bright, witty and entertaining, and his ability to turn a phrase in a most interesting and unexpected way serves to keep his audience alert and constantly on the watch for some new rhetorical gem.

¶ In referring to the numerous remarkable improvements in the mechanical departments of the newspaper office, he says: "When one watches a mammoth Hoe press turning out say 96,000 printed papers in an hour he may feel that perfection cannot well any farther go. Yet some invention may in twenty-five years sweep all the idols of the press room to the scrap heap. A Brooklyn genius has gone to printing with the X-ray. Who knows but that in a short time that magic pencil will have revolutionized the method of peopling the virgin page with messages of information?"

¶ "What is a newspaper?" asked Mr. Blair, and then he answered it by saying: "Put the accent on the first syllable of the word and you have a flash-light definition. It is a vehicle for the conveyance of information about current events. It is (to change the figure) a literature that is born in a day, and so far as the public interest is concerned perishes in a day. It is history written by hundreds of thousands of pens, driven by amateurs, by professionals; by novices, by veterans; by cobblers, by experts; by mediocrity, by genius; by fakirs, by truth-tellers; by the man with the wolf of famine at the door, by the gentleman with plutocratic leisure; by the mental bum, by the intellectual emperor. In the newspaper, idiots, full of sound and fury, and arm-locked with slobbering rhetoric, tell their tale by the side of the philosophical Platos and the gifted Macaulays. No experience, no degree of capacity, no variety of motive are absent from that marvelous workshop whence emanates the newspaper. I know of no other agency that so constantly reflects the conditions, the progress, the aims, the achievements and the hopes of the race as the Newspaper."

My dear Mr. White:,

Remembering your great and efficient Kindness and help when, years ago, I came to Ithaca to place two young men at Cornell University, when you were president, and recalling, in later years, many delightful meetings with you in Boston, and Washington, and Chicago, I venture, once again to ask your help.

I am greatly interested in a young medical student, and I want him to study at the Cornell University Medical College, here, in New York.
He was born a Catholic and has been educated by the Jesuits, and yet he has thought and fought his way out into vigorous freedom, much to the discomfiture of his teachers, and his family, so that now he stands alone. He has already devoted two years to the study of Medicine, and has two years more of study before he can take his degree. So far he has paid his own way by hard work. Now he studies from eight o'clock to five, and at ~~ten~~ o'clock P.M. goes to the Y.M.C.A. and acts as night clerk till Eight o'clock A.M. catching sleep as he can, an hour or two between calls on his time. I want him to give up this night work and put a solid bar of eight hours sleep between the days. "Blessed be the man, who invented sleep." If he goes on as he is now doing he will break down, I can see that he is overwrought. He has been studying at the Brooklyn Medical School, and the long journey over and back has been an added burden and expense. He is paid for his night work ten dollars per week, and that is all he has to rely upon. He is a very brilliant fellow, and will do great honor to the School from which he graduates. If he can enter the Cornell Medical College now for his third year, I think I can arrange for him to find day-work as reader for the room, and get through.

[9-20-07]

He has high ambitions, and looks forward to a great career in original research, for which he is admirably fitted. I don't know the letter of the Medical College rules, but you know the common run of students and of men stick to the "letter which killeth," and to amount to nothing, while those who touch the Spirit, uplift, heal, and reform the world.

I shall see Mr. Wilson, the Sec. of the College, when he returns on Monday, and a letter from you will help me very much.

Dear Mr. White, your life is one of the great lives, that will always find a place in men's memory. It touches that "Power outside ourselves, that moulds an Empire, makes a University, brings Peace on earth, and helps a struggling student to climb to that position where he can best help and save his fellows. My friend's name is William Condon, he is now thirty-one years old, of mature and earnest and noble thought. He is bound to take a high place among the world's helpers. A degree would help him in men's regard, and make his career easier for him. Could he study for a Cornell degree, while pursuing his medical studies? I don't think it would make him any wiser, but it would be a pedestal for wisdom that all would see. Speaking of the letter of rules, in distinction from the Spirit, my sister Martha (Mrs. Delano Goddard) was asked by the Boston School Committee to look over a hundred questions they had prepared for the examination of the District School Teachers and tell them what they thought of their. After considering the questions, her reply was, "Gentlemen, I have examined your questions, and I find I can answer three out of the hundred, and yet I feel capable of teaching a District School!" My feeling is that Mr. Coulter may be crusty on a hundred questions of this first years study and still be capable of absorbing a round in the two years to come, that he will be splendidly fitted to take a high place in the world.

Ever sincerely and admiringly yours

Francis LeBaron.

Honorable Andrew D. White,
Cornell University,
Ithaca, New York.

Dear Mr. White,-

I enclose a check for $35, in payment of the loan you kindly extended me last June. I realized at the time that I had only to ask to receive. The books of Huffcut's which I secured mean very much to me. Most of them are text books useful to me in my present studies, some of them amply annotated. Others are larger works of general jurisprudence. I have books of Maine, Holland, Austin, Kent, for instance. All these are necessary for a lawyer's library, but how much more I prize them for having been his!

I had little chance to talk with you intimately when I was in Ithaca, and hesitated to speak of Huffcut. I wanted to tell you, though, of the great affection he had for you and of the many ways in which it worked out. Perhaps the best evidence of his remembrance of your kindness to him is the constant kindness he showed to various youngsters like myself. In every class, I think, there were a select few who "knew Huffcut." Not only did he help me over many a material difficulty, but he planted in me the seeds of wisdom and later carefully cultivated the tender sprout. He used to affect a pride in me and humorously prophecy a great career as a lawyer. The humor I have put behind, and am now, you can understand, determined to prove all that in even his wildest imaginings he ever thought me.

It was through Huffcut that I met Huger. He is doing very well now at the law, specializing in admiralty and particularly in marine insurance. He has added a professional air to his native dignity and veritably looks the lawyer every inch. Of course, he is as delightful as ever. The boy, nearly four months old now, has hardly reached the lovable age as yet and was somewhat colicky when I saw him a few weeks ago, but the parents have every expectation for his future.

I am in New York at present, spending a few days assisting in a minor way the United States Government in its momentous suit for the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company. It is all very interesting and instructive, and will, I am sure, be productive of much good. I hope soon to see you in Washington and have a good talk on general industrial and political conditions. History is being made very fast nowadays.

I have just returned from a vacation at Easthampton, Long Island, where I had the pleasure of lunching with President Schurman and talking over University and other matters.

Yours faithfully,

My dear Dr. White;

I greatly regret that you are unable to accept the invitation to deliver the address at the Jamestown Exposition on New York Day. But I appreciate the reasons which prompt you to decline.

With high regard, and with best wishes,

I am,

Very truly yours,

My dear Doctor White:

I am following out your suggestion of August the ninth, in writing this line after the middle of September. I am of the hope that you have completely recuperated during the summer months I, too, was on the Cape Ann coast and know how invigorating its air is.

Assuming that you would prefer to put off your address until the spring, may I ask whether the twenty-second of March or the twenty-sixth of April would not fit into your arrangements? We would not require an address of more than thirty minutes. If you will be good enough to say that you expect to be with us, I shall be grateful and make appropriate announcement in the hope that you will be able to keep the engagement. My seeming insistence, I ask you to pardon on the ground of the eagerness of my people to hear the message of one of the most distinguished of peace furtherers.

Yours faithfully,

Stephen S. Wise

My dear Mr. White:

Several days ago Frank handed me your check for $300. and I thank you very much. It will aid me greatly in my course.

I shall always endeavor to show my appreciation for your kindness to me by any service I can render for you. I saved over $500 this year on Empire Block by securing a reduction of $25,000 in assessment.

Hon. Andrew D. White, September 23rd, 1907.

Ithaca, N. Y.

Dear President White:-

I have before me your letter in reply to mine of 1906 asking a contribution in aid of the work of the International Committee. With the opening of the fall season may I not renew my appeal? Your letter of Nov. 23rd, 1906 from Ithaca interests me as I read it again with its generous commendation of our work, presuming on it I renew my appeal.

The year is most marked by increase in Bible study and evangelistic work among students, railroad men, soldiers and sailors, young men and boys in small towns and country districts and working men, whom we are reaching in large numbers; over a million attended our shop meetings last year.

A new feature is for the 7000 young men on the line of the Panama Canal. The government erected four buildings, and five of our secretaries are doing a successful work there. Another is with the incoming immigrants. In 1865-6 there were a few hundred non-English speaking arrived at New York. In 1906-7 there were over 1,000,000 of that class. They are largely young men and so come under our supervision. How to help them is the problem.

In the student world a conference with 580 delegates was held in Tokyo, 500 of whom were from the far East. It was a remarkable gathering and made an impression on Japan as nothing else could have done. The Missionary Conference in Shanghai, in our new association building, at which there were 1100 in attendance, strongly endorsed our work in foreign lands.

I again enclose a subscription book and a stamped envelope for the return of the book. I presume a little in doing so, and in asking the favor of a reply I assure you we greatly need your help.

over; Very sincerely yours,

N. B. Please return the subscription book. Thomas K. Cree

My dear Papa, —

Well, I suppose you will want to know how we all are, and what we are doing. Well, Ervin is trying to pound some Physics into the heads of his students, the children are out chasing around all day long, with Katie, or if she is out I take them out, and I am busy with the mending, and making bread once a week. Evenings, I devote to my music, & try to get in two hours. Well, we have 500 students this year, are we not coming up in the world?— And I suppose you have even more than that this year at Cornell.

I wish you might see how much better Erwin looks, since he came home, he really has gained in weight + strength and he looks browner in the face too. I hope he can have another such a trip next year, it really will be the making of him.

How I wish you were coming out here again, Papa dear; don't you think you can get out again this way?— I am so sorry to hear, dear Clara is so miserable, and Anne too!; it is too bad, after

But I must now write to Clara, so good night Papa dear, write when you can; Ever so much love from us all, to you all.

Excellenz

Ich gab dieser Tage unserem gemeinsamen Freunde W. Henry Faram aus New Haven einige Artikel zu lesen, die ich an Ostern in der neuen freien Presse über Deutschlands äussere und innere Politik in der Gegenwart veröffentlichte. Er meinte, dieselben würden Euer Excellenz interessiren, und so wage ich es, sie unter Kreuzband an Sie zu senden. Ich thue es um so lieber, da mir jede Gelegenheit will kommen ist, Euer Excellenz meine Verehrung auszusprechen. Sie war schon sehr gross, als wir das Glück hatten, Sie hier zu haben. Sie ist noch gestiegen, seit ich Ihre Lebenserinnerungen las, für die wir Deutschen Ihnen nicht dankbar genug sein können. Meine Frau vereinigt sich mit mir, Ihnen

Dear Sir:-

We beg to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 23rd inst., and have pleasure in handing you herewith a copy of our circular entitled "Convertible Bonds". We regard with favor the Pennsylvania Convertible 3-1/2s of 1915, now selling upon the New York Stock Exchange at about 90 flat, the Atchison Convertible 5s, now selling at about 100-1/2 flat and the Union Pacific Convertible 4s, now selling at about 87-1/2 flat. Based upon the cost of 90 for the Pennsylvania 3-1/2s of 1915, the conversion privilege becomes of value when the stock sells at 135.

We note that you would also like to receive from us a list of good bonds which are selling at low prices. In this connection, we hand you herewith circulars descriptive of the First & Refunding Mortgage 4% Bonds of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, selling at about 88, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Debenture 4s of 1931, at about 89-1/2 and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Joint 5s, at about 93. As all of the above bonds are listed upon the New York Stock Exchange, they of course sell at "flat prices".

We also enclose herewith a copy of our circular descriptive of the Atlantic & Birmingham Railway Company First Mortgage 5% Bonds.

081844

Subject to sale, we can offer these bonds at 98 and interest, yielding about 5.15%, which we regard as an exceptionally attractive issue for an underlying first mortgage railroad bond limited as to issue to only $12,000 per mile. You will note that the interest upon these bonds is a prior charge against income over all of the securities of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad.

Inviting further correspondence from you upon the subject of investments,

We remain,

Yours very truly,

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Dear Sir:-

In compliance with your request, we have pleasure in handing you herewith a copy of our circular entitled "Convertible Bonds". The prices at which most of these bonds are selling can be ascertained by reference to almost any daily or financial publication. We shall, however, be glad to quote prices upon such issues as may seem to be best suited to your requirements. We suggest that you give special consideration to the Pennsylvania 3-1/2s of 1915, Atchison system 5s, Delaware & Hudson 4s and Union Pacific 4s.

The price at which the stock conversion right becomes of value to buyers of convertible bonds is determined by the figures at which the bonds may be selling. Thus, if a bond at par is convertible into stock at, say $150 per share, the same bond selling at 90 would begin to be of value for conversion after the stock sold at $135 per share. This is found out by multiplying $150 per share, (the conversion figure based upon par for the bonds) by 90, which gives the conversion figure based upon the price at which the bonds are selling, or $135 per share.

We are distributing the 8th edition of our 10 page circular entitled "Short Term Notes & Collateral Trust Bonds". Such investments yield about 4-1/2% to 6-1/2%, and if interested, we shall be glad to send you a copy of the circular.

Assuring you that any business entrusted to us will receive our prompt and careful attention,

We remain,

Yours very truly,

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
Ten Year 5% Debenture Gold Bonds

Dated June 1, 1907. Due June 1, 1917. Interest June and December 1st. Redeemable at the option of the Company after June 1, 1911, on 90 days' notice at 105 and interest, subject, however, to the bondholders privilege of conversion within the said 90 days. Convertible after June 1, 1911, and prior to maturity, into the capital stock of the Company at par. In coupon form $500 and $1,000, with privilege of registration. Authorized issue, $13,000,000.

In case the Company shall hereafter place any mortgage upon the property now belonging to it, for the purpose of securing an issue or issues of mortgage bonds, prior to the conversion or retirement herein described, the Debenture bonds shall participate in and be protected by said mortgage.

For the fiscal year ending January 31, 1907, the Company reports a profit of $8,427,843, dividends $4,344,342, balance $4,083,501, which added to the previous year's surplus gives an accumulated surplus of $15,110,797

LAKE SHORE & MICHIGAN [illegible] CO.
Four Per Cent. Gold Debenture Bonds.

Dated 1906. Due May 1, 1931. Interest payable May and November, In coupon form, $1,000 and $5,000 each, with privilege of registration. Guaranty Trust Co., N. Y., Trustee. Authorized $50,000,000. Outstanding $35,000,000.

The proceeds from sale of these bonds are used for improvements now underway, the balance being held in the Treasury for future uses. The Trust Indenture stipulates that so long as any of these bonds are outstanding and unpaid, the Company will not make any new mortgage upon its railroad, without including in such mortgage every bond issued under this Indenture, equally and ratably with every bond issued under and secured by any such mortgage. The Indenture also provides that this covenant shall not prevent the renewal or extension of any existing mortgage.

These bonds are a direct obligation of the Company, and, together with $50,000,000 Debenture 4s due 1928 and $50,000,000 1st 3 1/2s due 1997, constitute the entire bonded debt of the Company. There are also outstanding $15,000,000 3 year 5% notes (unsecured) due 1910.

For the year ending December 31, 1906, the Company reports a total net income of $14,022,082, out of which there was paid for interest, rentals, taxes and guaranteed dividends, $7,535,470, leaving a surplus of $6,486,612. Dividends at rate of 12% are being paid upon its $49,466,500 stock.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY - GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.
C. B. & Q. Railroad Collateral Joint Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds.

Dated 1901. Due July 1, 1921. Interest payable January and July 1st. In coupon form, $1,000 each. Principal may be registered. Redeemable after January 1, 1906, at 105 and interest. The Standard Trust Company, New York, Trustee. Authorized, $221,670,200. Outstanding $215,223,000.

Secured by deposit of $107,611,500 (par value) of the $110,839,100 stock of the C. B. & Q. Railroad Company and more bonds may be issued in exchange for the balance of the stock at the rate of $1,000 bond for five shares (par value $100). The bonds are a joint obligation of the Great Northern Railway Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

The C. B. & Q. Railroad leases from the Railway about 8,250 miles of track extending from Chicago, Ill., westerly, and the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern own large systems extending from Duluth and St. Paul, Minn. (where connection is made with the C. B. & Q.) westerly through North Dakota and Montana to the Pacific Coast at Seattle, Wash. The Northern Pacific and Great Northern pay dividends at the rate of 7% per annum upon $155,000,000 and $150,000,000 stock respectively.

For the fiscal year June 30, 1906, the C. B. & Q. reports a surplus of $12,742,430, which is equal to about 11 1/2% on the $110,839,100 capital stock.

THE ATLANTIC & BIRMINGHAM RAILWAY COMPANY
First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Gold Bond.

Dated January 1, 1904. Due January 1, 1934. Interest payable January and July 1st, at the office of the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, Mass. In coupon form, $1,000 each. Principal may be registered. Redeemable at 110 and accrued interest on January 1, 1909, or on any interest day thereafter. The issue is limited to $12,000 per mile. Outstanding, $4,090,000.

The Atlantic & Birmingham Company is a consolidation of the Waycross Air Line R. R. Co. and Brunswick & Birmingham R. R. Co., and consists of 337 miles of track, as follows: Waycross to Montezuma, Ga., Fitzgerald to Thomasville, Brunswick to Nichols, Bushnell to Alapala River, together with terminals.

In April, 1906, the Atlantic & Birmingham Railway Company was consolidated with the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad, and the latter road at present operates about 459 miles of main line, extending from the seaboard at Brunswick, Ga. in a northwesterly direction across the State of Georgia. The following statements are from official sources.

"Two extensions are now being constructed, one to Atlanta and one to Birmingham. At the present time over 5,000 men are employed on these extensions and rapid progress is being made. With the completion of these extensions the Company will own a trunk line 648 miles in length, constructed according to the highest standards, and extending from Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga., to the seaboard at Brunswick. All of the capital required to complete extensions, terminals, etc. has been provided.

"Interests identified with the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad own the entire capital stock of the Brunswick Steamship Company, which owns five steel ocean-going steamships operating between Brunswick, Cuba, and New York, thus enabling the Company to advantageously make continuous rail and water rates to and from eastern ports.

EARNINGS

"The present 459 miles of main line in operation are earning a substantial surplus over operating expenses and fixed charges, and this is being done purely as a local road. The gross earnings of the road for the past year were over $4,000 per mile. The following are the earnings of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad for the year ended March 31, 1907, together with estimates for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1908 and 1909. These estimates have been very carefully compiled, and it is believed that the results will be exceeded:

	Year Ended March 31, 1907	Year Ending June 30, 1908	Year Ending June 30, 1909
Gross Earnings,	$1,479,593	$2,500,000	$5,200,000
Operating Expenses and Taxes,	1,103,594	1,750,000	3,640,000
Net Earnings,	375,999	750,000	1,560,000

"The earnings of the road are increasing rapidly, the earnings for 9 months ended March 31 showing an increase of 42.5% in gross and 34.4% in net, over the corresponding period of the previous year.

PHYSICAL CONDITION

"The road is being constructed throughout according to the highest standards of modern railroad practice. The entire mileage will be laid with 80 lb. steel rails, while the maximum curvature will be but 6 degrees, and maximum grades but 1%. Steel bridges of sufficient strength to stand the heaviest and most modern equipment are being installed, and passing tracks capable of holding trains of 50 cars are being put in every four miles. Railroad shops, probably the most complete in the South, and ample for all the needs of the Company, have recently been built at Fitzgerald, Ga., and are now in operation.

TERRITORY SERVED

"The territory served by the Company is rich in traffic and rapidly developing. From Brunswick to the Alabama line the road penetrates a good agricultural and timber territory, while a large part of the section of Alabama passed through is rich in minerals and timber.

The basic plan with regard to the road throughout has been the construction of a continuous line of railway from Brunswick, as the Atlantic Ocean terminal (through good local territory needing development, traversing the States of Georgia and Alabama, with low grades, easy curvature and short distances), to the heavy tonnage-producing districts of Birmingham and Atlanta, probably the two most progressive and rapidly growing cities of the South, and through connections at these points to the West.

Interests identified with this Company own the entire capital stock of the Birmingham Coal Company and the Birmingham Iron Company (soon to be consolidated), which own approximately 42,000 acres of the most valuable coal and iron ore lands in the Birmingham District. The Company is at present producing 4,000 tons of pig iron per month from its own raw materials, and the output will shortly be increased to 7,000 tons a month, when additions and improvements now being made are completed. Active work was recently commenced for the opening of new coal mines, which will increase the capacity of the Company to approximately 3,000 tons of coal a day, and which will not only make the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad independent as regards its coal supply, but will also furnish the Company with a large amount of traffic.

TERMINALS

"Believing that the success of modern railroading is largely dependent on its terminal facilities, we have secured at much expense advantageous terminals in all cities and towns of importance in most instances our terminal properties coming between the terminals of other roads and the business centers served.

BRUNSWICK

"Brunswick has one of the best land locked harbors of the Atlantic seaboard, and the Company is in a strong position for handling business through its ownership of a belt railroad and terminal property ample for yards, deep water terminals, and city freight and passenger stations. The water terminal has over half a mile of deep water frontage, and comprises about 100 acres of land. The construction of two large piers, 700 feet long and 400 feet long respectively, also four large storage warehouses, has been completed. All of the work is of the most permanent character, reinforced concrete piling alone being used. The cost of completing the terminal properties in Brunswick is approximately $2,000,000. It may not be generally known that the cities of Brunswick, Mobile, New Orleans and Galveston are, in an air line, practically equidistant from the Panama Canal, and there is every reason to believe that Brunswick will beneficially feel the effects of the opening of the Canal, together with the development of our Cuban and South American trade.

ATLANTA

"After five years of continuous work our Atlanta terminals have been completed. This terminal property, which is advantageously located, comprises about 200 acres and is sufficient for all purposes for many years to come. It also comprises a large amount of property which is well suited for industrial enterprises. Work on the Atlanta terminal is being rapidly pushed, and contracts call for its completion before our rails are laid into the city. The approximate cost of acquiring and developing the Atlanta terminals is $3,000,000. Atlanta is a rapidly growing city, with a present estimated population of 110,000. It is the home of many and varied manufacturing industries, and is the commercial and jobbing center of the southeastern part of the United States.

BIRMINGHAM

"Complete and comprehensive terminals have been acquired in the City of Birmingham and the Birmingham District. In addition to a large amount of land sufficient for many years to come for use as freight and passenger terminals, yards, shops, etc., a belt railroad will be constructed, the location of which will enable the Company to reach the heavy tonnage of practically the entire district. The approximate cost of acquiring and developing the terminals in the Birmingham District will be $2,500,000. The present estimated population of the Birmingham District is 155,000, and this population is increasing with great rapidity. Nowhere else in the world, so far as known, are the three essential elements which enter into the production of iron and steel found in such close proximity and in such practically inexhaustible quantities. As is well known, the Birmingham District is one of the principal tonnage-producing centers in the United States."

TAX-EXEMPT IN PENNSYLVANIA

Dated April 1, 1907. Trustee:
Due April 1, 1927. Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

Subject to redemption on six weeks' notice as follows:

(1) Six per cent (6%) of issue at par by Sinking Fund annually beginning 1908 unless purchasable under par.
(2) Whole or any part any April or October 1 at 102.

Coupon bonds $1,000 each with privilege of registration as to principal only.
Amount authorized, $3,000,000.

Price 94½ and Interest, yielding over 5.35% based on average life of eight years from the present date.

These equipment bonds are secured by standard equipment costing not less than one hundred and ten per cent. (110%) of the amount of bonds issued.

A Sinking Fund of 6% per annum of the amount of bonds issued is to be paid to the Trustee of the Railway Company to be applied to the redemption of a like amount of bonds to be called for payment at par and interest on October 1, unless purchasable in the market at a lower price.

The whole or any part of the issue may be called for payment on any interest date at 102 and interest.

Title to the entire equipment is held by the Trustee until the last bond has been paid.

The record which equipment obligations have made during reorganizations justifies the conclusion that they possess safety equal or superior to that of any other form of railroad bond.

My darlings at home; —

The telegram announcing poor dear Clara's death just came, and I wish I might be with you, but as I can't, I feel I must write a line. If it is a possible thing, one or the other of us will come to Syracuse.

I am so glad I saw her this last Summer, and can only think of her as I last saw her, looking so well. Well, we must

Dear Sir:

Some time ago you favored us with a call and inquired about the investment security market. We have since written you making several offerings, but, as we have received no reply, we assume that you have done nothing as yet regarding investments. There seems to be no question but that the bond market will advance materially from now on, and we have had a recent demonstration in the New York City 4-½% bonds, which have sold as high as 107-3/4 and interest. We consider it wise to invest in the better class of securities at this time.

In addition to the large well known issues, which are traded in on the New York Stock Exchange and which we would be pleased to purchase for you at market prices, we beg to call your attention to the Atlantic & Birmingham Railway Co. 1st Mortgage 5% Bonds, which we can offer subject to prior sale, at 98 and interest, yielding about 5.15. These bonds are an underlying bond of the Atlanta, Birmingham &

Atlantic R. R. System, ~~operated~~ operating from Atlanta, Ga. to Brunswick, Ga. (on the coast) and also operating a steamship line from Brunswick, Ga. to New York. The bonds are issued at the low rate of $12,000. per mile. This you can see is a very low percentage, as the cost to construct steam railroads at the present time runs from $30,000. to $45,000. per mile. One of the large Insurance Companies recently sent a representative to inspect this property, and their investigation resulted in the purchase of a very large block of the bonds.

The writer would be pleased to call on you at Ithaca if you would care to have a personal interview.

The Atlantic & Birmingham Company is a consolidation of the Waycross Air Line R. R. Co., and Brunswick & Birmingham R. R. Co., and consists of 337 miles of track as follows:

Waycross to Montezuma, Ga, Fitzgerald to Thomasville, Brunswick to Nichols, Bushnell to Alapala River, together with terminals.

The road is owned by the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad, which recently completed its line from Montezuma to Talbotton, 44 miles, and is rapidly extending the line from Talbotton to Birmingham and Atlanta, the grading being well advanced from Talbotton to Talladega, about I50 miles. When the new line is completed it will be the shortest route from Birmingham to the coast, and the combined system will comprise about 650 miles. In addition, the same interests have incorporated the Brunswick Steamship Company, which will operate a steamship line between Brunswick, Ga., and New York and Boston, four freight steamers of 5,000 tons each having already been ordered. Contracts have also been let for the construction of two large piers at Brunswick, Ga., which is a part of the comprehensive plan for the improvement of the water terminal of the Railroad Company. The Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad has its own authorized issue of first mortgage bonds - 5%- limited to $25,000 per mile, which are also a second mortgage upon the property of the Atlantic & Birmingham Ry.

The harbor at Brunswick, Ga., which is the eastern terminus, is one of the best on the Southern Atlantic Coast, and the Atlantic & Birmingham Railway Company owns at this port abqut I00 acres of land and a frontage on the harbor of about 2,000 feet. Steamers of New York and Boston lines to Mobile, Ala., connect with the Atlantic & Birmingham Railway at Brunswick.

It is with sympathy and affection I think of you in these days and, as always, with reverence and gratitude.

Not long ago I was summoned myself to go down with one I loved into the valley of death. It was good, at that time, to hear the voices of friends from the heights above. The sense of a common experience not only draws the hearts of men together, but also helps to give a truer interpretation.

My dear Mrs. White,

It is with deep regret that I learn of the death of Mrs. Newberry. Quite recently I heard from her, and she reported considerable improvement. I can not say, however, that I am greatly surprised after what you wrote me about her condition last spring, and in view of my own serious apprehensions. Her last words to me were of her much loved children, and a kind message to my dear Mother.

All that I can do, my dear Mrs. White, is to offer you in the name of my family and for myself most sincere sympathy in your great bereavement. With kind regards from my uncle and from my self, I am

My dear Dr. White:—

I have just had the very sad news of your daughter's death from an Ithaca paper which was forwarded to me. Mrs. Turnn and I had heard such favorable accounts of Mrs. Newburg's health during the summer, that we are greatly shocked at this intelligence. I am oppressed, as ah my brother Davis death, by the mystery of a life cut we can bear, and it is merciful that even through sympathy we cannot partake of another's sorrow.

Do bear up for the sake of the many who love and need you.—

short in its prime, and with many of its best gifts still unrealized. Such an experience has compelled me, already to feel as no argument could ever do, that we now see but a little segment of life, and that there is a complete reality which is hidden from us.

Meanwhile we are thankful to have the memory of your daughter's beautiful character and the graceful presence which was felt and appreciated by everyone.

Please accept from Mrs. Turner and myself our message of sympathy with you and your family; and of the sorrow which we feel at the loss of a valued friend.

BANKING HOUSE OF

HENRY CLEWS & Co.,

NOS. 11, 13, 15 AND 17 BROAD STREET, AND 35 WALL STREET,

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, September 28, 1907.

Gradually, but surely, the money situation is improving. This is not only true of New York, but also of Berlin, London, and Paris, the continuous liquidation of the last three months now showing beneficial results. There is less anxiety at financial centers, and money rates in consequence show a perceptible easing. At New York the banks are beginning to strengthen their position; so, too, are the great banks of Europe. Speculation is at a minimum; and, the absorption of capital for new enterprises having received a decided check, there is a slow but surer basis for restoration of credit. In this market call money rules at low rates, and time money from 5 to 6 per cent for 60 and 90 days. Commercial paper rules at about 7 per cent; but this high rate is partly cautionary, and is the result of the disposition of bankers to apply some restraint upon commercial transactions corresponding to that which has already been imposed upon the financial markets. The high rates for commercial paper are unquestionably causing some inconvenience in business circles, and it is not without significance that mercantile failures are on the increase. This, however, is to be expected and does not reflect any general unsoundness, but rather a weeding out of concerns which have been weakened by overtrading or other unsound methods. The complete restoration of confidence will no doubt require a further interval of repose and contraction. While there have been no important failures as a result of the enormous liquidation in securities, it is true that heavy losses have been sustained in some quarters, and that on account of concerns which have been saved from collapse more or less further gradual liquidation will have to be endured. This applies not only to New York, but also to other important financial centers, including London and Berlin, and as the world's money markets are now so closely related, it follows that confidence cannot be thoroughly restored until the readjustment has been more complete at each of these various points.

American credit abroad has been under severe strain, not only on account of the late reaction, but also on account of the reflections cast upon American corporate management. Happily, there is a certainty of improvement in the latter. Recent disclosures and the consequent agitation are making honest management an absolute necessity in American business affairs. There is little question about the continued material prosperity of the majority of America's leading business concerns. There is equally little doubt about the ability with which these are and have been managed. The chief doubt has been as to the integrity of the management; and with an improvement in the latter respect, it is quite certain that American securities abroad will soon recover a substantial portion of the prestige and value which have recently been lost. A notable instance of this was the free foreign buying of the recent issue of New York city bonds on London account, showing that there is still an abundance of foreign capital awaiting investment on this side of the Atlantic when the character of the security offered is beyond question. There is no doubt that for the next few years at least American corporations will be conducted on a distinctly higher moral plane, and this of itself will do much to restore confidence. It is, of course, deeply to be regretted that the recent disclosures connected with the New York traction stocks should be made at this time; but as these transactions apply to the past and are really ancient history, there is no reason why they should cause any lasting disturbing effect. One thing is certain, that it would be difficult to repeat these methods at this time, and none of our leading financiers would to-day be likely to sanction them.

Stock Exchange activity has been limited. A fair recovery from the lowest prices of August has been established, but in view of general conditions, there is neither reason nor disposition for undertaking any bull campaign. In general business the inclination towards caution is extending, especially in New York. The remarkable decline in copper is exercising a more general deterrent effect than might have been expected. It is true that the price of this article had been pushed unduly high, but the enormous accumulation of the metal and the sudden falling off in demand arrested universal attention. Much of the cessation in demand is, of course, due to the unsettlement in prices, many buyers holding off until they are satisfied the bottom has been reached. At the same time there has been a pronounced curtailment in nearly all lines of structural work. A good many contracts have been postponed, and new enterprises are being confined to absolutely necessary enlargements or improvements. This causes a material decline in the demand for all sorts of materials for constructive work, and also a lessened demand for labor. The question is how far will the reaction be extended. Much depends upon the harvests. The wheat crop, as has already been stated, is a fair one in quantity and very profitable in price. A liberal corn crop had been pronounced at good prices, but unfortunately frost during the middle of the week inflicted some injury. Corn and cotton are our two heaviest crops, and as these are still exposed to more or less injury from frost, it is premature to be over-confident regarding them. Our farmers, however, are sure of a profitable season. They are out of debt and in a position to hold for good prices. Europe is likely to be a free buyer of our agricultural products, which at the current level of values will be an important factor in our international trade balance and should provide a liberal supply of commercial bills. Our working classes also with few exceptions are well employed at good wages, so that with these two favorable factors, it does not seem probable that the country will have to face this year anything more than a moderate recession in business activity. It should not be forgotten, however, that we are in a state of class prosperity, not general prosperity. Our farmers and our laborers at present are the most prosperous classes in the country, but it cannot be said that their prosperity is universal. The wealthy classes have suffered enormous losses and professional classes are suffering from high cost of living, with no chances whatever now of securing compensation through better returns for their labor. Our prosperity, therefore, is not well distributed, and this being the fact, a further readjustment must be inevitably faced; more likely by levelling down than by levelling up. Genuine prosperity consists in abundance and not in scarcity, and in advantages which can be shared by all rather than by yielding exceptional profits to favored classes.

WE ISSUE LETTERS OF CREDIT TO TRAVELERS, AVAILABLE IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

The reaction in business, such as it is, is still confined to the East. In the West and South, there are no signs of recession beyond the caution induced by high rates of interest and the policy of restraint adopted by banking interests. Last week, for instance, the clearings at New York increased 24 per cent; at Boston 25 per cent, and at Philadelphia 6 per cent. In Chicago, they increased 14 per cent during the same period; at St. Louis 15 per cent and at New Orleans 25 per cent. Railroad earnings, however, testify to the large volume of business in all parts of the country. In the third week of September 32 roads reported gross earnings of $9,500,000, an increase of about 10 per cent over last year; and 42 roads reported earnings in the first week of September of $10,200,000, an increase of nearly 8 per cent. How much of this gain is due to the stoppage of rebates, passes, and other abuses is not known, but there is every reason to believe that the volume of traffic is fully as large, if not larger, than the enormous volume of a year ago. There is less complaint of a shortage of cars than last year, but this is probably due to the railroads having improved their facilities during the interval.

As to the future of the stock market, if no more unfavorable developments occur, the present reaction should soon reach bottom prices; but any serious injury to the crops through frosts or important recession in business or any other disturbing factors would be quickly reflected in renewed liquidation of securities. The Government is showing a less aggressive tone towards the railroads and trusts, which will encourage the restoring of confidence, at any rate it is probable that the market has received and discounted the worst shocks from this quarter. Nevertheless, it will be important to watch the political situation and the anti-corporation movements of the Government.

THE COMMERCIAL SITUATION.

WHEAT.—Cables of late have proven disappointing to the bulls, but acceptances of cash wheat for Europe have been large. The continued buying for the purpose of export, which shows no indications of abating, has materially strengthened the cash situation on the one hand, while on the other the action of the future markets suggests uneasiness of holders over the likelihood of a large movement of spring wheat in the near future. The weather has been favorable for threshing and moving the crop in the Northwest. Cable advices report the prediction of larger Russian exports than had generally been expected. The stocks of wheat at European Continental points on the 1st inst. were over 5,500,000 bushels less than a year ago. Our own country has an assured crop of large size and the question now is largely one as to the extent to which foreign purchases will be carried. Prices are admittedly high, and although the situation has a great many strong points, it seems as though very large clearances must be reported from day to day to keep up enthusiasm at the prevailing level.

CORN.—The weather map, showing more or less heavy frosts in the Northwest, with claims of killing frost at points in Iowa and lighter touches at points in Nebraska and Illinois, enabled the corn market to break away from the influence of declining wheat prices and score a sharp advance; shorts becoming nervous and fresh buying orders being induced by fear of damage to late corn. Latest reports, however, claim that in Illinois at least the touch of frost was beneficial rather than harmful. A small amount has been taken for export which at the prevailing high prices appears significant, indicating conditions abroad. The buying side presents many inducements; but until something definite is obtainable regarding frost damage, buying should not be undertaken except on fair setbacks.

COTTON.—As is natural at this level the cotton market shows more steadiness. The South spot markets held up better than futures in New York or New Orleans on an improved demand from spinners and less urgent offerings, especially from Texas, where the drouth is believed to have reduced the prospective supply. The Western part of the cotton belt is again holding for higher prices, a policy which was successfully pursued last season, although it must be remembered that prices even now are still comparatively high and bank loans are correspondingly more difficult to obtain beyond a certain limit. A steady supply of offerings may be expected on every advance in prices for some time, or until a good portion of the crop has been marketed, as the Atlantic States are practically assured of a large yield and appear to be supplying the present demand which the Southwest refuses to meet. Weather conditions remain generally favorable and every week is adding to the yield; but on account of the late season any unfavorable changes would advance prices even if only temporarily. The Southern markets will probably remain the dominating influence and much will depend upon the attitude of spinners who, sooner or later, must buy freely, as cotton goods markets are still in good shape, even allowing for a few soft spots. Liverpool and Manchester advices are more encouraging, with spinners inclined to buy, especially for distant deliveries. Considering the decline which has already taken place for the time being it would seem conservative to buy on weak spots, although, of course, if the Government report next week should be very favorable, there is still room for a further decline.

My dear Ambassador White:

You will be pleased to learn that I passed the Consular examination in July & have been appointed to Bristol, England. There were forty-four candidates, of whom but thirteen succeeded. As you may remember, I wished to go to Germany, but no one was sent there this time, & my Bristol appointment seems to be one of the most attractive recently made.

It will always be a delightful contribution that you whose private & public life has

Family Letters

LAFAYETTE, INDIANA, Sept. 29, 1907.

Dear Mr. White!—

After the apparent rally this spring in Clara's health her death was somewhat unexpected although for some time we have been prepared to learn of the exhaustion of her supply of vitality. With a clear conscience of a good life well spent, with her two sons just ripening into manhood and starting on useful careers, and with the hope of one again enjoying robust health, Clara could face death with composure. Lives such as hers, full of high thoughts acted in a heart of courtesy, make the world better and happier. In her departure I feel keenly the loss of a richly intuitive beauty of heart, mind, and person will always be cherished in loving memory. I can well understand the depth of your grief and my heart goes out to you in your bereavement. The sad thing of life is that one who lives long enough to see the fruition of his life's work, sees the friends of his youth depart one by one. This is apt to cause one to feel lonely at times, but it should also cause him to rejoice that strength has been given him to carry on his own work further than he has given to others.

Trusting that your strength, and your zest for work and relaxation may remain unabated, I am ever sincerely yours

Ervin S. Shuey.

My dear Mr White:

It was only on Friday that I learned of dear Clara's death. I have been up here on top of the mountain visiting my niece Emmie for a week past, and we are so much out of the world that we know nothing that is happening, but on Friday evening Emmie took up the New York Tribune and saw the notice of her death.

Poor dear girl, her life has been such a sad one for the past four years that we cannot but feel how happy it is for her to be at rest. But those who loved her, and she had many friends, will miss her sorely.

I felt that I wanted to express to you my loving sympathy in your sorrow. She was always dear to me both for her own sake and for the sake of her dear mother who was so unexpressibly dear to me.

Ever faithfully Yours

My dear Mr. White

How much sorrow and I wish we could say some word of comfort to you in this time of sorrow. For we have known Clara all our lives and it was to our sorrow (as we always heard) that her mother brought her for her first trip, as a child, on the cars.

What a bright, gay

fun-loving little girl she was - yes, and in all her early womanhood she seemed very happy too - I think we all find a great pleasure in remembering the happy hours that our loved ones had - especially if later we know of sorrows that tried and distressed them - Still, what we loved the very best in Clara was the dear patience and cheerfulness with which she met the trials. Please let me say that I feel that her life here though cut off, will live as an inspiration to many. She met all sorts of responsibility so firmly - borrow beyond the average so bravely though it took her whole strength — she was simply a faithful soldier and servant unto her life's end. — Louise & I remember with pleasure the little visit we made you all at Ithaca, four years ago this summer, when at Shelldrake. That was a lonely summer for us, as we had lost our mother who seemed the mainspring of our household, and your own and Clara's very kind hospitality was very grateful to us. We have many such kindnesses of hers to remember! With regards from us both and hoping that some day it may be in the possibilities that we may welcome you at Cottage Farm

Very sincerely yours

We were both at the services Friday - at the chapel and later, - the Rector having telephoned us the hour. We reached there in time to look at dear Clara who looked very beautiful and natural — and to put a few roses near her for remembrance.

I have been working for some time on a book — International Commercial Politics, with special reference to the United States. I have just received the final proofs. It is to be published in Macmillan's Citizen series edited by Professor Ely. I hope the work will meet with your approval when it appears. I am writing to ask if you will permit me to do myself the honor of dedicating the work to yourown dear self. It will be a pleasure to me to make a humble acknowledgment for the inspiration you have been to me during my four years stay in Berlin. I hope you will permit me this

THE PRESIDENT'S OFFICE,
HOBART COLLEGE,
GENEVA, N. Y.

Oct. 1, 1907.

Pres. Andrew D. White, LL.D.,
Cornell University,
Ithaca, N.Y.

Dear Doctor White:

It is odd that I had it on my mind to write you today when your letter of yesterday was handed me.

Yes, we have been so fortunate as to receive from Mr. Fiske the bequest of his library. Prof. McDaniels who was an intimate friend of Mr. Fiske and who visited him last summer in Alassio is to write an article on Mr. Fiske and his library for the next bulletin of Hobart College. I shall certainly see that you receive a copy, and should you wish more you have but to ask for them.

Mr. Fiske's intention to leave his library to Hobart dates back I believe a number of years. On one occasion he came to Geneva to lecture before the College and was so much pleased with what he saw that he determined then and there to give us his books. His thought seemed to have been that a library like his would be lost or swallowed up in a great institution, and that it would do more good in a small place.

And now as to the matter upon which I intended to write you this morning. I think the design for the memorial to Pres. Hale will be ready in a very short time. The first design was not satisfactory to Dr. Hayes, neither did it please Dr. Vail nor myself. Young Mr. Nye came to see me the other day and we were able to come to a final decision. Dr. Hayes has at last written the inscription, a copy of which I enclose. As soon as the design has been accepted by the Committee, we shall have it photographed and send it to the different gentlemen who were in College during Dr. Hale's presidency. I am sorry that so much time has been taken up in the task and ~~accomplishing~~ accomplished so little, but Committees move slowly as you know.

Permit me to thank you once more for your thoughtfulness in sending me your congratulations. Please present my most cordial remembrances to Mrs. White, and with every good wishes for yourself, believe me,

Very respectfully and gratefully yours,

Langdon C. Stewardson

to go with me, so perhaps it is just as well I did not go, but my thoughts were with you & are all the time Papa dearie, and I wish, more than ever, I were with you, to put my arms around your dear neck and comfort you. I have had such kind messages to write you from Alexey Celery, Lyon, and Albert Lockwood, whom we entertained at luncheon one day in Ithaca, after his piano recital there, and who was a guest of the Thurston's. he writes, "please tell your father how deeply I feel for him in his affliction". It is a comfort to get such letters from friends when one has such a sorrow. What a beautiful service that must have been! - Auntie wrote me, that dear Clara looked so sweet and so like dear little Mamma.
Papa dearie, Where is Mr. Burr living now?, Erwin and I want to send our present and we have no address please, when you write again send it to me.

October 2, 1907.

Dear Mr.White,-

I was reading a day or two ago. your very courteous and charming letter to me. dated in May last, and I said to myself "My arm is better but I cannot write properly yet, but I must dictate a letter and send it with my apologies to President White." And then I took up the New York Times and saw what fresh trouble had come to you in the passing away of your beloved daughter,Mrs.Newberry. Accept my sincere sympathy and that of my daughters, in fact we have felt for you the most intense feeling on the subject of your sorrows,which have been a blow to all your old friends.

You speak of passing through Albany and hoping "to call" to pay your respects. I beg, dear Mr. White,that when you again come to Albany, you will bring Mrs.White and come to me, because before the end of October I expect to be settled at 13 Elk St.

I should have answered your letter sooner,before the accident I met with,to the nerve of my right arm, but for the suffering and illness of my sister Mrs.Marvin, who entered upon her rest on Monday morning,July 1,1907. She was the last one of my beautiful and attractive sisters,and six years my junior. It seems so very unnatural that the younger should be taken before the elder. Out of eight children which my parents had, but two are now remaining, my brother,Gen.Parker,who is three years my junior, and myself.

You also speak in your May letter of the death of Dean Huffcut, to whom you had given letters of introduction to me. We had all become very much attached to Dean Huffcut, and his manner was so deliberate and his surroundings seemed so calm and placid and desirable, that he was the last person of whom I would have thought for a moment that so grievous an end could have come. He of course was quite out of his mind,and not responsible. He had been dining with me two or three evenings before this sad event. All I can say was the whole thing was simply ghastly. I found that Governor and Mrs. Hughes were sorely touched by it all, they loved him as if he was one of their household, Mrs.Hughes said.

I had hoped directly I came to Mattapoisett to be able to respond to several letters of interest, your own among them, but I have really been good for nothing all through my visit here. Apart from the distress of the arm I seem to be generally gone to pieces, as they say. Directly I came into the sea air,the run-down condition of my system seemed to manifest itself, and I suppose it was all a part of the reaction after the long strain of Mrs. Marvin's illness, which covered six months.

This is a most wonderful air to recover in, it is so soothing that it keeps you from being as energetic as you would like to be, and I suppose that is a splendid thing for most people who are of active temperament and mind.

Yes, dear Mr.White, there are many things we shall talk of when we do meet, of old friends who have entered upon their rest, and the interests which you and I have had in public matters for so many years.

I hear that you are in the prime of life and in splendid health, and look quite yourself. I am afraid you will find that I have passed on very far out of such a description,when I am so fortunate as to see you again.

Mr.and Mrs.Hamlin you saw within the last year at Ithaca,when they went up to pay their respects to you, and I hope if you come down to Albany you will see my elder daughter and her very gifted and delightful husband, to say nothing of my splendid grandson,who is the image of Mr.Pruyn; he is a lad now between fourteen and fifteen, and in two years will graduate at the Academy, and Mrs.Rice and her husband are trying to settle in their minds about his college career, and also as to his going to some preparatory school,as he will be rather young to start in in college life when he is only sixteen or seventeen, in these days people go to enter the university so much older. My uncle by marriage, the late Dr.Andrew P.Peabody of Harvard,who was Plummer Professor there, was ready for college when he was ten years old, and his mother,who was a widow, would not let him go until he was twelve, and then he entered the sophomore year and graduated at fourteen. As he was to study divinity, he was of course much too young to enter the Divinity School, he was to be a Unitarian divine, so he tutored at Harvard up to the time of entering the Theological Seminary. So it is hardly an advantage to get a boy ready to go at this early age out into the wicked world.

I wish you would present my compliments to Mrs.White,and tell her I am hoping some day to have the pleasure of meeting her.

Farewell,my dear friend, and God be with you.

Truly yours,

Dear Sir:- I am Professor Willcox's fellow in statistics and economics and my thesis subject is in regard to the increase of crime in the United States. A new volume of prison statistics is now under publication by the government. Professor Willcox had some time ago secured the proofsheets of this volume and has now turned them over to me. They promise to be of considerable value and with other material now on hand will furnish, I trust, sufficient data on which to build up a thesis.

Knowing of your interest and work along this line, I would be very much pleased if you would grant me the opportunity of talking with you on the subject. I am sure that I could greatly profit by your experience and advice. With the exception of Tuesday, I am free each afternoon of the week. If you can grant me the time, I will call at any hour which you may desire.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Mr White;

I cannot tell you how deeply Mrs Kent & I feel Clara's death, the shock and sorrow of which seems in no wise relieved by anticipation.

To you our measure of sympathy is as broad as the love and affection we feel for you and always cherished towards her;- and there is little more I can say

Devotedly Yours

My dear Mr. White,-

I want to express to you my sympathy over the loss of your daughter, Mrs. Newberry. When I saw her last, a few weeks ago, I hoped she might improve again, as she did last spring. It was a shock to me when the news of her death came so soon.

I had grown to think a great deal of Mrs. Newberry, for she was always so patient bright, and witty, under the most depressing conditions, and even when very ill. It was very discouraging to be able to do so little for her, but we are pretty helpless in the presence of such conditions.

Please accept the expression of my sincere sympathy and sorrow for you in your bereavement

Yours sincerely

MONTHLY BULLETIN OF INVESTMENTS

October 1, 1907

The Present Situation. We are entering on the last quarter of 1907, and during the past nine months the way has been marked with unfulfilled predictions of disasters of various kinds. Our experience has been very much like that of the old man who, when dying, said to his son, "Your poor father has had a heap of trouble, but most of it never came."

We were to have destructive panics—to be followed by failures. We were to have bad crops with resulting pecuniary losses to the farmers, and decreases in railroad earnings. We were to have such recession in all lines of business as would produce stagnation. The agitation against corporations was to proceed indefinitely, and on an expanding scale. There was to be a continuation of the money stringency which would prohibit the starting of new enterprises, if not preventing the completion of those in progress. These and many lesser evils have been kept hanging over us like a sword of Damocles. Though largely imaginary and born of our fears, they have served the useful purpose of promoting conservatism, thus guarding against possible disasters.

As a matter of fact the enormous liquidation in securities which has taken place has been unaccompanied by panics or failures. Broadly speaking, crops are above the average. While oats are scant, wheat is up to the ten-year average and a large export will be possible. The corn yield is excellent, and the cotton crop has been surpassed but once. The railroads up to the present time show no falling off in earnings.

The readjustment of business in all lines, which has been in progress for months, goes on steadily, but at a safe pace, and if the index number of prices is to be trusted, the consumer is getting the benefit of a 3.2 per cent. reduction since March first.

We have previously called attention to the fact that liquidation is not a solitary process. Commodities and labor will undoubtedly share to some extent the fate of securities, but as it is now conceded on all sides that limited recession is likely to be wholesome, it should cause no further concern, especially in view of the generally sound underlying conditions.

As to the crusade against corporations, it is encouraging to note that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law is not held in high esteem by officials generally, and the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commision characterizes it as the "most mischievous piece of legislation in the history of the country." The recent ill-considered State railroad laws are being tested in the courts in a manner calculated to promote confidence. Judge Shull in declaring the Pennsylvania railway law unconstitutional, describes the act as a caprice of the Legislature, "many of whose members, without rhyme or reason, facts or figures, information or reputation, were pledged to perform the act in the name of reform."

There is another factor which will make for conservatism on the part of the crusaders, and that is the fear that business recession may react politically. There is only one thing more timid than capital and that is the politician. An unemployed voter is a very unstable quantity, and there is always the possibility of murmurings on the part of followers and the final smashing of idols.

The money stringency the world over, and locally, has not increased. On the contrary, every European monetary center claims improvement and there are pronounced indications that money is accumulating both at home and abroad. In our own case, though cotton moving has hardly begun and the cereals are late, we are in better financial condition than a year ago. At the close of September the demands for money from the West were 18 millions less than at the same period last year.

We do not claim that the present condition warrants the slightest departure from that intelligent conservatism in financial and industrial circles which has characterized the transition period through which we are passing and done so much to safeguard the situation, but we do feel that there has been and is now every reason for encouragement and confidence.

The Needs of the Hour. We have had a long period of what might be called critical studies of corporate and business methods, and policies on the part of the National and State Governments. This was a plain duty which the representatives of the people owed their constituents. There has been much wholesome light thrown on the subjects studied and much good accomplished. But in order to complete their task there is a second stage—the constructive period—which the authorities should enter upon without delay. This is an obligation which they also owe the people. Involved in this question of a constructive policy are problems meriting concentrated thought and attention as little influenced as possible by partisanship. Indeed the hour was never more propitious for results. Party lines contain many gaps and if the present administration will proceed with its characteristic energy, there are possibilities of incorporating into statutes some of those fundamental principles which underlie and are essential to National success. For instance, expansion of foreign trade, so important to us at this juncture by reason of industrial recession, can be best accomplished by means of trade reciprocity between nations. Something along this line has already been achieved through the temporary commercial agreement with Germany. Why should not effort in this direction be extended as far as is possible under existing law and if necessary seek ampler powers through new statutes.

It is not a fair answer to say that the eve of an election is not favorable to the consideration of the tariff question. The tariff has many aspects, especially in view of our Colonial possessions, and it is due the people that a systematic study of this subject be made by a Commission of experts pending its consideration by Congress. If it is essential to the future welfare of our artisans to secure a wider market for our manufactured products through a modification of tariff schedules and tariff rules, we should have such definite data on the subject as could be furnished by a competent body of experts.

The claim is made by intelligent observers that the vast annual output of gold is having an appreciable effect on the prices of commodities. A problem containing such possibilities is worthy of most careful investigation by trained specialists in this field.

A currency based on the best monetary experience of the whole world is none too good for the people of our country. A sound elastic currency is fundamental to a nation's best interests. Until this is recognized so generally as to make the necessary legislation possible, our citizens must continue to be hampered in their development. Never was the prospect, however, for currency legislation brighter. Prominent Treasury officials have at various times recently clearly presented the question and made valuable recommendations.

There is every reason to believe that Secretary Cortelyou with his characteristic thoroughness will give to currency reform careful consideration and press it vigorously on the attention of Congress.

The legitimate commercial and industrial activities of the country should be embarrassed no longer by such a crude and universally condemned piece of legislation as the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. Its revision is imperative.

The formulation and execution on the part of the administration of a constructive program along the lines indicated above, would be enormously helpful to future prosperity and certainly it offers even a fairer field of renown than that of the recent era of destructive criticism—brilliant as have been the results achieved.

If the present administration will now announce a tangible constructive policy, utilize to the full in its execution all existing statutes and press with its customary vigor for supplementary legislation where necessary, it will again win for itself as large a measure of praise as it has heretofore received from the people.

The Bond Market

The real incident of significance in the investment market during September was the sale by the City of New York of $40,000,000 4½ per cent. bonds at an average price for $35,000,000 due 1957 of 102.063, an income basis of 4.39 per cent., and an average price of 100.30 for $5,000,000 due 1917, an income basis of about 4.46 per cent. The total of the bids received amounted to over $205,800,000. Since the bonds were awarded, sales have occurred on the New York Stock Exchange as high as 107¾. The success attending the sale indicates conclusively that investment capital is readily available when the investment form is sufficiently attractive. The placing of this large amount by the City stimulated interest in the bond market generally, dealings on the New York Stock Exchange, while below the average for previous years, having materially increased in volume since the sale.

The developments in the money market during the month were of a favorable character. New York banks have maintained a surplus reserve of respectable proportions, as compared with previous years, while the Bank of England has built up its proportion of reserve to liabilities to 51⅝ per cent., as compared with 42⅞ per cent. for the same period in 1906, and 40 per cent. in 1905. Call money loaned during the month as low as 1 per cent., a rate not previously recorded since May 4th of the current year. The high rate for call money during the month was 6½ per cent. Time money rates are quoted 5½ per cent. for sixty days and 5¾ to 6 per cent. for three to six months.

In the early part of the month comparatively little activity was shown in the Government bond market, but the designation by the Secretary of the Treasury of a number of new Depositories caused a sharp advance in the prices of the 2s of 1930, the Panama 2s, and the 3s of 1908, consequent upon the request of the Secretary that United States bonds be lodged by the banks as security for the deposits. Subsequently this ruling was modified, and banks permitted to tender one-half in Government or Territorial issues, and the balance in securities legal for investment by savings banks in the States of New York and Massachusetts. Such bonds were in many cases borrowed by the banks, but it was not possible generally to borrow the Government issues, and the demand from this source resulted in an advance in price of 1 per cent. in 2s of 1930, ½ per cent. in Panama 2s, and ½ per cent. in 3s of 1908, which were offered at the close of the month at 106⅞ ex the October interest, 105¾ flat, and 103 flat, respectively.

The 4s of 1925 have during recent months registered a steady decline. They were offered at the close at 125½ flat. While that issue affords at present prices substantially more profit when used to secure United States deposits than any other Government issue, the banks hesitate to increase their premium accounts to the extent involved by purchase of the 4s, and usually decide in favor of one of the issues of 2s.

Since the recent sharp rise in the price of 2s, there has been a noticeable demand for 3s from banks preferring to sacrifice the profit in their deposits, rather than to take the market risk on 2s at the present level. The 3s at the present market when used as a basis for United States deposits, with money at 5 per cent., show a nominal loss, compared with a profit of approximately 1¼ per cent. from the 2s of 1930. At the close, the offered price of 3s represented the equivalent of par and interest to maturity.

My dear Friends:

It is long, too long, since I have written you, but strange as it may seem, my time is perhaps as thoroly filled, what there is of it, as at any previous period in my life. My days are made shorter by the fact that I can only do work in the mornings, as a rule.

First and foremost, you will sympathize with me deeply, I know, when I tell you that my dear Clara died on September 24th at the Watkins Glen sanitarium where she has passed so much time during the last two years. The summer she passed at Lake Placid in the Adirondacks, a most beautiful spot, equal to any of your lakes in the Tyrol. There I visited her, and the doctors, nurses, and myself fully believed that she had passed the crisis of her disease, and would now recover. She grew stronger and better, and was frequently out of doors, and even upon the lake, with her children and myself. But after her return she gradually sank away, and died at six o'clock on Tuesday evening of last week. It will interest you to know that that was the fiftieth anniversary of my wedding day, and the afternoon was passed by her bedside as she softly, painlessly, breathed forth her life. By her side, also, was her eldest son, Andrew, who, with his brother Arthur, has been a great confort to her in all her sorrows and troubles. He is now twenty four years old. Having graduated here in arts and at Columbia University from the mining school, he is now the principal chemist in the great new cement works at York, Pa. He is not only a good scholar, but a fine fellow, and an athlete. His devotion to his mother has been touching. In all her various journeys in recent years he has accompanied her and carried her like a child from train to carriage and from carriage to hotel rooms. He is a great stalwart fellow, six feet high and over, and with the kindly feeling toward the world that such strong creatures so frequently have. Arthur, the other boy, is still at school, and intends to enter here next fall.

The sweet, kindly, affectionate spirit which Clara showed in her childhood, as you so well remember, continued thruout her life, and of course her loss is to me very great, as was the loss of her brother and of my grandson.

I hope that you are both well and hearty. I continue scribbling at my writing desk, and hope to finish the last chapters in my book, which are upon Bismarck, before long. Should you happen to know of any recent striking articles on Bismarck, or anything making any revelations of importance regarding him, published in any of the leading historical reviews, etc., in Germany, I will be greatly obliged if you will inform me regarding them.

We passed a month during the summer near Gloucester, at Bass Rocks. During my stay I made a pilgrimage, as usual, to the old hotel where we had happy hours together. You may be interested to know that across the harbor has been erected a most immense summer hotel of the very first class, exceedingly elegant in all its arrangements, and that the whole region thereabout is now filled with beautiful villas, cottages, and hotels, large and small. My dear Dr. White:-

Our correspondence led me to hope, last spring, that you would be with us on our platform sometime during the coming season. I suggested at the time that it might be a relief to you if you took only a portion of an evening, and that if that were the case I could assign to you the chief address at our opening meeting, Sunday, November 10th. No response to that letter has reached our office, and I presume you preferred to let the matter go over until the fall. I am now completing arrangements for the early part of our program, and will be very glad to know whether we can expect you with us on November 10th, Sunday. If not, whether you will not take a later date, either on Sunday or on one of the other days of the week.

Kindly let me have word from you at your early convenience.

Sincerely yours,

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, October 5, 1907.

Once more the stock market has fallen under the domination of a stringent money market. Business in the interior is active, crop demands are asserting themselves and the autumnal demand for currency has set in with its usual vigor. Coming at a time when our bank reserves are low, and when our credit facilities abroad have been curtailed, the natural result is high rates for money, with a consequent depressing effect upon securities. Secretary Cortelyou has afforded considerable assistance, having thus far deposited about $20,000,000 with the banks within the time limit, which expired this week. Whether he will still further increase these deposits is not known; but the Treasury balance is now $65,000,000 and much depends upon the emergency. At the moment both speculative and investment buying is apparently exhausted. A fair recovery in securities has taken place from the low prices of August, and the disposition is rather to take profits than to make new commitments when money finds such profitable employment outside of the security market.

All indications point to high rates for money during the balance of the year. Credit is still much extended and bankers show a general inclination toward contraction. In previous years we have placed loans abroad to the amount of $200,000,000 to $400,000,000. This year it is doubtful if we could place more than a fraction of that sum. The export season is now on and Europe is sure to take our wheat and cotton with increasing freedom and at good prices. Under ordinary conditions we should be able to count upon a considerable influx of gold, but the great banks of Europe are almost sure to resist any important movement of the precious metal in this direction at this time. Credit in European centers is only just emerging from a period of great strain, and the desirability of building up bank reserves and restoring credit is just as great there as here. No doubt in case of emergency we could command considerable foreign gold, especially as the Bank of England has much strengthened its position, but the movement will only be made under pressure. There has been further liquidation on both domestic and foreign account for those who received assistance at the time of the August collapse, and this was an element of weakness. Foreign confidence in American securities has been unquestionably disturbed by recent disclosures in traction circles, coming so closely after other misdeeds in high financial circles; and this no doubt deprives our market of a support which it would ordinarily have in times of reaction.

President Roosevelt's several speeches this week contained little new regarding his attitude toward corporations and railroads, and they asserted nothing calculated to disturb the stockholders of honest and law-abiding corporations. One of the worst features of the situation is the unwillingness of some of the great corporation managers to obey the law. For all concerned it would be far better if our corporations would adopt compliance with rather than resistance to legal requirements Public opinion would then be pacified, just and reasonable reforms would be possible, and there would be much less hostile Federal and State activity. But so long as some of our ablest lawyers devote themselves to legal evasions, to beating the law, and corporations pay them high sums for such services, just so long will public discontent continue. Corporations have their political future very largely in their own hands, and resistance to present legal restraint is likely to result in increasing rather than diminishing Government interference.

The business situation is now becoming more of a factor in the stock market. No one anticipates any serious reaction; yet day by day it becomes more and more evident that commodity prices have reached an almost prohibitive level and any further rise must result in decreased consumption. Outside of metals there has been no decline of consequence in the commodity markets. Many articles of food are relatively scarce, or certainly not abundant, and as a result growers are in a position to exact unusually high prices. We see nothing in sight to check this tendency, except either lessened consumption or increased production. The latter will not be possible before another harvest; the former is already beginning to show itself, for the reason that large portions of the consuming classes are unable to meet the new demands and must economize. No small part of present stringency in money is due to these high commodity prices, for the reason that much larger sums are required for carrying and marketing products than ordinarily. Whether we are on the eve of a recession in prices or not, it is too early to predict; certainly the business situation would be vastly improved by a return to a more normal level. Tight money will doubtless have a more or less depressing influence upon commodity values, and it is not beyond possibility that more or less embarrassment may follow where overtrading or overextensions of credit have been indulged in. Business failures are already on the increase, the bankruptcies for the first nine months of this year amounting to $116,000,000, against $84,000,000 last year, and the increase in mercantile mortality being chiefly in the manufacturing class. The check to new enterprise imposed by monetary conditions has already induced more or less depression in structural material markets, besides causing a considerable number of hands to be thrown out of employment. This is a process that, once started, is almost sure to gradually work its way to other departments of trade. Fortunately, a profitable harvest will do much to check these influences, and the good wages which a large proportion of the laboring classes are receiving will tend to delay any serious reaction in staple commodities. Nevertheless, the business situation is one which calls for strict conservatism, and this fact is being more widely recognized, not only by bankers, but by merchants and manufacturers alike.

WE ISSUE LETTERS OF CREDIT TO TRAVELERS. AVAILABLE IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

The stock market has received its worst shocks from liquidation, and doubtless some of the better class of railroad securities have now about reached a point where they are selling below their intrinsic value. It remains to be seen, however, how the industrials will stand any business reaction. Many of these have been making abnormal profits which must shortly decrease. Dividends have been paid on securities which represent nothing but water, and when these begin to disappear the effect on market values will be anything but stimulating. Some of these corporations have wisely pursued the policy of devoting a large portion of their unusual profits to extensions and improvement of plant; to this extent giving their common stock an added value. Nevertheless, the industrials are much more likely to feel the effects of business reaction than the railroads, and as no great reaction has yet fallen upon the great industrials, their ability to meet depression is still to be demonstrated.

The increasing high cost of doing business is becoming a vital matter in net earnings and profits, for the latter are gradually, but surely, diminishing. Such a situation almost invariably marks the turn of the tide. No better indication of what increased costs mean is to be found than in the monthly statements of railroad earnings. In July the roads which furnished returns showed an increase in gross earnings of $18,500,000. Of this sum over $16,000,000 was absorbed by increased expenditures, leaving an increase in net of only $2,400,000. Figures for seven months of the year show a gain of nearly $111,000,000, of which $93,000,000 was consumed by increased expenses, leaving less than $18,000,000 increase in net. The bulk of these increased expenses went to labor in one form or another, although the higher cost of fuel and other materials contributed an important share. These increases in costs of labor and material are going to bear with particular weight upon industrial concerns, for the reason that the latter will have to face more or less curtailment in orders, while the railroads are showing little or no important loss in the volume of traffic. There is one good feature, and that is the corn crop is a good one and is now practically safe from frost.

Newyork

THE COMMERCIAL SITUATION.

WHEAT.—The situation abroad again comes forward as a most prominent factor, unfavorable cable advices from Austria and complaints of drouth in India having been received. This appears to be inspiring fresh activity among exporters, who feel much elated at finding the Liverpool market higher at this time than was the case when December wheat recently sold above the present level. This state of affairs indicates that Europe will be obliged to take practically all of the wheat which this country can supply at anything like reasonable figures. Considerable talk of an unsatisfactory nature is to be heard regarding the situation in Manitoba and the Northwest Provinces, where predictions point to a large percentage of wheat fit only for feeding purposes, good milling grades being scarce. Among other factors not so bullish may be mentioned the Argentine crop, which is coming along in a satisfactory manner with only about two months to harvest. Then again fine weather will increase the movement of our spring crop, which will be a weight on the market unless export business is continued on a very heavy scale. While the situation at the moment looks strong it appears just as well to take advantage of the spurts on which to secure profits, as such movements will naturally induce considerable selling. On the other hand, when the market becomes oversold from time to time purchases on soft spots for moderate turns appear to be in order.

CORN.—Movement of old corn continues to be largely in excess of that of a year ago. Wet weather throughout the Central West and Southwest is rather disturbing, but with the first week in October about over and no important damage by frost, the outlook cannot be called unfavorable. The export demand has picked up slightly, but is still rather slow. Weather talk still has some influence in governing the market price of corn, although it is realized that the crop is now practically out of danger and that with a large yield assured prices are high, being 15 cents above last year. During the last sixty days pork has suffered a decline of nearly $2 a barrel, and therefore there is room for some lowering in corn quotations.

COTTON.—The figures of the two Government reports were given a bearish construction by the trade, and without any new speculative buying cotton prices readily yielded on the selling pressure that followed from the South and even Europe. While the condition—67.7 per cent—shows a deterioration of about 5 per cent for the month, it is generally believed that the weather conditions so far this fall have been unusually favorable for maturing the crop. One of the peculiarities of the new season is the inactivity of the spot markets, indicating a growing belief in a large supply of good cotton from the South sooner or later. Receipts have been much lighter than expected, but this, being generally attributed to the holding policy started in the Southwest, has had no effect on sentiment or prices. Spinners here and in Europe are only moderate buyers for immediate wants, the bulk of the export business being for future shipments for which fair prices are demanded. Consumption in all probability will be less than last year, as some reaction in the dry goods trade is expected to follow the declining tendency of yarns. Business in Europe, however, is still good and manufacturers claim there are no immediate signs of a curtailment in production, as the mills are still enjoying a very profitable trade. As long as the weather in the South continues good no speculation can be attracted to the bull side of cotton, and buyers of spots will also hold off as long as possible. The chief danger, as before, in following the short side is the probability of the markets being occasionally oversold and the liability of an early frost.

My dear Dr White,

I enclose the sketch you requested, I found the General Electric Review had a very accurate account and have copied it, -

I have no power of expression equal to telling you how grateful I am dear Dr White for what

My dear Dr. White-

I am sure that within the past week you must have been overwhelmed with letters but I just want this little note from me to tell you how much Evelina and I both Clara and her deeply grieved we are in her death.

After we had the time has her brave, courageous spirit been the greatest possible help to me. I need to say that to me she was a mental tonic; and surely such a quiet life as hers has not been lived in vain. I like to think of her now as being with her Mother and Fred, for both of whom she grieved so deeply. If I had such a long, bright, cheery letter from her in August, that the news of her death came as a great shock - I know what she would be hoped that she was feeling much better and stronger.

Our friendship has been such an unbroken one for although there were several years in which we did not meet, when we finally came together again we took up the threads just where we had dropped them. We found each unchanged and she seemed to step back into the same and in the end for years we had had many happy times together which we cherished fondly. Once a little girl with Miss Underdue we went to the Vanderbilt's to see Clara's little maid he had had many letters from her since Clara has been also Watkins and Clara was so attached to her that he felt it-how dear things to some dear God for her that she is where she can have real and peace, and that she is where she can see more perfectly, that in spite of all the errors and cruelties of this life, things shall eventually come out right - and as she must have them - The freeing lines of Psalms very clearly bring my thought in regard to Clara -

"The clouds come nightly to the sky
The tidal wave finds the sea
The highest, most depths in time, no space
Shall keep mine own from me"

Clara was so brave and pure and true - Many and many a would be something of a comfort to help & field him. I hope that he might have seen her, & his Victorian mind also thought for would be glad to do & feel that for must be suffering his deeply to care to see anyone - Clara surely was to his mind - speaking of her, or although it is so many, many years since we have met I cannot realize that it is so long a time - Her love for her always seemed to me such a beautiful thing, a much greater

My dear Friend:-

While sending you my word of hearty good will on your 75th birthday, I want you to know what an inspiration you have been to me in all the years since my student days, increasingly so, I think, as the years go by. You have broadened my horizon. More, it seems to me than any other man, you have said things that have influenced my life, on its intellectual and practical side. You have a way of saying things that makes a deep impression upon a kindred soul.

I think I have already told you of my appreciation of your autobiography, and how among other things the incidental remark so simply expressed, in substance, that the world was progressing in the way of liberal thought quite as rapidly as was desirable, brought peace to my soul, which had softened at the narrowness of the traditionalists.

Years ago, you said in a lecture, "Inside the existing organization is the sphere of influence". Thoughts which that almost chance remark suggested have influenced my whole course of action in church, in politics and elsewhere, and have made me I am sure a much more useful man, than I otherwise would have been.

There are mere incidents in a long life that has been a constant source of intellectual and (in its true sense) spiritual stimulus to me, and to hosts of others.

One of the privileges that I most value in coming into the Board of Trustees at this time, is that I may have part in its deliberations while such men as you and Henry B. Ford are still active.

I congratulate you not so much over the number of years you have lived as on what you can see and feel that you have accomplished, and what you have been and are to the men about you.

Sincerely and respectfully yours,

Dear Mrs. Magee:

I send the "Introductory Word," which I have dictated this morning. That it is utterly inadequate, ~~that~~ I feel deeply, and I shall harbor not the slightest feeling of disappointment or regret if you shall agree with me ~~think so~~ and dispense with the use of it. Indeed, I shall have a feeling of relief if you decide to do so. A man near the close of his seventy-fifth year, whose thoughts, such as they are, have always been expressed in prose,

is hardly likely to ~~cannot, I think~~, offer any competent criticism of verse.

My theory in writing has been that to the readers of the little book must be left the appreciation of it,- that what ~~was~~ is needed in the introductory word ~~was~~ is to give them some little knowledge of the personality of its author, ~~and perhaps~~ perhaps, thus securing a kindly attitude of their minds toward him.

Regretting that I cannot send you something more worthy, I remain,

Most respectfully and sincerely yours,

As soon as it is real cold weather, we will take them out dressed up in their coats caps and leggings and have their photographs taken, and if the photos are successful we'll send some to you all for Christmas.

By the way, that reminds me, of something of which you shall know Christmas.

I am reading the Collier de la Reine by Alexandre Dumas, in French. They have over at the Purdue Library quite a number of foreign books. One of Ervin's assistants, is going to lend me his copy of "Lettres de Mon Moulin," by Daudet, with translations by this young man, and I shall enjoy reading them, and it will be interesting to read the translations.

Ervin and Papa dear, I decided to send a piece of cut glass to Mr. Bunn, I think that will be as acceptable as anything. And for fear of its being

35 AND 37 BROADWAY
NEW YORK

October 9, 1907.

Mr. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

In reply to your favor of recent date we are pleased to send you under another cover a folder containing the sailings and rates of passage for both our North-Atlantic and Mediterranean services.

Our great flyer, the "DEUTSCHLAND", holding the record across the Atlantic of five days, seven hours and thirty-eight minutes, will appeal to those desiring a quick passage with all the comforts of a modern hotel. The ship is so well known that it seems unnecessary to enlarge upon the special features it offers for a quick and comfortable voyage. In addition to her luxurious suites, consisting of parlor, bedroom, bath and toilet, there are a large number of "Pullman" rooms and single cabins. Many of her regular staterooms are exceptionally large. The commodious airy Grill Room, located on the boat deck, is very much patronized by fastidious diners and gives the passenger the choice between a full course table d'hote, dinner, or luncheon, and a limited a-la-carte selection. It has almost become an indispensable feature on an ocean liner. In fact throughout the "DEUTSCHLAND" is one of the most superbly equipped vessels afloat.

The "AMERIKA" and the "KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA" have not been built for excessive speed, but they offer a degree of comfort hitherto unknown on ocean steamers. Their first appearance in New York Harbor created widespread interest. Besides their commodious staterooms and spacious promenade decks, these steamers offer numerous other attractions, such as a palm-garden, passsenger elevators, safe deposit vaults, florist shops, electric light baths, modern barber shops and friseur and manicure parlors. The plan of the "KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA" (of 25,000 tons gross register), which we are sending you, shows the excellent arrangement of the passenger accommodations and the many new and novel features which have made this the most popular steamer in the transatlantic trade. The "AMERIKA" is of the same type. The trip to England and France is made by these vessels in the comfortable time of seven days and to Hamburg in nine days.

The Ritz Carlton a-la-carte restaurant, an innovation introduced last season by the Hamburg-American Line on these new liners, was hailed by our most exacting patrons as one of the greatest improvements in ocean traveling. The "KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA" and "AMERIKA" are the only vessels that have an a-la-carte restaurant in addition to the regular ship's dining room service. The restaurant is under the same management and supervision as the famous Carlton Hotel and Ritz Hotel of London and the Ritz Hotel of Paris, and the service, cuisine, etc., are equal to the best restaurants ashore. It is not merely a separate a-la-carte service in the regular dining room, giving a limited selection of dishes as introduced by some lines, but affords passengers the same choice of food and delicacies as offered at Delmonico's and Sherry's. The regular dining saloon can accommodate five hundred persons at one sitting.

For a comfortable passage at a moderate rate we can recommend our steamers "PRETORIA", "PATRICIA", "GRAF WALDERSEE" & "PENNSYLVANIA", of the twin-screw passenger service, which have gained a well-deserved reputation for their steadiness. This service will be augmented by the two new, large twin-screw liners "PRESIDENT LINCOLN" and "PRESIDENT GRANT", vessels of 18,000 tons, with most modern and comfortable accommodations. The first cabin staterooms are all comfortably large and are located exactly amidships -- far above the water line. Their enormous carrying capacity and the fact that they are provided with bilge keels make them remarkably steady. Even in the roughest seas the motion is hardly perceptible. These steamers take about ten days across the Atlantic. The twin-screw steamer "BLUECHER" will also ply in the North-Atlantic trade this year, and makes the ocean voyage in eight and one-half days.

Our Mediterranean Service to Gibraltar, Naples and Genoa, will be maintained by the steamers "MOLTKE" and "HAMBURG". These vessels are so well-known for their comfortable accommodations and excellent cuisine and service, that a further description of them seems unnecessary. Unusually large staterooms and "chambre de luxe" constitute one of the features which have no doubt largely contributed to the thorough satisfaction expressed by so many of their passengers. Among their other features are the grill room, a gymnasium with the most modern apparatus of the Swedish Zander system, and a large number of single berth rooms. The trip to Gibraltar is made in ten days and to Italy in twelve days.

Each winter the number of Americans who wend their way Egyptward increases. To afford our patrons a convenient means of reaching this wonderfully interesting country, we shall despatch our luxurious twin-screw steamer "HAMBURG" to Alexandria, via Gibraltar, Genoa and Naples, on January 4th and again on February 15th, 1908. The "DEUTSCHLAND" will make the trip to Gibraltar in six days, and to Italy in less than eight days. This is a splendid opportunity to reach Spain, the south of France, the beautiful Riviera resorts and all parts of Continental Europe, quickly and comfortably, without enduring the rigors of a late winter passage on the North-Atlantic, or the tiresome overland journey. That portion of the traveling public which annually sojourns along the shores of the Mediterranean has learned that the trip to Italy by the flyer "DEUTSCHLAND" possesses all the charms of a trans-Atlantic voyage in mid-summer inasmuch as the ship, logging 23 knots an hour, is out of sight of land a much shorter time and reaches mild latitudes soon after departure.

Please let us know when and by which steamer you wish to sail and the kind of accommodation desired, so that we may be able to reserve comfortable rooms for you.

Our Tourist Office will upon application quote you rates for any railroad trip in Europe and furnish you with suggestions as to the best hotels, guides, etc.

Hoping to hear from you again, we are,

Yours very truly,

Circumstances make it impossible for Mrs Jackson to go out with me, even if I thought it wise to take her in spite of the climate altitude and unsettled political conditions. Altogether I am not feeling at all happy, but I try to be cheerful and to hope

Dear Sir:-

I have just now been furnished with a memorandum indicating that you have a policy for $4000., covering your East Avenue property, written at a rate of 60 ¢ for three years, which will expire October 31st. Perhaps you have other insurance also about to expire; or it may be that, owing to increased cost of building and replacement, you may desire additional insurance. In any event, I wish you might see your way clear to favor me with a portion of your business, any amount of which I should be pleased to write at 50 ¢ for three years.

Are You Insured?

I am endeavoring to build up an agency here, and I very much appreciate every addition to my business.

It would give me pleasure to show you the most liberal residence and furniture form in use in the city, whether you take any insurance with me or not. Any form will do if there is no loss, but when a fire occurs the wording of policy-forms immediately enters into the adjustment of the loss.

It would have great weight with me. For my part however I see no reason for haste. I do not think that the last board is all out of our business system yet.

My dear Uncle Andrew:

Father tells me that you are likely to be here soon for the probate of Clara's will. There are several very important business matters I am anxious to present to you. One is an important suggestion in regard to the care of your own estate matters. I would rather not write about it.

The other is this, one of the most successful hotel men in the State with evidently a strong financial backing has been very anxious to buy or lease the Empire House property for a fine modern hotel. After giving the matter careful study it seems to me that the wisest plan would be to try and make a long term lease of the property, or so much of it as might be desired. There are great advantages in such a course and I think we could obtain a rental much beyond the present net income of the property. Our responsibility would largely be at an end then and I can see no disadvantages in such a course, provided we can get a suitable lease.

I will be here this week. On Monday next I am obliged to go to Rochester to argue two cases at the Appellate Division, and I am likely to be there two days. After that my plans are

I will stop at the Clinton House and if it is not too much trouble would like to have you wire me whether you will be able to see me or not. I think a personal interview would be much more satisfactory than any thing I could write you.

Dear Sir,

Since the late Mr. Louis J. Magee returned to this country four yesrs ago as representative of the Allgemeine Elektricitäts-Gesellschaft and until his sad death last July I had the privilege of being his confidential assistant and aiding him in his work. Mr. Magee's death is a great loss to all of us who knew him as an exceptionally brilliant gentleman and fine character. It has also naturally affected my own career. Mr. Magee often spoke about you and I trust you will not consider it an imposition if I appeal to you to assist me in shaping my future.

I should like to procure a position similar to the one I held with Mr. Magee, but I would very much prefer to obtain some U.S. Government appointment in Germany or France. Perhaps a post with an American Embassy or Consulate in Europe where my international knowledge and business experience might be valuable. I am anxious to locate in Europe for a few years in order to have an opportunity to study there.

I do not wish to burden you with my history now and will merely mention that I am 30 years old, of good family, have had ten years bsuiness experience, know German quite well and French fairly well. Mrs. Magee, of 80 Madison Avenue, New York, who knows me well will, I am sure, give any information regarding my character and my work with Mr. Magee.

I shall be very thankful indeed for anything you can do for me and beg to remain,

Yours faithfully, Maurice Moscovitz.

My dear old friend

The papers again bring news of the sorrow that visits your family

Of all whom I have chanced to see in Ithaca, my recollection of her is the most vivid — her beauty & vivacity, & as years went on her increasing ministry to you in your trouble, & your labors, made an impression upon me that I have never ceased to remember & to admire. I have felt the deepest sympathy with her, but still a grateful memory of a full strong life lived even in vain but always in diminishation of — love where it was most needed.

My dear friend. I know you thank God for this child & praise him for the life

she lived as it fell to her.

I still think in the old fashioned ways, believing that the one God creates his children never in vain, & that they fill out the lives in some way of all others, & that literally all things work together for good in the strange lives that befall us.

There are numberless things for us to believe & to do, but for myself there are only one or two things ~~for which I would die~~ that I really believe in, the good God & human love.

There are times when these realities fill our souls & satisfy us.

Believe me faithfully &
Affectionately your old friend
Theodore T. Munger

Mrs. Munger begs me to send you her sympathy & regard.
And will you also assure Mrs. White of our remembrance.
Our friend Sheldon sends sympathy to you. We have talked together of you with genuine sympathy. He is today at present is very good health.

My Dear President:

At a Cornell banquet in Seattle, last Spring, Hughes was warmly applauded as a possible candidate for President. Since that dinner he has become a serious possibility – even at this distance.

Does he look to you, or is he too independent?

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

081941

If new York should adopt him, or promise to, the Taft boom would collapse.

Many serious people are sick for Taft because he is the favorite son of our President, many more I admit, because he is. The field, as well as the Ohio warrior of many campaigns, is against him. Hence the possibility of your Governor, if Knox is impossible

Pardon my interruption, but you are still our President.

Sincerely, John A. Reed, '69

Dear Mr. White;-

Your letter of 9th. inst. was duly received, and I note contents thereof. I take pleasure in giving you herewith list of names of tenants occupying E. Fayette St. and So. Clinton St. properties, and amounts paid by each.

E. Fayette St.

John Gosau,	one year lease,	expires May 1st. '08	per mo. $45.00
Peter N. Shew	" "	" " " " " " "	" " 57.33
H. J. Tipper	no lease		" " 13.00

South Clinton St. property.

Fisk Rubber Co.	5 yr. lease	expires May 1st. 1911	per mo. $70.
Potter Co.	5 " "	" " " "	" " 40.00
David Richards	3 " "	" " 1908	" " 20.
Samuel Elman	3 " "	" " 1910	" " 16.66

About November 1st. P. N. Shew is to be released from his lease, and Mr. John Gosau will take a lease of the entire property for three years paying $1400 per year and all repairs. This is an increase as the repairs are very heavy on this property being old and in bad condition.

Trusting I have answered your request to your satisfaction, I beg to remain,

My dear Dr. White:

Replying to your letter of the 9th inst., I beg to state that the date for the next meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Institution is Tuesday, December 10th.

I beg to make use of this occasion to assure you of the pleasure and instruction I have derived from reading your reminiscences during the past summer. I have had the two volumes at my summer home in the Blue Ridge, to which I have been able to take week-end journeys. I have read the volumes with the liveliest interest and shall commend them to my sons.

I was naturally much interested in your account of your early experiences at Cornell University in dealing with the great number of exceptional men and women who presented themselves for work and instruction at the University. My experience during the past three years has been in many respects quite similar to yours at the time in question. I think, however, that the number of "exceptional men" who encumber the correspondence and draw on the energies of the Institution quite surpasses the number you had to deal with at Cornell University. Is there not some way to treat these people, who have little to communicate to the world, with all due courtesy, and at the same time prevent them from interfering with the progress of those who can contribute something to the world's good?

Sincerely yours,

R. S. Woodward

Dear and Adolfo's sincere condolences for the sorrow which has fallen upon you all. She was a bright lovely pure womanly character - full of the highest aspirations, and the appreciation of everything noble and beautiful in Art, and in Nature - and it must be some comfort to you - and to her dear Son Andrew to cherish such a memory as this in your heart of hearts. I am at least also consoled to know that she passed on to a continued and higher life without suffering. My dear Uncle Andrew:

Your note dated October 10th has this moment reached me. It is uncertain about me being in Syracuse next week. I am obliged to go to Rochester to argue two cases in the Appellate Division on Monday and may be detained there until Wednesday evening. Thursday I am likely to go away again. However, if you are here I will try to see you. I am sorry you could not have been here this week.

I have not been able to find father to-day, but I am sure it would be convenient for you to come to him next week.

You can rely upon this as I know he partially expects you.

WHITE MEMORIAL BUILDING,
SYRACUSE, N.Y.

Oct. 14th. 1907.

Mr. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

Dear Mr. White;-

Your instructions to prepare a list of stocks and bonds which I consider a good investment at this time has been continually in my thoughts for some few weeks; but, owing to the continual slump which the market has been taking since the time you instructed me, has deferred my doing anything in connection with this matter, as I did not consider it a favorable time to buy. I think now the market has reached it's lowest level and will from now on retract, although perhaps slowly.

Without doubt general business as a whole is slowing down; and, taking the iron and steel business as a barometer, it is apparent that we are entering an era which will mark a new epoch in finance. This is caused by the attacks of the governments on capital and more especially here in our country. There is a spirit of righteousness sweeping over the country, and a great many wrongs committed by corporations are being brought to light. This, together with the money stringency which is usually prevalent at this time of the year caused by the harvesting and moving of our western crops, has forced the market to this unprecedented condition in such times as we are now enjoying. With the money market relieved about January first by returns from shipment of crops the market will have an upward tendency. It is very doubtful if prices will assume their former high figure as regards stocks and bonds. It is now said that orders for steel are forty per cent lower than at this time last year, and many of the subsidiary plants are closing down. It is difficult to predict to what extent the business depression will go or how long it will last; but it will have atleast one good effect, that a considerable amount of water will be squeezed out and stocks and bonds will find their more intrinsic values. For this reason it is advisable to avoid all speculation at this time, and to invest in only the best securities at present prices for a long pull, probably a year or eighteen months. The market may go a few points lower than at present, but when it starts to retract, the rise may be a little sudden, and probably we could invest at as low a figure now as a little later. I beg to submit herewith a list of what just at this time appear to be good investments, and also respectfully refer you to the list submitted a few months ago, as it contained some choice investments which ought to hold good today.

I trust you may be able to select something from the list herewith enclosed, and that I may be of service to you in placing your order.

Hoping you are enjoying your usual good health, and awaiting the pleasure of your further commands, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

Frank J. Barrett

Pensylvania R. R. stock at 117 paying 7% appears to be good ~~the two cent rate being declared illegal~~, and the future this road has with it's entrance into the New England States.

The Pacifics , Union paying 8% at 120, and Southern paying 6.25 at 75 1-2 may appear to be speculative, but they have the earning power and are under good management, and would be good stocks for a long hold.

Allegheny & Western is exempt from all taxes and is serviceable as government bonds

Rapid Transit 1st. 5s. is a safe investment. Syracuse is a thriving, growing city and the mortgage is sound. can be bought for 97

Amalgamated Copper is purely speculative now paying 8% but will not pay more than 4% inside of six months, with a business depression would undoubtedly discontinue paying. United States Steel com. at 24. also rather seductive and in same class, but both might be good for a speculation at their respective prices for a long hold.

Dear Sir:

The National Civil Service Reform League will hold its Twenty-seventh Annual Meeting in Buffalo, N. Y. on Thursday and Friday, November 7 and 8, at the invitation of the Civil Service Reform Association of Buffalo. The public sessions will begin on Thursday afternoon, continuing Thursday evening and throughout Friday. The meeting will close with a banquet on Friday evening. I enclose a copy of the program herewith.

The Executive Committee of the New York Association has instructed me to send this invitation to members and to express its desire that a large and representative delegation to attend the meeting can be secured. The committee hopes that you will be able to attend as a delegate some, if not all, of the sessions.

Asking the favor of a reply, in case you are able to attend, before November 1, I remain,

Respectfully yours,

Elliot H. Goodwin

Secretary.

The House Committee begs to make the following announcements:

1. A fully equipped Barber Shop is now at the service of the members.

   Hours:
   Week Days: 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 3 to 8 p.m.
   Sundays: 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.
   Personal outfits will be cared for by the barber.

2. The table is served with pure fresh milk and cream from tuberculin tested cows. These products are handled in the most modem sanitary manner, and are guaranteed to contain less than 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter.

3. Both salted and colored and unsalted and uncolored butter are served to the patrons of the dining room. The fresh butter is made tri-weekly from fresh sanitary cream and is at once delivered to the Club.

4. A pure California Red Wine, bottled in the Club, made from the Cabernet Grape is supplied to the patrons of the dining room at 25 cents the full bottle, and 15 cents the half bottle.

Dear Sir;-

We are shipping your order to-day without the Ginger Brandy. We do not handle this article now, in fact have not for some time, for the reason that there is a very slow sale for it, and, again, it appears to change in its character. At least, that has been our experience. Of course if you insist upon it, we will get some for you, but we had thought best to explain our reason for not sending it.

Yours very truly,

This "brandy" is made either from the Jamaica or African Ginger root - not from the "Canton" - and the flavor is rather of a musty character - hence the slow sale -

Dear President White:

My friend Doctor William Elliot Griffis of Ithaca suggests that I write you in regard to some work I have in hand. I have undertaken to compile for publication by this Society the miscellaneous speeches and correspondence of Millard Fillmore. Doctor Griffis in conversation with me recently, alluded to an incident which occurred in Paris, when Horace Greeley was imprisoned for debt, and stated that Mr. Fillmore, who was in Paris at the time, supplied the funds for his release. I do not find the incident referred to in any book, but Doctor Griffis was of impression that you were his source of information in the matter. If so, can you kindly confirm it or refer me to any published record of the affair ?

May I further ask, as I am asking many friends, if you know of letters by Millard Fillmore in any hands, from which I could obtain them for this publication? I have already secured much interesting material of this sort from a

At the Sig banquet the other night I was delighted to hear you speak as you did concerning the establishment of new chapters, particularly shapters in our great we stern universities.

This came right home to me since to me has falled the work of securing support for the Alpha of Wisconsin.

I am very sorry to say that I find it hard sledding in some quarters since movst of the Sigs still entertain the remains of the prejudice against the establishment of new chapters and are not yet in sympathy with the movement.

Your talk as given at this banquest to our Sigs hereabouts would assist us greatly in the work and I am therefore taking the liberty of asking if you would be willing to write a letter expressing your views which I might use here abouts in behalf of the new chapter.

I do not expect any elaborate article, but rather a summary as brief as you can make it to give it fullness and to give the whole subject its proper setting. Hon. A. D. White,

My dear Friend:

It was a great pleasure to hear from you again, but a painful surprise to receive the sad intelligence of Clara's death. We supposed that she was much better and looked to her complete recovery. Her decease is a grief to us both and must be a severe affliction to you. My wife especially has delightful memories of her infancy and of the development of her fine qualities as she grew to womanhood. It is a consolation to know that she was such a lovable and noble character, but this knowledge, too, makes her loss more deeply felt. I am glad to learn that your book containing biographies of distinguished men is nearly completed. The only recent thing about Bismarck published in the papers was an account of Lambetta's interviews with him soon after the Franco-German war of 18-70. It was stated that the interview took place at Bismarck's home, and some particulars of the conversation were given. It was soon shown, however, that the whole story was a fiction and that such an interview never took place. If I find anything new about Bismarck I will let you know without delay. Not long ago Prof. Horatio S. White now of Harvard University wrote me that a "Memorial" of Willard Fiske was to be published and asked me to contribute an account of the Rhaeto-Romanic Collection which he gave to Cornell University and which I assisted him in making during a summer in the Engadine especially at Zuoz and St. Moritz. I complied with his request and sent him an article on Rhaeto-Romanic literature as well as on the Essay on Rhaeto-Romanic people, language and history of the Rhaeto-Romanic people, with a brief account of the making of the collection. The whole subject presents a rather puzzling linguistic and ethnological problem or rather series of problems somewhat difficult to solve. Cf my Zimmern book "Beiträge zur Indischen Litteratur- und Kulturgeschichte" I have about 100 copies which I would like to present to public libraries in the United States. The difficulty is that in the first place I do not know where these libraries are and in the second place I cannot afford to send them at my own Expense. If our government would distribute them I should be glad and would willingly furnish the copies. I requested the publisher of my book "The Criminal Prosecution and Capital Punishment of Animals" to send you a copy of it and I hope you have received it. The book is published by William Heinemann in London but is on sale by E. P. Dutton & Co. in New York, who sent it to you or at least were requested to do so. The book has been very favorably noticed by the German press and a quarterly review in Leipsic says that "it ought to be translated immediately into German." I should think it ought to have a good sale in England and America.

I am now very busy with my "History of German Literature", which, according to my original plan, was to be completed in five volumes. The first two volumes will be finished before long and will be published at once and I hope to live long enough to finish the other three which will include the literature of the present day. The first and second volumes come down to the century. The work is delayed by the necessity of writing for the press in order to realize my income, which otherwise would be very small. Expenses I should have nothing to complain of if I could only get my money promptly. Everything is dear, rents, provisions, taxes, etc. I do not know how I could live if I had to support a family, and I hope I shall never be obliged to do so. My friends all say that I do not work enough and I trust the same may be said of you when you read this letter. At the same time old age makes itself unpleasantly felt in one way or another and I gradually diminish the ability to work.

I mention this because some may think I have nothing to complain of.

E. P. Dutton & Co. were requested also to send a copy of my book to Count G. B. Grant Judge of the Supreme Court of Michigan. Should you not have received it and would you like to review it in a Michigan paper, I enclose herewith a copy which must have been sent to you under wrapper. If you will kindly let me know that you have received it and would

P.S. I have thought lately of returning to America and spending the remnant of my days there. In that case it would be necessary to live near a large library containing sources for the continuation of my "History of German Literature." American public and university libraries are certainly much richer than they were when I came to Europe in 1870. If I can have such advantages for literary work, I greatly prefer to live in my native land.

Hon. A. D. White:

My dear Friend, At first we were very glad to see your name on the letter, as it was so long since we had heard from you; but your sad news was a great shock and grief to us. We had been hoping that Clara was really better and might in time recover her health in good degree; your last report was encouraging; but it seems that her sensitive nature could not longer bear the strain. That she died on the anniversary of your marriage must have added to the intensity of your feelings during that sorrowful watch!

Fifty years ago! Those were the days when I first knew you, shortly before Clara's birth and again shortly after she was born. I first saw her in her cradle and I have loved her ever since.

You speak truly of her "sweet, Kindly, affectionate spirit" which she showed in all the relations of life. I remember when she was a little girl I heard her in the front yard at Syracuse speak to a poor beggar woman so politely that I praised her for it. As she grew up she never seemed to feel any envy or jealousy of her girl-friends — she used to quote "Fanny Gott" as though she were an oracle and she rejoiced in Ruth's fondness for music. I never saw her with her children, but I can easily imagine that their devotion to her was a deserved recognition of her devotion to them. She is at rest, and rest must have been welcome to her. Mrs. H. White ("Fanny Gott") told me when she was here that Clara was very unhappy. It could not be otherwise.

Do you remember my once asking you whether you believed in a future life? I do believe in it — as much as any one can believe in what one knows nothing about. And I believe that what we miss or lose here will be granted there, wherever it may be in the universe, or whenever it may be in eternity.

You seem to be at home again and engaged in your usual occupations. We hope that Mrs. White and Karin are well, also Miss Emily Outwater. I suppose you hear often from Ruth and her family. I do not know her address, or I should write to her. Perhaps you will mention her address when you write and also give her our affectionate remembrances when you write to her. I hope you will not work too hard at your literary undertakings. If we find anything about Bismarck we will let you know at once. My husband is busy at his History of German Literature (in English) and will soon have the first two volumes ready for publication. What you say of Clara's son Andrew is very interesting. I suppose his position as Chemist does not expose him to any danger. My nephew's only son, Harry Thompson, who had an important position in a great Pennsylvania Quarry, died recently from the effects of an accident which occurred there. Your mention of Columbia University reminds me that a relative of mine a granddaughter of my Castine Uncle H. Williams, Miss Lucia Dement of Chicago, is a graduate this year of Columbia University in the Art Department. The picture (in oils) which she painted for the closing exhibition was placed by the Director on his own easel, which was a great honor. Her work was considered very successful. Another relative of mine, Roy Henry is a student at Cornell University. We see in the papers comments on Catholic intrigues respecting Cornell. President Schurman appears to be equal to the emergency and I doubt not that you are in accord with all he does and says. It is undeniable that the Catholics will bear watching." Let us hope that the Public School Money will remain intact!

I have mentioned a variety of things in this letter, but I am thinking all the time about Clara, and the sorrow which her death has caused. When she and Fred were little I used often to look at them and wonder whether such fortunate children could be kept happy and prosperous through a long life! Certainly, the prospect seemed then entirely fair, and in Clara's disposition there was an independence of spirit, a calm self-reliance, which seemed to promise ability to meet and endure successfully "the changes and chances of this mortal life". Remembering that trait in her character, I felt hope in a final favorable outcome of her long protracted malady, which was probably more mental than physical, from the first. But for mind and body both there are limits to endurance!

As I write, my memory is full of incidents belonging to the past, as connected with her and with Fred. I often think too of Fred's widow and her affliction in the tragical death of husband and son.

I hope you will write again. You have our deep sympathy in the sorrow.

With all good wishes for you and yours,

Sincerely your friend,

Elizabeth E. Evans.

I have written this letter on a portfolio given me by Clara in Berlin.

Dear sir:-

As Chairman of the Committee on Lectures of the National Consumer's League I wish to ask your aid and seek your interest in their work.

Our League is active in bettering the condition of the workers in the shops and factories, in suppressing the abuses of Child Labor, in securing Pure Food and the hygienic quality of all goods sold to the public. It is one of the best of modern philanthropies. It is more than a remedy for existing evils. It is preventive of their origin and rise, and instead of arraying class against class, it unites all for the common good. I send you by the same mail a package of recent reports and hope you will carefully read them.

May we have not merely your general interest but your kind permission to enter your name in the list of those men and women of distinction whose helpful spirit makes them willing to address the public in behalf of their work, when called upon with due notice beforehand, and when other engagements do not prevent.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sir,

I wish to thank you for your very kind letter of October 14th. I am, of course sorry that your stand must be a negative one but I fully appreciate the justness of your remarks. I also feel that my claims -if any- upon your time and kindness are quite remote and would not have troubled you at all had not the sad and unexpected death of Mr. Magee put me in a very awkward position. Mr. Magee was good enough to take a personal interest in me and was doing very much to further my career. Only three days before his death he sent me a handwritten letter to Europe, where I then was, promising to send me various letters of recommendation soon as he would be strong enough to dictate such letters.

Unfortunately I have no friends nor political influence and know no Representative or Senator who could aid me in obtaining a Government post. Also I cannot, morally, apply to Messrs. Westinghouse or Kerr, because I was, through Mr. Magee, connected with interests which are antagonistic to those of Westinghouse.

I trust you will not consider me insistent or lacking in tact in writing to you again. I am merely doing so in the hope that you may, perhaps later on, do something for me, if it is not too much trouble for you.

At any rate be assured that I fully appreciate your kindness and the impossibility of your satisfying the many demands which must be made upon you.

Yours faithfully, Maurice Moscovitz.

1 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK

October 17, 1907.

To the members of the Simplified Spelling Board:

Gentlemen: I have the honor to inform you, by direction of the Executiv Committee, that by a vote of the Board, taken pursuant to the notice of nomination, dated June 10, 1907, the following named gentlemen have been unanimously elected members of the Board. The election was completed early in the summer, but the announcement was deferred until the Fall.

Prof. CLARENCE G. CHILD, of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Penn.

Prof. OLIVER FARRAR EMERSON, Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio.

Prof. CHARLES H.GRANDGENT, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

A memorandum of the names and the professional and official status of these gentlemen, taken from the original nomination blanks, is inclosed. The Board now has forty-two members. Two other members, Dr. T. W. Edgeworth David, of New South Wales, and Sir Robert Stout, of New Zealand, have been elected, but notice of their acceptance has not yet been received.

Yours respectfully,

C P G Scott
Secretary.

CLARENCE G. CHILD, A.M., L.H.D., Professor of English and Dean of the Graduate School in the University of Pennsylvania; graduate of Trinity College; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins University; member of the Modern Language Association, and of the American Dialect Society; author, editor and translator in Anglo-Saxon and Middle English philology, etc.; lecturer on English literature, etc.

OLIVER FARRAR EMERSON, Ph.D., Professor of English in Western Reserve University; author of a History of the English language, Middle English Reader, etc.; President of the American Dialect Society; member of the Modern Language Association, and Chairman of its committee on spelling reform; member of the joint committee of the National Education Association, the American Philological Association, and the Modern Language Association upon a phonetic alphabet for use in dictionaries and text-books.

CHARLES H. GRANDGENT, Professor of Romance languages, and Chairman of the Romance department in Harvard University; author of Italian and French grammars, and of works on English and German phonology, and Provençal and Latin historical grammar; member of the Société de Linguistique de Paris; member of the American Dialect Society; member of the Modern Language Association, secretary since 1902, and editor of its Publications; lecturer on Italian and French literature, pedagogy, simplified spelling, etc.

Sir:-

You are cordially invited to join in the formation of a Committee of Representative Citizens for the purpose of arranging a banquet or reception in order to extend a welcome to

Prof. Rudolf Leonhard,

the Kaiser Wilhelm Professor in Columbia University for 1907/8, and to

Prof. John W. Burgess,

the Roosevelt Professor in the University of Berlin for 1906/7, who has returned to this country.

Thinking it appropriate that an appreciative response should be given by America to the cordial reception accorded in Germany to the first incumbent of the Roosevelt professorship, the German-American Peace Society has taken the initiative in sending out this invitation; but it is our opinion that such a testimonial should not be given under the auspices of any sin-

Dr. Andrew D. White,
Ithaca, New York:

My dear Sir:

At the approaching annual meeting of the American Sociological Society, which is to be held at Wisconsin during Xmas week, in conjunction with the meetings of the Historical, Economic, and Political Science Associations, Professor Giddings of Columbia University has consented to prepare a paper on the following subject: "Are Contradictions of Ideas and Beliefs Likely to Play an Important Group-Making Role in the Future?". Professor Giddings, I believe, will discuss principally political and religious beliefs and their group-making significance.

I am instructed by the program committee of the Society respectfully to invite you to participate in the discussion of Professor Giddings's paper, and to permit us to place your name on the program to this effect. Inasmuch as it is likely that you will attend the meeting of the Historical Association anyway, we very sincerely trust that you may consent to be with us and to cooperate with us in this connection.

Very respectfully yours,

Giddings

Dear Sir:-

Since returning to Elmira I have secured a new typewriter, which is one of the latest designs out and is the kind of a machine I have been used to using and on which I could turn out very satisfactory work. I could bring this machine with me to Ithaca if you think you need someone who can give you their entire attention.

I believe this position with you would be an education for any young man and for that reason if you can see your way clear at any time to hire me I would be willing to give you my entire attention for $50 a month.

I am very anxious to secure a position that will give me a better education and if I should secure your secretaryship I could study during the evenings. I do not mean by this to take any course in Cornell but just put in the time educating myself.

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N.Y.

My dear Dr. White:-

You have asked my opinion as to the construction and effect of certain provisions in the enclosed marriage settlement. My regular law school duties, combined with certain extra work that I am at present doing for the State, have demanded so much of my time of late that I have not been able to give to the instrument the consideration that is commensurate with its importance. The somewhat casual study which I have, however, been able to give to it has resulted in my forming the following conclusions.

I. A careful reading of the entire instrument in the endeavor to determine from the face of the instrument itself the legal effect of its provisions leads me to believe that immediately upon its execution and delivery an undivided absolute equitable interest in the property described in clause two passed to Frederick D. White and Clara W. Newbury, and that it was only the enjoyment and possession by them of their shares that was postponed until your death - in short, that in equity they became at once the absolute owners of their respective shares, which together with other property to which they held the legal as well as equitable title, formed a part of their estate upon their death.

II. Assuming that the above is the correct construction of the instrument, then we have the following results:

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

081974

[10-19-07]

1. As to Frederick D. White's share.

Upon his death, if he left a will disposing of his share, it, of course, passed under the will; if he died intestate as to this particular property, and left him surviving his widow and one son, then either a. His widow took 1/3 and his son 2/3, or

b. His son took the entire interest.

If, as I understand it, his son subsequently died, leaving no brothers or sisters, but simply his mother, and leaving no will, it is immaterial whether "a" or "b" is true, for whatever interest his son had in the property would pass under the above circumstances, upon his death, to his mother, so that in either case the mother would now own Frederick D. White's share the same as he did in his lifetime; and upon her death it will pass either under her will or as intestate property to her next of kin.

2. Clara W. Newbury's share would be governed by the same principles.

III. The other possible construction of the instrument is that upon its execution and delivery only a life interest passed to Frederick D. White and Clara W. Newbury, but much to my regret I cannot help feeling that the whole purpose and spirit of the instrument is against this construction.

At least, I fear that the construction of the instrument is doubtful enough to warrant those who would become entitled to the property if "I." above is correct, to litigate the matter in the courts, and they would probably be acting reasonably in not being satisfied until the construction of the instrument had been squarely passed upon by the Court of Appeals.

My study of the matter has necessarily been hasty, and therefore not satisfactory even to me, and I take the liberty of suggesting that you submit the instrument to some one else. If Judge Andrews' mind is still clear and his intellect vigorous, I know no better man than he to consult.

Allow me to ask you if you and Dean Huffcut had this marriage settlement clearly in mind when Dean Huffcut last drafted your will. If it was not carefully considered at that time, and the will drafted in the light of its existence, then the will ought to be re-read.

Respectfully yours,

Frederick D. Colson.

I am presuming on my slight acquaintence to ask you a question, and trust you may find time to give me a reply.

I am to be married, and possibly abroad, My fiancé, who lives in Dresden, Germany, says that weddings there are very troublesome things on account of the laws re publication licenses, etc.

I desire to ascertain if, she being an American girl, can be married at an American legation, without notice or a foreign license. It seems to me that as the legation, or Embassy is U.S. territory it would not

Dear President White:

The enclosed document partially explains itself. It is the result of my two sojourns in the Kappa Alpha Lodge during the past collegiate year. I was much disappointed in what I saw of the Cornell fraternity system"; & I think reform or suppression should be the policy adopted. The former is easier than the latter, so I propose a reform. I have communicated copies of this document to President Schurman, Judge Hiscock & Miss Ruth Putnam, & I have talked it all over with Professor Van Cleef, as I did with Jameson & Tuttle. These people are familiar with the subject & will help us if we need help. If you approve of my plan, just say so & I will submit it to Mr. Schurman & Miss Putnam & modify it as they suggest. I will submit the final memorandum to you before it goes out.

First Draft of a Plan for the Establishment at Cornell University of a Kappa Alpha Fellowship.

I. President Schurman's consent should be obtained for the insertion in the Register, in the part devoted to Fellowships and Scholarships, of some such paragraph as this:

> "Kappa Alpha Fellowship. Board and lodging at the Kappa Alpha House, with an annual stipend of five hundred dollars. Open to graduate members of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity from any institution where the Fraternity has chapters. For further particulars, apply to the President of the Kappa Alpha Association, Ithaca, New York."

II. The Selection of the Fellow.

The graduate members of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity residing in Ithaca and the Kappa Alpha members of the University instructing body might compose a Committee on Selection. When a vacancy occurs and a candidate applies, the Committee would first make enquiry if this is considered necessary, from the faculty of the institution where the candidate graduated, concerning his intellectual and moral standing, and if these reports were satisfactory, the Committee would request a personal interview with the candidate at Ithaca. If the candidate is acceptable, he is appointed to the Fellowship for one collegiate year, subject to re-appointment. It might be well to have the selection of the Committee approved by the President of the University. This would associate the Fellowship more closely with the University.

III. Perquisites of the Fellowship.

The Fellowship should carry with it board and residence at the Lodge, where there should be eventually provided for the Fellow a suitable suite of rooms. This could be secured as the Lodge stands to-day by a slight modification of the south west corner of the ground floor. The objection that might be advanced that this would crowd out some undergraduate should not be considered, for the main purpose of the Lodge is to advance the best interests of the Society as a whole and not simply to supply lodgings to undergraduates

IV. The Fellowship Fund.

The Fund for the establishment of the Fellowship should consist of at least ten thousand dollars, which might, perhaps, be handed over to the University treasury with the understanding that the treasurer of the University would pay annually to the treasurer of the Kappa Alpha Association five hundred dollars, whatever might be the sum that the fund would really bring to the University treasury. The University might be led to accept this proposal in view of the general benefits that would accrue from such a Fellowship, especially if similar foundations were instituted by the other Cornell Fraternities, which would eventually unquestionably be the case, and which would thus add over a score of notable Fellows to the graduate body of the University.

V. Duties of the Fellow.

1.The Fellow would see that certain house-rules, carefully drawn up by the Alumni Association, were observed. As the undergraduates are a continually changing body, these rules are to-day either a dead letter or quite unknown. If the upper-classmen happen to be few or weak, disorder, and occassionally something worse, reigns in the Lodge. It would take too much space to state here ~~the~~ the defects, some great and some small, which are continually obtruded on a regular sojourner at the Lodge, because of the absence of any clear and systematically enforced set of house-rules. This is unquestionably one of the crying evils of the present system, or, rather, lack of system.

2.The undergraduates would grow to feel that the Fellow is a sort of tutor and adviser, to whom they may turn for help or counsel in their studies and in other matters, and who, in cases where the student is in trouble with the Faculty, might play a most useful part as a link between the student and the professors. One is especially struck, during a stay at the Lodge, with the possibilities of this part of the duties of the proposed Fellow.

3.The Fellow, who would be elder and of larger experience than the undergraduates, could do much to elevate the intellectual and social level of the chapter. If the Cosmopolitan Club is, perhaps, the most interesting and useful student organization in the University, this is mainly due to the presence and dominant influence therein of the graduate members, who, in some cases, are men who have taken two and three degrees, who are, occassionally, assistants to some of the professors, and who know how to plan and carry ~~th~~ through "evenings", which are often real events in University life. If this proposed Fellowship idea became general in the Fraternities of Cornell, it would bring to Ithaca a score or two of this class of men and would necessarily make the Fraternities a much more important element in the general life of the whole institution.

4.The Fellow should be a continual check on certain abuses, great and small, which exist in one form or another in the Fraternities, but which are not detected by outsiders. The list of these shortcomings is long and some of them are, at times, grave. Too much stress cannot be laid on this defect. The eradicating, or rather, the prevention, of these imperfections would be one of the most natural duties of the Fellow.

VI. Some General Reflections.

The Fellow need not be necessarily a young graduate studying for a degree; in fact, it would be better, when this is possible, that he be as old as possible. The Fellow might some times be a mature man engaged in literary labor or in scientific research work, who would like to spend a year or two in a great literary and scientific center, where are libraries and laboratories. He might even be a man in the decline of life, who would rejoice at such an opportunity to influence young men and pass his time in congenial society. The immense influence for good which such a Fellow would exercise on the chapter cannot be over-estimated, and if only one were found in a generation, it would more than fulfill all the expectations of the proposed innovation.

The Fellow might, under certain circumstances, be also closely associated with the University. If a young man, he might become an assistant or instructor in the teaching body. If an older man, he might become a lecturer or even a professor. In such cases, the Fraternities would become still more closely connected with the University, which could only redound to the the advantage of the former.

of a common home, of mutual friends, and many happy joint experiences. So we venture to send a word of sympathy to you in a grief which alas is added to what must seem already an almost overpowering burden of affliction.

We are glad that Andrew remains, to be a consolation, — such a fine staunch young fellow.

The contribution to the Fiske memorial is not urgent, except to have it out of your way. Any time this winter will answer. I hardly know what to add by way of suggestion to what I have already intimated;

With reference to the will suit, would it not be proper for me to quote your judicious account in your Autobiography?

My dear Mr. White:

It breaks my heart that pain and suffering should come into your noble, beneficent life, so devoted to the happiness of the individual and the good of the world. It was said of Dr. Arnold that he made the England of his generation through his influence at Rugby. Your influence has created an institution that will educate and civilize the whole country for all time. And more than this, your work abroad has carried through the world the honor and dignity of the United States, and made known to all peoples the strength and help of a great Republic. Who can measure such benefits as these? Take comfort, take comfort, the great heart, the wise mind, the steadfast soul, walking hand in hand with God, is most sensitive to suffering, feels most acutely the anguish and the joy of living.

"Heated hot with burning fears, and bathed in baths of hissing tears, and battered by the strokes of doom — To shape and use!" for this life and the other times,
God loving and helping us.

I am very glad you are interested in the young medical student, and I hope that interest will help to make him a greatly useful man by and by. I wish he could be under your influence for a while. I send you two of his letters. You will see that the "Inscriber in modo" needs to be created in him; but I think the "fortiter in re" is his birthright, and needs only cultivation. You will see that he has no time for sleep. We all say, with Sancho, "Blessed be the man who invented sleep!"

"Of all the thoughts of God that are

Borne inward, unto souls afar
Along the Balmoth music deep,
Now tell me if there any is
For gift or grace surpassing this—

Mr. Conlon said to me last night, "I will try to pass the State Board Examinations in the first two years' subjects, next Feb. 1908. If I get a clear ticket from Long Island for the third year, can I be excused from the examinations required of students from other colleges, entering the Senior year at Cornell, in the Fall of 1908? Can the 4th years tuition fees be excused me, so that I should not have to work all through my senior year, thus giving sufficient time for study?"

Dear Friend:

Replying to your kind favor of 16th inst. let me congratulate you on having a friend of International Fame, and let me thank you for interesting Dr. White in so insignificant a creature as I am, by comparison with him. It would be quite a treat to meet him, even tho he took no interest in me, and I am sure you would like to arrange it for my benefit, as much as I should like to enjoy it. To get to the point at once, my present greatest difficulty is getting sleep so that my mind will be clear enough to get the meat out of the lectures daily attended.

In February I shall try the State Board Examinations in the subjects that Junior Students, having Clear tickets for Sophomore and Freshman years, are allowed to take. This will mean extra work added to my regular class work and the Book-keeping I do on Saturday P.M's and Sundays for my Cousin in order to increase my income. I paid Long Island College $85 this week, and shall have $75 more to pay in February, and several more books to buy.

My present hopes are to pass off this year with a Clear Ticket, working every night from 10 to 8 AM as at present, thus keeping down my debts, and being able to maintain my Life Insurance and Lodge sick benefits, as well as do my College work.

If I can do this, pass off my State Board in June, and then take some of the 3rd. year Exams and pass most of them at Cornell in May, perhaps Ex-ambassador White will be good enough to let the Secretary arrange to have me enter and finish the Senior year at Cornell.

Another handicap my lack of funds imposes on me is the necessity I am under of working all Summer vacation when other fellows of independent means are getting Hospital experience as Relief men, or Assistants. However "True merit does not consist in holding a good hand in life; but in playing a poor hand well" so I am trying to cultivate the Philosophical spirit of the "Man worth while is the fellow who can smile when everything goes dead wrong."

Of course all through my course the work I have been able to do has been necessarily of lower grade than what I should have done had I none of the financial worries during vacations and semesters that I had, and shall have this and next year.

My experience in the Gold mines in Colorado however just tells me to dig and dig right along; for like the miners who are yearly killed by the falling rock which with no warning drops from the inky darkness of the stopes above on the plucky head miner below, I know not when, nor how, nor where my finis will be, so with a laugh on my lips I dig on.

As my Mother was carried off by Bright's disease just after getting up from lunch with a joke on her lips which she turned to the prayer "My God, Agnes, what is this strange feeling coming over me"; so I may go with my boots on and it is the best way after all, no trial to one's self, no nuisance to others.

To conclude, do not worry one whit over this, for you may after all be disappointed and perhaps my young elastic spirit can endure it best, so you just let it.

Gratefully Yours
Wm A Coulter

Dear Friend Le Baron:

Your kind note with Dr. White's letter inclosed received. His letter states he can help me at Ithaca but there one can only take the first two years, and as I am through with them, his kindly offices will come too late.

In addition he says I could learn nothing there which of course means a lot to me, as I shall have [illegible] to pay back next.

For myself I can report that I have now no conditions against me and, if I can get that 25th extra, I shall try to pass off the first part of the State Board of Regents Examination in January, in which case Cornell would be obliged to give me credit for anything I had passed at Albany. We have over a dozen Illinois men in our class from Cornell, my present room mate being one of them. He is a big six footer, rather Sporty, and a fine musician. My alarm clock refused to work tonight so that at 9 20, as my landlady had not seen me go out she awoke me. I had to run all the way to the Ferry but got here at 10 02

Dear Sir :

I have already sent you a copy of my Report for the year closing September 30th, 1907. It is longer than usual, covering nearly 80 pages; but on the other hand it presents an unusually full view of the work and condition of the University and of the problems which are now confronting us. In case you should not have time to read the whole of the Report before the meeting of the Board I write to express the hope that you may be able to read at least the sections (pp. 58-59) in which it is suggested that work in the College of Arts, from a minimum of one year upwards, should be required in the near future of candidates who desire to enter our professional courses,- Law, Medicine, Pedagogy, Engineering, Architecture. Before bringing this matter before the Faculties, who are the educational authorities, I desire on Saturday next to bring it before the Trustees with a view to ascertaining whether they would object to it on financial or other grounds.

Looking forward to the pleasure of seeing you on Saturday, I remain

My dear friend:

I have not had the pleasure of seeing you in a long time, though Mrs. Straus and I keep you in warm remembrance. My purpose in writing today is to invite you and Mrs. White to come and visit us. We have a large and commodious house, and can make you very comfortable, and would enjoy very much having you with us. I trust that you both and the little daughter are well, and that you have had a pleasant summer. Should you come, as I hope you will, do bring the little daughter with you.

We have had a very pleasant summer, mixing pleasure with work, and extended our travels as far as Honolulu, where we remained eleven days, and enjoyed our stay immensely. There is no place in the world which has a more attractive climate and where one can get a more soothing rest.

Mrs. Straus joins me in cordial regards.

Many thanks for your note, which I did not intend to draw from you. Of course, J.J. Walsh and all his clan have mortgaged their veracity & immortal souls to promote the interests of Jesuitry. My dear White:

Cotton Mather advised treating controversialists of a certain breed "cum generoso silentio et pio contemptu". I think your R. C. "pettifogger" is of that breed. I have not read the Brief but while I know that, were I in your place, I should feel a strong temptation to stick the fellow through. I should realize the futility of the attempt to reduce him to silence. He would certainly so exhaust my time as to secure the closing word. Your Silence now, leaves the matter, so far as you are concerned, to the choice of the reading public between you and the ecclesiastics as authorities, and this is about like the issue that Scipio Africanus was content to refer to the Roman public, between his word and that of the demagogical tribune whom he refused to controvert an argument.

I read only the Saturday issues of the Post for the College news and Church news. So I have had to answer on general principles. I should guess that the people who are taking your view and replying to the clergymen might be trusted to make good their contention. If you should discover in their part any serious defect, perhaps a friendly note from you, supplying the necessary piece of information as ammunition, would be quite enough encouragement to your champion. But I wouldn't fight with anybody who won't fight fairly.

Sincerely yours

Dear Sir:-

Your letter of the 21st instant is here. Permit me to say that we have endeavored (presumably without success) to make it absolutely clear in our circulars that a subscription is not binding in order to get into the book. In sending circulars to men of prominence like yourself, we feel that the book is helped by inserting correct life records and we feel that you are doing us a favor in making the necessary corrections. So far as the subscription goes, you may please yourself. If the book seems worthy of a place in your library, we would be glad to have you buy it, but not otherwise.

Dear Mr. Newberry :

The will of your mother was duly admitted to probate yesterday and letters testamentary issued to you as the executor named in the will. We enclose to you herewith the original letters testamentary, together with three certified copies thereof. These copies are for use whenever you are required to file certified copies of your letters testamentary.

Now in reference to the appraisal for the purpose of determining the amount of the inheritance tax, we are in hopes of being able to carry the matter through without the necessity of your coming here.

Mr. Bool can testify as to the value of the furniture, and Mr. Brown as to the value of the jewelry. We assume that President White can give a pretty fair estimate of the real property.

There remains the silver-plate and securities. You stated to us that the value of the silver-plate was about $500. If you will communicate this statement to President White, so that he will get an idea from you as to what the plate consists of and its approximate value, we think that he will be able to testify in reference to the plate.

Now, as to the securities and whatever money there was, if President White is not familiar with these things himself, perhaps if you furnish him with a correct list of all the securities and a statement of the cash, he will be able to help us through on this part of the case. You had better send to President White a statement concerning the property of the estate for him to examine prior to the hearing before the appraiser.

We will send a copy of this letter to President White, so that he will understand just what is wanted.

If we find that we cannot get along without your testimony, we will have the appraisal adjourned and advise you.

Yours very truly,

A few objections to Universal Peace are hereby answered. Some of the answers are trite and familiar, others less evident.

Objection.- As war always was, so it always will be.

Answer.- Not necessarily. Slavery and polygamy always were, but in Christendom they have ceased to be.

Objection._ Peace is not the highest condition.

Answer.- Real peace is a perfect union of love and wisdom. It is the highest condition either attainable or conceivable by men. A little reflection will make this axiomatic to Christians.

a. Peace was the last gift of Christ to his disciples before his crucifixion and his first to them after his resurrection. If there was a higher blessing he would doubtless have invoked it.

Objection.- Strength should dominate weakness.

Answer._ Only in justice. Lions and tigers should not be let ravage cows and sheep.

Objection. - The cessation of war is inconsistent with human passions.

Answer.- It is the next step in human development. Civilization progressed as large political bodies prevented smaller ones from fighting. It will be crowned when mankind prevents the largest political bodies from fighting.

Objection.- War calls out the highest talents.

Answer._ Physically the Assuan Dam, and the Brooklyn Bridge; intellectually the trial of Warren Hastings called out higher talents than did all the wars of history.

B. Objection.- War calls out what is highest in courage.

Answer.- A higher courage is often needed to condone an insult than to avenge it. The bravest men are more afraid to kill than they are to die. The noblest man would rather suffer pain than inflict it.

Objection.- War is useful in killing off the surplus population.

Answer.- A simple and obvious fact makes it unnecessary to discuss the morality of the objection. Machinery, mines and railroads kill all too many of the people.

Objection.- It would not be wise to check increased efficiency in armament.

Answer.- Efficiency in quality? No. In quantity? Yes. Improved quality makes for peace.

Objection.- There is no mechanism to avert war.

Answer.- The U. S. Supreme Court setting aside laws of States and Nations furnishes a model. Moral and political sanctions might be united in the more general court.

Objection.- The Court's decision could not be enforced.

Answer.- The Court need decide only between the Nations establishing it. The power, prestige and economy resulting from the new order would induce all wise Nations to join it. The late Algeciras Convention shows the trend of governments.

Objection.- The grouping of great states with little ones,

b. of strong states with weak ones, makes the problem of a universal court or parliament too difficult to be solved.

Answer.- The efforts to solve the difficulty will open up new prospects of peace and union. Let a population of ten millions be the basis for one representative; let a population of fifty millions be the basis for one judge, the weak and sparsely settled nations will unite to obtain the power and prestige coming from representative and judge.

Objection.- Inventions and discoveries are concomitants of war.

D. Answer.- The discovery of America, of printing, of gravitation, of the true astronomy, of steam, of electrical possibilities, was made possible by peace.

Objection.- Cessation of war would take away possibilities of self-denial.

Answer.- Self-denial on a higher plane than war's is manifesting itself constantly. Three instances will show this.

A Mississippi steamboat took fire. The man at the wheel, by immolating himself, could save the five hundred passengers. His clothing caught fire. His eyebrows burned off. As the saved passengers were alighting he fell dead.

A bridge-tender in New Jersey saw his little child drop into the river as he was turning the draw for the approaching express. He saved the train, while his child drowned.

Two boiler-makers went into a large boiler to fix flues. By a fatal accident the steam was prematurely turned on. There was not a second to lose. The younger man reached the ladder, paused, and said: "You first, Jim. You're married". He never spoke again, but with choking voice Jim told the story to tear-stained companions. Compared to these heroes Napoleon was contemptible.

Objection.- The body will die in any event.

Answer.- The scaffolding used in erecting an arched bridge is only temporary. It might be calamitous to destroy the scaffolding before the keystone is placed in position. The body will indeed be dissolved, but antecedently it has august functions to discharge. The ear will grow deaf to the voice of friendship, but if it has done its work well it will have helped the soul to hear the eternal harmonies.

The eye will grow too dim to recognize a beloved face, but if it has seen to good purpose it will have helped the soul to penetrate the veil and to behold the glittering realities beyond.

The heart will cease to beat, but if it has beaten wisely it will have aided the soul in reaching disinterested love.

The body protests against war as prematurely destroying its fine mechanism and as casting a possible shadow into eternity.

My Dear Dr. White:

It is with pleasure that I comply with your request for copies of the journals, and I am now sending you, by this mail, the publications you ask for. I have not seen the copy of the "Evening Post" containing the letter to which you refer but I will procure a copy if you will be good enough to let me know the date of its issue. However, I am not surprised at the attitude assumed by Dr. Wal[illegible], and no unreasonable assertion coming from his pen will astonish me. He should be thoroughly squelched. In the face of his recent published utterances perhaps you might feel like reconsidering your decision regarding a reply to his article, as set forth in your last letter to me. I am still of the opinion that his reply to our joint article should not be allowed to stand as it now stands. You will readily see how thoroughly he distorts the real facts when you come to re-examine his reply.

Believe me, honored Sir, with great respect,

My dear Mr. White.

Two days ago I met Mr. Heyn, whom you will remember as newspaper correspondent and he told me that he had been informed of your daughters Mrs. Newberry's death. Dear Mr. White sorrow has indeed not been spared to you. I am very very sorry for you! Mrs. Newberry was a charming lady, whom everyone liked that came in contact with her. I learned to love her during our journeys in Germany and Switzerland.

I hope you will if you write to Andrew and Arthur, convey to them my most sincere sympathy.

Your last letter, wherein you informed me of dear Pr. Tiffany's death was also a great shock to me! A dear old gentleman he was indeed, whom I shall always keep in memory. I fully know how much you thought of him, and he often spoke to me of his great friendship for you and the past associations with you and your family. —

I am still deviding my time between Berlin and the Spreewald, my old grandmother is growing very feeble and I have grave apprehensions for the coming winter.
After a most miserable summer Berlin is having for the last 6 weeks the finest autumn weather, so much so, that 2 days ago, on the birthday of the Empress, straw hats were still in evidence.
I took a party of Britishers through the castles of Potsdam as guide on that day and there the Emperor the Empress and the entire imperial family came out from Berlin in 5 open automobiles. I take charge of excursions to the environs of Berlin now and then until something better offers itself. You will perhaps know that Secretary of War Taft is expected here the later part of November. I intend to write to him, when he reaches St. Petersburg, offering my services as courier during his stay in Europe.

Of course you know that Ambassador Tower has officially announced his resignation for next spring. There is a rumor that Mr. Hill will perhaps be named as his successor. As I remember is Mr. Hill a friend of yours, and should his appointment to Berlin take form, so it is my intention to make an early application for the position as "Kanzlerssecretär", may in that case I count upon a few lines in my behalf from you to him?

Now I must not tire you with too long a letter. I enclose 2 portraits of the Emperor and one of the Empress. All 3 are very good likenesses, as they look at present, and I thought would interest you and Mrs. White.

Kindly remember me respectfully to Mrs. White and Miss Horne, and should you carry out your plans next February about Travelling in Europe, then I hope you will let me take care of you and your family, the same as in former days.

And now in conclusion again my congratulations for your 75. birthday and all good wishes, dear Mr. White

Dear Dr. White:

I take pleasure in sending you under separate cover a copy of a new edition of Hon. John Foster's essay on "Decision of Character" which our Student Movement have recently issued. I shall never cease to be grateful to you for bringing this essay to my attention during my undergraduate days. You will see that I have referred to the fact in an introductory note.

My dear President White:

I have but just heard that you have lost your dear Clara and tho' I know only too well how unavailing words are at such a time, I wish you to know that I am thinking of you with affectionate sympathy and wishing I could do something for you. I recall now very thankfully the half hour that I spent with her when my daughter and I were in Ithaca nearly two years ago. She seemed to me so brave and buoyant, and her allusions to her father were very tender and filial.

I wonder if you know certain passages in my Roman authors which in times of grievous loss have helped to steady and comfort me, — as the letters in Cicero (ad Familiares, IV. 5 and 6) brought out by his Tullia's death, the remarkable Proœmium to Quintilian's Sixth Books, and the younger Pliny's (Epistles, V. 16) obituary notice of Maesta.

Last evening I met Dr. Munger who spoke of you with beautiful admiration and affection.

I have recently come back from three months in Italy. Hesitated about going alone, but am now thankful that I decided to shorten the summer in that country. I was a month in Rome, and a month in Siena, and a month in several small places. In Siena I became much interested in the writings of its three great worthies, the letters of St. Catherine, the sermons of St. Bernardino, and the commentarii of Pius II. And as I had been reading a good deal in Poliziano's Latin and Italian poetry, I shortly enjoyed an excursion to Monte Pulciano and to Fiesole. Very grateful, too, were two days with the Benedictines at Monte Cassino, and another day in and about the Benedictine monasteries at Subiaco. Bogazzano's "Il Santo" gives an added interest to the last locality.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

But I had not thought of writing so much; I desired only to assure you that your loss is sorely regretted and shared by your friends.

Very truly Yours.
Tracy Peck.

Your good letter of the 18th received. I can not very well come to Ithaca. Just now I am needed here every day. Mr. Newman has written concerning the probate of Mother's will and the only thing remaining is appraising all property and fixing inheritance tax. Mr. Newman says he sent you a copy of the letter he wrote me. As nearly as I can remember the articles in silver trunk are:

1 dozen knives
1 " forks
1 " spoons
1 " coffee spoons
1 silver bowl (Russian)
1 silver teapot, bowl, cream pitcher &
1 " water pitcher
2 necklaces; pins, bracelets etc.

My dear Mr. White:--

We have now returned from our summer vacations and have had an opportunity to consider your proposed new volume, as outlined in your letter of July 22d, and I write now to say that we shall be delighted to arrange with you for its publication.

The details as to form and size can be adjusted as soon as we know more exactly the number of words contained in the book.

As to title, we decidedly favor some such general title as that suggested by you, "The Warfare of Humanity with Reason, as Shown in the Biographies of Seven Statesmen", as this seems to bind the chapters together and give the book more unity.

As to terms, we would be glad to pay the same royalty as on the Autobiography, namely, 10% on the first 1000 copies and 20% thereafter, which we trust would be satisfactory. We could begin the work of setting the book at any time, so as to be ready for publication in the spring or next autumn, as might be decided hereafter.

We shall be glad to hear from you further at your early convenience with a view to concluding mutually satisfactory arrangements for the publication of the volume.

Believe me,

Very sincerely yours,

letter to you, so I gave him one, and you have him or not as you choose.

Oh, I must not forget to tell you that little Mary H. is learning to spell & to read out of her Brownie primmer. She has five words to spell each day, and as she learns them, she prints them on paper. We are having quite a cold snap, but in spite of it the tots get out everyday, except when it rains. Then they stay in the house, and play games and have their circus out to play with. Little Mary H. walks over to Purdue with Irvin. and me today fine morning, then she and I ride back to town. Next Sunday, I'll take her to Church, as I want to go myself; I go to prayer-meeting Thursday nights, but seldom get to Church, and she is always so good it is a pleasure to take her.

Now it is nearly time to put the chicks to bed, so good night Papa dear, Write soon, love from us all, to you, Helen & Karin

My dear Ambassador:

Since my letter of the 26th, there has come to the thought, event, of a possible union of institutions at the National Capital. It would have been accomplished in 1904 but for the interference, moderate and unscrupulous, of men in sympathy with the narrow and jealous heads of Harvard and Columbia.

The new ground of hope lies in the very cordial attitude of Chancellor Hamilton, and in the possibility of counseling with the Harvard & Columbia elements

To the end of a union such as I have in mind — a union that would enable the truly National University to begin its realization of Washington's ideal with the prosperity promised in these two institutions, & their moderate endowments, I believe we would be quite done of twenty and more millions from Mess. Carnegie and Rockefeller & the five millions that would have been the sum of Washington's bequest at compound interest, so wisely provided for; thus making sure of The University of the World at an early day, I would be willing to take the name of "The American National University"

Captain James B. Mitchell son of David Mitchell has been calling with me for two days. He would like to be appointed Professor or Instructor in Military science at Cornell. He is now serving as Captain of the coast artillery of the U. S. army at present stationed near Florida. He & his wife are graduates of Cornell. He has recently seen Pres. Schurman regarding the matter. Personally I feel sure that he would prove popular in his coveted position & I hope you will put in a good word for him. Honorable Andrew D. White,

My Dear Mr. White;-

Yours favor of the 28th. int. at hand, and I take pleasure in answering same together with your instructions of the 26th. inst.

In the matter of adjusting the stock transactions made last week, I beg to suggest that now as the Estate securities and your securities are kept in two separate and distinct sets of books that the checks be treated as follows: The check on the First National Bank which was drawn on the Trsut Estate account will be charged to you on the Trust books and carried as an account receivable owed by you to them. This check was for the purchase of ten United States Steel S.F. 5s at $89.50 and eighty N.Y., N.H. & H. shares of stock at $135.75, and which stock will be carried on your books and belong to you. Your check on the Trust & Deposit Co. for $16400 for which you bought 100 shrs Atchison, pref'd at $84.25 and ten Union Pacific conv. 4s at $79.34 will be on your books as an account receivable and charged to the Trust Estate in the same manner as they charged you on their books; and the stocks will belong to the Trust. Yours books will show account as follows,

Trust Estate

'07	Dr.		'07	Cr.
Oct.	24th.	16400	Oct.	24	$19810

The Trust Estate books will show as follows.

Andrew D. White

	Dr.			Cr.
Oct.	24th.	19810	Oct.	24th.	16400

This will leave a difference of $3410 which amount will be a book accountand can be paid by you at your convenience or some time in the future you can buy this amount of stock for the Trust or carry same as being owed them by you and this will settle this matter.

In regard to the matter of the real estate holdings of Mrs. Newberry's estate, I beg to say that I consider it a fair estimate to say that under a forced sale the Empire House ought to bring $350,000. At this figure it would pay 4% net income; and the Greyhound Building I consider under the same conditions would bring $80,000 this would net 4.75% netincome.

Mrs. Newberry's Estate interest is Empire one-tenth 35,000
Greyhound 1-4 20,000
55,000

Trusting above will be of some value to you, and awaiting the pleasure of your further commands, I beg to remain,

Yours ~~very truly~~,

Your Suggestion of "splendid" instead of "glittering" is entirely acceptable. It is I think an improvement. "Glittering" represents the accidents "Splendid" the Substance. I shall make the improvement in my two copies & you can make it in yours. Any way that you think good will be agreeable to me in the matter of having the Catechism published. Hon. Andrew A. White, November 1, 1907.

My dear Mr. White:-

I trust you will pardon my reminding you of my letter of some weeks ago, in which I asked a contribution in aid of our work. I sent a subscription book and a stamped envelope for its return, both are probably in your desk awaiting an opportunity to reply. As we are coming to the close of this good year we feel the need of your help. I referred to your letter of November 23, 1907 with it's kindly commendation of our work; presuming on which I again made my appeal.

In writing again may I give you one or two practical items. In connection with our Educational Department there are 42,170 students with 2,052 teachers, a larger number than there are in ten of our largest Universities. They are mostly wage earners and study commercial, industrial and trade courses. It is practically a great evening University. Through our Employment Departments last year, situations were obtained for 24,746 men. Their aggregate salaries for one year will amount to $12,373,000.

Since I wrote you, three additional Secretaries have gone to Panama making eight now there. The number of young men and boys in Association Bible classes increased three-fold since 1900. Our Boys' Department has 100,000 members and our County Work is reaching young men in country districts, from which most city men come. The leaflet I enclose showing the religious life of unsectarian Universities, will interest you. The good showing is largely due to our student work.

This is a most eventful year in our work; I am sure it commends itself to you and I hope you will help us. Asking the favor of a reply,

Very sincerely yours,

My dear Sir:-

Under the auspices of the American Museum of Safety Devices a dinner, at which Hon. Carroll D. Wright, one of the members of its Board of Management, will be the guest of honor, will be given at the Engineers' Club, 32 West 40th Street, Saturday evening, November 9th, at 7 o'clock. The dinner is in recognition of the distinction of the decoratuon of the Legion of Honor, which has just been conferred upon Mr. Wright by the French Government. Mr. Charles Kirchoff, chairman of the Museum's Advisory Council, will preside, and a representative of the French Government will present the insignia. We shall be pleased if you also will be our guest.

Very sincerely yours,

W. H. Tolman

BROOKLYN, N.Y. Nov. 1, 1907, 190

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Cornel University, Ithaca, N. Y,

My dear Mr. President:

A few days ago one of my acquaintances desired me to give him an outline of historical reading. I told him that I would do so, and yesterday the happy thought struck me that I would look over the syllabus of your lectures which you delivered to us in 1871. I want to tell you that ~~that~~ the syllabus is continually by me. I have one on my library table at home and the other in a drawer of my desk here, and whenever I have any subject which I am investigating of a historical character, the outline of which is contained in this outline of your lectures, I always put the two down side by side, and try to read as much as possible the sequence of events indicated by your syllabus.

In order that I might comply with my friend's request, I walked up and down the office yesterday, and dictated to my stenographer the enclosed, following the synopsis found on page one of your outlines of lectures of history, published at the University Press in 1870. I asked my stenographer if she would make me an extra copy of this dictation, that I might send it to you.

Unfortunately, I took no notes of this particular lecture, and all that I have written has come from memory and the impression made on my mind at the time you delivered it ~~the lecture~~; and I send this to you in order to ascertain whether I have correctly interpreted the statements made by you ~~in this lecture.~~ at the time.

I want to add that I have not revised the copy, but have sent it to you just exactly as I dictated it to my stenographer, walking up and down the floor of my office. Of course, you will find that it is almost plagiarized in some instances, but I give you my assurance that when I give it to my friend, I shall give him the source of my information and the grounds of my belief. There are several grammatical errors in this little brochure, and several instances in which wrong words are used, but otherwise it is a report of your lecture as I remember it.

Hon. Andrew D. White,

My dear Mr. White:--

Since the receipt of your letter we have been making inquiries, indirectly, with reference to "Paper Money Inflation in France". We do not find any allusion to it in the catalogue list of their publications issued by the house of D. Appleton & Co., and an order for a copy of it sent through a wholesale house has come back to us with the memorandum that it is "out of print". This would seem to indicate that the work has not been in print or sold by the Appletons for some time past.

This being the case, we do not see why they should object to its inclusion in a book such as you propose published by us. Even if they should at some time bring out a new edition of it we cannot conceive how it could interfere with the sale of the larger volume or the larger volume with it. It may be that you have already sounded them and that we are mistaken, but we should think that if you were to say to them that The Century Co. was about to publish the proposed volume and ask their consent to the inclusion of this essay they would hardly feel justified in declining. It seems to me the only possible ground on which they could do so would be their intention of bringing out a new edition under circumstances which would justify them in expecting a large sale. Even then, as I have said, I do not think there could be any interference; but if they should insist on their position could we not go ahead with the large volume omitting this essay?

We should think from your description of the material that there is sufficient to make a good sized volume without it, especially if you should take up Richelieu or Prince Hohenlohe, or both, and there is a certain advantage in having the new book contain nothing which has ever before appeared in book form. The Paper Money essay has been so widely printed and circulated that it might take away from the freshness of the new book and tend to convey the impression that it is simply a collection of previously printed pamphlets or volumes. If Messrs. Appleton & Co. are not willing to have us include the essay in this book they certainly ought, in justice to you, to be willing to keep it in print so that in either case you would be sure of its permanent publication.

We were, as you know, intensely interested from the beginning in the Autobiography, and have had great satisfaction and pride in its publication. We are naturally, therefore, very desirous of arranging for this volume of which it seems that we should be the logical publishers, following, as it does, so soon upon the other work. I sincerely hope that some arrangement may be made along the lines indicated above.

Believe me,

Very sincerely yours,

Frank H. Scott.

Dear Sir;-

I have read both volumes of your interesting work, "History of Warfare of Science with Theology", and also a good deal of the "Higher Criticism", and am a believer in the same.

If it would not take up too much of your time, would you mind answering me one or two questions.

I have just finished reading "Joshua's Long Day" and "The Dial of Ahaz", a scientific investigation by C. A. L. Totten. This man quotes an array of figures to prove that these events really occurred.

I am not versed in astronomy, and have no way of disproving his figures, consequently must take them for granted, yet I feel that he must be mistaken somewhere.

He claims his chronology is the true one, as he says it is proved by the eclipses, and yet he has missed out on his predictions regarding the "Times of the Gentiles."

Would it be to much trouble to let me know, whether his work has ever been answered; as to his standing as a chronologist, and also the accepted authority on this Chronology of those times? Babylon-Egypt-Assyria &c.

I can readily understand that you are besieged with quite a few queries for information, and if I do not hear from you, I shall believe that you have not the time. However, if you can find the time to favor me with an answer, you will greatly oblige.

My Dear Mr. White—

Your letter of October twenty second came to me last week, having been forwarded from Chicago.

I came here to our summer cottage in June and intend to leave next week for home.

Your loss and sorrow in the death of your daughter appeal to me deeply for our only daughter left us more than thirteen years ago, and her own, there only six months old is our one blood grandchild very precious. Gail are rich in having other children, and one daughter young enough to be a home comfort in these later years.

The mystery of death and of the life beyond seems greater and greater to me as I grow older and approach the entrance to the mystery. The wonderfulness of God the Creator - the Father, infinitely tender - always present with us - is inexplicable - and my soul often cries out "Oh! that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for His wonderful works to the children of men!"

As you make no mention of Mr. Kelp, I am guessing whether you know of his death. He passed away on the eleventh of last May. He had been very comfortable during the winter, but his strength suddenly collapsed on April twenty second owing to his age and to a faulty circulation of long standing. He was eighty one on the thirtieth of April.

I sent you a Chicago paper, and some eastern papers spoke of him; but you may have been out of the country.

He was the central figure of my life for more than forty five years. I am thankful for them all, and for the hope that by and bye I shall exchange the loneliness of

Dear Mrs. White-

Mrs. Bradley Jones called this morning and stated that you wished to secure a Steinway piano, and as Leiter Bros. of Syracuse, N. Y., are our agents, they will have to make the transaction as to terms and arrangements with you.

I thank you for the compliment extended me as to the selection of the piano and it will afford me great pleasure to see that you have as perfect an instrument as is possible for me to select. This can be done at Steinway Hall and Leiter Bros,will attend to the business side of the matter, as we have to recognize our agents who control your territory. I have written this firm asking them to give this matter their prompt attention.

I notice that you say my old friend, Frederick Holls, selected your present piano and having been a personal and intimate friend of Mr. Holls for many years, I will try to act, in his stead, on your behalf in securing a veritable object of art, tonally and acoustically, and hold myself in readiness to co-operate with your wishes in every way in my power.

My dear Uncle Andrew:

Your letter dated October 16th has reached me upon my return to Syracuse. I went off for my annual outing with Judge Wallace and my friends at Fox Island. Upon my return to Syracuse I was immediately called to New York on an important professional matter where I have been constantly engaged since then.

It is impossible for me to tell just when I will be in Syracuse, but if you will let me know when you desire to come I can tell promptly whether or not I can be here.

Affectionately yours,

ROBERT S. ALBEE
BUREAU OF PLANT INDUSTRY
WASHINGTON, D. C.

November 5, 1907.

My dear Doctor White:

This letter may reach you a little late for your birthday; but please accept my heartiest congratulations on your reaching the age of seventy-five. I called on Miss Edel night before last, and she reports that you are looking in better health than you have ever before enjoyed. She says you were in Washington last month for a day. I hope that you intend making your usual visit next month, and that I may have the pleasure of seeing you again.

The past year has been uneventful. I was promoted to $1,400 in April. I was successful in the examination for the Bureau of Corporations last winter, but am still working in my old office. Professor H. C. Adams, of Ann Arbor, Statistician of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, told me that my paper had been submitted to him when he needed men in his work, and that he would have certified my name except that he was not authorized to pay over $1,200, and my minimum was $1,400. He offered me $1,400 to come to him as his personal secretary; but I preferred my present work to going back to stenography. The Department of State also offered me $1,200 to come there to work on the Consular Reports; but again I didn't feel like giving up a higher salary.

Last May I spent several days in New York. My regular vacation was postponed until September and October, when I spent three days in Atlantic City with a New York friend, then five in Providence with my sister. She is 24; and her husband, who is 25, had just been appointed by the American Woolen Company manager of one of its mills at Lawrence, with a salary of$1,800. He has 175 hands under him, and of course both he and my sister were delighted with the promotion.

He graduated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology only three years ago. His father is head of the largest worsted mills in the world at Lawrence, with 6,500 men under him. So Mr. Ingram feels quite at home. Abbot Academy at Andover was my sister's school. So, since Andover was only four miles from Lawrence, she seized the opportunity to rent a house there, and is very glad to be back in that very pretty New England village. I spent three days with her visiting a friend in Lowell, then eight days at her father-in-law's house in Lawrence, spending three of my days in Boston, half the time being spent copying records of birth, marriage and deaths of Albees in the City Register's office. Then I spent three days in New York on my return trip to Washington. I also expect to spend the Christmas holidays in Andover.

Your summer must have been very pleasant, according to Miss Edel. The season was much better here than a year ago, and I made it still more comfortable by installing an electric fan in my room, so that I

Hon. Andrew D. White
Ithaca, N.Y.

Dear Mr. White :

You may recollect that some months ago I wrote you about an effort then being made by some of the people interested in New York state history to secure the appointment of a more competent person as State Historian upon the expiration of the term of the then incumbent of that office, Mr. Hugh Hastings, and that you expressed your interest in the matter but were not willing to sign the proposed petition because you had not yourself such a personal knowledge of Mr. Hastings's work as would warrant your expressing an opinion the public records of the state and of local governments within the state as is exercised by corresponding officers in Massachusetts, in Virginia, in Mississippi, in Iowa, and in several other of the states. They are hoping to interest Governor Hughes in this matter to such an extent that he will recommend an act for the purpose in his Message to the Legislature next January. They have some reason to believe that he will do so if he is satisfied that the course is desirable in the judgment of people whose opinions about a matter of the sort deserve respect. We are therefore asking a few gentlemen to write letters about this matter to Mr. V. H. Paltsits, State Historian, Albany, N.Y., in order that he may show them to the Governor within the next ten days.

This small agitation is a renewal of one begun five years ago by the State Historical Society, represented by a bill introduced by Assemblyman Gerhardi Davis of New York City, which was at that time blocked in the Assembly by the personal and political influence of the then State Historian, Mr. Hastings. The points which it seems to us desirable to cover by amendment to the law are these :

(a) That the State Historian should become the State Commissioner of Records.

(b) That he should have power in his discretion to inspect, copy, photograph or publish any public records in any office, state, county, or municipal.

(c) That he should have power to receive on behalf of the state for preservation in the State Library under regulations to be made by the Governor, any public records of counties or municipalities which the official custodians of them may be willing to transfer to him for that purpose.

(d) That no official custodian of public records in the state shall sell or destroy any such records without a permit in writing first had from the State Record Commissioner.

The idea is not to offend local importance by giving the Commissioner any direct authority over local records, but to make it possible for the state to cooperate with local officials in securing their preservation and proper treatment in what may, we hope, grow to be a State Record Office.

You no doubt are aware of the very unsatisfactory conditions under which local records are frequently preserved (or not preserved) under our American system of electing administrative officials for brief terms; but you may possibly be interested, none the less, to glance at the detailed account of the local records of Onondaga county contained in pages 147-166 of the "Report on the Archives and Public Records of the State of New York by H. L. Osgood" which I am leaving with this letter.

If, after looking at that or without doing so, you can see your way to write to Mr. Paltsits expressing a general approval of some such change in the legislation regarding his office as is here outlined, that will have great influence, I feel sure, with Governor Hughes, and strongly assist the efforts which the American Historical Association is making, through its Public Archives Commission, to secure the preservation of state and local records throughout the Union.

I shall be very glad to talk with you about this matter at any time that you may set, if you wish me to do so, but have taken the liberty of writing you this note instead of speaking about it first,

Dear professor Burr,

It is now about two weeks, since I got the fourth volume of Lea's History of the Inquisition in Spain. I delayed to thank you and Mr. White for this new and great kindness, hoping I might have a few things to add to my former Notes. But, finding nothing very particular just now, I better do my duty at once, and acknowledge with the warmest and sincerest thanks, Mr. White's attention and goodness.

There is a small correction that to be made on p. 85, vol. I of the W. of I.c.

Mr. White there speaks of a Spanish colonial man of science, Dr. Chil y Marango's work on the Canary Islands.

The work is to be found, I think, on the catalogue of Leroux, the great editor in Paris: Estudios historicos de las Islas Canarias. Leroux only advertises the first volume of the work

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

082052

I wonder whether the author's difficulties with his bishop prevented its completion. It might be interesting to enquire from Lesoux, while, perhaps, ordering the book, which costs about 10 frs.

The author's name appears to be Chil y Naranjo.

Lesoux' admirable catalogue also contains rather numerous editions of Palestine travels, interesting in connection with Mr. White's chapter in the 2nd Vol. of the W.F.

A great event in the Warfare between Science and Theology has been the Pope's recent Encyclical Pascendi. It is a clever document, at least in the part of it which exposes the tenets of the modernists. The refutation of them appeared to me to be rather weak. Perhaps Mr. White will keep the document in sight for a new edition of the Warfare. Many of its ideas are said to be borrowed from Giovanni Gentile's articles in the Critica.

I am so accustomed to "chicaner" Mr. White for trifles, that I may perhaps add that the expression "Spanish Colonial man of science is perhaps not technically applicable to Dr. Chil y Naranjo. The Canary Island are not a colony, but a province of Spain, in the administrative sense.

Nov 5, 1907 [2.]

The decree of the Holy Office of July 3. and the recent encyclical of Pius X (8 Sept.) mark interesting developments in the Warfare of Theology with Science.

Should Mr. White take up, personally, some of the work of completing, up to date, his book on the subject, I should recommend him to try to get at some of the Catholic modernist reviews, at least since 1900.

There is especially a German weekly, Das Zwanzigste Jahrhundert, which was the organ of the German modernists. It began, I think, to appear about 1900; and, if I am rightly informed, has ceased to appear now, being killed by the Catholic reaction just in progress. Its price was about two dollars a year. Its collection could be found, I think, a good deal cheaper. It made a good deal of stir while alive, and, I believe, deservedly. It might give Mr. White a good survey of the recent developments of modernist Catholicism.

An admirable work is Laberthonnière, Essais de philosophie religieuse. It is now on the Index. I wonder whether it is still to be had. It came out a few months ago.

A curious thing to observe is the gradual disappearance, by boycotting, of some of the best modernist Reviews.

082053

May I also point out to you:

Wattmann, Der Kampf um das Entwickelungsproblem, a short work just published, giving an account of the Distinguished Jesuit's recent evolutionary lectures at Berlin.

The answer, from Haeckel's school, is a pamphlet: Pater, Ultramontane Weltanschauung.

Should Mr. White be inclined to study the recent modernist movement for the purpose of completing his history of the M.f. I would point out to him the collection of Das zwanzigste Jahrhundert. It is a weekly paper, appearing since half a dozen years, and the most advanced Catholic modernist organ in Germany. It costs ~~about~~ 8 mks a year. I think I recently read it just suspended its publication. Demain, the Lyons modernist weekly; La Quinzaine, a Paris bimonthly review of high order, also modernist, have also, this year, ceased to appear. The times are too hard under this Pope.

Yours always sincerely

E Starbuck

Demain, of Lyon, has recently ceased to appear. La Quinzaine, directed by Fonsegrive, a Catholic professor at Paris Lycée and a writer of very high standing, has also been killed in the same way. Le Rinnovamento has resisted, because its patrons (Fogazzaro and others) have money enough besides brains to keep it afloat.

There is also a small work by a man called Germain Levy, L'Esprit nouveau dans le Catholicisme, which appeared a few months ago, this spring. It is a useful survey, and costs a few francs.

Yours sincerely and faithfully

E.S.

Mr. White wrote to me a few words about an Irish doctor and professor in a Jesuit College reproaching him with citing a bull (papal bull) which never existed. I remember having felt, in a case of mine, some mental difficulty about an often quoted bull which, on reliable authority, I found not to be included in any Bullarium.

But is this a proof, a peremptory proof, that such a bull is apocryphal? I am inclined to doubt.

My dear Mr. White:

Perhaps you will remember that you were kind enough to write a credential letter for me a few years ago. It was in connection with the Secretaryship of the New York Juvenile Asylum which I wanted. The appointment had been unofficially made before I applied, and I was too late - though I did not know it at the time.

Since the resignation of Mr. Belmont from the Presidency of this Company and the subsequent appointment of Mr. Perine to that position, my work as Secretary to Mr. Perine is discontinued. As General Manager of the Company I could do his Secretary work but as President, Mr. Perine will need a man for Secretary, who can represent him at meetings and appointments where women are not present.

I am writing to ask you if you think that Mr. Carnegie, in his many interests and connections, would be apt to have an opening for me, and if you think it is warrantable for me to approach him. It is not material or financial help I ask, but an opportunity. The enclosed advertisement is mine, inserted in the Evening Post and the Commercial Journal of a week ago. No satisfactory replies have come from from it.

I want to get a Secretaryship that will take me out of this Country for a time. But that would be unusual and Heaven-sent fortune and I only think of it happily and wish. For the reasonable possibilities, however, do you think that I may ask Mr. Carnegie's attention and suggestion? He has so many beggars — and I do not want him to think me even a Public Library-Do you — you give me your gracious advice as

My affairs will be in an anxious state if I do not place myself soon — for the office I hold expires soon.

estimate on the real estate in Syracuse.

The cement business, like all others, is feeling the effect of hard times, and we have discontinued improvements on the factory at Sandusky as a result. We are making here a white Portland cement, the first ever produced, I believe, on a commercial scale. None of it has, as yet been sold, but tests on what we have so far produced have been satisfactory. Strange to say,- the clinker, or burned cement, is bright green and requires very fine grinding before it is really white. We have no satisfactory explanation for this,- the amount of impurity in the cement being extremely small. There has been a large amount of experimenting and "breaking in" of new men to run the machinery properly,- all of which takes time and patience. Uncle Will has been here much of the time looking after things. He has had experience in the Lehigh Valley region and is at present assistant treasurer of this company at the Cleveland office.

Have just had a good letter from Aunt Helen, giving me the names of people who sent flowers at Mother's funeral. She has written several acknowledgements herself,- which was very kind indeed.

I will close this by wishing you once more "many happy returns".

Affectionately your grandson,
Andrew White Newberry.

My Dear Grandfather,

I wish you many happy returns of the day. I heartily congratulate you on your birth-day. To-day, in remembrance of a boy who was connected with the school, and whose father was interested in the Keith's Vaudeville Circuit, the school was invited in to see a play. It was very good, and we all enjoyed it very much. This boy's father was killed in the 20th Century Limited, railroad wreck, near Mentor, Ohio. I was down in

I am afraid I will have to translate some Minna Von Barnhelm now, so I will have to finish this letter. Please give my love to Aunt Helen and Karin.

We are thinking of establishing a Cosmopolitan Club in Harvard University similar to the one now existing in your University, and in order to insure the success of such an organization, we desire to interest President Eliot and some of the leading professors in Harvard in the proposition. For this reason I am writing you to ask you if you will kindly let me know whether in your opinion there is a place in a large university like Cornell and Harvard for such an organization, and your opinion of the value of the Cosmopolitan Club in Cornell University.

Dear Ambassador

Congratulations upon your birth-day and thanks for your action with the Priest I met a student of the Vienna Medical School upon the ocean who in discussing the physical basis of thought, adverted to the brain cells wasting in youth and waning in old age. I thought a wonderful lesson of adaptibility could be learned from the action of the brain cells. The child does not need to reason. He is safe upon his mother's breast. The old man does not need to struggle intellectually He is safe upon the bosom of his Father + his God. Yours gratefully Michael Clune

I expect to be in the vicinity of Ithaca Monday next and have in mind calling at your home if you are to be there. Mrs. Frederick D. White phoned me this evening stating that you might be here the first of the week, and in order that I may not miss you I would esteem your advices as to whether you would prefer to have me call at Ithaca or meet you in Syracuse to talk over the subject of a Cross for the grave of your deceased daughter, Mrs. Newberry.

If you have made up your mind as to which of the designs you prefer, I wish that you would bring them with you, or I can get them when in Ithaca. I await your decision as to which course you wish me to pursue and trust that I may be favored with your kind wire at my expense, since a letter will hardly reach me prior to my leaving on trip Monday.

My dear Dr. White :

I have received from the banking institutions in which Mrs. Newberry had accounts, statements showing the amount of her balance in each institution at the time of her death.

Mr. Newberry informs me that you have received an estimate of the value of the real property in Syracuse.

Mr. Robinson, the county treasurer (who by statute is the appraiser of the property for the purpose of fixing the inheritance tax), informs us that the hearing will be held on Friday, November 15th, at 10 o'clock, at the office of Tompkins, Cobb & Cobb in the Savings Bank Building. We would like to have you advise us if it will be convenient for you to be here at that time.

Yours very truly,

Dear Sir:-

The Twentieth Century Publishing Company of Toledo, Ohio, has in preparation a ten volume library work, in which we desire to print one of your speeches or articles best suited for such a publication.

The Work will be known as "20th Century American Orations and Orators" and will contain some six hundred speeches, essays, orations and writings mostly of living Americans, on live issues and subjects of current interest.

We will not go further into detail than to say it will be one of the most valued publications of like character ever placed before the public, dealing with economic questions and matters of vital interest viewed from the standpoint of men of national reputation in business as well as statesmen and scholars. Splendid oratory and brilliant English will not be of paramount importance to the brainy American of The Twentieth Century in business, politics, the professions, literature and art. There are a great many volumes extant on ancient and modern oratory but here is an ew field and the work will be timely.

Kindly give the matter your attention and mail us copies of one or two of your best addresses, speeches or articles. We will not choose a topic for you, but if you will write a new article containing from three to five thousand words on a topic of your own choice we shall be glad to use it.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

Will you also favor us with suggestions as to speeches and articles of other men of our country that you would consider of value to the publication? This work will appear within the coming year.

Very truly yours,

My dear Friend:

Thanks for your kind letter of October 16th. It gives me real pleasure as does that of your dear wife, and I am answering it — with sundry letters of congratulation which have come to me on my seventy-fifth birthday.

That anniversary passed very simply and pleasantly; three or four old friends were with us at a simple dinner, others coming in during the afternoon and evening, among them Emily am ever able to give time to a revised edition of my book on the "Warfare of Science" I shall most gladly avail myself of them, giving you full credit.

Am glad to know that you are coming on with your "History of German Literature." It cannot fail to be of great service. German studies are, more and more, appreciated in the United States. Last night I went to a meeting of the Germanic Club in the main auditorium of our new university hall and was greatly interested in the German songs sung and in an excellent, illustrated lecture on Bismarck, given in German. One wing of ~~this~~ our big new building is almost entirely given up to lecture and recitation rooms for the German department and this and the seminary rooms contain a mutitude of beautiful engravings and photographs illus-Outwater, and my library was beautified by flowers.

As to your patriotic proposal to present copies of your Beitrage to libraries, I will speak to our librarian and Prof. Burr in the hope that they will suggest a plan.

Now as to your book "The criminal Prosecution and Capital Punishment of Animals". I received it some time since but, in the midst of all the matters pressing upon me, with my absence from home and occupation of my thoughts during the last illness of Clara, I have had no time to read it until within the past few days. It has interested me greatly and I especially rejoice to see it as an important contribution to a line of thought that ought to be more carefully followed up by scholars in the history of civilization and of religion. Certain passages have impressed me greatly and , if I trating German history and life. As you doubtless know, a beautiful Germanic museum has been created at Harvard and contains many beautiful things which cannot fail to stimulate the love of German studies, and my wish is that we shall see something of that kind on these grounds.

I note your remark regarding a return to America and heartily wish that you might both come to this part of the world, but though our library is large, I fear that it would ill supply the place of those accessible to you in Munich and in Germany generally, and I should certainly lament to have anything interfere with your main historical and literary work.

There is a possibility of my seeing you both, though hardly a probability, on the other side of the Atlantic. We are thinking of making an excursion into the Mediterranean, probably to Sicily, say in January or February and there is a bare possibility that we may come home by way of Munich and Berlin.

I am very glad to see that my old firend, David J. Hill, now our minister at the Hague, is to be the new ambassador at Berlin, and to take the place next spring.

With renewed thanks and all good wishes,

My dear Friend:

Your letter regarding Clara touched me deeply and I wish to thank you especially for the reminisece of her which you give. Her conduct, as you relate, in her childhood, was all of a piece with that of her whole life. She remained the same good and kind being to the very last.

I note your question regarding Ruth and her family. Recent letters indicate that they are well and happy. As to Clara's boys, we hope to have them with us at the approaching Thanksgiving. From Mrs. Warner I have not heard recently. She makes long stays away from home an I doubt whether she is in very good health. I recently received a letter from her but it gave no indication on this point. I shall try and fin your relative, Mr. Henry. It will give me especial pleasure to know him. Quite a number of students drop in during the long evenings and we are always glad to welcome them.

As to Annie. As far as we know her condition gives us great uneasiness. She does not seem to care to live, rarely goes out of the house, and the doctor generally forbids her to see people. We fear some serious disease of the heart. The family here are all well as far as we know and the University is opening with a larger number of students than ever; there being well over three thousand and, if the students who come during the summer session be included, there are over four thousand who take serious instruction here during the year.

As to my own work, it progresses very slowly but my hope is to have it off my hands within a month.

With renewed thanks and every good wish to you both, I remain

His Excellency, the Honorable David J. Hill, [Jr.]

Ambassador of the United States,

The Hague, Netherlands.

My dear Mr. Hill:

All of us here are rejoicing at the announcement that you are going to Berlin as ambassador next spring. It seems to me in every way, an admirable appointment and I congratulate you and Mrs. Hill most heartily upon it.

I had hoped to see you as my immediate successor but, after all, this is better; for your Hague experience cannot fail to be of lasting value to you. Let me say here that I have been publicly defending the conduct of our delegation at the Peace Conference, showing that it was something to be proud of and, indeed, that the whole action of the Conference has nothing in it at which we need be discouraged. A point of vast importance is that, owing to the action of your body, the sessions of this international congress are, evidently to be continued, to the great good of mankind, as I believe.

The papers state that you are going to Berlin early next spring, and bearing in mind my own experience there, I feel that your beginnings will probably give both Mrs Hill and yourself considerable perplexity and annoyance. The questions which troubled Mrs. White and myself most were; first, the securing of a proper apartment, which is very difficult, and secondly, the getting together of servants and attendants. As to the first of these difficulties, we were finally successful and, as to the second, after much tribulation, we were not less fortunate. Our first ventures with servants were unfortunate, but at last came Gustave Grassmuck with the best possible recommendations from Admiral Walker with whom he had travelled all over the world in his flagship as a kind of factotum. Mrs. White decided to take him, and from that time, everyting went smoothly. We put all servant matters, though keeping a careful eye on the whole, into his hands. He proved to be trustworthy and exceedingly capable, "catching on" to all the peculiarities of the situations, quickly, and always coming out well. He became a master of matters relating to precedence and was especially tasteful and skillful in decorating tables as well as putting the right persons in the right places. So useful was he that he travelled with us in all parts of the continent and Great Britain, again and again, crossing the ocean with me twice and taking the most excellent care of me. When we started housekeeping in Berlin he came to see me soon after his appointment, and told me that the various furnishers of supplies were offering him a percentage and asked me what, in my opinion, he ought to do about it. I told him to accept the percentages, since I knew that they would be charged in any case to me; but overving closely, I became convinced that he stood up for my pecuniary interests, first and last, faithfully. He comes from the Spreewald, noted for the fidelity of its people, and both Mrs. White and myself will testify that he was always faithful to us. We are thinking of going to Sicily, and perhaps some other parts of the Mediterranean, during this winter and, if so, I shall try to secure him to take care of us but shall, in any case, have finished with him early in the spring. If you care to write him regarding a similar position in your household, his address is c/o Wilhelm Knoth, American Embassy, Berlin.

Rush Rhees Library, University of Rochester

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

Andrew D. White.

The papers make no statement as to the time when you are to go into your new position but indicate that it may be next spring. That is the best time possible, since it gives you the entire summer for finding proper quarters and furnishing them, and you will need it all.

It is really a matter of rejoicing both to Mrs. White and myself, that you and Mrs. Hill are taking up our old work in the German capital and with renewed congratulations to you both and with every good wish for you all, I remain

Yours faithfully,

OFFICE OF
WHITE MEMORIAL BUILDING,
SYRACUSE, N.Y.

November 13th., 1907.

Honorable Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

My Dear Mr. White;-

Your two letters of thellth and 12th. inst. came to hand this morning. In the matter of monthly allowance to Mrs. Ferry, I beg to say that the information contained in your letter is the first instruction I remember to have received as to the increased amount. Mr. Andrew S. White stated that he had instructed me to this effect, and it is probable he did, but I do not recall the occurrence. I have this day forwarded to Mrs. Ferry a New York draft for Twenty-five Dollars. In the matter of the pass book of the Metropolitan Trust Co., I beg to say that I have never seen this book, and am not able to find that it is in this office. Mr. Andrew S. White informed me that he had no knowledge of it.

The November statement was delayed as you stated you expected to be in Syracuse this week, and settle the matter of stock adjustment recently purchased. When you did not come yesterday, the statement was given to Mr. Andrew S. White, and I hope is now with you I regret very much if you have been inconvenienced or annoyed by the delay. In the matter of the Geddes Coarse Salt Company dividend, I have to say, that the dividend was declared last December on the strength of the inventory of the salt on hand at that time. This season has been a rather poor one for the salt industry; the weather for salt making has not been very favorable, and the six weeks of tie-up by the break in the canal has greatly reduced the sales, as, being entirely dependent on the canal for shipping, the market was supplied from other sources. We have expended about fourhundred dollars on the proposed improvements to made during the coming winter months in the line of recovering covers etc., also two hundred thirty-three dollars for an experimental salt well which is now being sunk. The dividend will require two thousand dollars, and it is probable we may have this amount as a surplus sometime before the annual meeting in December. Note what you say about notification from First National Bank of receipt of stocks and bonds bought through them.

Note what you say in regard to the N.Y., N.H., & H. bond issue. Enclosed you will find clipping from the morning Wall Street Journal concerning this issue. While it does not state that the issue of additional stock at $125 is rescinded, it does not say they will be issued, nor does it state what the rights to subscribe will be. The article is indeed, I think, very optimistic, and offers even better opportunities than the stock issue.

Mrs. Hotchkiss is the tenant in the University Avenue house. While she is not all that might be desired as a tenant, on account of her unreliability in regard to paying rent, still the house is so badly in need of many repairs, that it is very improbable that it would be rented if she did not occupy it.

Trusting I have given you the information you require, and again expressing my regret for the delay of the monthly report, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

Frank J. Barrett

Mr. President:

Referring to our previous correspondence regarding the establishment of schools for the Japanese and ~~for~~ other peoples, on the Pacific coast and elsewhere, I have the honor to submit a draft of a bill, and a memorandum drawn by Prof. J. W. Jenks of Cornell.

It ~~has seemed~~ seems, both to him and myself, that the schools or departments proposed, ~~could be~~ can be best established in the institutions already founded by the general government under the Morrill Act of 1862, with its supplementary legislation ~~of~~ and the Hatch and Adams Acts.

This legislation, in the past, has provided for ~~Advanced~~ Technical and ~~Gener-~~ ~~al~~ Agricultural, Scientific, ~~Technical and~~ Military instruction in each of the states of the Union, but ~~all~~ no instruction in matters pertaining to Commerce has, thus far, ~~not~~ been included.

Now that Germany and various other nations have established such departments with good results, the former notably in her universities and high schools, it would seem wise for us to add such departments to the institutions which the United States has already established with such success throughout the Union.

The department proposed in the accompanying bill, would doubtless prove as attractive to the peoples of the Pacific as any which could be devised and would ~~doubtless~~ in all probability promote our own commercial interests, at home and abroad.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

[11-13-07]

It is, perhaps, pertinent here to recall the fact that one of the first things done by the German Empire after Bismarck had established colonial governments in Africa and the Pacific Islands, was to appropriate a very large sum every year for teaching, in sundry German universities, the principal foreign languages of the peoples mainly concerned, and it is on the same lines that we have given in this bill permission to include instruction in the Spanish, Chinese, and Japanese languages.

It is my firm belief that if the principle embodied in this bill, be incorporated into a Law of the United States, it will rank, as an evidence of far reaching statesmanship, with the signing of the Morrill Act by President Lincoln.

I remain, Mr. President,

Most respectfully yours,

Memorandum Regarding an Act for the Establishment by the Federal Government of Departments of Commerce in Certain Colleges, with Especial Reference to Japan, China and the Countries of America South of the United States.

(Extending our Commerce with the insular dependencies of the United States, etc.)

The original Morrill Act provided for the endowment of institutions in each state to teach especially such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts.

In 1890, the Congressional Industrial Fund or second Morrill Act, appropriated more money for the same purpose, extending somewhat the scope of the instruction, but still emphasizing the application of the various studies to the "Industries of life".

The Hatch Act of 1887 gave to the same institutions a supplementary appropriation for the purpose of establishing a department known as an "Agricultural Experiment Station", the main purpose being to encourage and develop the agricultural industry of the United States, and this Act was still further supplemented last year by the Adams Act, increasing the appropriations.

It seems, therefore, that the Federal Government is making appropriations in each one of our states for the purpose of encouraging the teaching of agriculture and for making investigations in the field of the science of agriculture; that it also is appropriating money for the encouragement of the mechanic arts. None of this money, however, is properly applied directly to the extension of the commerce of the United States or to the study of the methods of business necessary for such extension.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

Inasmuch, however, as the United States for the last few years has been making an especial effort to improve its commercial relations with foreign countries, it would seem that appropriations might well be made by the Federal Government for the training of young men in commercial methods and for making investigations here and abroad which would, in their nature, tend to extend the trade of the United States. Such work is already carried on in some degree in several privately endowed colleges, or State Universities; in one or two or more instances in those institutions now receiving money from the Federal Government under the Act heretofore named. But, relatively speaking, little has so far been done in that direction,- by no means as much as is done, for example, in Germany.

So far as the direct extension of foreign commerce is concerned, this work might be furthered in educational institutions in two ways; the first, by the training of our own students; second, by the encouragement of students of foreign countries to study in this direction in our institutions.

The training of the foreign students, say from the Philippine Islands, Japan, China,Mexico, Central America and South America, could be perhaps best accomplished if the money were given to only a few of the larger institutions, but any such direction of Congressional funds would doubtless awaken much hostility among the other colleges concerned. Moreover, the training of American students (and this after all is the matter of chief import) would perhaps be best accomplished by affording adequate facilities scattered in many places thruout the country.

Without, therefore, attempting now to enter into too many details regarding the question, it would seem to be wise for Congress to make an annual appropriation to each one of the institutions now receiving money under the Morrill and Hatch Bills, of an equal amount to each institution, say $15,000 for the first year, this sum to increase annually by $3000 until it reached a maximum of say $30,000, following the plan of the Congressional Industrial Fund. Such funds should be used for the establishment of a Commercial Department, to be devoted to training in business methods, in commercial geography, possibly in the Chinese, Japanese and Spanish languages, and in other branches directly suited for commercial training. Part of it might be used, under appropriate supervision, for paying expenses of investigations into markets (tho this work is now done in part by the Department of Commerce and Labor), or for the visiting of great industrial and commercial establishments for the purposes of studying their methods of work.

In return for these funds, each institution should be required to give free tuition to a certain number of foreign students under suitable regulations. Presumably, these students should be primarily those from the Insular Dependencies of the United States, Japan, China and the countries lying south of us,- Mexico, the West Indies, Central America and South America. In order to avoid an uncertain maximum of expenditure and also the possibility of a single institution being led into greater expenditures by the increased number of students than would come from the fund itself, an added appropriation of $250 is made for each student of the kind mentioned, altho that sum would in most cases not cover the expense to each institution of those students, and the number of free scholarships required from each institution might properly be limited, the number to increase as the fund increases. Some of the smaller institutions in the less well-known states would probably not receive many, if any, foreign students. They, generally speaking, would prefer to go to the best known institutions. On the other hand, it would perhaps be the small institutions that need most help of this nature to develop properly a department of that kind for the sake of the citizens of their own states. There would, therefore, be nothing unjust or unwise in making the regular appropriation the same in amount to each institution, even tho the demands upon the institutions, so far as foreign students were concerned, would naturally be different. A large institution like Cornell University, or the University of California, or the University of Wisconsin, has already instruction covering a large part of the courses that would be required, so that this fund could be used to supplement the work along lines especially needed in order to meet the demands of the foreign students who would naturally come to these larger institutions. On the other hand, some of the smaller institutions are doing practically nothing along these lines now, and it would enable them to establish a department much needed in many of the smaller institutions, but heretofore largely neglected.

A plan similar to the one outlined in the bill would seem to be just, and such a measure might go far toward improving the relations between the United States and some of these other countries with which it seems desirable to get into closer and more friendly relations.

The Corrected Copy must be sent to the President

AN ACT to establish departments for commercial education, in connection with colleges established in the several states, under the provisions of an act approved July 2, 1862, and of the acts supplementary thereto.

§1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that in order to aid in acquiring and diffusing among the people of the United States useful and practical information on methods of conducting business, and to improve the commercial relations of the United States with foreign countries, there be established, under the direction of the college or colleges, or the agricultural departments of the colleges, in each State or Territory, established, or which may hereafter be established, in accordance with the provisions of an act approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled "An act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts," or any of the supplements to said act, a department to be known and designated as a Department of Commerce; provided, that in any State or Territory in which two such colleges have been or may be so established the appropriation hereinafter made to such State or Territory shall be divided between such colleges, in the same proportion that other Congressional appropriations have been divided for the past year.

Section 2. That there shall be, and hereby is, annually appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid as hereinafter provided, to each State and Territory, for the endowment and maintenance of said departments of commerce, the sum of $15,000, for the year ending June 30, 1909, and an annual increase of the amount of such appropriation for five years thereafter, by an additional sum of $3,000 over the preceding year. The annual amount to be paid thereafter to each State and Territory shall be $30,000, to be applied, under the direction of said institutions, only to the payment of the expenses of teaching and of research in connection with the improvement of methods of business and the extension of commerce, having due regard to the varying conditions and needs of the respective States and Territories, and of the United States as a whole.

including in any of said institutions, so far as shall be found advisable by its faculty, instruction in the languages most useful for Commercial intercourse in the Insular Dependencies of the United States, in South America, in China and in Japan; and

Section 3. That in order to develop and encourage the trade of the United States, especially in the Insular Dependencies of the United States, in Japan, China, Corea, and the countries of America lying south of the United States, including the West Indies, there be annually appropriated to such institutions, at which there are in attendance students from said Insular Dependencies, from Japan, China, Corea, and the countries of America south of the United States, including the West Indies, the further sum of $100 for each student from any of the said countries, in order to repay to said institutions a part of the added expense incurred by said institutions for such students. Provided that such institutions shall admit such foreign students free of tuition, unless such students have their tuition paid by their own governments, or by some scholarship or other similar emolument, and provided further, that the total supplementary appropriation for said students in any one year shall not exceed, to any one institution, ~~$12,500~~ 10,000.

Section 4. That the sums hereby appropriated to the States and Territories for the endowment and support of departments of commerce shall be annually paid in equal quarterly payments on the first day of January, April, July and October of each year, by the Secretary of the Treasury, upon the warrant of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, out of the Treasury of the United States, to the treasurer or other officer duly appointed by the governing boards of said institutions to receive the same, and such officers shall be required to report to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor on or before the first day of September of each year a detailed statement of the amount so received and its disbursement, on schedules prescribed by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. The grants of money authorized by this act are made subject to legislative assent of the several State and Territories to the purpose of said grants; Provided, that payments of such installments of the appropriation herein made as shall become due to any State or Territory before the adjournment of the regular session of the legislature meeting next after the passage of this act shall be made upon the assent of the Governor thereof, duly certified by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Section 5. That if any portion of the moneys received by the designated officer of any State or Territory for the endowment, support, and maintenance of departments of commerce as provided in this act shall by any action or contingency be diminished or lost, or be misapplied, it shall be replaced by said State or Territory to which it belongs, and until so replaced, no subsequent appropriation shall be apportioned or paid to such State or Territory; and no portion of said moneys exceeding five per centum of each annual appropriation shall be applied, directly or indirectly, under any pretense whatever, to the purchase, erection, preservation, or repair of any building or buildings, or to the purchase or rental of land. It shall be the duty of each of said institutions annually, on or before the first day of February, to make to the Governor of the State or Territory in which it is located, a full and detailed report of its operations, including a statement of receipts and expenditures, a copy of which report shall be sent to each of said institutions, to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

Section 6. That on or before the first day of July in each year after the passage of this act, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall ascertain and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury as to each State and Territory whether it is complying with the provisions of this act and is entitled to receive its share of the annual appropriation for departments of commerce under this act, and the amount which thereupon each is entitled, respectively, to oeceive. If the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall withhold a certificate from an State or Territory, thereby withholding its appropriations, the facts and reasons therefor shall be reporte ed to the President, and the amount involved shall be kept separate in the Treasury until the close of the next Congress, in order that the State or Territory may, if it shall so desire, appeal to Congress from the determination of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. If the next Congress shall not direct such sum to be paid, it shall be covered into the Treasury; and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor is hereby charged with the proper administration of this law.

Section 7. That the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall make an annual report to Congress on the receipts, the expenditures, and the work of the departments of commerce herein provided for in all of the States and Territories, and also whether the appropriation of any State or Territory has been withheld; and, if so, the reason therefor.

Section 8. That Congress may at any time amend, suspend, or appeal any or all of the provisions of this act.

MEMORANDUM

The enclosed bill for the promotion of commercial education by the Federal Government, with especial reference to the extension of the commerce of the United States into the countries of the Western Continent south of the United States and into the countries of the Orient, demands a few words of explanation. The Morrill Act of 1862, with the subsequent acts amending and adding thereto, makes perhaps sufficient provision for the purpose of encouraging departments of Agriculture and the mechanic arts. No appropriations, however, are directly applied to the extension of commerce and to the study of business methods. The United States, however, for the past few years has been making a special effort to improve its commercial relations with foreign countries, and especially with those of the Western Continent south of the United States, including the West Indies, and China, Japan and the Oriental dependencies of the United States.

It would seem, therefore, that an appropriation might well be made by the Federal Government for the special training of students in methods which would tend to improve business conditions thruout the various States of the United States, and which would tend also directly to develop commerce between the United States and foreign countries. This purpose may be furthered in educational institutions in two ways, - first, by training American students; 2nd, by encouraging students of foreign countries to study along these lines in American institutions.

There can be no doubt that very much might be done to improve the business methods in our country, both in the way of providing better knowledge of products, markets, etc., and by the better equipment of business men in languages, commercial geography, articles of commerce, etc., as well as by the training into them the higher commercial ideals which sadly as they are neglected by many able men, still are put into actual practice by our business men of the highest type and the greatest ability. Such training should be made as general as possible thruout the entire country. In consequence, for this purpose the money appropriated should be divided among the different states, as proposed in the bill.

The training of foreign students could perhaps be best accomplished if the money were given to only a few of the larger institutions, but any such direction of Congressional funds in large sums would doubtless awaken hostility unless some means were devised by which the distribution would be seen to be equitable. In consequence it has been suggested that an added appropriation to enable the institution concerned to carry the increased burden placed upon it should be distributed in proportion to the number of foreign students actually receiving instruction in the different "land grant" institutions." It is probable that some of the smaller institutions, perhaps many of them, would receive few, if any, foreign students. On the other hand, several of the best known institutions which now receive foreign students, would doubtless, under the circumstances named, receive many more. To them, therefore, should be given the assistance mentioned in the Act. The smaller institutions would doubtless need in many cases to establish entirely new departments along these lines, using existing facilities only to the extent of furnishing instruction in languages, history, and other somewhat remotely allied topics. Several of the larger "land grant" institutions, however, such as the University of California, the University of Wisconsin, Cornell University and the larger universities of the East, and various other institutions in the South and West have already very many facilities for giving the training required, so that they would need to make comparatively few changes in their methods of instruction or in the subjects taught, but would need the added money to provide adequate facilities along the lines in which the work has already been begun. The students coming from foreign countries would, beyond doubt, select the institution which would best meet their needs, and in that way would select the institution which, on the whole, would serve best the ends aimed at in this Act.

AN ACT to establish departments of Commerce and Business in connection with the colleges established in the several States under the provisions of the Act approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, and of the acts supplementary thereto.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled, That in order to aid in securing and diffusing among the people of the United States useful and practical information on the subject of the organization and methods of doing business, and to promote the investigation of commercial relations existing between the United States and foreign countries, especially the countries of the Western Continent south of the United States, including the West Indies, and China, Japan and the oriental dependencies of the United States, and to increase the commerce with these countries, there shall be established under the direction of the college or colleges in each State and Territory established or which may hereafter be established, in accordance with the provisions of the act approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled "An Act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts," or any of the supplements to said act, a department to be known and designated as a department of commerce; provided, that in any State or Territory in which two such colleges have been or may be established, the appropriation hereinafter made to such State or Territory shall be divided between such colleges, in the same proportion that other congressional appropriations have been divided among them for the last year.

Sec. 2 That there shall be and hereby is annually appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to each State or Territory for the endowment and maintenance of said departments of Commerce in said colleges, the sum of fifteen thousand dollars for the year ending June 30, 1908, and an annual increase of the amount of such appropriation thereafter for five years by the additional sum of three thousand dollars over the preceding year, and the annual amount to be paid thereafter to each State and Territory shall be thirty thousand dollars, to be applied to instruction in the methods of business and of commerce, and to make investigations, which, in their nature, will tend to extend the trade of the United States.

Sec. 3 That each of the existing institutions receiving the above-mentioned appropriations shall furnish tuition ~~in their institutions~~ free of charge to students from the aforesaid countries of the Western Continent south of the United States, including the West Indies, and China, Japan and the Oriental dependencies of the United States, in the order in which said students, who are fully qualified in accordance with the regulations of said institutions for the admission of students, shall apply for admission, until the number applying for admission in said institution shall reach the number of fifty; provided, that if any such students are already holders of prizes or scholarships, (other than those won by competition) or other emoluments offered by said institutions, to an amount equal to free tuition, this provision regarding free tuition shall not apply to these students.

Sec. 4 That in order that such institutions may be in part reimbursed for aided in bearing the expenses of the instruction of said students who are admitted free of tuition, there shall be and is hereby annually appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the above-named institutions, a further sum of one hundred and fifty dollars for each of the said foreign students who shall be admitted free of tuition into the said institutions.

Sec. 5 That the sums hereby appropriated to the States and Territories for the endowment and support of departments of Commerce shall be annually paid in equal quarterly payments on the first day of January, April, July and October of each year by the Secretary of the Treasury, upon the warrant of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, out of the Treasury of the United States, to the treasurer or other officer duly appointed by the governing boards of said institutions to receive the same, and such officers shall be required to report to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor on or before the first day of September of each year a detailed statement of the amount so received and of its disbursement, on schedules prescribed by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. The grants of money authorized by this Act are made subject to legislative assent of the several States and Territories to the purpose of said grants: Provided, That payment of such installments of the appropriations herein made as shall become due to any State or Territory before the adjournment of the regular session of the legislature meeting next after the passage of this Act shall be made upon the assent of the governor thereof, duly certified by the Secretary of the Treasury.

This will necessitate in each state a struggle in the State Legislature — Was there a Sunday provision in the Hatch Bill? Cannot we secure the appropriation directly to the land grant institutions

Sec. 6 That if any portion of the moneys received by the designated officer of any State or Territory for the endowment, support and maintenance of departments of Commerce as provided in this Act shall by any action or contingency be diminished or lost or be misapplied, it shall be replaced by said State or Territory to which it belongs, with interest compounded annually at 4% and until so replaced no subsequent apprppriation shall be apportioned or paid to such State or Territory; and no portion of said moneys exceeding five per centum of each annual appropriation shall be applied, directly or indirectly, under any pretense whatever, to the purchase, erection, preservation, or repair of any building or buildings, or to the purchase or rental of land. It shall be the duty of each of said institutions annually, on or before the first day of February, to make to the Governor of the State or Territory in which it is located a full and detailed report of its operations, including a statement of receipts and expenditures, a copy of which report shall be sent to each of said institutions, to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

Cannot this Sec. 6 be changed so as to make it apply to the future?

Sec. 7 That on or before the first day of July in each year after the passage of this Act the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall ascertain and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury as to each State and Territory whether it is complying with the provisions of this Act and is entitled to receive its share of the annual appropriations for departments of Commerce under this Act and the amount which thereupon each is entitled, respectively, to receive. If the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall withhold a certificate from any State or Territory or its appropriations, the facts and reasons therefor shall be reported to the President and the amount involved shall be kept separate in the Treasury until the close of the next Congress in order that the State or Territory may, if it shall so desire, appeal to Congress from the determination of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. If the next Congress shall not direct such sum to be paid, it shall be covered into the Treasury; and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor is hereby charged with the proper administration of this law.

Sec. 8 That the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall make an annual report to Congress on the receipts and expenditures of and work of departments of Commerce in the colleges of all of the States receiving funds by virtue of this act, and Territories, and also whether the appropriation of any State or Territory has been withheld; and if so, the reason therefor.

Sec. 9 That Congress may at any time amend, suspend, or repeal any or all of the provisions of this Act.

Dear Andy,

It will be safe to leave the securities at the First National Bank until you come for the following reasons.

First. The securities are registered in your name, & Second. The Banks have agreed with me this morning that ~~it would~~ will hold them until you come at their risk.

I gave Evans explicit instructions concerning the increase in Ruth's allowance at the time you first spoke or wrote about it.

I write what you say about indorsing the draft from the Ithaca Trust Company to the First National "for a definite purpose" I hope you will permit me to advise you that you must look upon your two accounts namely your general or individual account at the Trust & Deposit Company & your account as Treasurer as the First National Bank as separate & distinct, even more so than if they belonged to two different men. You must not keep for one account with the funds of the other. The Trust account must be kept free from confusion & must not be mixed by entries that only an expert can understand & which will require explanation. I feel that no considerations should be important enough to distract the principle stated above.

Report of the Committee on Nominations for Trustees

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees on December 11, 1906, it was voted that a committee be appointed to consider the subject of suitable nominees for new Trustees, with instructions to report to the Executive Committee, which was charged with the duty of transmitting the report to each member of the Board of Trustees not later than September, 1907. The Vice-chairman appointed Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Low, Mr. Walcott, Mr. White, and Mr. Hutchinson.

In accordance with this resolution of the Trustees, the chairman of the committee endeavored to bring out by correspondence the views of the members of the committee in regard to filling the vacancies in question, two in number. As a result, he obtained many names of gentlemen in different parts of the country. It was impossible, however, to get the committee together, owing to the distant residences of two of the members, and therefore it was not possible to report in September, as desired. On November 11, 1907, however, Mr. White and Mr. Hutchinson being excused, Mr. Low, Mr. Walcott, and Mr. Mitchell met in New York City and were able to make the following report:

During the discussion of the matter among the Trustees, it became evident that it was desirable to have at least one other scientific man on the Board, so that in case of vacancies in the Executive Committee, the place of scientific adviser might be satisfactorily filled. We were therefore at one in presenting, as first nominee, Mr. Henry F. Osborn, of the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.

There was also a warm expression of feeling as to the desirability of selecting the second Trustee from the south. Several names were presented, and after careful examination your committee finally selected as nominee Mr. Andrew J. Montague, ex-Governor of Virginia.

In making these nominations, the committee desires to say that it was thought expedient to consider not only the standing and fitness of the gentlemen they presented, but also the probability of their giving attention to the affairs of the Institution and attending the meetings.

It may be desirable to remind the Trustees that Mr. Osborn may be elected at once, since he was nominated a year ago. The second nomination, that of Governor Montague, must lie over a year unless unanimous consent is obtained for his election.

Dear Mr White, Since coming here from London we have heard of you from Mrs Alberga's daughter. She has told us of your domestic afflictions, in which you may be sure I offer sincere sympathy. Our life has been uneventful, except that in the Spring I had a long and dangerous illness; from which my recovery was due to the devoted care of my wife and Miss Harper (whose skill was indispensable) and the assiduity of Dr Bacon - I had double pneumonia, which I am happy to say has left no trace. But there were sequelæ which still affect me in some ways, and having passed my 77th birthday I cannot expect shortly to shake them off.

I have had the satisfaction of seeing my translations of Aeschylus and Sophocles included amongst the (Clarendon Press) World's Classics. The pocket edition, each volume taking art 1/ to 4/ according to the binding, is a very convenient form - I have also published a supplement to my edition of Sophocles (Parallel Passages, Illustrations) in which I combined some of Jebb's interpretations. And I am glad to know that my volume on Tragic Drama (Smith & Elder) has an interesting sale especially in America. This is a half advertisement, but I know that you are interested in my work.

Mrs Campbell joins in kindest regards to Mrs White and yourself.

PRESIDENT'S ROOM November 18, 1907

Confidential

To the Members of the Executive Committee of the American Branch of the International Conciliation:

For the information of the Executive Committee, the Chairman begs to record the following events relating to the work of the International Conciliation which have taken place since the meeting of the Committee on April 23, 1907.

In consequence of action taken by the Committee on February 16, 1907, Mr. Hayne Davis, who was then elected Secretary and executive officer of the Committee, was assigned an annual salary of $2500; offices were taken at 542 Fifth Avenue; the necessary office fittings were purchased, and clerical help was engaged.

This work had hardly been begun when the Chairman and the Treasurer (Mr. Robert A. Franks) found grave reason to doubt the good judgment and the wisdom of the Secretary. His intelligence and his zeal were undoubted, but from the very beginning his name and presence proved an embarrassment to our work.

It appeared that he had been actively engaged as counsel for the Colombian Legation in Washington at the time of the diplomatic controversy over the new Republic of Panama, and that he had given offence to both Mr. Hay and Mr. Root, as well as to the officials of the Bureau of American Republics. Whether Mr. Davis was right or wrong in regard to matters in discussion with these gentlemen is not at the moment important. The fact is that because of his activity in these matters he had made himself persona non grata to a number of important public men both in Washington and in South America, and became thereby a person not well fitted to carry on with them negotiations looking to international conciliation. In various ways, some of them important, some trifling, Mr. Davis's lack of sound judgment showed itself to the Chairman and Treasurer during the spring and early summer.

In conferences held in London and in Paris with leaders of the Interparliamentary Union and with other representatives of the International Conciliation movement, the Chairman found that but one opinion as to Mr. Davis prevailed. On every hand his intelligence and zeal were recognized and commended; but on every hand his lack of judgment was recognized and deplored. The credit placed at the service of our Committee by Mr. Carnegie is $20,000 a year for five years, it having been increased from $15,000 a year as a result of representations made to Mr. Carnegie by Lord Weardale, Chairman of the British delegation in the Interparliamentary Union. It has seemed to the Chairman and to the Treasurer that it was not good policy to spend a large portion of this annual credit in mere administration, including the salary of a Secretary, the rent of offices, and the payment of a staff of clerks. The Chairman and the Treasurer are of opinion that the cost of administration should be reduced to a minimum and that the credit at the disposal of the Committee should be applied in such ways as will best promote the cause for which the Committee has been organized. Mr. Carnegie looks upon the Committee as his representatives and disbursing agents for whatever sums he may wish to give for this or similar purposes. He has already referred more than one applicant for aid to the Chairman of your Committee, and the Chairman understands that Mr. Carnegie proposes to make any additional payments for purposes of this character through your Committee.

On Mr. Carnegie's return from abroad in October, the Chairman sought an early conference with him and one with the Treasurer, Mr. Franks, and went over with them the facts which have been recited above. Both Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Franks agreed that the cost of administration ought to be greatly reduced and that Mr. Davis ought to be asked to retire from the Secretaryship. So far as the Chairman is concerned, he feels that his own name and those of the members of the Committee cannot be safely trusted to Mr. Davis's discretion in connection with any public or international undertaking.

Inasmuch as the lease of the present expensive rooms at 542 Fifth Avenue expires on December 1, the Chairman has requested the Secretary to terminate the occupancy at that date and to transfer the papers and records of the Committee to Columbia University, where they can be cared for, temporarily at least, without cost. He has also asked Mr. Davis to tender his resignation as Secretary, to take effect on December 1. When Mr. Davis's resignation is received, the Chairman has it in mind to ask Mr. Frederick P. Keppel, Secretary of Columbia University, to serve as temporary

[11-18-07]

Secretary at a nominal compensation, awaiting such action as the Committee themselves may take when they next meet. It is hoped to be able to arrange for a meeting of the Committee during the month of December, at which time the Committee will be asked to consider, among other matters, the advisability of making some public recognition of the work done at the recent Hague Conference by the members of the American delegation.

Faithfully yours,

Nicholas Murray Butler

My dear Sir:

I have taken the liberty of sending you by to-day's mail an address delivered here last Sunday by Rev. Wm. Salter, in his pulpit at the Congregational Church, of which he has been pastor for 62 consecutive years, it being the occasion of his 86th birthday.

Dr. Salter has done good literary work, having written an excellent biography of Hon. James W. Grimes, and the best history of Iowa up to the time of the admission of the state into the Union, besides other works. He has the true faculty of the historian, and his researches have been extensive. His life has been a beneficent and useful one.

His oldest son, Wm. M. Salter, is the well-known lecturer of the Ethical Culture Society.

I write this as a friend of Dr. Salter and entirely without his knowledge; but if you should find time to write him a note it will, I know, be a gratification to a noble man who has spent a lifetime in the service of his fellow men.

Yours truly,

C. W. Baehr

Dr Salter is a great admirer of yours and a diligent reader of your works. We are great Cornell people. For I have two of my sons.

As the steamer "Moltke" sailing from here on January 29th, does not call at Naples you may not care to sail on her. You may know this is the Orient Cruise sailing of the ship, and before reaching Genoa she will call at Madeira, Cadiz, Gibraltar, Malaga and Algiers. Sufficient time is allowed at each point to visit the principal sights, as you will see from the enclosed itinerary of the Orient Cruise. This may be an inducement to you.

On the "Moltke" for which the demand is very strong, I can offer you staterooms No.276, 149 and 150 at $740. for four persons. I also enclose a plan of this vessel.

Dear Sir:-

Enclosed herewith is your sketch as it will appear in Men of America, which will be ready for issue in about fifteen days, and the price of which is, as you know, ten dollars per copy.

You are not a subscriber to the book personally, and we would be very much pleased to have you send us an order for a copy, but it occurs to us that you could use with advantage, one or more copies in the ~~concern~~ office with which you are connected.

Men of America is a reference book relating to the careers of these Americans who best represent the varied fields of professional, business, social or intellectual effort and influence, chosen with discrimination so as to exclude the mediocre and pretentious, and yet made sufficently comprehensive to include all those who by their position, achievements or character are to be included.

We have made the work a complete, exhaustive and authoritative dictionary of the most notable citizens of this great country, containing fuller sketches of contemporary Americans than any other volume, and with a more critical selection of names.

The book contains eight thousand sketches of the best American citizens with their correct addresses, and this feature alone makes the book extremely valuable to your association.

Men of America will have over two thousand pages of text, printed on fine paper and it will be bound in half morocco.

My beloved Ambassador:

Your recent letter was very gratifying, although it did not encourage the hope of your presence at the meeting of the Executive Council of the Country Com. The several members have been so scattered that, up to the present, it has been quite impossible to hold one. Still, I am not wholly wanting in faith.

Besides some changes which it is thought should be made in the Foye Bill (No 24), there is a possibility of suggestions from Secretary C., of the "G. W. U." that will need to be considered. They have not been gathering in their millions, and are making themselves quite cordial lately.

Have just finished a new statement of the case for the Senate, giving it the form of an Appeal, which I think should go from the Council and not from myself alone. Should the members concur with me in the views expressed, Read it, yesterday P.M., to Ex-Senator Henderson, who was pleased to say of it, after an hour's listening, "It's fine not timed. It's the greatest paper ever written on the University question, rich in facts, forcible, and eloquent."

I was sorry to miss seeing Prof Schurman while in the city. Could not attend the meeting of the Association of State U. Presidents but went down last evening to President's reception, hoping to meet him & others.

Did I tell you of my interview with Chancellor Hamilton, of the American?

Spent two hours with him & Dicy Davidson a little while ago, holding high ground, after which he said:

"Governor Hoyt, I'm delighted that you came in to see us, & hope you'll come often. Your talk has broadened our views, and given us an uplift."

I've not entirely lost hope in the meeting of Profs at Washington. But, whether that shall prove possible or not am confident of seeing the beginning of the proposed National University one of these days. Between us, I don't mean to die before.

Yours most truly & affectionately yours,

My Dear Sir:

After my call on you last week at Ithaca and your courtesy there extended me, I take the liberty of sending you an article I have written on Interstate Commerce Legislation of which I have been making a special study. I may say that in reading your autobiography I was much struck by one statement, namely, that a thorough investigation or study of a subject coming in your way had always stood you in good stead and had often led to very unexpected and desirable results. I think this statement there made led me more than anything else to investigate thoroughly the interesting subject of Interstate Commerce Legislation and as a result, though entirely unexpected, I have acquired very considerable business in that line. I therefore feel that I owe your book considerable.

Believe me,

Most sincerely yours,

James S. Campbell

Dear Sir:

Your kind favor of the 16th to hand and affords me great pleasure. To have met with your approval is enough to have satisfied the pride of any man. In my recent writings and addresses I have sought to discuss affairs in the fair, broad-minded spirit which the times demand and to respect all the arguments of those opposed to me, while striving to prove their fallacy. To have you say "well done thou good and faithful servant" is an honor which I appreciate at its full value.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Friend:

We are deeply interested in the proposal recently emphasized in high quarters to introduce rifle practice into the public schools. We propose to issue soon a small pamphlet containing objections to this plan as advocated in the pamphlet published by authority of the War Department for the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice.

If we may count upon thee as one with us in believing that the introduction of rifle practice into our school system would be a backward step toward the militarism from which our country has been happily free and a menace to the progress of the peace movement, may we have in a few sentences a statement from thy personal point of view on this question for publication in our pamphlet?

With appreciation of the position thou hast repeatedly taken in behalf of the things that make for peace, I am

Dear Sir:-

In compliance with a request received from our representative Mr. F. E. York who had an interview with you a little over a week ago, we have made two drawings of crosses which we are sending to you under separate cover by mail to-day, also a small marker to go at the foot of the grave.

The design marked #2614A is 2'4" wide at the base by 1'0" thick, the arms are 2'0" wide in front and 6" thick on the side, total height of the stone is 5'0" the same as the other stone next where this is to stand. The carving with the letters I. H. S. are on the front only, the back being plain fine axed finish. We will furnish and set a stone of this design including building the foundation six feet in depth, and placing the stone at the head of the grave in lot at the Oakwood Cemetery, Syracuse N. Y. for $465.00.

The design #2614B is 2'4" wide at the base by 9 1/2" thick and is also 2'0" wide across the arms and 6" thick at the top of the cross. We will furnish and set including foundation a stone of this design for $390.00.

We will furnish and set one marker to be 1'2" wide, 4" thick by 1'0 1/" high, including the foundation to be built six feet in depth on which the marker will be placed, all stones being set in a bed of soft Portland cement to make the stone and the foundation adhere together as if they were one stone. The inscription letters to go on the front of the stone of the same size and finish as those on the other stones will cost 85 cents each per letter.

I leave town tonight and do not expect to return until Dec. 2.

I write you this because I told you I thought I might be here Friday Nov. 29th to assist Mrs Newberry. If he is here, he will find that my partner Mr Stagg fully understands the matter.

Should he not come, or should he for any reason find it inconvenient to attend, the proceeding can be postponed until the Christmas holidays, and it may possibly be that your own evidence will cover all that is necessary.

My dear Mr White.

Reading the "Autobiography" of which you are the Author, I was much surprised to learn that at a very interesting crisis in your life, your book made Romance your heroine for a short time; and having heard my husband, when he was rector of this parish, mention Bishop Burt as at one time a teacher here, I at once recognized the scholarly Bishop of Connecticut as your valued friend and tutor. In the Cabinet de Cyprus Powers left to Florence his Library, with provision in his will for a fire proof building for its preservation.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

The gift was a valuable one, but unfortunately there is no endowment. By the action of the village authorities a sufficient tax has been levied to make it a free library, and to keep it open every day and evening, in charge of a competent librarian. Magazines and papers are supplied generously by friends interested, and many books have been added in the same way; as the place is very attractive to teachers and pupils from the school especially, who go there for books of reference, as well as to get books as they desire to read. Mr White, I am taking a great liberty, I trust you will not regard it as an unwarrantable one, in saying to you that an Autograph copy of the Autobiography of Andrew D. White would be a treasure to this library greatly valued and appreciated. My personal interest you will understand, when I tell you my husband went to his rest here, and my grandchildren are growing up here, and already eager readers of the books in "D." Town Library". If I should not have sought so valuable a gift, will you kindly forget that I have done so. Mr White. With cordial respect

Sincerely,

Hochgeehrter Freund!

Seitdem wir Mrs. White's und Ihre liebenswürdige Gastfreundschaft in Ithaca genossen haben, sind verschiedene Monate verflossen, die für uns ungewöhnlich reich an geistiger Anregung waren. Unsere Reise hat sich unseren Plänen gemäss vollenden lassen. Wir drangen bis zum Stillen Ozean vor und fuhren durch Canada zurück. Meine amerikanischen Reiseeindrücke habe ich in einer Reihe von Briefen an die Frankfurter Zeitung gibt. Die Sammlung erscheint dieser Tage in Buchform. Dem Verleger ist angewiesen, Ihnen ein Exemplar zuzusenden. Vielleicht werden

Sie gelegentlich mal einen Blick hinein.
Ich werde mir ferner gestatten,
Ihnen einen Artikel zu übersenden, den ich für das Dezember-Heft der „Neuen Rundschau" ver-fasst habe. Ich habe die Form eines
Briefes an einen amerikanischen Freund gewählt, und versucht, von den verwickelten Betriebe unsrer deutschen inneren Politik ein auch dem Fremden klares, verständliches Bild zu entwerfen.

Die wirtschaftlichen Schwierigkeiten, von denen die nächste Zukunft beherrscht sein wird, werden, glaube ich, bedeutende politische Nachwirkungen haben. Die Unmöglichkeit, in Deutschland das alte halbabsolutistische Regime und die Junkerherrschaft aufrecht zu erhalten, tritt mit jedem
Jahre deutlicher zu Tage. Die
Demokratisierung Deutschlands erscheint unvermeidlich. Eine derartige Erkenntnis drängt sich der Bevölkerung in den Zeiten einer wirtschaftlichen Krisis immer besonders deutlich auf.

Wir hoffen, dass es Ihnen und
Mrs. White gut geht. Meine Frau wird ich denken noch oft mit gro-ßem Vergnügen an die schönen
Tage zurück die wir im vorigen
Juni in Ithaca verleben durften.

Mit herzlichen Grüssen, auch an freundschaftlich ergebener

Dear Professor White

The item inclosed, clipped from the World stirred up my subconscious cerebrations into vehement activity. The inclosed "Exhibit" will explain the calamity that befell me one year and 305 days = 670 days ago during all of which time I have been a tenant of the bed unable to turn over. The first time I was got into a chair was about Sept 1st/06, on the 8th I walked a few steps with the vigorous help of nurses. Oct 14/06 I got out of doors for the first time in a wheel chair to register, Nov 4th had 2 rides during 9 on the 7th - auto ride of 5 minutes and was taken out in chair 2 or 3 times a week. Winter weather came on near the middle of Jan. This year I have not been as active as last Fall. Since July 1/06 I have been confined with convalescence but most of the time my improvement has been almost too slow for recognition.

Last August 11th I drew down and held a short reception in the carriage in front of the Republic Club.

I did my first writing in Nov/06

2 and have had quite a correspondence with Prof Dodge U. A. and Athy Detroit and Cutcheon at Ypsilanti, the last home of him and me before entering the University. My mind has been more vigorous than the body. I have sent you at times a number of things I have given to the Prof. the last a description of the "Third Term" the Globe took the unwarranted license to cut down, and I inclose the entire article in the Dundas Star on Cleveland's Venezuela message and my rule on Congressional Chronology. I inclose them in clippings which I request you kindly to return if you have received the others.

But all this is digression. My object in writing was to send congratulations and here I am in perplexity. From my point of view no good man is to be congratulated on the simple fact of 75 years getting behind him. I confess I have been getting sensitive on the point as a woman during this period of

3. W Jan 20/06 the day before the Jupiter-ian rock fell on me I completed my 73d year!!! Up to that time I had never experienced even a number of a feeling that I was getting "old stricken in years". I had experienced no lapse of energy. Purposefulness, forelooking and planning for the future. But my condition for the last nearly two years has forced me back onto a different range of reflections. O, the mystery and the pathos of the years!! but a sad feeling indicate approaching decay-down with them. On Jan 20 next. I shall be 75 - only 60 days now and I shall be where you were on the 7th inst, practically up with you and I write you to join me in a dash for the century stake. I congratulate you most heartily on the splendid record of achievements you have stamped on those years now banked up behind you and the youthful energy that still abides with you.

With only one hand it is difficult sometimes to keep my existing materials in order. I hope you will not be greatly troubled in finding your way through - throw - this letter. If you kindly give me occasion to write another I will try to do better

WHY "STROKE"

Medical science has never assigned any reason or excuse for applying the term "stroke" to that dread malady Paralysis - but my experience with it has revealed a very sufficient reason for it. It is comprised in a brief statement of what happened to me thus

On the afternoon of Jan 21st 1906 just as my wife and I took our seats at the dinner table in the large swing door bell rang and woke echoes in the front to receive a caller leaving me alone in the room when presently a volcanic rock of about the size of an anvil or a good anchor thrown from Mars Saturn Jupiter Uranus or Neptune — it must have come from one of the exterior planets as it hardly could have gathered such momentum in falling from Mercury or Venus

— landed square on the roof of my belfry - and knocked me into oblivion in less time than a contact of the hammer with a nail-head in the hand of a strenuous blacksmith driving a fractious filly while the driver is coasting in the rain out on the cowgon. It threw me headlong on the floor over the left quarter back, breaking my right arm in a collision with a piece of furniture on the downward plunge and depositing the table with all the paraphernalia of a Sunday dinner directly on top of me. Then in less time than is required for one to hear the report of a rifle shot fired by himself a shadow, a cloud, a pall blacker than Tartarus overwhelmed me effectually shutting off all sense of the real. And I did not emerge from that shadow nor did a ray of light

I restate it till the last of June. During that period of more than five months I lay in the black darkness of unconsciousness except the few occasional brief moments of subconsciousness passed in dreams

Dear Sir:

On the 30th day of January next, the Cortland County Society in New York and vicinity, consisting of residents in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, who have at some time resided in Cortland County, or who are descendants of people who have resided in Cortland County, to the number of about 500, have their annual meeting at the Hotel Knickerbocker, in the City of New York. We generally have present about 125 to 150. This meeting, however, is commemorative of the anniversary year of the County's life, it having been separated from Onondaga and made a county in the year 1808, and we hope to have a larger number of persons in attendance.

You, more than any other person who was born or who has resided in Cortland County, have given luster to your Country's history, and we are most anxious to induce you to attend this anniversary meeting and speak to us. We will pay all the expenses of your coming here and remaining here, and while you are in New York, and will do everything in our power to make your stay pleasant.

Can you come, and will you come? My partner, Mr. Arthur J. Baldwin, a graduate of Cornell, is to be in Ithaca on the 2nd day of December, to attend the Circuit Court, and he will call upon you with reference to the matter of your coming. Do not say "No" to our invitation.

I asked the Macmillan Co. a few days ago to send you a book which I have written and which was published early in the year. I send you a notice of it in the N. Y. "Times" Supplement; of this morning. I trust you will find time to read it. I have a new book which will appear in the course of a month or two, and in which I have referred at length to your noble address on the "Message of the 19th Century to the 20th," delivered upwards of 20 years ago, as I remember. I formed the acquaintance of Mrs. White in 1895, coming home from Naples. Kindly remember me to her.

My dear Dr. White:-

I take pleasure in sending to you by express today, some documents which think will be useful:

1 copy of the report of the National Arbitration and Peace Congress,
1 copy of each of the documents distributed by the American Branch of the Conciliation.
1 copy of the March, 1907, Bulletin of the Conc iliation Internationale, 1 copy of Pour la Limitation des Despenses Navales, by Baron d'Estournelles de Constant,
1 copy of a biographical sketch of d'Estournellee, by G. Rudler.

Faithfully yours,

Dear Mr. White:

I have your letter of the 23d instant. You may possibly know that Mr. Longworth, my son-in-law, has introduced a bill to purchase residences for our Ambassadors. We have not had much success as yet. Of course it ought to be done. Will do what I can.

With regard,

Sincerely yours,

My dear Mr White,

Your very kind letter came to me this morning's mail, and I thank you more than I can express for your ready and gracious compliance with a request that was made with only a little hesitation. While on a visit in Ithaca last summer, I read the "Autobiography" with deep interest and enjoyment, and was so impressed with its value as an inspiration to young men, that when I came home I recommended it for the Library. I was told it had been desired, but was a more expensive work than they could afford to buy. Not being in circumstances to present the work myself, after long consideration I ventured to apply to you Mr Winter being assured that, if I read aright, you would not regard it as a liberty I should not have taken, even if you did not grant my request. If Dr Bowes had been living, the Library would have possessed the work when it first appeared. You would indeed find many changes in Ontario since you have visited it. Mr Leonard Aitken and his wife, and two daughters and one son, have all passed out of this life, and their pleasant home is long since broken up. Mr Aitken was senior warden of this parish, when my husband was rector. The only connection of the family left here is Judge Q. C. Gay, the nephew of Mr Aitken. The house where the Bowes lived is an old landmark. I learn from your letter with surprise that Bishop Delancey was consecrated in St Paul's, Syracuse; I had always understood, it was at the Church in Philadelphia, in which he was Consecrated, where he was rector. What a princely man, what a grand Bishop! I have seen friends in St Paul's Syracuse, the late Dr Lockwood. I & had all that time stalked in perfect immunity. There was no chance of a verdict at Palermo; so they changed the venue to Milan, where, when I left Italy, they had got so far as to commit twenty witnesses for refusing to give evidence

Your letter of the 22nd. inst. came duly to hand. I regret that the item of Union Pacific Railway preferred 4% was not clear to you. In your letter under date of 16th. inst., you request the information or to quote your letter, "Also please state when Union Pacific stock pays". As you did not specify which stock, common or preferred, I listed both in with the other securities asked about. As you hold $4500 preferred 4%, I stated this amount payable Apr. and Oct. which pays $180 per year. This stock is divided $3375 Trust Estate and $1125 General Fund. You do not hold any Union Pacific common but I simply stated the rate paid and time of payment of this stock as I might infer was requested in your letter.

As to the matter of the University Ave. house, in regard to the policy which might be followed by Judge Andrews, I am unable at this time to state. I intend to visit him this afternoon if possible and learn his intentions, and will write you regarding this matter very shortly.

As to any tangible evidence of purchase or possession of Reading first preferred stock, I beg to say that as this stock was purchased through First National Bank of Ithaca, they undoubtedly will report to you upon receipt of acquisition of same. We have nothing in the way of an acknowledgement here in connection with the purchase. Checks enclosed received and deposited. [Barrett]

NOVEMBER 23, 1907.

THE AMERICAN CONSULATE IN BRISTOL.

ARRIVAL OF DR. WORDEN.

The vacancy caused by the transfer to Cardiff of Mr. Lorin A. Lathrop—who so well and for so long sustained the important position of Consul at this port for the American Government—has been filled, and in the manner notified by this journal some little time since. Dr. J. Perry Worden has duly taken over the duties at the Consulate, Queen Square, since last week, and, with the Vice and Deputy-Consul (Mr. Richard Castle) at his side, it may be confidently taken for granted that it will not be long ere "the doctor" has a real grip of Bristol affairs. The briefest of conversations with the newcomer is sufficient to reveal that he is a man of deep, yet agreeable, personality, and one who in every way will be a great acquisition to the local Consulate corps. For years this city has been fortunate in the calibre of the officials who serve their respective countries here in this capacity—real business men, alive to their responsibilities and discharging them always with a courtesy and tact which make it a pleasure to seek information from them or to come into commercial contact with them.

Dr. Worden is not the American one is made acquainted with through the medium of light literature, but of the type of the quiet-spoken, highly-educated American, teeming with forceful thought, possessing a thorough appreciation of humour, courteous, together with great conversational ability—all of which should stand him well socially. In his quiet way he is an enthusiast, with ideals. He seems to realise in the widest sense of the term that his position here is primarily that of an ambassador of commerce, and one is not surprised, therefore, that he regards this channel of intercourse between nations as the best possible means of producing good feeling and that which invariably follows—namely, friendly relationship. In a word, our friend may be said to be a representative of that considerable class of Americans who have built a literary and an academic career on a practical business experience, and who are now being attracted to the American Consular Service through the changes instituted at Washington by President Roosevelt, Secretaries Root and Wilson, and Chief Clerk Carr. The re-organisation dates from April, 1906, since when new appointments have been made by examination, and so for the future the Consular service will be recruited rather than by political nomination.

As to Dr. Worden, it may be said that he was one of 54 who tried the Civil Service Examination in July last, and one of 13 who passed. As a young man, he was in a New York book pnblishing concern, and also learned the printer's trade, thus getting an insight into business. Later, he was a journalist on the "New York Sun," and Ambassador Reid's paper, the "New York Tribune," being sent to Europe by them. He is a graduate and post-graduate of Columbia University in New York City, and studied nearly five years in Holland, France, and Germany, taking his Doctor of Philosophy degree at the German University of Halle. Since 1900 he has been Professor of Modern Languages in several Colleges, and a University extension lecturer at leading Universities. For many years he has been growing in literary reputation, publishing and preparing to publish several books, also contributing to leading American and European magazines. Some years ago he became a staff writer for the "Nation," a paper which won high encomiums from the British Ambassador at Washington. Amongst his recreations are to be numbered cycling and photography.

Dr. Worden does not come to this country quite as a stranger, for in 1892 he did a tour of the United Kingdom with bicycle and camera, and his impressions made a series of interesting magazine articles. He came in contact with several notable people on that occasion, and he prizes greatly a drinking glass in his collection of souvenirs, which was given him by Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone. Three years later he again toured Scotland and England a-wheel, and was in London in 1896 for a part of the summer. He declares that his impressions gained by his previous experience of this country are of the happiest, and he is delighted that he comes to represent his country at such a place as Bristol, with its rich historical incidents and its long associations with America. Dr. Worden looks forward with special interest to a stay here long enough to enable him to resume his study of English life and ways.

He takes up his Consular duties—so well performed by his literary predecessor, Mr. Lathrop, and recently in charge of the experienced Vice-Consul, Mr. Castle—with enthusiasm, and considers he starts this career with happy auguries. On arriving in London, he had a fine view of the Lord Mayor's procession, which in America is regarded as one of the great historical customs of the old country. By the by, he speaks in terms of the highest admiration at the way the British police generally do their duty, and their fine regard of what he terms citizens' rights. Coming to Bristol, he is delighted to find that a few months hence the Royal Edward Dock will be added to the ocean traffic accommodation of the port. The citizens will be glad to know that he looks forward to great commercial results ensuing, and he declares that never was there a time when better relations existed between the English and American Governments, and never were the authorities in Washington more desirous of promoting and greatly increasing trade between the two countries. This brief account should present Dr. Worden in a helpful light to our citizens, amongst whom he expects to live for some little time, and whom, to use his own words, "he hopes to serve."

NOVEMBER 23, 1907.

FROM WASHINGTON TO BRISTOL.

THE NEW AMERICAN CONSUL.

A PERSONAL SKETCH.

In the course of a chat which I had with Dr. J. Perry Worden, America's new Consul in Bristol, it struck me very forcibly that it would not be very long before the latest representative to come to the city from the States had established a firm footing of cordial friendliness in an ever increasing community of social acquaintances, and that, on the other hand—and this point is, of course, strictly speaking, more important to the success of the Consulate than the other — his commercial activity would quickly arouse the attention and admiration of all with whom his responsible position brought him into contact.

Dr. Worden is distinctly and essentially American, but, thanks to an experience of the world, gained by extensive travel, he is cosmopolitan in his sympathies, and this fact alone should prove of inestimable value to him in his new capacity, for if ever there was an office where broad-mindedness and clear insight are happy auguries of future welfare Dr. Worden has surely been elected to it. Naturally, having only arrived in Bristol on Monday, the Consul was scarcely able to dilate very freely upon matters which will subsequently interest him locally. However, as first impressions are undoubtedly most important, and in the opinion of not a few people who have every reason to stick to their belief, are frequently the determining factors in subsequent or ultimate events, it did suggest itself to me that the Consul's first impressions of our country and our city, upon his arrival in an official capacity, would be of some interest. In 1892 Dr. Worden came to England, and again in 1895 and 1896, and he particularly noticed certain changes which had taken place in the country between those dates and the present time.

"In 1896," he said, "I remember I was not greatly impressed with certain features of London's underground railroads. The atmosphere was damp, and the trains themselves were most miserably lighted. In 1900 I was struck by the fact that the French, in Paris, had clearly outdistanced the Londoners in this particular respect. The underground system of railroad in New York city," continued the Doctor, critically, "is probably, all in all, the best underground railroad in the world, notwithstanding its great heat, and which is now being remedied. It is certainly a great piece of engineering skill, especially when one considers the thousands of tons of solid rock which have had to be negotiated."

"And to-day?" I asked.

"To-day, on going to London, one finds two or three new railroads which are much ahead of anything London has had before, and which possess a number of interesting features of their own."

"What other changes or improvements have you noticed?" I asked.

Dr. Worden said he thought English cities had improved generally. "They have with few exceptions," he said, "felt the needs of an advanced age, and are doing everything to meet the demands of a progressive era."

"And how does Bristol strike you?" was my next question.

"I am immensely pleased with all I have seen up till now," the Consul answered. "I find Bristol full of interest. Firstly, it is a city full of the modern business spirit, and secondly it is a city which has a most interesting and historic past. The place is full of well preserved monuments to the memory of that past."

"Then there is, I may say, nothing in what you have seen of the commercial and business methods of the city, to which you, as an American, with cosmopolitan ideas, can take exception, or in any way find fault with?" I queried.

Dr. Worden smiled at this question. "There is one thing," he said, "which I am gradually adapting myself to, but which at first did cause me at the very least a little inconvenient. It is the easy going style of the Britisher, whether in Bristol or London, of beginning each business day of his life. At an hour when the average American business agent or financier has about half finished his day's work the city gentleman of Bristol or London is calmly taking his coffee and eggs, and reading his morning newspaper, and business proper does not commence much before nine o'clock in the morning."

The mention of the morning paper led me to put a question to the Consul as to what he thought of British journalism compared with the news providers across the water. His reply to my question on this topic was, I thought, typical of the man, in that it revealed his intention—and that a capital one—to guard against invidious comparisons, and so his remarks upon this subject, as upon every other, were tempered by thoughtfulness. There were features, said the Doctor, of American journalism which he believed the better class American did not commend, and these features he certainly did not think it would be an advantage to English newspapers to copy.

"We have some very great newspapers, very enterprising and very reliable," he claimed. "Some of them spend enormous sums of money, and in mechanism, I suppose, there has been nothing to be desired for a long time. So far as British newspapers are concerned, I have always admired the impartiality of the reports in the great British papers, and there is one particular feature about English daily journalism which I really do admire. It is the tendency to give special attention to the more serious matters of life, such as the works and proceedings of scientific and historical societies, and so on. On the whole, I think both British and American journals can still learn very much from each other."

It was in July of the present year that Dr. Worden entered and was successful in the examination for Consular service, and, by the way, that examination now takes the form of a civil service test, thanks to a movement that was initiated by the Civil Service Reform Association. Of that body Carl Schurz, probably the greatest German who ever landed in America, and whose career reads as romantically as any history, was a famous leader. The object the association had in view was to introduce such legislation as would gradually bring about a revolution in the filling of various offices under the Government. The present system does away completely with political preference and influence, both of which were important factors formerly in the selection of candidates for responsible offices. Mr Roosevelt was primarily concerned in formulating the new plans, and in his endeavours he was ably assisted by Mr Secretary Root, Mr Huntington Wilson, Assistant-Secretary of State; Mr Wilbur J. Carr, Chief Clerk; and Mr A. M. Kiggins, Chief Examiner of the Civil Service Commission. Much of the work of direction now falls to Mr H. C. Hengstler as Chief of the Consular Bureau.

Dr. Worden spoke in terms of high praise of the work accomplished by these heads of departments, and it now only remains for me to say that those same heads, representing the keenest of America's keen intellects, have shown themselves to be, as usual, fully alive to the opportunities of the moment by placing at the American Consulate in Bristol—as the successor of Mr Lorin A. Lathrop, the very popular Consul now at Cardiff—such an able and thoroughly qualified representative of all their best interests as Dr. Worden will most assuredly prove himself to be.

My dear Papa; —

I really meant to write to you before this but I have had annual things to do.

We had a very quiet Thanksgiving dinner at home, no company, and it was very pleasant. I thought of all you dear ones, you especially, and wondered if the boys & Auntie were with you to eat the

The children still walk out to Pardue, and are getting so strong and solid, as can be, and they are little rogues; they are such healthy little specimens, they are out in the air so much, they ought to be, they are very impatient for Christmas to come, but, for my part, I am not sorry it is some ways off, as I want to make some little gifts; and speaking of gifts reminds me, that I have something (or will have) for you which I think, in fact, I am sure you will like. Ervin and I are going to give each other a joint present this Christmas of a set of book on travel or art; we have not yet decided which. We have finished a charming book on France by Joel Cook; it is in two volumes, but every page of it is interesting; it is something like an historical guide-book, only it does not tell you what stores to go to nor what hotels to stop at. We shall take up the Alhambra next. This reading is so pleasant and we both enjoy it so. Did I tell you, that I am making

Dear Doctor White:

Answering yours of November 27th, in re captain of the Salvation Army

I know this man by sight but not personally, but my impression is favorable from what I knew of him when he was here before. I think in the past the money has been wisely expended and has done good. I would not suggest a contribution of more than five or possibly ten dollars.

If you knew the respect and affection I hold for you I am sure you would feel perfectly free to call on me for any service which was in my power to render you as such service is a great pleasure to me.

Sincerely yours,

My dear Mr. White,-

Upon learning that you are to be in Washington, many of your old students approached me and asked me, as Secretary of the Association here, to try to get you to consent to a little reception in your honor. We do not want to make it a task for you, for we know how busy you are, and therefore would not expect you to prepare any speech or to make any extended remarks, unless you feel inclined that way. But we do all want a chance to see you again and to have a little informal conversation with you. Mr. Howard, Mr. Coville and various others to whom I have spoken are enthusiastic over the suggestion.

Can you not, therefore, save us an evening toward the end of your visit? We had scheduled a smoker for December 12th, and perhaps you would be willing to have the reception on that date, as many have already reserved it. But any date, I think, would be satisfactory, if it is not too soon for us to make necessary arrangements and send out notices.

The occasion would be somewhat different from the smoker you attended here a year or so ago. It is intended, this time, to invite the Cornell women also and to ask the men to bring their wives. We would thus spend a very pleasant evening and have the chance not only to renew our acquaintance

If you will consent to this plan, Mr. White, I promise you solemnly that we will not work you hard nor keep you up late. Albee and I are both here and will assume personal responsibility as to that.

Do not bother to write an answer to this, for you are probably just about leaving Ithaca. But think it over and give me your answer in Washington.

Am exceedingly sorry to have troubled you in the matter of the Appeal. I thought after running over the papers with two ex-Senators & Mr. Yates that very likely they were too generous with their commendations; and hence it was that I said in my note accompanying the copy that went to you that I meant to omit the modifying down of the expressions that seemed caustic at the same time asking you to make any changes you might think proper. This because the time was short, & had no type-writer at hand.

I now send you the papers as prepared for use, in Senate, & possibly House also, begging you to run it through, and mark any further changes necessary, in order to your approval which I deem much important of all; meanwhile the

My dear Sir:

With reference to the quotation from you, on page 358, in my book, I found it in a book entitled "Comedy of Protection," written by Yves Guyot Pamphlet, the English edition being printed by Hoder & Stoughton, 27 Paternoster Row, London, in 1906. You will find the quotation at page 266. I wrote my book at Homer in the summer of 1906, and I went to the library at that time and looked for your works finding the autobiography, but was unable to find it in that and intended when I returned to the city to go to the Columbia library and look carefully through your other works, but I got back and found an immense amount of work heaped up and got so engrossed in it that the matter escaped my attention, and I did not make further search. Possibly this was something you said or wrote before you represented your country at Berlin in 1879, Mr. Hayes' administration. Mr. Guyot gives no reference to the sources from which it is taken, and I should never have allowed it to go into the book without verifying it further, but the world-wide reputation of the author of that book as a great scholar and publicist probably influenced me further than it should to use it. I think, however, that it can be found somewhere.

I will see to it, if you wish, thatit does not appear in any future edition of the work, if upon reflection and examination you think there is a mistake about it.

My Dear Sir — your very kind and complimentary letter came duly to hand. I was and am pleased to get it and especially with its generous and kindly words — I have watched your career with great interest and pleasure ever since my Cornell days. your honors have been many and worthily won and held — I did not know that you had written an Autobiography or I should have obtained it. I assure you I would be highly pleased to receive a copy. I would read it and treasure it — I turn often to the two vols that I have of your "Warfare of Science &c," and love them now and then to others. I have Mr Ingersoll's book, "The Bottom Facts" This book to I have loaned till it is still worn —

I will write to Rev. Michael Clowe for his little book,
I would like to distribute some of my books. I never had any idea of making any money out of the venture and know I shall not. Still, I would like to get them out more or less — that is the only way they can or could be of any use — I have several very good letters as to the book — I am thinking of printing them in a little circular to send to my friends and acquaintances. I will to ask if I may use those parts of your letter that speak of the book and its contents. Inclose copy of extracts which I would be pleased to use — I am sure it will help me, At any rate it would be a high compliment. But if you have any objection be pleased to say so — I will treasure your very kindly letter that I have — Believe me,
Sincerely Yours

My Dear Mr. White:-

While you were spending a summer in Media, I was absorbed in your "Warfare". I did not learn that you were in Media until after you had gone or I should have taken the liberty of calling to see you. I live near Newtown Square about three miles from Media. Thinking you may be interested in that section, I am sending you a copy of the description of Sycamore Mills. Will you also please accept this book"Father and Son". I feel sure that it will appeal to you. My religious education was started on the Good Old New England Methods; then the war came along and "in the gloaming" we would sing"Just before the battle Mother. Make me a child again just for tonight" to long meter. I look back now on my boyhood and pity the little fellow. When my pendulum started on the other swing it went very rapidly and rather far. Your "Warfare" was just what I wanted. Trusting you will get a little pleasure from "Father and Son",

I am,

Cordially yours,

Dear Sir-

I have read your book " A history of the warfare of Science with Theology in Christendoom" wih the greatest interest and would like very much to see it translated in the German language. In Germany today the fifferences between science and theology are very much discussed, the Press is greatly occupying itself with these differences. I think your book would be read with great interest and I think myself capable to translate it, if you would give me the permission. I would do it, with the greatest care and if you would allow it to me, I would be able to find a publisher, who would undertake the edition of the book. Dear Mell, Ernest is quite sick & we are quite a little alarmed about him but every thing possible is being done. It looks like a mild case of pneumonia.

You will note an item on your statement this month of $50.00 for your one half of my expenses to New York attending the meeting of the Allemania Echo aqueduct Co. While this would seem to many to be more than enough for the service, it in fact was not enough to pay my expense on nothing above my time & I am entirely clear you would approve of all disbursements.

It looks now as if the stock might be worth something but we must not count on it.

Faithfully yours.

Dear Dr.: In the "End of Controversy" p. 306 by the R. Catholic Bishop John Milner of England (1818) it is averred that "all those who have actively concurred to the death or mutilation ××× by exercising the art of surgery" "cannot be promoted to holy orders or exercise those orders if they have actually received them." Milner says this is the canon as "it still stands". Perhaps this sustains your contention with Dr. Walsh. Kindly give me the benefit of what you think.

Dear Mr. White:-

The New York Tribune is making a special holiday offer to attract new readers. With every subscription sent in on the enclosed post card eight of "The Worlds Famous Novels" will be given free. The titles of the books and the names of the authors are as follows: Graham of Claverhouse by Ian Maclaren, Renazov by Gertrude Atherton, A Rock in the Baltic by Robert Barr, The New Legatee by Anna Katherin Green, The Man Between by Amelia E. Barr, The Lady Evelyn by Max Pemberton, Latter-Day Sweethearts by Mrs. Burton Harrison and Doc Gordon by Mary E. Wilkins.

Each one of these books are superbly bound, the illustrations are in colors after drawings by famous artists.

If you did not desire to keep the books yourself they would make most acceptable Christmas presents.

The price of the daily and Sunday Tribune is $10 a year delivered by letter carrier; $15 a year delivered through a local news dealer.

The Tribune is, as you no doubt know, a paper of the highest character. Many noted jurists are on its book s now as regular subscribers and frequently contribute to its columns. Its news service

My dear Friend. We received your kind letter of Nov. 9., written two days after your birthday, and we send you our heartfelt congratulations on that event, with the hope that you may enjoy "many happy returns" of the anniversary.

It was in 1857 that my acquaintance with you began, and I have watched the successive incidents in your eminent career with deep sympathy and interest. You may be said now to be "resting on your laurels"; only I am afraid you do not do enough in the way of "resting". However, all your work is valuable; your reminiscences of the past must be historically exceedingly interesting.

In your recent letter I could not at first think whom you meant by "Annie". Afterwards I knew you must have referred to Mrs. Fred. White, whose first name I never knew. It is very sad. The repeated shock and the repeated loss must

Hon. A. D. White,

My Dear Friend:

Hearty congratulations on the celebration of your seventy-fifth birthday, Nov. 7th. I wish you many anniversaries of the same kind. To-day Dec. 8. (feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary) is my seventy-sixth birthday which we celebrate in a very enjoyable, but extremely simple manner by eating a piece of excellent mince-pie made by my wife for the occasion. There are no congratulations from friends or acquaintances, because none of them know anything about it. I am glad that you enjoyed my book "The Criminal Prosecution and Capital Punishment of Animals" and that you intend to use it in preparing a revised edition of "The Warfare of Science". I should think it might furnish some valuable material. The book has been very favorably noticed in Munich, Leipzig, Berlin and Hamburg papers and also, so far as I have seen, in American journals. A scholarly gentleman residing here, Baron Godin, expressed his surprise at the extent and character of the researches on which the book is based: "Ich bin ganz erstaunt" are the words he used. The whole work was a revelation to him. My "History be too much for her strength to bear. And probably Clara's illness and death brought it all back! Is she still living in Syracuse and alone, or is she with her relatives? I believe she belonged in Syracuse. I should think it would be bad for her not to see people. If she could be roused by some other mind to look outside of her own troubles, it might check that dangerous brooding.

It is very kind of you to speak of looking up Mr. Roy Henry. I doubt whether he ever heard of me as a relation, as the kinship is very distant and not on the "Henry" side. I heard of him through a cousin of mine who is his great-aunt. Her mother was a Williams (my mother's sister) and she married a Mr. Henry, a brother of Rev. Dr. Henry, formerly, I believe, a prominent Episcopal clergyman in the diocese of New York.

I suppose you take an interest in all that is going on politics included. We hear every little while that President Roosevelt is likely to continue in office. It seems astonishing that Bryan should announce himself as a candidate! So many changes seem to be coming in with the new century! The inventions for rapid travelling by land and by water and under the water and through the air must affect the relations of human beings everywhere. Whether all these things will conduce to the much desired universal peace remains to be seen. The English seem to be already worried about the air-balloon. To my mind, the most wonderful of all is the wireless telegraphy! As for literature, I cannot get used to the changes in our language and the adoption of so many new words and I shall continue to think "would better," "would rather," the form demanded by grammar and sense, instead of "had better," "had rather," whatever the so-called "authorities" may say.

I suppose you and Mrs. White are looking forward with pleasure to your projected winter tour. We wish good success, and if we should be so fortunate as to see you both it would give us great pleasure. My husband will write also. He is very busy with his literature which demands revision as well as addition and continuation.

With best regards to Mrs. White and to all. Yours sincerely, Elizabeth E. Evans.

of German Literature" is progressing slowly but steadily, and I hope to have two volumes of it ready for the press before long. The researches take considerable time especially in the earliest period down to the end of the 13 th century, which has to be treated as a history not only of literature properly speaking but also of the growth of German culture and civilization. We shall be very glad to set you both during your projected visit to Europe ~~during~~ in January or February. What dreadful devastations have been produced by earthquakes in different countries and especially in Calabria (Southern Italy), which towns having been destroyed there and new shocks still occurring. It is certainly an abnormal state of things, the causes of which remain a mystery. I suppose you are all looking forward with interest to the approaching presidential campaign. It seems to me that Roosevelt is perfectly sincere in refusing to be a candidate, although he is supposed by some persons to be merely scheming for renomination. His last utterances are very plain and positive on this point. With thanks for your interesting letter and kind regards

My dear Ambassador White:

Having a kind letter from Mrs. White, in which she speaks of your stopping, on the way here, to see a grandchild, who is ill, and yet your possible arrival on Friday, I have repeatedly called to inquire, and now leave this note, expressing a strong desire to meet you, for a quite full interview, as early as possible.

The "Appeal", as it first went to you, was my first writing after a serious illness, and when I was in dark pulling on account of the wrongs our cause of the University has suffered, and was recognizing one going into the mail as needing to be relieved of certain expressions that could do no good and might do harm.

Accordingly, I have, since, gone carefully over the whole paper, and not only shortened it by some three pages, but so tempered it that I think the wonder will be how so kindly a document could be written, under the circumstances historically stated. But it is still open to change. I feel now that the earlier it gets to the Senate, the better. So please name a time for receiving me as early as possible, & believe me

Your letter of last week and also yours of yesterday received. At the time of receipt of your letter written last week, Mr. Andrew S. White was absent from the city. I gave the letter to Mr. Horace K. White.

Enclosed check for Two Hundred and fifty Dollars received. Will deposit same tomorrow, as this check is the original no former check for this amount having been received.

Regret very much to say that we suffered some anxiety here since I wrote you last. Mr. Ernest I. White had an attack of pleuro-pneumonia, and was quite ill. He has almost entirely recovered now, and we hope will be out shortly. Mr. Horace K. White had a slight trouble with his throat; but is now entirely recovered. Regret very much to read of Andrew Newberry's illness, and sincerely hope to soon learn that he is out of danger and on the road to recovery.

I beg to assume to say that I believe the coming issue of N.Y., N.H. & Hartford 6% bonds will be a very good investment, and that same will find a ready market at a good price. Six per cent bonds are becoming a rare thing; and, of course, the financial standing of this company appears to be above suspicion.

Saw Honorable Charles Andrews in regard to the the matter of the University Ave house, stated the condition of affairs concerning that piece of property; and asked what he might advise in connection with same. He said he would advise selling it. I stated that I thought that it would be a good idea to repair same, and improve the appearance of it generally, giving it a coat of paint in the spring, and then try to sell it next May or June when it would find a more ready sale than at this time of the year. He coincided with me in that regard to that, and said probably it would be advisable to wait until then. My dear Dr. White:

I hear from Dean Pendleton, who was in charge of the College last year when I was abroad, that you expressed some willingness to be approached again with an invitation to deliver the Commencement address at Wellesley. Would you be able to come to us on Tuesday, the twenty-third of June, to deliver our address to the graduating class and their friends? I am sorry that our usual honorarium is so small -only fifty dollars- but we shall have well over two hundred in the class, and it is really a very beautiful occasion with our Wellesley woods in their summer dress.

We should all feel greatly honored and pleased if you should be able to come to us. Will you not consider it and give a word of inspiring counsel to these young women as they leave the walls of their college? I shall hope to hear that this may be possible to you, before long.

Do you remember my uncle, Professor Eli Whitney Blake, who was one of the early men at Cornell? I have often heard him speak of you with affectionate regard. My uncle Ogden N. Rood was for many years Professor of Physics in Columbia, and I am sure had the pleasure of knowing you also. So that for their sakes, as well as for your own, I

I was so very sorry to learn from Mrs. Hoxie late last evening that you were at her study yesterday. Had I known you were to be there I surely would have gone over to have had the pleasure of greeting you once more.

I write this note to explain that I have recently written a personal note to you and addressed it to New York City, as I was misinformed as to your present address. I had given a letter of introduction to one Mr. Wm. E. Cole, asking you to grant him a personal interview so that he might explain the plans and methods of a book which I have undertaken, and in which I believe you will be interested. I desire to obtain from you some data which will help me very materially in my work.

I have so greatly enjoyed Mr. White's books that I feel that he would be in sympathy with the effort that I am making.

Hoping that you will be in Washington at some time this winter and regretting that, having rented my beautiful old home and moved into an apartment, I have no space to accommodate my friends that I might urge you to come to me for a visit, but if you are here I have plenty of room for "breaking of bread" and should hope to have a little of your time for a dining at least, I remain,

CHICAGO, U. S. A., Dec. 11th, 1907

FORWARDING THE FOLLOWING PUBLIC MEASURES:

Additional legislation for the reorganization of the American Consular Service according to the following principal provisions:

1. Removal of the service from the sphere of political influence by enactment of the "merit" system of examination, appointment and promotion of consuls.
2. Creation of an Examining Board, with examination scale of 80 to 100.
3. Minimum and maximum age limit of twenty-one and forty years respectively, for admission to the service.
4. Consuls to be familiar with one modern language other than English, and possess a knowledge of the natural, industrial and commercial resources and the commerce of the United States, especially with reference to the possibilities of increasing and extending the trade of the United States with foreign countries to which they are accredited.
5. Tenure of office to continue only during efficiency and conduct of the highest grade.
6. Complete Americanization.
7. As between candidates of equal merit, proportional representation of all the states and territories in the consular service.
8. A reasonable retiring pension for consular officials, under certain limitations with reference to age, grade, length and efficiency of service.

Preservation of all laws and enactment of additional laws necessary for the prevention or punishment of conspiracy and mob violence. Opposing all measures against the peace and welfare of the people.

Commercial reciprocity with foreign nations, as a measure for trade expansion, and general recognition and practice of reciprocity as a principle, but not to such degree as will insufficiently protect our industries.

Six-year, one-term for the President of the United States—making the Chief Executive ineligible for re-election.

Reclamation, by the United States Government, of the arid and semi-arid public lands through irrigation and conservation of water supply, thereby rendering arable, lands sufficient for the subsistence of 50,000,000 people, and sale of such reclaimed lands by the government, in small farms, to home builders only.

Repeal or modification of the Desert Land Act, Timber and Stone Act and Commutation Clause of the Homestead Act.

Systematic conservation and reproduction of American forests, for the perpetuity of our water-courses and our industries; to benefit the home builders; to restore and preserve the natural beauty of the landscapes, and to create more healthful conditions for the people.

GOOD ROADS—Better common highways from the farms to the mills and markets of the country.

Creation of a comprehensive system of navigable inland water-ways by the commonwealth and the nation.

American ships, American-built, American-manned, for American commerce.

A GREATER NAVY—Alike for protection and as a preventive of war.

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, New York.

Dear Sir:-

Within the past year considerable has been published concerning the inadequacy of American Embassy buildings abroad, as compared with the quarters either owned or leased by other leading nations.

As you are undoubtedly well advised of conditions in London and the chief cities of Continental Europe, I will be glad to receive any suggestions you may kindly make in the way of estimates, etc, looking to the betterment of our embassy buildings, and as to what cities, for a beginning, we should select in which to commence the work of improvement.

With thanks in advance,

Yours very truly,

General Secretary.

To the Honourable
Ex Ambassador A.D.White
Ithaca New York

Honoured Sir:-

It was a great privilege to be favoured with a practical opportunity for manifesting (in a way) my gratefulness towards you, for marked kindness extended to me when you were our distinguished Ambassador to Germany. Your then amiable Chargé d'affaires, now Minister J.B.Jackson, in an ideal helpful manner, gave without stint of the time, effort and influence of your exalted office, in order to secure for me the right of admission to the German Medical Staatsexamen, which my education and papers entitled me to, but which the conservatism of the German government hesitated to grant. My final success in securing what I sought, I owe to you directly or indirectly, but surely to the prevailing scholarly influence which has always pervaded every high position you have occupied. It requires breadth of mind and genuine human sympathy, to adopt "willingness to serve in all proper channels of usefulness, rather than follow simple strict adhesion to formal lines of duty" as a rule of action in diplomatic life.

The occasion of meeting Mrs.White your charming cousin enabled me to realize the hope I had long cherished, of giving evidence of my humble recognition of the magnificent manner in which you carried out public duty and of which I by a fortunate accident was a beneficiary.

You have now made me a greater debtor to you, by the handsome gift of these most valuable and fascinating volumes, for which receive not only my best thanks, but also that sincere gratitude and admiration that must come to you from every one who has the good fortune to read them.

With the utmost assurances of my profound esteem, disinguished consideration and unending appreciation, I am

Very sincerely Yours

Dear Sir:

As the date of the next regular meeting of the Trustees of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission falls on Christmas Day, and as the By-Laws provide in such an event that the meeting shall be held on the following day; and as it will be inconvenient for many to attend the meeting on that day, notice is hereby given that pursuant to adjournment at the last meeting there will be a of the Trustees at Headquarters of the Commission, Room 805, Tribune Building, New York City, on Wednesday, Dec. 18th, at 3 o'clock p.m., for the transaction of business which would otherwise come before the regular meeting.

To comply with the By-Laws, the usual notice of the regular meeting is enclosed herewith, but it is not expected that there will be a quorum for the transaction of business on December 26th, the date named in that notice.

Yours respectfully,
Henry W. Sackett
Secretary.

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

My dear Dr. White:-

We now have several small organs completed or nearly completed in and about New York City. We feel very proud of them and so apparently do the owners. The Sisterhood of St. John's the Divine, 17th St., New York. heard indirectly that we had lost some money in building them a very small but remarkably beautiful organ and they approached us with the request that we accept $300.00 over and above the contract price. This was very gratifying was it not? Our large organ in New York, at St. James Church, Madison Ave. & 71st St., will be completed between Christmas and New Year's. It is altogether likely that on New Year's Day we shall get the American Guild of Organists to adjourn its regular meeting to visit and listen to this organ. Is there any chance of your being in New York between, let us say, the 20th of December and the first of January? As several important recitals will be given on the instrument we should like to invite you to some one or more of them, or if you prefer we should greatly favor the chance to show it to you in private. Mr. Clemens has promised to thus visit it and we hope Mr. Carnegie will also. As we told you, we are counting a great deal on the reputation which this organ will bring us and we want you to hear it.

As you are aware, we have our eyes on the rebuild of the Sage Chapel organ and any new instrument which may be built for Cornell, and we feel certain that by the time any such work is taken up we shall be in position to expect to be selected as the builders. Mr. Hope-Jones joins me, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

Dear Dr. White,

It gives me pleasure to say that I have just forwarded to the Century Company a cheque for $77.07, representing further royalties on the sale of the German edition of your Autobiography.

I wonder if you will recall a conversation that I had the pleasure of having with you in Ithaca about two years ago, in which you spoke of placing in our hands for disposal in England and on the Continent of the book rights of a work which you were then writing for the Atlantic Monthly - "The Warfare of Humanity with Unreason" I think it was.

You may possibly remember that I spoke to Chapman & Hall of London - the Publishers of Dickens and Carlisle - about it shortly afterwards, and they expressed themselves as very keen about it, and their Managing Director stated that they would probably be willing to pay £100 on account of a high royalty, possibly 25%, for the English rights alone. It seems very doubtful that as good an arrangement could be made by the exportation of sheets from America in the usual way; and if you have not already made arrangements for the work in question, we should be very glad to conclude the arrangements on your behalf. On the other hand, if you have concluded all rights on the sale of the work to Messrs. Appleton, or some other American firm, I should be grateful if you could decide to send me a note of authorisation to approach them as regards selling such rights on behalf of both you and their firm here, as you did with reference to the Century Company and your Autobiography.

In any event, believe me, with every regard,
Yours faithfully,

Hughes Massie

Gettysburg. Pa [12-12-97]

My dear Dr. White,

I am taking a great liberty in writing to you, but I believe that you will understand how, in my situation, I summon the courage.

A biography of my husband is demanded, and for many months I have been sifting much rich material. I have the assistance of Professor Sanders of the college here, a professor of philosophy and interested in sociology, and with this cooperation I plan a work on "The Life and Labors of J. H. H. Stuckenberg".

082231

Our General Synod of the Lutheran Church is poor in literature, perhaps because our people have not the easy command of English that makes writing a pleasure; more likely, because of our amount of mission work, employed illpeople so like us that the problem seems easy, so unlike us because of the memories and the influences of the old country that we cannot understand. Because we have little literature, comparatively, 2 long to make this life of my husband as rich in value as work can make it: Dr. Isaac Funk says "Make it promote the interests for which he worked". Dr. George Morris, Editor of the Boston Herald, writes: "Make it candid, showing how a man of Dr. Stuckenberg's mentality maintained his faith throughout his contact with those movements in Germany many of which he was so conscious." There is much else that I shall try to have treated with all the candour necessary to set forth the truth and the life. I aim at reality, the story of the actual life and the groups of men he worked with, portrayal of the material he worked with and whatever is necessary to the background. Eulogy is not sought for.

Because he was a German American, who more constantly traveled his America experience with those of Germany than most of his fellow countrymen, that involves difficulties in treatment. Because he was an American German, working for America in Germany, the zeal in his pursuits kept him in considerable isolation from those men who did not seek him out. His official duties, his authorship, his investigations in the Royal Library absorbed all his time.

You arrived in Berlin shortly after our departure. I am venturing to ask whether you met any traces of his influence in Berlin, heard any characterizations of him that you think might be of value in the treatment of the Berlin period? And if so, whether you will kindly send me jottings that will inform me.

My husband felt obliged to take some measures that were unpopular with a group of the American colony; probably for a time that created a noise that would undo the Embassy. How much this group accomplished to discredit my husband among that congregation, steady only in fluctuation, I have no means of knowing.

Nine years after our departure from Berlin, I returned for a few weeks. At our church I met only five people I had ever seen before, and these are no longer there. It was a flowing congregation. However, now, I meet members of it in many college faculties, and notice many books produced by those who sat in our little Church, or attended our Sunday evenings.

Should you remember discrediting statements - they would help me to understand the situation. The residents of the colony were somewhat offended at the emphasis my husband placed upon the student portion of the congregation. Even such as never attended the church are said to have felt that they ought not to have been ignored by him in seeking council. I mention this because it may explain what probably met your ears at times.

Some of the former students have sent some gottings of value. Six of the Hartford Theological Faculty were members of our Berlin Church. If possible, I must secure characterizations from others than theologians.

Possibly I have imparted to you more than is necessary, "nach Weiber Art"; as the Germans would say. But I have hoped thereby to suggest my situation. I know how little you saw of my husband, you never heard him, but he cherished his recollections of the walks and talks in the streets of Berlin. If you had remained in Berlin while we were there, it would have greatly enriched his field of observation.

Please, I don't expect much from you to give a hand so occupied with work of permanent value. And I do want to be forgiven for any claim, with gratitude for numerous kindnesses we received in Berlin from you during the winter of 1880-81. I am very truly yours,

Mary G. Stuckenberg

My very dear friends:-

The day after our last meeting, at the New Willard, I meant again, simply to express my grateful acknowledgments for your deep and abiding interest in the great cause so near my heart, and to reiterate to you, with emphasis, if any, my admiration and affectionate regard, including Mrs. White, whose radiance of interest and sympathy so quickly & completely ~~satisfies~~ [illegible] my friend these many years.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

But you had already gone homeward — I know, [illegible]

And now, so sadly comes, thro the press, the reason of your early departure — the sudden demise of the noble and gifted parent, so honored of all who knew him, Dr. Edwin H. McGill, late President of Swarthmore College.

How very sad! And with almost no warning, I assume, since no mention was made of his illness during your visit here.

I had not known him, personally, but in the words that came to me, years ago, in answer to my request for sympathy & cooperation, gave assurance of the high qualities that won my heart

Cordiale regard. [illegible]

Be assured, dear friends, of the profound and very tender sympathy of [illegible] and I share with you the sorrow, and the [illegible] regret at [illegible] departure. Hon. Andrew D. White,
Ithaca, N. Y.

Dear Sir: There follows this letter a set of the Centenary Edition of the Life & Works of Abraham Lincoln, which, as editor of the book and your fellow in membership in the Authors Club, I beg you to accept with my compliments. If, after dipping into the book, you are moved to write me a sentiment concerning it which you would not be averse to see quoted by the publishers, they & I will welcome it as favor.

I enclose herewith a summary of the contents of the several volumes.

Sincerely,

My dear Papa.—

I have been thinking of you many times, and wondering whether you were still in Ithaca, or whether you had gone away on a little trip. How I wish you could come here & spend Christmas with us! but I dare say it would be too far for you in such weather as we have been having lately; but if you should go to

Chicago, I wish you could come here and give a talk to the students.

Well, I am nearly ready for Christmas, I have almost all the family provided for, except Helen & Karin, and I don't what in the world to send them. I shall go around and see what I can find. Do you think, Helen would care for some little pick ornament? and would Karin like a sewing "kit" (or box) do you think, I have so little time to make anything for them, that I thought I might buy and send some little thing. Suppose you ask Miss Jones, what she thinks they would like. Of course it would be something nice, and likely as not, Miss J. could "nose around", without their Running it, or inquire of them, and let me know, as soon as possible for I've only this one week to do things in. You are provided for, Papa dear, but for Helen & Karin it is so hard to find just the right thing. The youngsters are talking about Christmas and Santa Claus from morning till night & are continually asking how long it will be now, till then. Erwin and I are thinking of getting them a sled, (if there is enough snow) to warrant good rides on the sled; if not we'll get them something else.

Well, I can't think of anything more to write about. We all send lots of love to you and I remain yours affly -

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

December 1, 1907.

Dear Mr. President:

I return herewith the letter of Dr. Andrew D. White, dated November 14, 1907, and the accompanying memorandum and draft act to establish departments for commercial education in connection with colleges established in the several States under the provisions of an act approved July 2, 1862, and the acts supplementary thereto.

I heartily approve of this measure which looks towards the promotion by the general Government of education designed to fit our people for carrying on foreign commerce in very much the same way as the appropriations under the so-called Morrill act have been used to promote education in agriculture. Such education is very much needed to enable our producers and merchants to cope with their competitors in foreign commerce as successfully as they should be able to do in view of their natural energy and resourcefulness and the substantial merit of American production. Action by the National Government in this field is much more clearly within its indisputable constitutional field than the action which has been so long continued regarding agriculture, for the foreign commerce of the country is expressly within the care of the National Government.

The draft bill proposes a system involving the cooperation and supervision of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and I recommend that these papers be transmitted to him for such remarks as he may see fit to make.

Faithfully yours,

Elihu Root

Dear Mr. White :

Before the mid-winter meeting of the University Trustees, it is perhaps desirable that Mr. Sackett and I should meet you with reference to Mr. Charles E. Cornell.

I understand that this matter is somewhat complicated by recent recommendation of the Veterinary Faculty, and that this recommendation, together with a recent communication from Mr. Cornell, lies on the table awaiting further action.

I write at this time to suggest that if you should happen to be in New York City within the next month or two, I would be glad to know it a few days in advance so that Mr. Sackett and I may arrange to meet you at your convenience.

I learned only yesterday that Andrew Newberry is ill with typhoid fever in York, Pa. This is very distressing news, and I hope that it may prove not a very severe case.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mrs. Andrew

Yesterday morning
I telephoned you in Ithaca & was told that you were away attending the funeral of Aunt Helen's father. I wanted to tell you of Hamilton H. Beardsley's sudden death which occurred here Sunday night from heart failure. The funeral is to be held tomorrow afternoon. They could not give me your address so I have not tried to get you in New York or elsewhere especially by as I understand the funeral is to be private. I hope you will give my sympathy to Aunt Helen who is no doubt much overcome by her great loss.

Ernest I am glad to say is much better & is getting along as well as could be expected. Both Father & Horace were quite overcome by Ernests illness but are now better. Father has not been down to the office yet however. During the crisis I was at the house & did not have my clothes off for seventy two hours but my strength was good & no ill effects have followed. Ernest was cared thro' great care from physicians & trained nurses & by reason of the fact that he had no complications. His heart was very strong & his nerve of the best. Phen Kate was sent to a sanatorium but has had up my will.

I have written two or three letters to you since receiving yours from York, Pa.
but have not heard since how Andrew is getting along. I hope he is doing as well as Ernest.

Trusting that this will find you & your household well
I remain, Faithfully yours,

2/ I have in mind a work for you that may grandly crown and perpetuate your record for Education. It is to found the Pompeian House of Pansa with its added material from the Halls of the Ancients, of great value and variety, as a permanent focus of material - historical; Educational of Architecture and Art - Life and Manners. Perhaps it may be bought by the State of New York for its Board of Education; or as an Annex to Cornell University for Educational Excursions. The records I have of its Association are extraordinary. It is useless to attempt a detail of ideas involved in the above by writing. Therefore I ask if you can come here for a day or two to study problems involved, as I believe in our mutual usefulness and satisfaction.

Farmily

My dear Papa;-

Your generous present came this afternoon, and I hasten to write and thank you for it, many times. I shall buy a nice book on Art for Ervine, & put some in the savings-bank for the children, and spend the rest, for various things for myself. It is so thoughtful of you to send money, for, by the this scheme, we can get the things we most want. I had changed my mind, about my present to Helen, as Erwin already had a beautiful alabaster ink-well which he had planned to give her, and as this was handsomer than we could find in town, he sent that instead. It is unnecessary for me to say, that the Western branch of the White family wishes all of you many merry Christ-mases and Happy New Years.

The little girlies are as busy as bees making their little Xmas gifts in the shape of darling handkerchiefs, pincushions. The thread is usually a different color from the cloth but helps them to see what they have sewed. They are on tiptoe with expectation at present and Santa Claus coming, and enquiring every day, how far off is Christmas. We shall have a tree, as usual, and I am anticipat-ing that part myself, as they do get so excited over it, little Helen in particu-lar.

We are so happy to hear that dear Andrew is getting better, and we hope soon to hear that he will be well enough to go back to work again. I really don't think he could have had typhoid fever, or he would not be getting well as soon as he is.

082250

I am so sorry to hear of dear old Dr. Majelle's death; was he ill long?-

Well now, Papa dear, good night, thank you ever so much for the cheque, and with a great big hug for you from the babies, and love from Emie and myself to you all, affectionately your daughter

Ruth.

P.S. Please tell Helen I'll write her soon; give her my love and warmest sympathy in this sorrow.

Dear Dr Hill:

It is a great disappointment both to my wife & myself not to meet you before your return to Europe.

All our arrangements were made to be with you at Senator Henderson's on the 11th but on the evening of the 10th came a telegram announcing the death of my wife's father & this obliged us to leave Washington early next morn.

I did not know that you were in Washington or I would have called upon you.

I wrote very earnestly to the Prsdt urging that our Govt build or buy the Embassy building occupied by Mr. Tower. & both my wife myself spoke to Secretary Cortelyou about it, but I have little faith that anything will be done. You will probably find considerable difficulty in securing just the right sort of house or apartment.

My wife & I were somewhat puzzled by apartments in the big structure opposite the Kais. Wilh. Gedächtniss Kirche - but found that we should hope to put two apartments together & so form it up. The Brazilian minister lived there for a time - but en garçon.

We were intending to leave on Jan 4th for Sicily -

- had excellent cabins engaged; but my grandson - a splendid fellow - came down with typhoid - & so we gave it up. He is convalescing & we may go on Feb 16th, taking time - but nothing is decided yet.

With hearty congratulations & kind greetings to Mrs Hill, yourself & the children I remain —

SCHOOL OF LAW

Dec.,21st.,1907.

The Honorable

Andrew D. White.

Ithaca,N.Y.

Dear Preident White,

I regret to say that the doubts,which I expressed to you, last Monday,concerning the validity of the paper then before us,do not seem to be justified by the authorities in this State. I thought that the provisions which secured to you the absolute ownership of the profits, and such extraordinary power over the principal of the so called ''trust fund'',were so repugnant to the idea of a vested interest in the beneficiaries,that the paper could legally operate only as a testamentary disposition of the described property. In such case,the disposition would be revocable,notwithstanding the recital in the early part of the paper that it is to be irrevocable.

Accordong to the authorities in some States,,my doubts apper to be well grounded.But the decisions in New York seem to favor the view, that a present estate vested in the beneficiaries,as soon as the paper was executed and delivered; and,hence ,that the trust is irrevocable.

However,it is very clear that the intention of all the parties to the paper will be utterly defeated,so far as the portion is concerned , which was to be paid over to your son ,upon your death. I am sure that any court would try very hard to prevent this share going to strangers, if you should attempt to revoke this so-called trust,and to bring this share back into your own family:or,rather,prevent its diversion to an outside family.

Is it not probable that Mrs.Frederick White would see the justice of such a revocation,and consent to it?especially in view of all that she has had from her husband's estate,and of her present condition of health. Such a release from her would put an end to all doubts and uncertainties. If such release or consent can not be obtained and you were to make a will,reciting the circumstances attending the execution of the paper in question;declaring the intention with which the paper was executed, namely to secure to your three children,upon your death,the property specified in the paper;that this intention had been frustrated by the death of your son and grand son;and that you therefore revoke the dispositionof the property as made in that paper and declare that it is to be distributed (in the will) as you then direct: I believe that Mrs.Frederick White's family would not have a brilliant prospectbefore them,if they undertook to secure your son's share under the present paper.

With this I returntha copy of the paper,which you left with me for examination.

Believe me as ever ,

Most sincerely yuors,

Francis M. Burdick.

The Honorable George H. Cobb,

Watertown, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

I am asked to write to you regarding Mr. George G. Bogert who, as I understand it, desires to take some place in your office and I do so not as a perfunctory matter but as a pleasure in rendering a service to a most worthy and promising young man.

Mr. Bogert is widely and most honorably known throughout this University. He first attracted my attention as a speaker in one elected speaker on all debate and oratorical stages and on two intercollegiate debate teams against Columbia University. He was editor of the 1906 Class Book; manager of the Cornell Era, 1905 and 1906; class orator 1906; president of the Cosmopolitant Club, 1907 and 1908; member of one of the most important senior honorary societies and is assistant to Prof. Hull in American History, ~~and~~ holding the place through the years 1907 and 1908.

082256

His power of work is shown in the fact that he has earned about thirty-five hundred dollars while in college during six years.

His qualities are of the solid, substantial sort though he has decided literary ability. On inquiring of some of our leading professors and students, I find that he is very widely respected. In person and manner he is manly of the public debates, when he showed himself profound in thought and admirable in the whole presentation of his subject.

He was graduated in the regular Arts Course last year and will, doubtless, graduate from the Law Course next year. During something over a year he was secretary to President Schurman and throughout his whole course, as I understand it, he has supported not only himself but his sister who is a student in Sage Collge connected with this institution.

He entered here as the holder of one of the State Scholarships and then took, in addition, a University Scholarship, both scholarships being competitive. In his junior year he was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa, which means that he stood within the first third of his very large class. He was and pleasing. I consider him as one of our best men and have no hesitation in saying that I know of very few young men whose prospects seem to be as good as his.

I send this letter direct to you for the reason that having had to look over the recommendations for candidates for positions in this University during twenty years and to decide upon nominating candidates to professorships, etc., I have learned to prefer those which came directly to me.

I remain, dear sir,

Very respectfully yours,

I hope to write a paper on "Patriotism as an Instrument for Moral Instruction in the Public School" to be read before the Religious Education Association at the Convention in Washington, February. I hope to need your own interest & expressions along that line. If you have any clippings of your utterances along that line I should be grateful if you could send me them.

Secretary Root has given me a very interesting account of your plan to encourage the study of commerce in our state institutions and agricultural schools, and he suggests that perhaps you might permit me to write something about it for publication. I shall be greatly obliged if you will do so and send me the material.

Perhaps you have not seen the bill I enclose concerning a similar plan for education in engineering. It is inspired by Professor Goss and Professor Breckenridge of the University of Illinois.

Hoping to hear from you favorably, I am, with great respect,

Your obedient servant, William E. Curtis.

Honorable Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

Dear Mr. White;-

In accordance with your instructions by telephone this morning, I mailed to the First National Bank of Ithaca at 11:30 A.M. a New York draft for One Thousand Dollars to be placed to the credit of your account. I trust same will be with the bank in good time for your needs.

In your letter under date of 2nd. ultimo you state you purchased 200 shares of Reading at 75. Did you pay for this stock out of your funds at Ithaca National Bank. If so, it will be necessary to credit this account on your books with the amount paid. Your letter states that you bought the stock through the Ithaca Trust Company.

Hoping I may have the pleasure of a visit from you during New Year's week as you stated this morning, and wishing yourelf and Mrs. White a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

Frank J. Barrett

FORWARDING THE FOLLOWING PUBLIC MEASURES:

Additional legislation for the reorganization of the American Consular Service according to the following principal provisions:

1. Removal of the service from the sphere of political influence by enactment of the "merit" system of examination, appointment and promotion of consuls.
2. Creation of an Examining Board, with examination scale of 80 to 100.
3. Minimum and maximum age limit of twenty-one and forty years respectively, for admission to the service.
4. Consuls to be familiar with one modern language other than English, and possess a knowledge of the natural, industrial and commercial resources and the commerce of the United States, especially with reference to the possibilities of increasing and extending the trade of the United States with foreign countries to which they are accredited.
5. Tenure of office to continue only during efficiency and conduct of the highest grade.
6. Complete Americanization.
7. As between candidates of equal merit, proportional representation of all the states and territories in the consular service.
8. A reasonable retiring pension for consular officials, under certain limitations with reference to age, grade, length and efficiency of service.

Preservation of all laws and enactment of additional laws necessary for the prevention or punishment of conspiracy and mob violence. Opposing all measures against the peace and welfare of the people.

Commercial reciprocity with foreign nations, as a measure for trade expansion, and general recognition and practice of reciprocity as a principle, but not to such degree as will insufficiently protect our industries.

Six-year, one-term for the President of the United States—making the Chief Executive ineligible for re-election.

Reclamation, by the United States Government, of the arid and semi-arid public lands through irrigation and conservation of water supply, thereby rendering arable, lands sufficient for the subsistence of 50,000,000 people, and sale of such reclaimed lands by the government, in small farms, to home builders only.

Repeal or modification of the Desert Land Act, Timber and Stone Act and Commutation Clause of the Homestead Act.

Systematic conservation and reproduction of American forests, for the perpetuity of our water-courses and our industries; to benefit the home builders; to restore and preserve the natural beauty of the landscapes, and to create more healthful conditions for the people.

GOOD ROADS—Better common highways from the farms to the mills and markets of the country.

Creation of a comprehensive system of navigable inland water-ways by the commonwealth and the nation.

American ships, American-built, American-manned, for American commerce.

A GREATER NAVY—Alike for protection and as a preventive of war.

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, New York.

My dear Sir:-

I am greatly obliged for your valued letter of the 21st inst., with copy of your excellent address before the Smithsonian Institution.

You have clearly contrasted the inestimable value of our Diplomatic Service with the miserable accommodations provided for our ministers by the Government, and that is precisely what this League will show to our lawgivers at Washington.

We are gathering up, here and there, the threads of argument to make a case that the Congress will hardly refuse to consider seriously.

Our Vice-President, Mr. Alexander H. Revell, recently spent several months in London and Continental Europe; making an investigation of our embassy quarters in some of the more important capitals. He became so impressed with the inferiority of the housing of our representatives, as compared with those of other nations, that he brought the matter before the League for action.

The purpose is to frame a bill, compile a literature on the measure, and push the proposed reform to a conclusion.

I took the Liberty recently, with your permission, of dedicating a little work of mine to you. The book was a modest one and possibly I was somewhat pretentious in my desire to do myself the honor and pleasure of dedicating it to you. I have asked the publishers to send you a copy and trust they can already done so.

Please accept my best wishes for the Holidays and believe me as ever

My Dear Grandfather,

I wish you a very merry Christmas. I am out here at Sandusky, spending my Christmas vacation of three weeks. Have had good skating for the last three days, but we had rain last night, and now the ice is too soft. My father has just bought a Winton automobile, in which I have been spending a good deal of my time, but the roads are in such an awful condition that it isn't worth while to take it out to-day. Had a nice visit with Aunt Anne just before I came out here. She seems a lot better, and walked down town when I was there. I understand you and Andrew expect to take a two months trip abroad. Please tell me when you intend to start in your next letter. Please give my love to Aunt Helen & Karin.

Affectionately your grandson,

Arthur C. Newberry.

Dear Mrs Andrew.

Your letters have been received. I handed Father the one in which you described your experience attending Mr. Dr. Gill's funeral.

I am very glad that you are coming over soon. Father gets out a little now but has not been down to the office. He looks first rate. His trouble is, I think, mostly nervous.

We entirely agree with you that Andrew Dewhurst is out of danger. It is hard to be sick away from home & those who love you.

I am deeply interested in the political situation. It seems to me that the matter of most importance in connection with the approaching presidential campaign. I think Roosevelt's policies should be vindicated. Of course, the wolves are determined to prevent that but I think we will thwart them. I regret that Pres. Roosevelt gave comfort to his enemies in a recent speech in New York.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas & many of them I remain,

Faithfully yours
Andrew.

Honorable Andrew D. White,

My Dear Mr. White;-

I hasten to withdraw and correct my inquiry written to you under date of 24th. inst. concerning the purchase of Reading 1st. preferred and payment therefor. I now recollect and find that it is so entered on the books that this stock was paid for by a draft on the United States Trust Co. of New York. My impression that it was not paid for came to me through your inquiry as to whether or not we had received any evidence of this purchase, and caused me to think that same was to be paid through Ithaca. Mr. Andrew S. White, upon inquiry, informed me that he was quite sure he received the two hundred shares and placed

Dear Dr.: My Milner was printed in 1853 by Wm. Lloyd & Co., Baltimore. In his introduction Mr. Milner says the book was written in 1801-2; but the introduction is dated 1818. My quotation is from Letter 49 "On Religious Persecution" p. 306. The sentence follows a prayer from Tertullian against resorting to force in inculcating religion. It is the only sentence omitted. I enclose it in full in pencil. If you find what the "canon law" was, at either of the above dates, kindly inform me.

I am glad your splendid book is traveling over the world.

Dear Sir:-

We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 21st inst., addressed to our Mr. Boas, and beg to say that we have reserved the excellent, outside, single stateroom #101, on our steamship "HAMBURG", sailing February 15th, 1908, to Italy. We shall quote a special price of $100.

If, at the time of sailing, one of the larger double rooms on the Promenade Deck, near #2 and 3 should remain vacant, we shall be pleased to place it at the disposal of your grandson. We enclose a plan of the vessel, showing the location of the above rooms.

We trust the above will be satisfactory, and remain,

Your good letter recd and I promise you faithfully I shall not in any way go beyond my Drs restrictions as to diet. They have already begun to fatten me up with creamed ambreads etc. and I have been sitting up in the Corridor in my wheel chair. As to the trip abroad I do not see how I can afford it, but will talk it over with you in Ithaca. Would suggest Calafornia as a possible substitute dont attempt to hold state room for me if this involves any difficulty

My dear White:

As I am about to enclose to you the announcement of the Class of Cobb' decease, which you probably saw in the Times of Dec. 16, I have before me your note of Nov. 11, saying that you believe that either Cobb or I will be the last survivor of our 322 fifteen.

So you note when "Bill" Hudson passed away so suddenly, that you "had thought he would live to bury us all."

Cobb had aged perceptibly in ning the last two years. I sat in company with this class when I saw him last in September.

I spent two days in Worcester, and went to hear Davies' last preach at All Saints'. There was that in his voice and manner which reminded me of his father.

I hope still that your attention, long ago expressed, to let the Outlook have something from your pen, is still within the bounds of practicability.

Wishing you a happy New Year, and a number of such, I am as always

Sincerely yours,

YALE '53

CLASSMATES:

Since WAITE passed away, last July, no further breach occurred in our ranks until December 15, when COIT was called to follow him.

Since 1883 he had been in the service of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society as its Secretary and chief executive until quite recently, when he exchanged that office for the less arduous duties of Treasurer. On his way to a "Homeland Rally" at the Congregational Church in Winchester, which was to be addressed by his successor in the Secretaryship, he became faint, and was assisted to his home. He lay down upon a sofa saying that he was cold, and while his children were administering a stimulant, he became unconscious, and in a few moments expired. In February next he would have completed his seventy-sixth year.

In College days COIT was a general favorite. His quiet manliness, staunch integrity, and solid good sense inspired respect, and his genial comradeship made lifelong friends. During the last quarter-century his influence was felt throughout Massachusetts in a work remote from public notice, but at the basis of public welfare—the Americanizing and evangelizing of the polyglot immigrant population, now largely supplanting the native stock in the old Puritan Commonwealth. Thus both in character and activity he exemplified the spirit of Yale, and realized its founders' aim, to rear men for the service of the Church and State. The ideal of domestic felicity was realized in his hillside home at beautiful Winchester amid the trees, where he dwelt with the wife of his youth and the partner of his labors, with the homes of his children on either hand. Thus enviable in life, he was enviable also in his peaceful translation to the home eternal.

One-fourth of our number now survive him—27 of 108.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES M. WHITON,
Secretary.

The Twenty-Third Annual Meeting of the American Historical Association will be held in Madison, Friday, Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday, December 27, 28, 30, 31, 1907.

The American Economic Association, the American Political Science Association, the American Sociological Society, and the American Association for Labor Legislation will hold their meetings at the same time and place.

It is hoped that reduced railway rates will be granted; but it is not possible at the present time to make definite announcements. Full announcements and instructions will be given with the later edition of this programme.

The headquarters of the associations will be at the University Club, in the neighborhood of the campus of the University of Wisconsin. The arrangements for the entertainment of the Association are in the hands of the University of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin State Historical Society, acting jointly.

As the hotels are situated a mile from the University, the local committee has made arrangements to provide for the majority of the members of the associations in dormitories and fraternity houses. The rate per day, including board and room (American plan), will be $2.50, if a single room is desired; and $2.25 for those willing to share a room with another member. Practically all double rooms have two beds. Members desiring to room together, or to be assigned to any particular fraternity house, will, so far as possible, be accommodated, provided they inform the committee sufficiently in advance. It is confidently expected that all who attend will be comfortably cared for.

Some members may prefer the hotels; the following have been notified of the meeting of the associations, and will be in readiness to receive guests: The Park Hotel ($3 and upwards per day); the Capitol House ($2.50 and upwards per day); the Avenue Hotel ($2 and upwards per day); and the Sherlock ($2 per day). All are on the American plan.

Opportunities have been arranged for the members of all the associations to meet together socially on at least two occasions. Details as to the various entertainments will be announced fully in the final programme.

Programmes of the American Economic Association and of the American Association for Labor Legislation may be obtained from Professor Winthrop M. Daniels, Princeton, N. J.; of the American Political Science Association, from Professor W. W. Willoughby, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.; and of the American Sociological Society, from Professor C. W. A. Veditz, George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

Correspondence concerning local arrangements should be addressed to the secretary of the local committee, Dr. Reuben G. Thwaites, Madison, Wis.

For the convenience of the local committee, every member is earnestly requested to fill out and mail the enclosed postal card as promptly as possible.

ORDER OF EXERCISES

Persons not members of the Association will be cordially welcome to the sessions.

Dear Mr. White;-

Your letter of yesterday received. You have by this time received my letter written you yesterday, which makes this matter of Reading purchase clear. You bought it through the Trust Company at Ithaca with a draft on United States Trust Co. of New York, amounting to $7525.35 in all. The balance $2878.82 was drawn and placed to your credit at Trust & Deposit of Onon. These two amounts balanced your credit of $10,000 and interest on same at the United States Trust Co. of New York.

Wishing you a Happy New Year, I beg to remain,

JOHN W. HOYT, Chairman.

THE VICTORIA, WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 27, 1907.

My dear Ambassador:

But for conditions which need not be mentioned in detail, further than that the Chief Justice did not report, and that Mr. Straus kept the Appeal in his hands five days without finding time to read it, yet promising each day to do so), coupled with the unexpected going home by Senators Frye and Beveridge, who were to handle it in the Senate, the paper did not get introduced before the adjournment for the holidays.

The disappointment was lessened by the assurance of some Senators and Ex-Senators that it would be just as well, or better, to have the Appeal offered after the holidays.

Entre nous, there are unhappy signs that Straus is "under the thumb" of His Majesty, & is a little sorry that I asked him to show his hand. Another proof that high moral courage is hardly a prevailing virtue.

With kind regards for both yourself & Mrs. White

My Dear Sir – Your kind letter of the 19th- furnishing me the use part of a private letter in a circular as to my book came duly to hand – I confess I hardly thought you would publicly approve a work of so little literary worth, and it certainly shows what a big hearted and noble man you are –

Your Autobiography also came a few days later – They are two fine books indeed – You thought I would not find time to read them – I have already read the first vol, and a part of the second – I will finish that to morrow (Sunday) It is better and more entertaining than any preaching that can be had here – I enjoy that kind of a book, you can see the men of whom we have read, get a glimpse of their very selves

And then to your ease and grace fulness in writing is quite remarkable - For aught I can see you rank with Parkman, John Fiske and Dr Lyman Abbott in culture, ease and grace of composition -
Indeed, in diction and beauty of composition I think your Autobiography quite excels your Warfare of Science with Theology -
I was in Cornell from 1869 to 1871 and have not been back there since - I am ashamed of myself. My class, '73, held reunions every five years, but they had lost me and I did not know of them till the one held in 1903 when I was unable to go -
I read your comments on the early Boys with great interest as I remember for quite a number of them, all the while when reading hoping the next one would be Prof Wm Channing Russell and when I did not find him in the list you can imagine my disappointment and sorrow - I shut the book and said to myself, How can this be, Nothing said of that grand old Roman. Disappointed I turned to the index. Yes, there is his name after all - So he is not forgotten I said - I turned to the page and read what you say of him and I compare and must say I was again disappointed - I looked upon him as a great and able man - I admired him, even loved him - About half the class did not like him and some hated him, but that made no difference with me - Half the class loved him and I was one of them - He was kind to me as he was to all who took an interest in his lectures and tried to learn - He was the first to open said nothing about the coming of Christ - world - He got his great Bible, with a vast amount of marginal notes and gave me quite a lecture on its history, how it was got together & which was all new to me and exceedingly interesting - Grand old man, I hope to

My dear President White :

May I inquire whether the chimes will be in place by Commencement time ? In as much as we are to celebrate the 40th Anniversary of the University at that time, it would seem to me very important that we have the chimes at that time if possible, as so many of the old students would miss them. It would be a fine opportunity to bring them before the Alumni body.

I sincerely hope you will plan to be in Ithaca at that time as it will be a great disappointment to your host of friends among the Alumni if you are not here in June.

Dear Grandfather:

You said something in one of your letters about my going to Atlantic City. This does not especially attract me at this time of year and I think I shall come direct to Ithaca. It may be the 13th or 14 however, as they are going to keep me here a few days longer. I am up, fully dressed, and eating 3 meals a day, - walking a little besides, and to-day I walked up and down outside for 10 minutes. Am doing nicely.

This is the way I feel about the trip to Europe: I want to be back here by the 2nd week in April - that is over 3 months from now - which would give me a scant four weeks abroad. I never felt particularly good on a liner - there was always a temptation to overeat and walking the deck, pretty poor exercise. What I would like most of all to do is to go to California about the time you sail and spend a month about Los Angeles and Pasadena, playing tennis, riding, and getting myself in really good shape physically. I have a very good friend and classmate in Los Angeles whom I have often wished to see. This will give me opportunity to stop in Sandusky and make one or two changes in the estate of which I am ~~trustee~~, — changes which should have been made before. Shall also try to stop a day or two in La Fayette either going or coming. Now if you think you had better give up stateroom, perhaps we had better do so. I shall be in New York and do everything I can to make your sailing easy with regard to trunks etc.

The doctor here approves of California and the life I would lead there. The trip is easy, - 3 days from Chicago - and I want to stop over a day and see the grand canon of the Colorado in Arizona.

I expect a visit from Arthur next week on his way back to school. As I want to write a few lines to Aunt Emily, I shall stop now. Shall soon be able to thank Aunt Helen and Karin in person for the handsome books which they both sent.

~~Affectionately~~,
Andrew W. Drewberry.

This is wishing you a Happy New Year.

My dear Mrs. White -

In the name of the trustees of the Powers Library, I wish to thank you for your generous gift to us of your autobiography which we have been wanting for some time, but for which we have been longing in vain. Our small appropriation from the town does not enable us to buy many expensive books and so we are doubly grateful to you for sending these to us. The only fault we have to find is that you did not make them autograph copies and we are wondering if you would not send us your signature in such a form that we can put it in the books.

I apologize that your gift has been unacknowledged so long since its receipt, but the rush and hurry of the Christmas season must be my only apology- I trust that if you are ever near Ithaca you will pay our library a visit and see for yourself what Dr. Powers beneficence has done for us here. We should like to think that you would extend your interest to us a little and to the little town in which you once spent a short time. Thanking you again, as a great-niece of Dr. Powers, and as president of the board of trustees of the Library, I am most cordially yours,

Hon. Andrew D. White,
Ithaka, New York.

Dear Sir:-

Allow me hereby to introduce to you Mr. S. Takahashi, Professor of International Law at the Imperial University at Tokyo, Japan.

A short time ago, Mr. A. Kahn, a lofty minded French citizen, who has no business interests whatever in Japan, put at the disposal of the Japanese Government the sum of one hundred thousand francs, payable in three equal yearly instalments. To be used for the following purpose: Commission every year two representative Japanese to visit America and Europe in order first to make themselves familiar with conditions there, and next to acquaint people there with conditions in Japan. In order better to harmonize the east and the west.

Mr. Takahashi, and his colleague Mr. M. Anezaki, Professor of the Science of Religion (Comparative Religion) at the same University are the appointee for the present year.

Mr. Takahashi, after his arrival at Seattle with the Steamer from Japan, came to Portland and was here on the 3rd. of November at the celebration of the Mikado's birthday. Since he has been at San Francisco and now he is about to leave for Los Angeles, in order to study the citrusfruit industry in Southern California, and Japanese labor in connection therewith.

After that he will come to Ithaka, in order to study Cornell University. That is - I feel thoroughly satisfied - the University for Japanese. By reason of the broad and deep foundation you have laid, the absence of race and creed prejudice and of snabbishness. And just as much Mr. Takahashi wants to converse with you. In you is blended harmoniously the depth of European and the breadth of American culture, and he needs you as a beaconlight. Mr. Takahashi will spend some days at Los Angeles and travelling through New Mexico, Texas, is going to Washington, D. C. where he will be staying some weeks. So he will be in New York about the middle of February, next.

I feel intensely interested in Japan. The Caucasian (so-called) myself included, is in the habit of falling below his ideal, but the Japanese rises above it. The Japanese humanity is of a superior kind. I experince this every day. With the Caucasian I have often been disappointed, by not meeting with what I fancied ~~that~~ might be expected. But with Japanese I constantly come across sterling qualities not anticipated. They are a knightly race. And a higher form of Christianity than those forms now known cannot fail, it seems, to evolve in Japan.

I expect to go there for ending my days in congenial surrounding, and if there be truth in devashan, to be reindividualized.

With highest regards,

Yours sincerely,

My dear Sir:-

I take very great pleasure in forwarding to your address today copy of a volume which has just been received from the publishers entitled "Memorial of the Celebration of the Carnegie Institute."

The aim has been to preserve in a noble and dignified volume a complete record of an event which is worthy to be remembered among the educational celebrations of America, and I feel sure you will be glad to have a copy of it for your library.

Will you kindly acknowledge receipt.

Dear Mr. White

I have just written to Mrs. White and told her how delighted and surprised I was to receive that package of books from Ithaca, and I wish to thank you very specially for the book on great Portraits. It fills a long felt want for information which will be so convenient by at hand now. The fact that I am all day long among books which I may only glance at but not read makes me long for books of my own that I can pick up at will. To be a dry librarian and to be so eager to read as I am is quite a trial occasionally. - I have been reading Green's History of England the last weeks, but am only through volume one; it is dreadful to think of the things I have known once and quite forgotten; I do think one ought to know English history, and Green is such delightful reading. I have also Stubbs lectures on English history on hand to read along side of Green and find them both most fascinating. Have you read Saintsbury's account of the literature of the 19th century; some parts are dreadfully shallow, at least in the german part, and I am sure he does not know all he talks about; for it sounds not a bit convincing. He does not love Nord-

[1-2-05]

Deutschland, that is easy to perceive. I have just read Bannister Fletcher's speech on Deutsche Baukunst in the Carnegie Institute Memoirs of 1907. The way he speaks about the Neuen Dom is quite amusing. - I did not know he had built Friedrichshof. That is wonderful for such a young man.

Thanking you most sincerely for the beautiful book and with very best wishes for a happy and joyous New Year

W.H.Sage, Esq.

Menand's Road

Albany, N.Y

My dear Mr Sage

Several years ago you made a suggestion to me which I carried out and for which I have always felt grateful, and trust you will allow me to make one in return.

The Chapel here which your father established and which you have extended and decorated has become a most beautiful monument to both your father and mother, also to ~~the~~ members of your immediate family

There are college chapels in the country larger and more sumptuous, but by common consent of all visitors, including ~~a great majority of~~ our University preachers, there is no other which by its tasteful beauty so strongly appeals to the best feelings of all who come to us.

But beautiful as it is it lacks one essential thing to ~~make it complete~~ a monument, and that thing is permanency

It is a noble monument as it is;- it is very solidly built, its walls are thick and well buttressed, all its window traceries and mullions are of stone, it stands apart from all other buildings and is in every respect well protected; but it needs just one thing and that is fire proof floors

082303

[1-2-08]

The present floorsof the main room and the singers' gallery in the wing ~~is~~ are of pine and by long exposure to steam heat has become as dry as tinder,- ready at any moment to take fire from the ashes of a workman's pipe, or from a match carelessly flung down by a singer after lighting his cigar on leaving an evening rehearsal.

The cost of replacing the pine floors with permanent ones of solid concrete or brick arches between iron beams would not be very great and would at once change the character of the whole monument making it virtualy imperishable

Westminster Hall in spite of its wooden ceiling and roof is as good today as it was eight hundred years ago, and in every part of Europe are churches built six hundred years ago which are perfectly preserved owing to the fact that their floors are fire proof.

If these improvements are carried out, the Chapel inclosing the remains of your father and mother and memorials to them and other members of your family, forming a monument to them, will be as perfect hundreds of years hence as it is today.

Should you feel interested in the matter, I will procure and forward to you cateful estimates, costs, etc.

I have spoken of this to no other person, but it has occured to me, while sitting Sunday after Sunday amidst these beautiful surroundings, what a catastrophe it would be, if from lack of suitable floors the whole should be swept away.

With best wishes of this and all good seasons to Mrs Sage yourself and your family, I remain

Very Sincerely Yours

Dear Grandfather:

I am afraid I have kept you from a very pleasant trip abroad. There is no cause to be anxious about me now. I am back at my rooms again, which are kept warm and comfortable, and I walk some out of doors. You might sail as early as Jan. 15th if you could only get passage.

The one day I spent in Charleston, S.C. was cold and dreary. In the mountains about Camden I believe the temperature is more uniform, but it doesn't compare with California.

Just let me tell you how easy it will be for you to get from Ithaca to Los Angeles. You take the Lehigh Valley from Ithaca at six in the evening, getting into a thru sleeper which lands you in the Dearborn St. station, Chicago at two the next afternoon. There is no baggage transfer in Chicago, as you leave on the Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe. from the same station at eight in the evening, reaching Los Angeles exactly three days later. This particular train is one of the finest on the continent, comprising compartment cars, buffet and library, dining, and observation car. All kinds of stop overs are allowed and you can return by any other route. I would meet you and Aunt Helen and Karin on your arrival at Chicago and attend to everything for you. Have asked the Santa Fe people to send you circulars.

If you still think the Southern trip best I shall accompany you as you suggest. We can talk it all over in another week which will leave plenty of time to decide.

Affectionately,
Andrew W. Newberry.

Address me Colonial Hotel.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Berkeley, January 6, 1908.

My dear Dr. White:-

I surely shall give all my support to the bill to which your letter of December the twenty-first refers. You know we have a school of commerce; it has proved itself distinctly worth while. It seems to appeal to the very best class of students in the University. We began by making its standard high. I think it is as difficult to get a degree in the College of Commerce as in any of the colleges of the University, perhaps more difficult. The graduates of the college are much in demand, particularly for work in the Orient. We have sent a great many men into Vice Consulates and Interpreterships etc.

As far as the Japanese and Chinese are concerned we have a great many of them already in attendance at the University. The Chinese are highly desirable students; the Japanese are good, bad, and indifferent. The new element among us is the Hindu; he seeks after agriculture and irrigation more than after commerce or law. Still we have one in law.

Our cordial New Year's greetings to you and yours.

Ever faithfully yours,

Benj. I. Wheeler.

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Dear Sir:

I desire, on behalf of the Current Literature Scholarship Fund, to extend to you an invitation to serve upon the Scholarship Committee of this Fund.

The Current Literature Scholarship Fund is designed to afford ambitious young men and women dependent on their own resources an opportunity to secure a college education. It possesses special advantages over other forms of work in which a student may engage, since this Fund makes it possible for him to secure assurance of a complete four year course in any institution he may choose, and to do this before he begins his college course.

The work the student does is to canvass for subscriptions for CURRENT LITERATURE; but to enable him to do this advantageously, we give him a Certificate of Endorsement, signed by men locally prominent in his community. To give this Certificate additional weight, we are requesting men of national distinction to serve as a Scholarship Committee, whose names will appear as such on the Certificate. There will be no labor or financial responsibility attached to membership on this committee, though we shall expect to keep each member posted on the progress of the work and the college records of those who take advantage of the opportunity.

Dr. John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York, Dr. Elgin R. L. Gould ,president of the New Netherland Bank, New York City and City Chamberlain under Mayor Low, and Dr. Ethelbert D. Warfield, president of Lafayette College have consented to accept our invitation. We desire from six to ten men in this connection. In addition to yourself, invitations have been extended to Gen. Horace Porter, Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson and Justice John M. Harlan. I shall act as secretary of the Scholarship Committee.

Trusting that we may have your co-operation to the extent indicated,

Very respectfully,
Edward J. Wheeler,

Dear Sir.-

Great man that you are no doubt there is human nature enough in you to enjoy being appreciated. Well that is the point of this letter. I have read as many as three times I think, your "Warefare of Science with Theology" and accept its teachings; also have just now finished the reading of your "Autobiography" which to me has been at once the most interesting and the most instructive work of its kind I have ever read not excepting even the Life and Letters of Thos. H. Huxley.

Maybe you will wonder at all this when I tell you that I am a little past 80 years of age and have spent 54 years of that time in the active work of the Methodist Ministry, having been for many years somewhat of a leader in Minnesota Methodism. For the past six years

[1-10-08]

2 I [illegible] lived in beautiful Pasadena, holding a supernumerary
1 relation to the N. Minnesota Conference.

Now did I come to where I am? First about 20 years ago I traveled in Palestine. Their Dragomen lying opened my eyes. I said how long have they been lying this way here. Next I read all that was said & written at the "Congress of Religions" in Chicago. This I followed by a course of nearly a year's reading of books on Comparative Religion. About this time I became thoroughly convinced of the truth of Evolution, which Archeology also contributing to the same result, made it plain to me that we knew nothing about the first man except that he was a brute-savage. Then followed the reading of your "Warefare" and I have not wavered since. I have not left my Church or the Ministry nor been much persecuted, but that has been because while not preaching anything contrary to what I believe I have given the people what they enjoyed much better than the old stuff without carrying at all a chip on my shoulders. Indeed I have been very much honored. Last year (1906 I mean) was the 50th Anniversary of the organization of the Minnesota Conference. The two Minnesota Conferences did me the honor to invite me to preach the Sermon on that occasion. The two

Conferences met in joint session in St. Paul, Oct. 5th, 1906, the German Methodist Conference meeting with them the three Conferences with the three bishops presiding being present the German was read by another, myself being sick at the time. Maybe you will not think me too presuming if I send you a copy of the German. Possibly you may be interested in some parts of the latter half of it. You may not be surprised if I tell you that Chaplain McCabe, one of the bishops present, went up into the air when it was read but was soon quieted to attack it in my absence and then on a sick bed. But the best men present stood by me which was partly because through my teaching and influence our preachers in Minnesota are generally quite liberal.

I want to impose upon your good nature just enough to say that during the past ten years I have done a good deal of writing along liberal lines and also considerable writing. I have manuscript as nearly ready for the press as I know how to make it for a vol. of at least 400 pages and even now beginning the 5th Chaps. of another work. I may not publish anything may not find a publisher, but what I feel the need of most now is a thoroughly competent critic.

But it is more than time for me to close this already too long letter. But I can not do so without saying that it seems to me yours has been a wonderfully useful life, and how one man in a brief lifetime can accomplish all that you have done is more than I can understand. I have often been credited with having lived a strenuous life and as being "some things"; but ah me, mine as compared with yours, is as the moon eclipsed by the sun.

Hoping that you may yet have many years of health happiness and usefulness,

I subscribe myself,

Sincerely yours,

J. F. Chaffee

P.S. During these recent years I have had four articles along liberal lines published in the Methodist Review, but my last one on Theism I guess stampeded the editor Dr. Kelley, as recently he returned the manuscript to me.

My very dear Sir:

I must thank you for your courteous letter herewith enclosed bill, which I can this week draft "with my own consciousness!"

I was stimulated by the pure artistic design of the State Army that is now nearing completion in this city, also the elaborate canal bridges on Genesee Street, and the almost equally handsome one that is to be erected on North Salina St.— to suggest a State Art Commission, such as now exists probably in every State in the Union architecture of the State Capitol at Albany, and many other notable Soldiers' Monument, etc.

I must be grateful for your criticism of this bill,— which is intended to only give an estimate of the actual working schedule of such a State Art Commission.

Ew. Excellenz:-

Wollen mir gütigst gestatten meinen derzeit eingesandten Seminar-Plan für amerikanische Leherinnen der deutschen Sprache und Literatur hierdurch wieder in Erinnerung zu bringen. Die weitere Entwicklung desselben hat durch verschiedene Krankheitsperioden eine längere Unterbrechung erfahren. Nachdem die Angelegenheit seit drei Monaten in Fluss gekommen, wird mir nachdrücklich geraten und zwar von bedeutenden Persönlichkeiten wie Professoren H. Münsterberg, F. G. Peabody, J. T. Hatfield u. a. m. das Institut zuerst auf eine geschäftliche Basis zu gründen anstatt wie früher geplant auf philanthropische Unterstützung, da die Notwendigkeit mehr und mehr hervortritt den "secondary schools" systematischer geschulte Lehrkrafte für den deutschen Unterricht zu sichern wodurch das deutsche Department der Colleges einen grösseren Spielraum für seine Lehrthätigkeit bekäme. In hiesigen pädagogischen Kreisen die uneingeschränkt das geplante Institut mit grosser Freude begrüssen glaubt man des weiteren, dass dasselbe philanthropische Unterstützung geniessen dürfte, wenn es nur erst ins Leben getreten sei. Auch in Berlin wird mein Unternehmen mit grösster Sympathie begrüsst. Ich erlaube mir die Namen einiger Freunde und einige Gutachten über meine Arbeit etc. auzufügen, des weiteren die Anfrage ob Ew. Excellenz sich geneigt finden dürften mir die ausserordentliche Bevorzugung zu ertèilen auch Ew. Excellenz Namen unter die meiner Patrons einreihen zu dürfen. January 10, 1908

Dr. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

I started to call you up on the 'phone this morning but discovered I could ~~better~~ place before you the matters in my mind by letter better than otherwise. I therefore cancelled the call.

The enclosed newspaper clipping will, I am sure, greatly interest you. This organ for the Ocean Grove Auditorium will be designed principally to lead congregations of ten or twelve thousand people. Its power will be enormous. It will also contain a wealth of orchestral and solo effects, making it a magnificent instrument for the numerous recitals to be given upon it. We are sure that you will feel we are open to congratulations on the receipt of this order, particularly since the prospect came to us originally instead of our seeking it.

You will also be glad to know, I am sure, that our organ at St. James Church, 71st St. and Madison Ave., New York, which is now almost completed, is going to be truly magnificent. It has already interested the organ world of New York through the flattering enthusiasm displayed by those who have heard it in its thus far unfinished condition. My Uncle, Mr. Samuel L. Clemens, is going to try and help us get Mr. Carnegie to go to St. James with him for a private hearing of the instrument. We know that Mr. Carnegie is interested in Mr. Hope-Jones reputation and anxious to hear some of his work. The thought has occurred to the writer that it might be possible for us to have you in this party. I mentioned to Mr. Clemens this possibility and he said to urge you to join him and Mr. Carnegie on that day. There will be nothing public about it. Of course we are desirous of securing Mr. Carnegie's interest and patronage.

Our factory is full of profitable work now for months ahead and we feel very thankful and pleased that this is the case at a time when some other of the leading manufacturers are either shut down or working on reduced time, and the wellknown Hutchinson-Votey concern of Boston has made an assignment. Everything points to our receiving orders for some magnificent cathedral and church organs during the present year, But we find we need more capital than we thought we should and we are anxious to place a few thousand dollars of our stock within the next few months if possible.

Another promising outlook for assistance on the part of an organ enthuiast comes through the fact that Mr. Schwab, the former president of the United States Steel Corporation, is building in his house at this time a large instrument. His private organist, Mr. Archer Gibson (of the Brick Church, Fifth Ave.) is trying to help him incorporate in this instrument all the latest improvements in organ mechanism and ideas . One of these, the grouping of the stops in tone families is one of Mr. Hope-Jones inventions, though at present not covered by a patent. Mr. Gibson cheerfully acknowledges the source of this idea, and indeed solicits Mr. Hope-Jones' aid in connection with Hope-Jones ideas , patented and unpatented, in bringing this new organ of Mr. Schwab's up to the owners ambition; viz. that it should be the most advanced and perfect instrument yet devised. We hope through this fact to secure Mr. Schwab's interest in our work, and should we do so there would of course be no question of our securing the comparative small amount of financial backing that we need.

If it is not too much to ask may I request that you advise us whether you know Mr. Schwab to the extent of being able to give Mr. Hope-Jones a letter of introduction to him, or if not, whether you can suggest a source for such a letter. Mr. Hope-Jones can of course receive an introduction through the organist mentioned, but it seems well for some reasons for him also to have a personal introduction from some one of Mr. Schwab's respected acquaintances or friends.

This is a long letter. I hope I have not wearied you, but we know your interest in our success is keen, and we like to keep you posted as to our progress. If you will let me know just when you will be in New York so that I may see whether the visit of Mr. Clemens and Mr. Carnegie can be postponed until that date, and also whether you can help us in the matter of reaching Mr. Schwab, it will be the greatest possible favor.

Hoping that you are well and enjoying Ithaca covered by its snow-fall, I beg to remain,

Yours very sincerely,

Jervis Langdon

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

WASHINGTON, D.C.

January 11, 1908.

Dear Doctor:

I have before me a printed copy of the "appeal in behalf of the proposed University of the United States", signed by yourself and others and introduced by Senator Frye in the Senate January 7, 1908.

In view of the inability to secure a new charter for a national university, is it not possible for all who are interested in this movement to come together and agree upon such organization or reorganization of The George Washington University as will be mutually satisfactory? To show you our disposition in this matter I enclose a copy of remarks made by me before the National Association of State Universities on November nineteenth last, I should be glad to have you read this and favor me with your views regarding the proposition. While the substance of these remarks had been talked over, I was not advised beforehand that I should be called upon to speak to the Association, of which of course I am not a member, and therefore the remarks were impromptu. They were taken down by a reporter and the stenographic copy sent to me, for correction, by President Fellows, the Secretary of the Association, to be placed in the minutes of their meeting and I have kept a copy for my own files.

I believe Doctor Gilman was right when he said that there could be no great university in Washington without uniting the forces actively at work for such a university. Such union of effort can only be secured by the few who are sincerely in earnest in this matter coming together, comparing views, and reaching a conclusion upon which all can agree. No one else possesses as you do the breadth of mind, experience and influence necessary for leadership in such a movement. Will you not therefore consider the matter and consent to bring about such a conference?

[1-11-08]

With kindest regards and wishing you a very happy New Year, I am,

Sincerely yours,

My dear Mr. White:

A number of prominent citizens of our City, including Messrs. Andrew Carnegie, A. B. Hepburn, Seth Low, J. P. Morgan, and Albert Shaw, besides many others, have formed a Committee for the purpose of arranging a complimentry dinner to Professor Rudolph Leonhard and Professor John W. Burgess.

The dinner is to be given here on January 28th next at the Hotel Astor, and Bishop Henry C. Potter has kindly consented to preside at the same.

As Secretary of the Committee, I write to inquire on its behalf, whether you could not do them the great favor of being one of the speakers at the banquet. The Committee desires to make as notable an occasion of the dinner as possible, as it will be the first time that there has been a public acknowledgment and return of the many courtesies extended in German court and official circles to the American professors lecturing at German universities, and feel that on account of your international reputation, it would be especially appropriate if you were one of the speakers.

We trust, therefore, that you will find it possible to attend the dinner on January 28th next, and that we may have the

Honorable Andrew D. White,

I t h a c a, N. Y.

My dear uncle:-

I was so much impressed by the good things you said concerning the trip to the West Indies, that I am thinking seriously of taking it.

I wonder if you could be induced to take the trip over again, and then join your family at Summerville about the first of March! If the boat stops at Charleston, it would only be a few hours run, up to that place.

Will you be good enough to give me any pointers which suggest themselves to you, concerning the trip?

If it were possible for you to go, I would make my plans to leave whenever it suited your convenience.

Most affectionately yours,

Dear Sir:

I am much interested in the letter from William E. Curtis published in the Chicago Record-Herald Saturday morning in which he gives information regarding your proposed bill for "Acquiring and Diffusing among the People of the United States Useful and Practical Information on Methods of Conudcting Foreign Business." For some time back it has been my earnest desire that we should offer in some department of Northwestern University, perhaps in the Academy of which I am Principal, elementary and somewhat advanced courses in commercial science and these studies would include the study of foreign business and the methods of improving our relations with foreign countries. I was not aware when I had the idea in mind that you had worked the matter out in definite form. I may say, however, that I had been stimulated somewhat in my contemplation of the subject by a recent reading of your Autobiography, which by the way gave me very much pleasure as well as information.

I should very greatly appreciate the favor of three or four copies of your proposed bill if they are in printed form and may be easily sent by mail. If there is a charge for these I should be glad to make immediate remittance.

It has seemed to me that in a city like Chicago there should be established as soon as possible a school of commerce which should do just the things that you propose. Being almost the geographical as well as the commercial center of the country this city ought to have a large influence in such education. I shall do what I can to stimulate the development of such an institution or of such a department in this University.

My dear Ambassador White:

Both of your kind notes respecting the set of your autobiography, in which you have been so good as to place an inscription, are received.

I am extremely sorry for the trouble I have caused in the matter, and am doubly grateful for the pains that you have taken.

I have written to my home at Hastings to have the volumes re-shipped to me at once, and when I receive them will write you further in the matter.

I have no doubt that I shall be delighted with the sentiment you have placed there, and am sorry that pressure of work prevents my writing more fully to you this morning.

Believe me, my dear Ambassador White,

Very faithfully yours,

My dear Mr. White:-

I have considered the question as to the legal effect and operation of the tripartite agreement of August 18th, 1890.

I am of opinion

(1). that the instrument is a complete and effectual declaration of trust of personal property whereby your three children immediately upon its execution, became the equitable owners of the property therein enumerated, subject to the reservation of the income for your own use during your life.

(2) By force of the agreement you retained the legal title to the property, not as owner in a strict sense, but as trustee for the children (except as to the income) and the children became the equitable and beneficial owners, which equitable ownership will, on your death, be changed into an absolute, legal title in them, or their representatives, to the property, according to their several interests.

(3), The equitable title vested in the children by the agreement was a several property right in each child to the extent of one-third of the property, which, on the death of a child before your death, would pass by his or her will, or, if there was no will, to his or her next of kin, under the statute of distribution. In the case of your daughter, Ruth, special provisions are made which ~~would govern~~ the devolution of her share.

WILLIAM P. GOODELLE,
CHARLES W. ANDREWS,
WILLIAM H. HARDING,
HON. CHARLES ANDREWS,
COUNSEL.

Goodelle, Andrews & Harding,

Syracuse, New York.

(4) The trust created by the agreement is irrevocable. This intention is specifically declared, and, as no power of revocation is reserved (except in case the contemplated marriage was not solemnized) the settlement cannot be disturbed except by the joint agreement of the parties interested. It cannot be revoked because of a change of circumstance (not provided for in the instrument itself) which might now seem to make another disposition of the property desirable.

(5) On the death of your son, his share, if he left no will, went as indicated therein; if he died intestate it vested in his widow and son under the statute of distributions. On the son's death, the mother inherited his property. On Mrs. Newberry.s death, her share took the same course, that is to say, her next of kin, in the absence of a will, succeeded to her interest.

I think the foregoing covers the question in your mind.

Faithfully yours,

Hon. A. D. White, L L. D.

President Andrew D. White,
Cornell University,
Ithaca, New York.

My dear President White:

After many vexatious delays I have at last been able to secure a design of a memorial tablet to Dr. Hale which is satisfactory both to Dr. Hayes and Prof. Vail. I had the half tone cut which I am sending you made in preference to having a photograph taken. This tablet is to stand in a niche in Coxe Hall and it promises to be a very handsome one. Its cost is to be $815.

Our first move is to send a circular letter signed by yourself, Dr. Hayes, Bishop Paret, and Prof. Vail to all the Alumni of Hobart College who came in touch with Pres. Hale, and I am going to ask you if you would kindly write such a letter as you think fit. If you will then send it to me I shall have it typewritten and sent together with a copy of the cut to the above named gentlemen. We want to have the money in at the very latest by the first of April, as the designer in New York assures me he will need more than two months to complete his work.

Hoping that I haven't asked too much of you in requesting you to write the letter of appeal, and with best wishes for the New Year, believe me, as always,

Respectfully yours,

me most kindly to her.
I suppose Andrew is (or has been) with you for this past week, & I hope to have him here to visit us later, and it will be so nice to see him again.

I am trying to get the parlor warm enough to practice, so in the meantime, I am doing numerous other things, en attendant. There is very little of interest to write about here, as there is nothing except the Com. School going on just now. Of course the lectures go on just the same, but there is nothing particularly new to write about. Little Mary H. is beginning to take kindly to reading & spelling, and she prints very well, the words which are given to her. Even little Helen Grace likes to spell, too.

Well, I am going out to mail this. Ernest and I are anticipating with pleasure, the arrival of the clock & chest, and have a place already for them.

Now please write soon, Papa dear, Ever so much love from us all to you, and kindest regards to Helen & Karin

Affectionately Ruth. [Forty]

Hon. Andrew D. White,

My dear Uncle:

Enclosed herewith you will find the clipping from the Syracuse Post Standard of January 16th which tells about the decision of Judge Andrews in the action of the Arthur Realty Company against Andrew D. White. The article does not give an entirely accurate statement of the decision, nor does it fully convey an exact idea of the Judge's holding.

The general results that the court arrives at are as follows:

1st. That the Arthur Realty Company and Andrew D. White are tenants in common of the strip of land both owning an undivided one-half interest in the fee.

2nd. That since the year 1889 the plaintiff should have contributed one-half to the taxes and assessments levied by the city, county and state upon said property and that in the future it should bear one-half of such charges.

3rd. That the defendant could have persued some other course than to have permitted the property to have been sold for taxes and that therefore and on account of the relations existing the defendant purchased at the tax sale and holds the interest of the plaintiff to-day as trustee and that therefore said interest must be conveyed to said plaintiff upon the payment by said plaintiff of one-half the taxes and assessments levied upon the property since 1889.

I have not computed as yet just what this means in dollars and cents, but it covers all sewer taxes, paving taxes, sprinkling taxes as well as city, county and state taxes with interest and I would say that this means that they will have to pay you something like $500. but this may be $200. more or less than the exact sum. I will notify you as soon as the exact sum is computed. It will be quite a task to get at it.

The costs of the action up to date you will have to pay. They will be about $50. I believe therefore that there will be something like $450. coming to you out of the suit and which can be applied upon your bills for legal services.

You will see that two important points are now settled:

1st. That the title to an undivided one-half interest in the roadway is vested in yourself and not in the heirs of Hamilton S. White:

2nd. That in the future you are bound to pay one-half of the taxes and assessments levied thereon instead of all.

Now regarding my opinion of the situation and what it will be best to do I have this to say. A reading of the judge's opinion convinces me that he had to go to great length to reach the conclusion that he has reached. Apparently believing that it would be equitable to restore the interests which the plaintiff

ANDREW S. WHITE
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

had lost he has determined to risk the opinion that he has handed down and is willing to let the higher courts reverse him if he is wrong. You will remember that the opinion of Judge Andrews does not become part of the common law of the state, therefore, he can afford to be more heedless in passing upon the question than the Appellate Division could well be because their decision becomes part of the common law of the state and must be in harmony with precedents. I believe, therefore, that it would be wise to carry the case to the Appellate Division. This would not delay a final determination of the suit more than a few months. The last time before this that I was before Judge Andrews he promptly decided against me, and I, as promptly reversed him by a unanimous opinion of the Appellate Division. I believe that we have just as good a chance here. I don't think the Judge has been equitable in his decision. In view of these facts:

1st, that we notify Mr. Warner of what we intended to do:

2nd, we notified the Syracuse Herald Co. to whom he referred us as the party who should pay the taxes if any were collectible and further in view of the fact that we told the Syracuse Herald that the property was to be sold for taxes and that we intended to buy it in.

3rd, In view of the fact that the records show that your interest in the roadway was in doubt in two separate ways: First, it was not clear that the title to the fee was not in the heirs of Hamilton White and it was not clear that your interest was not an easement.

In view of these facts it is difficult to see any equitable reason for your assuming that you did own an undivided one-half interest in the fee as well as assuming to act as guardian for Charles M. Warner.

You will remember that there is a suit still pending by the Kingsley heirs against you to compel you to reconvey to them the interests which your tax deeds cut off. They hold an easement from Bigelow, but under the decision of the court have no right to use your one-half. This amounts to excluding them from the use of the roadway and leaves you and the Arthur Realty Company in sole possession.

All this, of course, is by inference. The Kingsley heirs will probably not accept the decision of Judge Andrews as law without its being passed upon by the Appellate Division. It would, therefore, ~~have~~ for that reason be perhaps cheaper to settle the issues in the case at bar now that they can be so quickly settled than to drop that case and commence the fight over with the Kingsley heirs.

Trusting that you will write me your views on the situation, I remain,

Faithfully yours,

Andrew.

Dear Sir :-

We ask your assistance in heading off the attempt now being made in Congress to compel the Census Bureau to recruit the large additional clerical force necessary in the compilation of the Census of 1910 on a patronage basis, instead of from the civil service lists. If carried through it will discredit the accuracy of the census, increase the expense, prolong the work and saddle on the government service for the rest of their lives a large body of employees of inferior capacity. This statement is more than borne out by the testimony of former Directors of the Census.

The President has considered the matter of sufficient importance to make it the subject of a special message to Congress, a copy of which is enclosed. Please read it.

Will you not, on receipt of this letter, write to your Congressmen and the Senators from your State, protesting against those clauses in the Census Bill, (H.R.7597, introduced by Mr. Crumpacker), which provide for the appointment of the additional clerical force through noncompetitive, instead of through competitive, examination, and get others to do the same. If enough members hear from their constituents on this point, an amendment to the Bill requiring that the force should be recruited from the civil service lists, can be secured. But unless prompt action is taken, in all probability the patronage will be so divided among Republican and Democratic members,- as was done in the last Census-, that the bill will slide through practically without opposition.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

January 17, 1908.

My dear President White:

No one could fail to be exceedingly gratified by a letter such as that which you were so kind as to write on January 13. I thank you cordially, and am very glad that you found any pleasure in reading the address of which you speak. I heartily wish, however, that we might have had you with us at Madison. They treated us with the most abundant and thoughtful hospitality and made the meeting a great success.

I appreciate highly your suggestion that I should proceed with further writing along the same lines as that of this address. In certain directions I should like to do this. For the present, however, I find myself quite engrossed, and my time wholly occupied, with the interesting work of this department in the Carnegie Institution and with such things as I have to do in connection with some of the committees of the American Historical Association.

Believe me, with the highest regard and the most cordial thanks,

AMERICAN CONSULAR SERVICE.

BRISTOL,
January 17th, 1908.

Andrew D. White, Ll.D., Esq.,
Cornell University,
Ithaca, New York.

My dear Dr. White:

An English gentleman, long a resident of Bristol, has just called with a parchment manuscript signed by William Penn. The manuscript is quite legible, but being very busy at the moment, I did not attempt to read it through.

According to the gentleman's statement it is an agreement beginning, "This identure, etc., etc., between Penn and John Berkeley, dated October 11th, 1681, (in the thirty-third year of the reign of King Charles VI) and refers to the sale or an agreement to sell 250 acres of land for £5.

The manuscript is on a piece of parchment some 23 inches long and 16 inches wide; the parchment is turned up at the lower side and the seal is appended by a strip of parchment; the signature of Penn is on the lower outside, or turned up, margin and is very plain. I compared it with the re-production in Fiske's "History of the United States" and it appeared to be indentically the same. In general I would say that the manuscript is in a very fair condition.

Now I am writing to you, particularly in your interest and that of Cornell University, and partly in the interest of the gentleman who wishes to sell it for his mother. He states that it was shewn to the Curator of the Bristol Museum, and that that gentleman expressed the hope that it would not be taken out of Bristol, declined to fix a value upon it, and recommended that it should be put up at auction; and in more or less of an off-hand manner offered to give £5 for it as a minimum, possibly also a maximum, as far as I know. This gentleman's brother thereupon said that he would give £5 rather than have it go out of the family. The gentleman says that they need the money, and would prefer to have the cash rather than hold the manuscript, and that he came to me believing that I could assist him to get the highest price possible, or help him in learning what the real value of the document is.

My thoughts went at once toward my own alma mater*, and toward you and Cornell, and ~~particularly~~ partly because of my direct and personal obligation to you for your assistance in putting me where I am to-day, and ~~particularly~~ partly because of what I know you have done for the study of history in America, and the historical library of Cornell, I have decided to place the matter exclusively before you for the present.

The gentleman has given me his word that he will not sell the manuscript until I hear from you; in turn, I have stated that Cornell University might desire to have the manuscript sent over for present inspection, in which case I assumed that the University would bear all the expense of shipping and registering. As a matter of fact he is not sure that his mother would consent to send the manuscript away, but very likely she would if there were a good prospect of your purchasing it. Perhaps it could be photographed here, instead of sending it for inspection

I have told the gentleman of your past official life, and assured him that whatever offer might come through you would be the fairest and most generous that anyone would be likely to make.

Will you please advise me as soon as possible whether you are interested and desire to negotiate for the purpose of the deed? Of course I shall be most happy to do anything I can for you or Cornell in the matter.

Believe me, my dear Dr. White,

Very faithfully yours,

J. Perry Worden

My Dear Mr. White;-

In reply to your letter of the 13th. inst., and which I overlooked answering in connection with recent letter sent to you, I beg to inform you that the Arthur Realty Co. about which you inquire was the plaintiff in the Strong property alley, and the expenses in December report were paid to a stenographer for drawing answer. I enclosed a clipping containing decision of Judge Andrews on this matter.

In the matter of the Sigma Phi Association, I am pleased to be able to say that the full interest on these bonds was duly paid; forty-five dollars being collected in January and a similar amount in July. If you will refer to your small report book given you at the time of your last visit here.under the heading of bonds in the income column you will find Sigma Phi Ass'n is credited with $90.00, being 5% on $1800, your holding in said Ass'n.

Trusting you will find the Sigma Phi matter as I state, and hoping you may continue to enjoy your good health, I beg to remain,

New York, January 18, 1908.

My dear Mr. White:

Since the early '70s I and my son in succession have been the legal advisers to our common friend Dr. Tiffany, and for the most part we have attended to all his business as well as legal affairs.

Last winter, with the assistance of my son, Dr. Tiffany while staying at the Union League Club made a will with the precision and minuteness which were characteristic of him. The will in outline makes substantial bequests to his sisters-in-law the Misses Wheeler; $35,000 to Mrs. and Miss Schwab; $75,000 in trust for life to his two nieces the Misses Tiffany, with the remainder over to the Episcopal School for Deaconesses, and $125,000 immediately to that School, - my son, who is an executor and trustee,at Dr. Tiffany's explicit request receives $10,000 in lieu of commissions in both capacities, which is slightly above what commissions would be at the legal rate.

Two of his nephews, with whom he had little to do in his lifetime, have seen fit to contest the will on the grounds that he was mentally incompetent to make a will and that undue influence was exercised upon him by Miss Laura Wheeler, the Rev. William R. Huntington, and my son, to which influence he showed himself susceptible.

The trial will occur in Litchfield County, Connecticut,

before a jury some time in February, the exact date being not yet disclosed. It is important on our side of the case to show that, irrespective of the facts, Dr. Tiffany's mental make-up was such that by no possibility could anyone overcome his will without convincing his judgment; or, in other words, that any influence could be exerted upon him which was not wholly of a reasonable character. We have a number of clerical witnesses, including Bishop Greer and Dr. Huntington, who are anxious to testify upon this point. We need, however, lay witnesses to the same general effect and, in especial, your own testimony as his life-long intimate and as his constant companion for the two months immediately following the making of the will, With the credit to which a jury would give to your reputation and conspicuous probity, this would be of the greatest service.

I write to inquire if you would be willing to put yourself to the inconvenience of the journey, which would probably require you to be absent from your home for a day or two. I should not think of doing so but for the fact that the charges are of such a nature as to involve the reputation of Dr. Huntington and our own professional integrity - to say nothing of the attempt to divert Dr. Tiffany's fortune (estimated between $400,000 and $450,000) from the purposes to which he devoted it. It has always been my view that the wishes expressed in a will properly executed by a competent testator must be observed for moral reasons which have nothing to do with the law or with the benefit which any particular person derives under the will.

I should be greatly obliged if you can let me have an early answer, in which event my son will take up with you more in detail the situation which I have outlined. He will be glad to do so either by letter or to call upon you at Ithaca, or to confer with you here in case you happen to be coming to New York at an early day. He thinks it would probably be sufficient if, being advised that you would come, he could meet you at the place of trial a few hours in advance, and discuss the situation with you on the spot.

I ought to add that the large sum given to the School for Deaconesses was intended by Dr. Tiffany for a memorial to his wife, as explicitly appears in the language of the will.

THE VICTORIA, WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 18, 1908.

My ever dear Ambassador:

Immediately on your expression of a preference for some term other than "crown corporate," under the heading "Distinctive features," embraced in our Appeal to the Senate, I laid hands on the only copy then in my possession, and rubbed out the words "Crown and," inserting the word fittingly. But a hurrying sign from Senator F. to the effect that he was ready to introduce the Appeal that very morning led to my Secretary's placing in his hand the copy that had been borrowed and did not contain the correction. Moreover, the proof was not sent to me, so that I did not discover the oversight until some 200 copies, according to the printer in charge, had been run off.

But I stopped the press, & made this change, as also 6 others. The printer was quite willing to open the way for a Senator who was pressing something, & I had no difficulty in making the change. Besides which I was still hoping for authority to add Gen. Porter's name to the signatures. Have not heard from him, however, and shall wait no longer. If at home, be behaves strangely.

With best regards for Mrs. W., Affectionately yours.

Dear Sir

Please accept thanks for your very kind letter of the 7th oof this month , just receved . I have immediately forwarded copy to Professor Takabashi , of my leetr to whom Please find copy enclosed . I am exceedingly anxious for the Professor to meet you and to have a thorough converastion . The result , I hope , will be that Cornell do become T H E University for japan .

I greatly rejoice in your sympathy with and appreciation of Japan . I am calcualting on ending my days there . Japanese humanity to me seems superior to so-called " Caucasian " . The commonest Japanes has sme attributes elsewhere found only among the higher ranks .

It is perhaps scarcely good taste in one same letter to thank you for a favor (to wit your kind responsiveness in the Takabashi matter) and to ask you for another favor . But I have much at heart the publication of the encoosed article on the " Worldwide significance of Japan " . Your name is an " Open sesame " everywhere . Could you kindly get it published in some leading periodical ? And have a few copies mailed to me ? I have in vain tried the New York Post and the Independent , to both which I hade introductions . I do not think either the apper best suited , but I could reach no other .

With the highest regard and with best wishes

yours sincerely and respectfully

Dear Sir

Please find enclosed copy of letter from Mr Andrew D . White , just received . Mr Aiba tells me that on the I4th of this m onth you left San Francisco for Fresno , bound for Los Angeles ; but that you gave no address . It strikes me that at Fresno you may have called on Revd T . Kitazawa ; amd that , in case you no longer b e at Fresno , he may know where to reach you . Therefdr I herewith address you to his care : and Mr Aiba will ask him to forward .

So soon as I shall know where and how to reach you , I shall send you the original letter .

Allow me to recommend that, so soon as the enclosed copy shall have reacbed you , you do by wire communicate with Mr White , and arrange a meeting with him . It is all important thtt you do meet him , as he can more profitably inform you than any one else you may see anywhere . To meet him i s well worth a trip for the express p urpose , even if you should have to come back to the Pacific Coast . Go direct from Fresno or Los Angeles , and return . Taking Arizona and Texas later ; and Washington and New York after that . It will make only the difference of a few dollars railroadfare . If Mr White should go to some southern State you might perhaps meet him there ; but the Mediterranean , I fear , may be out of your reach . Besi des , the sooner and quicker you meet him the better ; as he can give you the best introductions , and call your attention to points and persons in regions you still have to visit . Independent of meeting Mr White , you should spend at least a week at Cornell Ubiversity . Your cornerstine however has to be Mr White .

Always yours sincerely (signed) D. J. Rockwood

My dear Mr White

In your letter of the 7th of this month, announcing yesterday, you speak of your hope going to some southern State for the balance of the winter. And you mention the unpleasantness of Charleston

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

SC as one of the points under consideration. Evidently you are in quest of a more genial climate. The term „climate", according to the definition in the Kosmos, means a great deal more than only temperature and precipitation; one usually does the same under consid. Did you ever visit San Antonio, Texas, and the S. Joseph Springs — a few miles from there? dry atmosphere — at least rather dry, — and in winter a moderate temperature, although, may say cool. Finally, in contradistinction the thermometer may scale of Fahrenheit, mark zero. Physical existence in winter is more enjoyable at San Antonio than at Charleston. There is no grand scenery anywhere in Texas, but the neighborhood of the St Joseph Springs is pretty.—

I don't think that anywhere in our U.S. one can find climatic conditions so pleasant as in the Mediterranean countries, Madeira or the Islands in the Pacific, save Southern California, though even

My dear Mr. White:

Just a brief supplement to my letter of Saturday.

Were there any persons on your expedition to the Panama Canal and other places last spring, politicians or others, who knew Dr. Tiffany well enough to have a definite opinion as to his mental and temperamental characteristics and whose standing or public reputation is of such a kind that they would make valuable witnesses for us on the trial? For instance, there was Mr. Cannon, of whom Dr. Tiffany gave me a number of anecdotes. Of course Mr. Cannon could not leave Washington, but perhaps there are others whose names would be known to the jury who could be secured.

You and I share the general loss over the death of Mr. Stedman. It is a fine thing for him that he went in this way, but he leaves a tremendous gap and many friends grieve deeply for the loss of a noble soul and an affectionate friend.

But the world is poorer for his passing. I feel it keenly.

He and I have talked together repeatedly on the mystery of God & man, of life and death. He understands it now, since he has "crost the bar."

Dear Doctor White:

I have your esteemed favor of the fourteenth instant and sincerely thank you for it. It confirms some things you had already said to me and puts more clearly than ever before your position in reference to a University in Washington. In this particular it aids me very much in determining the course we shall pursue in this University. I trust it will not be objectionable to you if I read this letter to some of my associates, upon whom, with me, rests the responsibility of determining the policy of the University. If we can secure sufficient money to purchase a site upon which we can place two or three buildings which are promised we shall feel that we are on a secure foundation. We are planning our work for next year with a view of concentrating our efforts so far as new work is concerned, upon the College of the Political Sciences and some graduate work in agriculture. These two fields are unoccupied and seem peculiarly to belong to Washington. As soon as these plans are definitely outlined I should like the privilege of sending them to you for criticism.

Thanking you for your kindness, and with great esteem, I am,

My Dear Mr. White;-

Your kind letter of yesterday received. I regret exceedingly that a misunderstanding should occur in the matter of the list of stocks and bonds you requested. I am sending you herewith a list of stocks and bonds "outside the trust" with book value and par value thereof, as requested in your letter of yesterday, and hope it is what you expect.

For the past thirty years, it has been the practice in this office when purchasing securities to carry the securities on the books at their face value, and charge profit and loss account with a gain or loss as the case might be according whether the securities were purchased above or below par. As a consequence of this practice, there is not according to the books any difference between the book value and par value of the securities. This practice is neither theoretically nor practically correct, as you do not know without searching back to the time of purchase, just what your stocks cost, and there are false charges of profit and loss carried to the profit and loss account, when in fact there was no gain or loss. I have discontinued doing this since I came to your office, and you will note in the late purchases, Atchison, Reading and etc. that the book value is the purchase price of same.

Again expressing my regret for the misunderstanding,

Honorable Andrew D. White,

Dear Uncle Andrew:-

Your letter of the 20th Inst., is at hand.

It is true that, on the whole, the decision is reasonable. In view of the fact, however, that the suit with the Kingsley heirs is still pending, and in view of the fact that the minutes of the trial are so brief, and that it would, therefore, be so inexpensive to appeal the case, it would be better to do so.

In 1855, Edward T. Richardson deeded an undivided one-half interest in the roadway to Joshua G. Bigelow. The Arthur Realty Company claims that upon the death of said Bigelow, his heirs deeded to it that interest, but the records show that during his life time said Bigelow deeded an interest in his interest to Lyman F. Hall. We have contended that he deeded all of the right, title and interest which he received from Richardson to Hall; in any event, whatever Hall got, you now own. Later on, Bigelow also deeded an interest which, under the decision of Judge Andrews, would seem to be an easement, to Hiram J. Kingsley, whose heirs now hold said interest.

Your tax-deeds cut off the interests of said Kingsleys, as they do the interest of the Arthur Realty Company, but it is still in doubt what interest, if any, the Kingsleys have in the roadway to-day, and it is still in doubt what, if any, portion of the taxes they should bear.

The factthat your exact interests in this roadway have not been clear up to the present, and the fact that we seem to be getting all that we thought we owned, should not lead us into the mistake of giving to others, property that we actually do own.

I would like to do a complete and thorough job, now that the matter is so well along, and will require only a short time longer to thoroughly settle. I think you had better let me have my own way, to some extent, regarding the details of the case, in view of the fact that I have made a deep study of it.

There is no question in the minds of either Mr. Lewis, or myself, that the decision of Judge Andrews is unjust in some respects, still I would not advise appealing if I could see how the whole case could be finally concluded without an appeal. I am anxious to conclude the case at the earliest possible moment, and have always sought a settlement, but if the other fellow is arbitrary, it may be necessary to appeal the case, or to allow the work to stop unfinished and uncertain.

Cornell Club of Rochester

January 22nd, 1908.

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

My dear Dr. White:-

Under the provisions of its constitution you, as Ex-President of the University, are an honorary member of the Cornell Club of Rochester.

It gives me great pleasure to advise you thereof, and to request as a special favor that you present to the Club a photograph of yourself suitable for framing purposes. We desire to display upon the walls of the club rooms pictures of all honorary members of the Club. They are the President, and all living Ex-Presidents of the University, the representative of the family of Ezra Cornell on the University Board of Trustees, and the President of that Board.

Yours very truly,

John H. Agate

Secretary.

My dear Mr. White;

I thank you for your kind letter of the 20th in answer to mine of the 18th. I think if the trial comes on this winter it will certainly be early enough not to interfere with your departure for Italy. I cannot estimate as yet how soon thetrial will occur, or how much time it will consume, and I shall have to be advised by counsel before I can be certain on either point, but it seems a safe assumption that your own share in it wpuld not consume more than a day at the place of trial.

As soon as we have some definite information about the on-coming of the case my son will either call upon you at Ithaca or communicate with you in full.

Faithfully yours,

Dear Sir, I am told that you are now in the United States, and living in Ithaca. I hope you have not yet forgotten me. If I knew that you are for certain in Ithaca I should like very much to visit you on my way East. You will have noticed that some of my predictions about Russia have been fulfilled since we met. Now also Russia is going blindly towards its doom. But Poland is growing, the Poles are multiplying as no other nation and they are steadily going towards their independence.

Awaiting your kind reply if this reaches you I am

A Bill

for an Act

To create a National University at the seat of the Federal Government.

1. There shall be established at the seat of the Federal Government of the United States an institution of higher learning to be known as the National University of the United States.

2. The purpose of said University shall be three-fold:

(1) To promote the advance of Science Pure and Applied, and of the Liberal and Fine Arts by original investigation and research, and such other means as may appear suitable to the purpose in view.

(2) To provide for the higher instruction and training of men and women for posts of importance and responsibility in the public service of State or Nation and for the practice of such callings and professions as may require for their worthy pursuit a higher training.

(3) To cooperate with the Scientific Departments of the Federal government, with the Colleges of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts founded upon the proceeds of the Federal Land Grant of 1862; with the State Universities; and with other institutions of higher learning.

3. No student shall be admitted to the University unless he shall have obtained the degree of Master of Science or of Arts from some institution of recognized standing; or shall have pursued a course of study equivalent to that required for such degrees.

4. The University shall confer no Academic degrees.

5. The University shall be governed and directed by a Board of Trustees in cooperation with an Advisory Council.

6. The Board of Trustees shall consist of the Commissioner of Education of the United States and twelve additional members appointed by the President of the United States for the term of twelve years. The appointed members shall be arranged in classes so that one member shall go out each year. The President of the United States may at any time remove any member of the Board for neglect of duty or malfeasance in office.

7. The Advisory Council shall consist of one representative from each State in the Union. The representative from each State shall be the President of the State University in case there be a State University in said State; if not, the Governor of the State may appoint a citizen of the State, learned and experienced in matters of education, to represent said State in the Advisory Council.

8. The Board of Trustees shall make all statutes, by-laws and general rules in accordance with which the affairs of the University shall be conducted.

But all such statutes, by-laws and general rules shall before going into effect be submitted to the Advisory Council for its consideration. If the Advisory Council shall by a majority vote of all the qualified members disapprove of any such statute, by-law or general rule, it shall not go into effect until it shall have been re-enacted by a two-thirds vote of the Board of Trustees.

Provided further, that if the Advisory Council shall take no action within six months after submission of such statute, by-law or general rule, the said statute, by-law or general rule shall go into effect.

Provided further, that the Advisory Council may at any time take up the consideration of such statute, by-law or general rule, and if it disapprove of the same, the said statute, etc., shall cease to be in effect from and after six months from the date of such action unless the Board of Trustees shall in the meantime have re-enacted such statute, etc., by a two-thirds vote.

And provided further, that in case the Advisory Council shall disapprove of any statute or other action of the Board of Trustees the said Board shall before taking final action in the premises give a formal hearing to a representative or representatives appointed by the Council for the purpose of presenting the matter to the consideration of the Board.

9. The Board of Trustees shall provide for the administration of the affairs of the University within the statutes thus enacted. It shall make all appointments and all assignment of funds. It shall issue all orders and instructions necessary to the management of the University.

It shall provide suitable grounds and buildings for the work of said University; but in no case shall it incur financial obligations in excess of actual appropriations by Congress, or of actual income from tuition, fees, endowments or gifts for special purposes.

The actual administration of the University shall be entrusted to properly qualified agents of the Board who shall be responsible to the Board for the performance of their duties.

The Board may delegate by statute to a President of the Uniuersity or to such separate faculties or other officers or employees as it may provide for, such functions in the administration of the University as may seem to it wise; and it may reassign such functions at any time. It may create such Boards or Commissions as in its judgment may best serve the interest of the institution and may abolish them at will.

But the Advisory Council may at any time protest against any order, vote, resolution, appointment, appropriation, or instruction made by the Board of Trustees. In such case, said order, vote, resolution, etc. shall stand suspended until the Board of Trustees shall by a two-thirds vote re-enact such order, etc.

10. The Advisory Council may at any time make recommendations to the Board of Trustees respecting any matter concerning the University, and it shall be the duty of the Board of Trustees to give formal consideration to all such recommendations and take such action in the premises as may seem to it good.

11. No member of the Board of Trustees or of the Advisory Council shall receive any pecuniary remuneration for his services as member of said Board of Trustees or Advisory Council; but the necessary expenses incurred by members in attendance upon meetings of said Board or Advisory Council shall be defrayed by the University.

12. The Board of Trustees and the Advisory Council shall elect their own officers and define their respective duties, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business.

13. The Board of Trustees shall meet in regular session four times each year, viz: On the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January, April, July and October. Special meetings may be called at any time by the chairman and shall be called by him on request of five members of said Board; one month's notice being given in case of all special meetings.

The Advisory Council shall hold two regular meetings in each year during or immediately following the regular meetings of the Board of Trustees in January and July. Special meetings may be called by the Board of Trustees; by the chairman of the Advisory Council, or upon the request of ten members of the Advisory Council; one month's notice of all special meetings being given.

14. The Board of Trustees may accept unconditional gifts, legacies, donations, etc., from private individuals for the benefit of the University; but no such gift, donation or legacy shall be accepted with any condition unless the same shall be approved by the Board of Trustees, the Advisory Council and the Congress of the United States.

15. The sum of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) is hereby appropriated for the uses of said University for the fiscal year 1908-09.

16. The Board of Trustees shall, as soon as the members shall have been appointed, proceed to organize under this Act and carry out the intent and purpose of the same.

My dear President White:

I enclose a copy of the appeal to the Alumni of Hobart College written by Dr. Hayes. We all feel here that your valuable initiative in this matter ought to be mentioned in the appeal. I suppose therefore that you would hardly care to sign the appeal. You have in fact more than signed it by having made the first contribution. We should like to have your approval of the appeal, however, and any suggestions which you may see fit to make.

Dear Mr. White :

Mr. Sackett writes me as follows:

"My dear Kerr :
"I did not at once answer your recent letter, enclosing a letter from Ex-President White, because I knew that there was no haste about the matter, especially as Dr. White was not to sail until Feb. 15.
"Now, however, that the next meeting of the Cornell Board of Trustees has been fixed for Feb. 22, I think we should arrange, in accordance with Dr. White's suggestion, for a meeting here in New York before he sails and endeavor definitely to dispose of the Charles E. Cornell matter. As both Dr. White and I are members of the Union League Club, perhaps that will be the most convenient place for meeting; but I shall be glad to accomodate myself to any time or place that you may arrange with Dr. White.
Yours very truly,"

I thus quote his suggestion and will be glad at your convenience to have word concerning the time you are likely to be in New York.

I appreciate very much your kindly expression regarding "Work Done No. 3".

Hoping that I may have the pleasure of seeing you ere long, I am the books came safely and in perfect condition; and while I leave it to the Trustees of the Library to express to you their appreciation of your gracious and generous gift, for myself in private, I thank you more than I can express. The value of a record of rare opportunities early improved, and rarely ever forgot, as a helpful and inspiring influence, can hardly be over estimated.

And it is very gratifying to me that my appeal to you has resulted to the Library as valuable an addition. In my writing you before I have learned that the house where Bishop Penn lived while teaching here is on the street leading from the Station, on the right hand side coming up the street and not far from the railway. Just by any remembrance or by passing there, and seeing you standing in the door a very young woman. You will be interested to know that the old St. Matthews Church, where Bishop Penn was buried, was taken down about ten years ago, and a new church built on the same site, Powers Library being across the street.
Back of the village, where you used to walk, is "Indian

Again thanking you on the part
Very cordially Yours

My dear Dr. White,-

Have received your letter of January 13 on my return yesterday from a Western trip, and would advise you that the financial affairs of the Chapter at Ithaca have not as yet been straightened out.

The wish expressed by Mr. Williams that I be made president of the Board of Trustees of the Chapter, will I think be carried out and completed, in legal manner, some time in the next three or four weeks. If you can wait that length of time, I will then be in position to make you a remittance covering the payment due on the bonds the last of July and also I shall take up with you the question of a final payment of them.

Thanking you for your indulgence, remain, with very kindest regards,

Yours sincerely,

ANDREW S. WHITE
SYRACUSE, N.Y.

January 24th, 1908.

Honorable Andrew D. White,
127 East Avenue,
Ithaca, N. Y.

Dear Uncle Andrew:-

Yesterday, I saw Mr. Sears, who represents the Kingsley heirs, and, also, Mr. Cowie, who represents the Arthur Realty Company, and a proposition of settlement was roughly worked out, The points agreed upon as a basis for negotiations were as follows:

1- That in consideration of your restoring to the Kingsley heirs, their right of way, you are to be given a right to use their West Wall as a party-wall.

The advantage to you in this would be to enable you, your successors or assigns, to support a structure over said alleyway, without interfering with the present dimensions of the alleyway.

2- That your title to the fee should be confirmed.

3- You to grant a right-of-way to the Arthur Realty Company, through said alleyway.

4- You to have the right to dig under and build over said alleyway, without interference from anyone, so long as you do not interfere with the alleyway as such.

I believe this settlement can be made by your agreeing to pay the taxes in the future, and by your giving up the arrears of taxes, which, the Court holds, must be paid to you.

Of course, in passing upon the wisdom of making a settlement, you must bear in mind that if the case is fought through, you might get the property free from all easements. Careful reading of the Judge's opinion makes it clear that the decision is not at all pleasing to either the Kingsleys or the Arthur Realty Company.

[1-24-08]

While I still urge you to place the responsibility entirely upon me, I trust you will state fully how the thing impresses you, so that I may have, all the time, your views clearly in my mind.

Faithfully yours,

Dear Uncle Andrew:-

The frame of mind which your letter of the 16th Inst. describes you to be in, quite accurately describes me. The fact is that I would much rather stay at home than to go away anywhere, and think perhaps I would be as well off, but the doctors advise me to the contrary.

I have been to Bermuda, and if I were to take a trip, I should want to see a new country .

Camden is a delightful little Southern town, to which many Northern people are beginning to go. Lola and Jessica Bruce are there now, at our suggestion.

We have been in the habit of stopping at a private house, or boarding house, but you would be better satisfied, I believe, at the Court Inn, which is a re-modeled Southern House. Horace has stopped there, and has found it extremely comfortable. There is a fine new hotel at Camden, where I understand Annie is going to stop, but, as I have said before, one of the other places would suit you better.

If you have never taken the Bermuda trip, that would undoubtedly be the thing for you, and there would be much more there to interest you, than you would find in Camden. If I had not already visited the Islands, I should be for joining your party.

Affectionately yours,

JOHN W. HOYT, Chairman

The Victoria, Washington, D. C. Jan. 26, 1908.

My dear Ambassador:

After another succession of prostrations, I have again rallied and am doing all I can to get ready for the next Congress, with good reason to hope for the completion of the U. S. U., whose president has lately been to see me with assurances of continued interest & purpose.

Sadly enough, my dreadful losses in the West, and my expenditures of several Thousands in the Ministerial service, with almost no help, have so reduced my resources that I am at last compelled to ask of my Colleagues in the Council small sums for a wide correspondence and a little printing. Even very small amounts will be gratefully received.

Doubtless you received a copy of "The Reports of Sub-committee on a National University", submitted to a meeting of university men, held at The U. S. U. in June last. Did it meet with your approval? If not, please indicate the changes deemed desirable, and as early as convenient, since we are to have another Meeting, for final action, during the next month — at which time, we shall count on your presence.

How I lament the sudden taking away of my dear old-time friend Senator Vilas! He had been deeply moved by my Appeal to the Senate and had written me, confessing that he was thinking of something for the University out of his millions.

Faithfully & admiringly yours. John W. Hoyt.

Wy dear Dr. White.

inclidium from nervous prostration - it seemed to bring a breath of broader things into the sick-room.

Do you remember my showing you the Dark Room, at the time Fiske passed away, and, your telling me that the incident or rather the rhyme beneath a certain picture was founded on fact?

The rhyme was,

"In business affairs 'tis a fault of the Dutch They give too little and take too much."

and you said that an English Statesman had written it during a debate over a treaty with the Dutch. I have forgotten the name and would very much like to have it again.

If you do not receive this letter in time I ugly hope to leave the 15th of February, any communication directed care of my Brothers, 1701 Prairie Ave. will be forwarded to me. We expect to stay a month in Honolulu - Mr. Gregory joins me in kindest regards

CLASSMATES:

How quickly STEDMAN has followed COIT to the ultimate appraisal of human worth, the newspapers have told you. His half-century record in 1903 requires only this brief supplement.

Last April he sent me this word: "For the first time in years I have taken up my writing again." After our semi-centennial year, in which he celebrated his golden wedding, severe illnesses and domestic bereavements—the death of his wife in 1905, and of his son in 1906—imposed a check on his activity. During 1907 he was engaged as energetically as an enfeebled heart permitted in fulfilling former literary contracts, and in carrying on his extensive correspondence, so heavy at times that he once exclaimed, "I believe this correspondence will kill me." During the last days he seemed to feel uncommonly well. On the 18th of January he worked on an article for The Century until luncheon at 3 o'clock, after which he went to the bath room. Heavy breathing heard from within shortly after caused alarm; the door had to be forced; he was found lifeless on the floor.

At his funeral on the 21st the Class was represented among his pall-bearers by Whiton; Catlin, Ives, Knevals, Weston, and Woodward were also in attendance. A laurel wreath inscribed, "FROM THE YALE CLASS OF 1853 TO THEIR POET-LAUREATE," was one among many. Numerous representatives of the literary world were there, and he himself in a manner was there, in his stanzas on The Undiscovered Country, sung at his wife's bier, and now, as he had desired, sung at his own, with a selection from his lines on The Protest of Faith, read by Dr. Henry van Dyke, who followed it with this poem, written for the occasion by himself:

O, quick to feel the lightest touch
  Of beauty or of truth,
Rich in the thoughtfulness of age,
  The hopefulness of youth,
The courage of the gentle heart,
  The wisdom of the pure,
The strength of finely tempered souls
  To labor and endure!

The blue of springtime in your eyes
  Was never quenched by pain,
And winter brought your head the crown
  Of snow without a stain.
The poet's mind, the prince's heart,
  You kept until the end,
Nor ever faltered in your work,
  Nor ever failed a friend.

You followed, through the quest of life,
  The light that shines above
The tumult and the toil of men,
  And shows us what to love.
Right loyal to the best you knew,
  Reality or dream,
You ran the race, you fought the fight,
  A follower of the Gleam.

We lay upon your well-earned grave
  The wreath of asphodel;
We speak above your peaceful face
  The tender words Fare well.
For well you fare, in God's good care,
  Somewhere within the blue,
And know, to-day, your dearest dreams
  Are true,—and true,—and true!

Dr. van Dyke's poem, and the following excerpts from Dr. Hamilton Wright Mabie's extended review in The Outlook of Stedman's character and work are quoted for their showing what a vacancy, as estimated by the most competent among his fellow-workers, has been made in American literary life by his premature death. Premature it must be called; for had he less lavishly expended his magnificent vitality, his sun had declined more slowly to its setting. Premature; for it is feared that his purposed volume of Reminiscences, with its chapter on life at Yale, must now be regretfully left among the things that might have been. To Yale some choice and rare treatises of his library have been filially bequeathed.

From The Outlook of February 1.

. . "No man of letters in this country has stood more consistently for the dignity and high traditions of his craft than he; and no man has given his work a finer flavor of scholarship, and imparted to it more generously that largeness of view, and quiet adjustment to the knowledge of the time in many departments, which are possible to the student alone. . . His work has had a substance and a continuity such as no other man has achieved who has suffered any division of his vital energy . . . Mr. Stedman faced his experiences and bore his burdens with a quiet heroism which not only inspired profound admiration, but touched his work with spiritual reality and dignity. . . He worked with a lavish prodigality of strength and care, a heroic persistency, an unfaltering courage quite beyond praise as a matter of character. . . If a single word can convey the essential quality of Mr. Stedman's work and of his personality, that word is vitality. . .

"Man of affairs, critic, poet, journalist, editor, Mr. Stedman found time for those affections, courtesies, charities, which endear a man to his fellows. . . All things considered, he was the most representative Man of Letters in the metropolis, as he was one of the foremost men of his time in the country."

Thus our most inspirational comrade has followed LEWIS, the most variously gifted, who went before him in May, 1904.

Sincerely yours,

JAMES M. WHITON,

January 27th, 1908.

Honorable Andrew D. White,
127 East Avenue,
I t h a c a, N. Y.

Dear Uncle Andrew:-

While I was reading your letter this morning, Mr. Cowie came into my office and told me that they would like to settle the case up, upon the lines sketched out in my last letter. I urged him to also offer to pay one-half of the back taxes and the costs of the action, for the reason that they were primarily to blame for the litigation in failing to pay their share of the taxes, and that it was no more than just that they should make those things good. He answered that, under the agreement, we were getting valuable property; that the Court held that they owned an undivided one-half interest in the fee, and that the proposed agreement contemplated their surrendering all of that estate above the first floor and under it; that we were acquiring very valuable property; and that he did not feel that they should pay the back taxes, which, with interest, amount to about $500.00. I have now reduced this figure to a certainty- that is about the sum they will have to pay you.

On the other hand, the costs that we would have to pay them, amount to $79.00. You would have a balance of about $400.00 coming to you.

It is very hard for me to agree to settle the case without they pay the costs and the back taxes, and I have a feeling that if we stand upon that ground they will come to our terms. The Arthur Realty Company has made a contract to transfer this property to the Post-Standard on the first of February, or the first week in February. Without this action is settled, they cannot do it. The Herald, which has, for many years, occupied the property of the plaintiff, has moved across the street into its own building, and the Post-Standard is anxious to move into the old Herald Building, which, you understand, is owned by the plaintiff with whom we are dealing. Without a settlement is effected, the whole transaction is apt to be hung up, and very valuable property stand vacant, it being adapted to the newspaper business would be hard to rent for anything else, and it would require a great deal of time and expense to fit it for anything else.

If I ~~owned the property~~ myself, I would hold out for the back taxes and costs. It seems to me that that is only asking what is fair; it is what we have contended for all along.

The proposal that you pay the taxes hereafter is a benefit to them, and it is a benefit to them to obtain a perpetual easement, instead of an undivided one-half interest in the fee, because the latter can be partitioned. The fee is valuable to you because you own the property adjoining, but they would be better off with an easement upon which they were not compelled to pay taxes, and which could not be disturbed by a partition action, or anything else. They could never build upon the strip, under Judge Andrews' decision, because you have an easement over their undivided one-half interest. Therefore, you see, they are giving up nothing of value to them. The proposition would be an awful good one for them, because, as I stated before, they would be getting a right of way that could not be disturbed in the future, free from taxes and assessments. Of course, you would be getting a valuable piece of property now in the air, over the alleyway. That space can be made to produce coin by building it up.

Trusting that you will reply promptly, giving me what you would advise as our ultimatum, the same to be subject, however, to my best judgment, I am,

Faithfully yours,

(ASW-H) Andrew

We can, however, take your testimony in this city as you pass through on your way to Europe, if you can give us a half day for that purpose and will be good enough to notify me in advance so that I can have the arrangements made, notify the other side, etc. It will be time enough if my son can have a talk with you here the night before your testimony is taken. At that time it will give me great pleasure if you could dine with me so that we can talk over the old days and the many of whom our dear friend Stedman is the last.

As you suggested, we have written to Congressman Sherman, who I believe will be willing to testify.

It afforded me great pleasure to send to the Psi-Upsilon Chapter at Cornell, by Express, the other day, a portrait of Prof. Willard Fiske, painted by his friend Herman Hartwick, of Munich, Bavaria. This portrait is one of Fiske in the latter days of his life and not as I knew him at Cornell.

Mr. Hartwick is considered one of the best portrait painters. If it is not asking too much of you, I wish you would drop over to the Chapter House and see that the boys place the portrait in a good light so as to show to the best advantage the face of dear old Fiske.

My dear Friend:

I am sending you herewith the Crumpacker bill and the message from the President respecting the manner of the selection of employees for the next census. I think there is no desire to violate the spirit or letter of the Civil Service laws, but there seems to be an impression that work of this character can be more expeditiously and efficiently performed by the selection of appointees having a prior experience in this particular line, rather than to make the selection from the Civil Service registers. When the tenth census was taken the employees were selected after a careful examination conducted by the Director of the Census.

As I say, there is no disposition to disregard the Civil Service laws. I will, however, be glad to bear your suggestions in mind when the matter comes up for determination in the House.

Yours very truly,

My dear Dr. White,-

I have received your letter of January 30 and thank you for writing me in regard to the payment which was made on the bonds of the Chapter held by you.

I greatly appreciate the condition of affairs which now exists at Ithaca and regret that on account of the illness of Mr. Williams, etc., that it was not possible to have the reorganization of the Board of Trustees some time during 1907.

I find on going into the matter of the incorporation of the Chapter, etc., that it was not carried out in a very satisfactory manner and the corporation never had any by-laws. It does not seem to have been organized in a very definite way and if I am to become responsible for property which amounts in value to $30,000.00 to $35,000.00 and to assume direction of the finances of the Chapter, it seems better judgment on my part to have everything put in correct legal form so that there may be no chance for criticism, etc. Therefore, I have canvassed withmy attorney all of the records which have been found since Mr. Williams' death and have drawn up a tentative set of by-laws which have been submitted to the younger men that Mr. Williams thought best to serve on the Board. Until this matter finally can be settled and my election as President of the Board finally carried out, I have no legal power or authority in connection with the Chapter and, therefore, could take no steps toward directing their expenditures.

The active Chapter are nothing more than tenants of the Sigma Phi Association of Cornell University and, therefore, the Board of Trustees has every power to direct the expenditures, etc., and I hope that within a month or two everything will be arranged satisfactorily so that we shall know exactly the status of affairs.

I greatly appreciate your kind interest in the matter and would assure you that we shall do our best to manage things properly.

Yours very sincerely,

My dear Dr. White:

I have not received an acknowledgement of my recent letter and since writing it have talked with the stenographers at the Holland House and the Manhattan to whom the letters with your name signed were dictated. They both admit that the letters were dictated to them, written by them and sent by them in a purely mechanical way. As hundreds of letter were written every day and as the signatures of hundreds of persons make no impressions on their minds, they did not connect the name with anyone so prominent as yourself.

The young woman's family believe her mind to be affected. I believe she is a criminal type, but if insane, both your family and my own should be on our guard as she seems to have your family on the brain. Her family told me that on Christmas day at her brother's she talked of nothing but you and your family.

At present the young woman is under surveillance of the police and accountable to them for her appearance in court. I am doing my utmost to have the matter settled so she can be in custody and keep both your name and mine out of the papers.

Having received no reply to my recent letter, I am wondering if you doubted the genuineness of it, and if so, if you will write to Judge F. V. Millard, Judge of the probate court here, he will substantiate the facts given. As the young lady wrote letters to me with your name signed, I do not know but she wrote letters to you signing my name, which may have puzzled and annoyed you.

Her mania, or whatever it is, has had such a peculiar form that I wish to have any mystery cleared up, and having now given you all the facts relating to yourself in the matter, I shall not trouble you with any further communications, but if you are in New York and wish to see the original letters which I have received, I can show them to you. At present I have to keep them by the advice of counsel as evidence against her.

still is a series of delightful lectures on South America & illustrated with the loveliest views, and next Tuesday night, the night, he will lecture on Norway, I think. Then we are having some quite good concerts, one by a Mr. Lang, and if I can find a programme, I'll send it to you.

Last week I was shut up in the house with a slight attack of the grippe, but I am out again and feel all right. The girls get out every pleasant day, but today it is blustering and disagreeable so they will remain in. I suppose the Junior Prom week is at its height now. Somehow dancing does not appeal to me now. I can do so many other far more interesting things to amuse myself, and I am looking forward to the time when I can practice, but just now our parlor is too cold to rock in.

Now I must go down town, so good bye Papa dear, write when you can — Love so much love for you from us all, from your affectionate daughter

I sent copies of my 3d Term to classmates Utley & Cutcheon. Utley wrote back that Hughes was his first choice he considered him head & shoulders above every other man mentioned. Utley has been for the last 20 yrs librarian of the Detroit Library & Cutcheon is in Ypsilanti where he studies & taught before going to Ann Arbor.

Dear Sir:

I have the honor to inform you that the Annual Meeting of the Institute will be held at the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York, on the evening of Thursday, February 20, 1908, at seven o'clock.

The Council will submit to the vote of the Annual Meeting names of candidates from the lists recently considered by the various sections.

Short addresses on recently deceased members will be made as follows: On Mr. Aldrich, by Mr. Bridges; on Mr. Conway, by Mr. Mabie; on Mr. Saint-Gaudens, by Mr. Cox; on Mr. Stedman, by Mr. Garland.

A report will be made by the Special Committee appointed by the Council, (1) to select a person to make the medal of the Institute, and (2) to obtain the judgment of the Section of Art as to the one upon whom it shall be conferred.

The names of recently elected members of the Academy will be announced.

A report of the Committee on Plan and Scope will also be presented.

The dinner, for which there will be no charge, will be served at 7:30 sharp.

Will you kindly inform me whether you expect to be present.

Dear Sir:

In pursuance of our previous understanding, and in accordance with Article V of the Certificate and Articles of Incorporation of The Alexander Hamilton National Memorial Association, now prepared, which will be filed with the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia on Tuesday, the 4th instant, you have been named and appointed by the incorporators as a member of the Board of Trustees, which as at present constituted consists of 34 members.

The responses received and the enthusiasm already awakened in the enterprise are extremely gratifying.

A meeting of the Board of Trustees for the purpose of effecting an organization which includes, of course, the election of officers, the adoption of By-Laws and the mapping out of a vigorous campaign, has been called for February 12, 1908 (Lincoln's birthday), at the New Willard Hotel in this city, at ten A.M.

You are earnestly urged to be present, and it is hoped you will permit nothing to stand in the way of so doing.

Dear Mr A. D. White, I am very glad to hear from you, and to know that you are now in your own country, presumably in good health and in the satisfactory surroundings of your old university. I have many reasons besides personal sympathy to wish very much to meet you and to talk over in leisure certain things as to America and Poland, which could not be touched upon seriously in the hasty visit to Berlin. I came to this country, invited by the Lowell Institute in Boston to lecture on Poland, and as I wanted a convenient place to write out my lectures after having delivered them, I went west to California, expecting here to find the very best conditions for spending a winter in my literary work. I have been sadly disappointed. The nights are even now very chilly, and the surrounding not quite what I expected. But I shall not move until March – as I am invited to deliver lectures on Poland and Plato at Stanford University and California University in March. Then I shall go east and hence to Europe in May or June, as I am just now very needed in Warsaw, where we have Cayey the foundations of a Polish national university, despite all inscrutable persecution. I should be very happy to leave as many opportunities as possible to lecture on Plato or Poland etc both in the colleges on my way from S. Francisco to New York. I have spent a whole year in carefully preparing the Lowell lectures – as the first lectures

082410 on Poland given at a higher educatio. I hal distribution in this country – and I expected many more invitations to lecture on the same subjects and to pay my expenses at least, as I come from a poor and ruined country and work here for a prosperous and wealthy nation.

The Lowell lectures were well paid, $150 for each lecture, but I should prefer to give 100 lectures at $50 or even less than only 8 lectures at the Lowell rate. I have not had a full opportunity of giving to American audiences the full import of my studies in preparing the Lowell lectures. I have asked the Lowell to accept from me several more graduate lectures on Poland, but he declined.

[2-4-08]

My success at the Lowell Institute was very satisfactory – the audience grew at every lecture and reached a larger number than the audiences of several other lectures going on at the same time in the same place. Besides I have introduced a novelty – I stayed on after each lecture for an hour and more answering questions put by the audience, the questions showing the great interest awakened in the matter.
If by your influence you could secure some colleges on my way East to invite me to give lectures – even at the most unfavourable terms, I should accept gratefully all such invitations; for lecturing is not only an excellent opportunity for spreading the knowl-

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

082411 ledge of my favourite subjects, it is also a very good method of learning much about my audiences. The Americans give me much thought and care. I see here more clearly than ever certain problems of democracy and I know nobody, with whom I should like to much to exchange views on these subjects as with you. First because you are a representative, typical American, and second because you have a good knowledge of these two countries, with which my nation has most to do;

Russia and Prussia.
I should gladly travel a thousand miles in order to spend with you a week in April or May — and if June would suit you better, I should even prolong my visit to the U.S. in order to avail myself of such an opportunity, which may never return, as my life's work is in my own country, where I am really needed.

Kindly let me know where you will be in April, May or June — where I could best visit you, and whether you would be willing to offer me a week's hospitality and some of your leisure? I know this to ask you very much, as you are busy and sought for by many people, and by individuals who interest you very likely more than a Pole, whose opinions are so opposed to yours in politics and

religion and/or social problems. But I trust you are in one respect similar to me, you like genuine experience, and authentic knowledge of facts. Now since we met, I have greatly accumulated such experience and observation of facts. I do not know whether you have read the address of William James to the Philosophical Society on the energies of men — the Yosi- in Science of March 1, 1907 friend to whom he refers there — and whose experiences he mentions, am I. This new extension of my experience will perhaps interest you more than facts about Plato or Poland. I have made extensive Experiments on training of will power on students and working people and have much to say on these subjects of a wide educational interest.

The postal service here is deplorable - many letters are lost, and you would greatly oblige me by registering your answer, as I do with this letter.

My best regards to Mrs White and believe me.

Yours very gratefully

My Dear Grandfather, I have been intending to write you for some time and thank you for your hospitality. I surely had a nice time down at Ithaca. Did I tell you that I passed up my English A. examination for Cornell? I only have one more to take now, English B. I am going to take that in June, and if I don't pass, I will get another chance in September. I think I will pass all right though. It has been below zero here for a couple of days, with a fierce blizzard, but it is bright and sunny to-day, and I may go out and take a hard-back ride. I am writing to Aunt Helen now. Honorable Andrew D. White,

Dear Uncle Andrew:-

Inclosed, herewith, you will find a copy of a letter which I received this morning from Mr. Cowie, and my answer.

I fully expect that Mr. Cowie will agree to settle, but if not I feel sure that, in the end, you will profit by his not having accepted the proposition, for it goes far beyond what I would offer if I owned the property, or what anyone would offer to do, who was not controlled by the considerations which exist in your case. I feel, too, that our chances of settlement have been weakened, and are now, by the steps we have already taken to effect a compromise. I believe that our attitude has been misunderstood, and that our motives have been ascribed to a lack of faith in our cause. I think that if we had assumed a vigorously aggressive tone all along, the chances of settlement would have been far better. This, I have always insisted upon, as you know.

I inclose, herewith, your monthly statement.

Hoping that you are all well, I remain,

Dear Mr. Cowie:-

Your letter of the 3rd Inst., is at hand. In reply, I beg to state that, of course, you know I have always sought to settle this matter in an equitable way, and this even before the tax-sales- when I sent Mr. Ryan to you to effect a settlement.

It is clear that my failure to effect a settlement up to the present, has ben due to your disinclination to make any concessions whatever to that end. As we have no expectation whatever of building over the alleyway and improving our rights that exist there, and in view of the fact that we believe that, ultimately, the Courts will hold that we have that right, or that, at least, we can partition the property and use what we have, we do not feel that you are making any concession whatever to effect a settlement by offering to take a perpetual easement over the roadway, free from taxes and assessments, in exchange for an undivided one-half interest. It is clear that it would be a great benefit to you to exchange an undivided one-half interest (assuming that you have such, for the purposes of argument) for a perpetual easement, free from taxes and assessments.

Equity clearly suggests that you pay the costs of the action, the back taxes and assessments, which the Court has found you owe, and, also, one thousand ($I000.00) dollars, counsel fees of the defendant. I do not feel that we can go further, in view of these facts, than to offer to settle along the lines we have talked about, which includes the settlement of the Kingsley interests, upon any more favorable basis to you than that which I suggested in my conversation with you at the Yates Hotel, to-wit:- that the costs and back taxes should be provided for, as directed by the decision of Judge Andrews.

ACADEMY OF ARTS AND LETTERS

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Increase of Membership — Names of New Academicians — Call for the First Meeting of the Full Academy, March 7 — Proposed Draft of the Objects of the Academy.

To the Members of the Academy:

Your Executive Committee, which has held six full sessions, has the honor to submit the following report:

(1) The result of the recent poll of members was the increase of the membership of the Academy from thirty to fifty.

(2) On January 28, in accordance with the previous announcement, the vote for new members was duly canvassed, with the result that the following members of the Institute have been chosen members of the Academy, in the order given:

Edward Everett Hale	Henry Cabot Lodge
Robert Underwood Johnson	Francis Hopkinson Smith
George Washington Cable	Francis Marion Crawford
Daniel Coit Gilman	Henry Charles Lea
Thomas Wentworth Higginson	Edwin Howland Blashfield
Donald Grant Mitchell	William Merritt Chase
Andrew Dickson White	Thomas Hastings
Henry van Dyke	Hamilton Wright Mabie
William Crary Brownell	Bronson Howard
Basil Lanneau Gildersleeve	Brander Matthews
Julia Ward Howe	Thomas Nelson Page
Woodrow Wilson	Elihu Vedder
Arthur Twining Hadley

In accordance with the program announced, these members have been duly informed of their election.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

082417

(3) By reason of the lamented death, since the above vote was taken, of two members of the Academy, Messrs. Edmund Clarence Stedman and Edward MacDowell, there remain two vacancies. It is recommended by the Committee that these be filled at the first opportunity.

(4) The meeting of the Academy for final organization and for the consideration of a draft of a constitution to be presented by the Executive Committee will take place on Saturday, March 7, 1908, at three o'clock, at the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York. This draft is in consonance with the objects for which, in the judgment of the Executive Committee, the Academy has been created, namely:

I To serve the National Government, when requested, by advice as to matters of national import relating to the arts — for example, architecture, landscape gardening, municipal improvement of the Capital, sculpture, coinage, copyright, and the like. The National Academy of Sciences performs a similar function in scientific matters, and has been of extraordinary public service, — for example, in forest conservation.

II The coördination of all the fine arts by the acquaintance and sympathy of those engaged in their pursuit. In an age devoted so largely and necessarily to industrial, mercantile and scientific interests, to assist in securing just dignity and importance for refinement, culture, and the creative imagination.

III To serve the American people by advice in matters of the public taste regarding literature and the fine arts.

IV (a) To stimulate activity by awarding annually an important prize (in rotation as to the arts) to some person who has rendered distinguished service to his country and mankind in a work of creative art. (b) To recognize from time to time distinguished service by laymen to the cause of letters and art.

V To distribute wisely such funds as may be intrusted to it for the relief of men and women who have engaged in the arts of letters, painting, sculpture, music, the drama, architecture, etc.

VI A building for the Academy, in which the National Institute of Arts and Letters shall be its guest.

In view of the importance of this meeting and of the large possibilities of influence presented to the Academy, it is earnestly desired that every member shall attend or, should this be impossible, shall be represented by written suggestions showing a helpful interest in the organization. Those who cannot be present may send ballots for the two existing vacancies.

(5) The Committee sorrowfully records the loss of the wise counsel of Mr. Stedman, who, with his accustomed devoted interest in the affairs of the Academy and confidence in its future, participated in all the meetings of the Committee except that of January 28, at which the result of the election was canvassed.

You are kindly requested to inform the Preliminary Secretary, Mr. R. U. Johnson, 33 East 17th Street, New York, whether you can be present at the meeting of March 7.

Dear Sir :

The following resolution was passed by the Board of Trustees at their meeting on October 26th, 1907:

"With a view to filling the University trusteeship made vacant by the death of Robert B. Adam, Resolved, that nominations be now made; that members be requested to send to the President before March 1st, 1908, suggestions as to other available candidates; that the President then advise the members of the Board of the names thus suggested; that at the winter meeting an informal ballot be held preparatory to filling the vacancy by election at the June meeting."

This resolution calls for the sending of names to the President before March 1st; but as the next meeting of the Board of Trustees has been called for February 22nd, I take the liberty of asking whether you will not send me at your earliest convenience, and in any event not later than February 20th, any names which you would suggest for filling the above vacancies, so that I may be able to submit them to the Trustees at their meeting on February 22nd.

In thus informally moving forward for ten days the final date of sending of suggestions, I believe I am carrying out the spirit of the resolution adopted by the Board of Trustees and the wish of the Trustees themselves.

Very truly yours,

J. G. Schurman

Berlin-Schmargendorf, den 6 Februar 1908

Dear Sir,

perhaps I may hope, that you will remember me from the time of your being in Berlin. I have had the honour to be of the selected circle, you gathered around yourself in your hospitable house for several winters. You were then so kind to accept the first volumes of my work on comparative history of Europe. Kulturgeschichte des Neunzehnten Jahrhunderts. But although this work was of a great extent it was to take a large view of the Greek and Roman age and that of the German, Roman and Slavic Nations, employed, by turning to chief topics, universal problems, now of Europe. So I began, five years ago a history of mankind, the first volume of which I present to you with this same post.

I venture to hope for your indulgence for yourself for it, in as much as it opens the line of the primitive peoples with the one moiety of the first inhabitants of America. In a few months the second volume will follow which will treat South America, but especially the peoples of the United States of to day. My description rests for the most part upon the works of the Indians of North America; I hope it will strengthen the bands which unite more and more the North american and german mind.

The intention of the whole work is to put on the place of the pretended universal history of to day, which comprehends always only Europe and the antico orient, an effective history of mankind. Besides my intention is to compensate the chronological-annalistic classification of history by a pyramid of degrees of evolution in the line of Darwin. I will endeavor the first, that it is possible to erect a tree of genealogy of the forms of the social and intellectual life of peoples.

Just now I agitate for the establishment of a seminary for comparative history at the university of Berlin and I meet with the kindness of any of the first aged scouts, Schmoller and Koser, and also with the - theoretical - connivance of the - now emerited - director of our administration of instruction although. Best it is to be feared that the reactionen of our public means will detain the intention for a long time

When sometimes I have chatted with D'Espagnac. I hope for the intervention of one of yours great merchant-princes, because the question is in truth for a cosmopolite and german matter, a business matter, a matter ranking like two first people of the world. I intend to send my book to Mr. Carnegie - just as if somebody else, upon the lottery. It would be exceedingly kind of you, if you could make him take interest in this affair

Your response to my overture surprised me. O I know you were human, and that appreciation would reach you; but I did not look for so much "Overseal" in return. I thank you very much for your exceedingly kind letter, and for the two little books you sent me which I have read with interest. I hope you did not make a mistake against yourself in suggesting that if I have other sermons you would like to be remembered. I have but one other published sermon and have but one copy of that. If I can get hold of another copy, will send it to you, as soon as myself. Showing the gulf I have crossed during the last 15 years. But the suggestion you made raised the question with me, whether you might not be just as willing to spend a few otherwise idle moments in reading a few Chapters of what I have been writing, and giving me a little advice which might be helpful to me. I am sending you five or six Chapters, not expecting you to read them all, for more than will be perfectly agreeable to you. I will name those which I would most care to have you read: Open Letter to Bishop Merrill, Inspiration, Divine Immanence. I will enclose with this a list of the Chapters in their order.

Some years ago, at the request of a friend whose judgment I respected, I sent a Chapter "Sin and Salvation" to Dr. Lyman Abbott, not for publication, but for his judgment and advice. He expressed a desire to use it, but could not on account of its length, but advised me to send my book to Scribners, Sons. I did so, but it was returned with very kindly expressions. Since then

082424

Feb. 6, 1895 [3]

I have added four Chapters, one then being, The Open Letter to Bp. Merrill.
Four years ago I wrote a literary friend of mine Dr. W. A. Croffut, of Washington, D.C. (what I had on hand) sending him a Chapter to read. He wrote a friend of his who is a Member of the firm of D. Appleton & Co.; from him I then a note saying that they would like to consider my book when done. I shall get ready to submit it.
But I have done nothing except to write one or two more Chapters and get the whole type-written. Perhaps my greatest reason for having done nothing is Cowardice. Can you understand that God will not despise me? And yet perhaps a fine analysis would show that it has not been so much Cowardice as it has been the horror of offending some of my brethren (mostly laymen) they dear to me who would be afflicted. I can face the preachers, some of them would be delighted, but if the majority of my Conf., the North Minnesota Synod Conclude to prosecute, perhaps few could better afford to suffer than I.

You know me & pretty good idea of the situation, and I am ready for anything that you may choose to say to me.

I am now engaged in trying to write another work still more advanced than this.
Perhaps I can give you an idea: 1 Introduction -
First Principles; 2 Cosmology; 3 Anthropology;
4 Anthropomythism; 5 Study in Theism;
6 Soteriology. The first 3 are the 5th I have written;
I am now at work on the 4th. My aim will be in the 6th Chapter to treat the subject from both the Divine & human points of view: on the Divine side, following the example of Jesus by getting Sin out of things & reforming the question of punishment accordingly; on the human side, the treatment of so-called Criminals in the light of their limitations as diseases - insanity for instance - in a word, that man shall be saved not punished.
Can you "Call it so"?

I shall enclose stamps for the return of the manuscript.

If your judgement and heart should incite in writing to me anything that would tend to be helpful with a Publisher would it offend you if I should use it? Hon. Andrew D. White,

My dear Dr. White:

For fifteen years I have been carrying on an educational work, embodying the University Extension idea with the Chautauqua System, for the promotion of studies in Jewish history and literature. We have held eleven sessions of our Summer Assembly at Atlantic City, N.J. After serious deliberation we have decided to hold our twelfth Assembly at the Niagara Hotel on the outskirts of Buffalo, N.Y. in order to be nearer our constituency of reading circles. The Assembly is to be held July 14th to 20th. The Committee on Assembly begs me to extend to you an urgent invitation to be our guest at sometime during the sessions convenient to you, and to give an address on any theme you may prefer which would be appropriate to our enterprise. Being so near Ithaca we trust that you will find it possible to favor us. We assure you a most cordial welcome on the part of all our delegates from all sections of the country, and we shall deem ourselves highly honored by your presence and participation. I recall with keen pleasure our meeting here last winter when you favored Dr. Krauskopf and myself by addressing our Philadelphia congregations.

Hoping for a renewal of these kindly relations, I am with sentiments of highest regard,

Very sincerely yours, Henry Berkowitz

Dear Sir.

Although, in your Autobiography, you did not write enthusiastically concerning genealogical research, perhaps you will be willing to answer two questions to assist in completing a genealogical chart in which a distant family connection of yours is greatly interested.

This interest in the Dickson family tree comes about in this way:

My great-grandfather Uriah Church married Phebe Dickson, daughter of James Dickson and Margaret ——. James Dickson was the son of John Dickson and —— ——. Can you supply me with the missing names?

You are the only person living who can, possibly, know these names. The Vital Statistics of Middlefield have not yet been published.

Hoping that your interest in the preservation of records will excuse me for this intrusion upon your time and attention,

I am Yours Respectfully,

My dear Dr. White:-

You remember the very delightful call Dean Haskell and myself had at your house last commencement and also your meeting myself and son, Stanley F. Bates, at the Mooreland, Bass Rocks, in August. Our son as expected, entered Cornell last September as a freshman in the College of Arts, expecting to take a six years course, two of which will be devoted to the Arts and the remaining four to engineering. His address is 116 Oak Ave., at the home of William Haslett Smith. He has already made a fine start, and we expect that he will complete these two courses within the six years so as to secure the degrees of A.B. and M.E. He writes me that he has not as yet called upon Mrs. White and yourself, but he has assured me that he will do so shortly. I presume it is the natural timidity of the freshman that compells him to shrink from the assurance of calling upon you. I have told him that after he has once made the call he will be surprised to know how easy it would be to repeat the call.

Knowing your interest in matters of general education, I take great pleasure in sending you a clipping of the report of the annual meeting of the Detroit Archaeological Society of which I am the head, and which has done good work for the American Institute of Archaeology for the past fifteen years . We had a very delightful lecture on The Newly Discovered Manuscripts of the Bible, recently purchased by our townsman, Mr. Charles L. Freer, who is also the owner, as you know, of what is known as the Whistler collection, and which he gave to the Smithsonian Institute a few years ago. These manuscripts were exhibited at the meeting and showed a wonderful state of preservation. Professor Sanders of the University of Michigan gave a most instructive and interesting lecture on the subject, a detailed statement of which is in this account.

It is the intention of Mrs. Bates and myself to visit Cornell sometime in the early summer at which time it will give us great pleasure to call upon Mrs. White and yourself.

Yours very truly,

George Williams Bates.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, JANUARY 24, 1908. Bates & W

—THE DETROIT JOURNAL

FREER FIND IS A NEW CODEX

COVERS TWO-THIRDS OF THE ENTIRE BIBLE AND SEEMS AUTHENTIC.

PROF. SAUNDERS EXPLAINS THE PROBABLE DATE AND AUTHENTICITY OF MANUSCRIPT.

The Codex Detroitensis or the Freer manuscript of the Bible was, for the first time, exhibited to a local gathering last evening, when the Detroit Archaeological society met at the residence of Merton E. Farr, 40 Putnam avenue, held its annual meeting and elected its officers for the ensuing year.

Prof. Henry A. Sanders of the University of Michigan delivered a lecture on the Freer collection and specimens of the manuscript were on exhibition, under glass for the inspection of the interested visitors.

The professor's discourse was illuminating, his claims were cautious and his assertions wisely qualified. He was scholarly throughout. The interest of his audience was hightened by many stereopticon views of pages and passages from the find.

From the exhibits and discussions these facts are apparent:

Mr. Freer has in his possession a Bible manuscript, a Greek transcript from some still older document of like character. How much of the bible does this codex contain? Prof. Sanders says that if the entire bible, old and new testaments, were divided in six books, the present collection would comprise four books, more or less complete.

The Codices.

It should be remembered that the oldest bible manuscripts preserved to this day are in Greek and date about 400 A. D. They are mere translations, as the old testament was written in Hebrew and the apostles, if they wrote at all, wrote in the Syrian dialect of their day, with exception of St. Paul, who, being a Roman, would probably use his native tongue, the Latin, for his written communications.

None of the treasured manuscripts or codices in preservation today, therefore, can lay claim to being original documents. Of these codices there are three in existence: the Vatican, the Alexandrinian and the Sinaitic.

As Prof. Sanders pointed out, the difference in these various codices lies in their completeness. Some of them omit, others add. No two tally exactly. Striking an average, every eighth word differs. The Vatican codex is most prominent for its omissions.

Can't Be Work of Fakir.

Bearing these facts in mind and applying them to the Freer collection, it is self-evident that in the local manuscripts there has now been added a fourth codex. A codex that is independent of any of the three named, is more complete than any of the others in some parts of the text and occupies a place by itself. It is a translation or transcript from a different copy altogether than that upon which the three other existing codices are based. These small differences, additions, alterations in the text are the inherent proof that the manuscripts are original and not the work of some fakir, who might have imitated ancient writing, but could not have breathed into his fabrication the foreign independent spirit that pervades the collection so uniformly.

As to the age of the collection, Prof. Saunders places it as ranging from 400 to 640 A. D. He admits, however, that this is a guess. So much is certain from the manuscript itself; it is not written by one or two persons, nor in one period. The style of writing differs, penmanship varies, now the pages are in double, now in single column, and so the very appearance indicates a different age for each of the four parts into which this codex is divided. The four Gospels are apparently the most recent ones.

The cover has an ornamentation in the shape of the figures of the four apostles, dressed as Greek priests, and is of a Byzantine age.

Resembles Alexandrinian Codex.

Prof. Sanders arrives at his conclusion as to the age from his observations of the style of writing in vogue in the different centuries, the slants, the dots, the marks and also by comparing it with copies of the writing in the other codices. A stereopticon view of a page of writing of the Alexandrinian codex was shown and the resemblance was marked.

In the Freer codex the paragraphing, slants, absence of all capital letters except at the beginning of the page shown was the same. The handwriting in both are beautifully clear, the Greek church abbreviations, as for Theos, "God," or for Christ, "ch r," for example, are alike. There is no spiritus asper, or spiritus lenis, breathings, nor are there any of the accents or marks of contraction. The apostrophe is used as in the Alexandrinian after a foreign proper name, or sometimes to denote the end of a sentence. Interpolations and interlineations are few.

The book does not contain the relevations of John and never did, since the end is in the collection and this part of the scripture is lacking. Dwelling on this feature, Prof. Sanders made an interesting observation.

The Relevations of St. Peter were found not so many years ago at the same place, where presumably this Freer codex was unearthed. The present codex, the professor proffered as a theory, was part of a bible of six books which included the Relevations of St. Peter, instead of St. John, and was used by a Greek church in upper Egypt and buried or lost at the time of the Moslem invasion of Egypt in 640.

As to the doctrinal effect of this new codex on the various creeds Prof. Sanders was justly conservative.

"While textual differences of the Scriptures amount to one-eighth of the whole contents, the sense or meaning was materially affected only once in a thousand," he said. So that even with many new changes, additions and differences the professor was able to assure his hearers that, as far as he had progressed in his examination of the manuscripts, the divine inspiration had increased in quantity only, not in quality as affecting Christian dogma.

way, way up in the millions. The Prof. Sanders Is Conservative.

Prof. Sanders' conservatism will be appreciated when taking into consideration that the Catholic church does not base its dogmas on the scriptures alone, but on tradition as well, and that the church is the last authority in the interpretation of the meaning of the bible as well as the identity of the scriptures itself. The same condition exists in the Greek Catholic church and as far as the Protestant churches are concerned, one need not look for different versions to account for the multitude of the sects, since the same passages are capable of so many different constructions and have led to so many divergent theological creeds.

After the lecture the following officers of the society were chosen: President, Franklin H. Walker; vice presidents, Charles L. Freer, Prof. Martin L. D'Ooge, George W. Bates, William E. Quinby; secretary, Edward W. Pendleton; treasurer, Percy Ives.

Mr. Farr made a most hospitable host and the large audience enjoyed a thoroughly pleasant evening in one of the most artistic homes of the city. The evening concluded by a concert of an excellent string orchestra and refreshments.

The meetings of the Detroit Archaeological society are in full dress and, on the part of the women, in expensive gowns. The wealth represented by those present last evening would run way up in the millions. The money in the treasury of the society is $41.61.

THE DETROIT FREE PRESS.

Detroit Archaeological Society.

The annual meeting of the Detroit Archaeological society was held Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. Merton E. Farr, with about 150 members and guests present. Mr. George William Bates acting president, called the meeting to order and read the annual report. This report showed that the Detroit society still ranks among the leading societies of the institute, which includes twenty-two affiliated societies, with a total membership of about 2,000. These societies contributed last year to the institute $17,247.47.

The course of lectures for this year includes the one delivered by Dr. George A. Horton, United States consul at Athens, November 18, on "The Greeks of Today;" that of Dr. D. G. Hogarth, of London, England, December 19, on "The Excavations at Ephesus," and an additional lecture by Dr. Knapp March 25. Announcement was made of the death of the late president of the institute, Thomas Day Seymour, of Yale, and the election as president of Prof. Francis W. Kelsey, of the University of Michigan. President Kelsey gave a short talk on the general subject of archaeological research and the object and purposes of the American institute.

Prof. Henry A. Sanders, of the University of Michigan, gave a most instructive and interesting lecture on "The Newly Discovered Manuscripts of the Bible." These manuscripts are now in the possession of Mr. Charles L. Freer, and Professor Sanders places the age of this collection as ranging from 400 to 640 A. D. Specimens of these manuscripts were on exhibition under glass for the inspection of those present. The professor's discourse was illustrated with the stereopticon, which showed certain portions of the manuscripts on a large scale. These manuscripts are in Greek, translated from some older document of a like character. Just how much of the Bible they contain it was impossible to say, or what they originally embraced. The present collection comprises four books, more or less complete. Professor Sanders said that the older Bible manuscripts preserved to this day are in Greek and date about 400 A. D. They are mere translations, as the old testament was written in Hebrew, and the apostles, if they wrote at all, wrote in the Syrian dialect of their day, with the exception of St. Paul, who, being a Roman, would probably use his native tongue, the Latin, for his written communications. None of the treasured manuscripts or codices in preservation today, therefore, can lay claim to being original documents. Of these codices there are three in existence: the Vatican, the Alexandrinian and the Sinaitic. ten from 400 to 640 A. D. The portion of the manuscript exhibited in the glass case showed a wonderful state of preservation and a remarkable handwriting as it appeared in the original Greek.

After the lecture the following officers of the society were chosen: President, Mr. Franklin H. Walker; vice presidents, Mr. George Williams Bates, Mr. Charles L. Freer, Prof. Martin L. D'Ooge, Mr. William E. Quinby; secretary, Mr. Edward W. Pendleton; treasurer, Mr. Percy Ives; executive committee, Mr. Frank D. Taylor, chairman, Miss Clara Avery, Mr. Henry C. Potter, Jr., Mrs. Samuel L. Smith, Mrs. Frederic B. Stevens, Mr. Claudius H. Candler. Councillors: Mr. Franklin H. Walker, president, ex-officio; Francis W. Kelsey, president American Institute of Archaeology, ex-officio; Professor Martin L. D'Ooge, alternate Prof. Walter Dennison; Mr. George Williams Bates, alternate Rev. David M. Cooper; Prof. Henry A. Sanders, alternate Samuel McC. Stanton. Committee on membership: Mr. J. Remsen, chairman; Mr. C[illegible]nius A. Newcomb, Sr., Prof. David McKenzie, Judge Cornelius J. Reilly, Mr. William R. Candler, Mr. George Whitney Moore, Mr. Jesse B. Hornung, Miss Ella M. Leggett, Miss Nellie E. Bancroft, Mr. Frederick L. Bliss.

The meeting was one of the most delightful and profitable ever held by the society, and the large audience enjoyed it thoroughly, being given as it was in one of the most artistic homes in the city.

I am truly sorry to trouble you in a matter that lies on my heart with great weight but at present. It is in regard to the kindness you showed me last summer by sending me twenty five dollars $25.00. myself entitled to part of the estate, and if I had not been in such great as it was, I was obliged to make as much amount out of my own private funds as I can. I mean I had written you at

ANDREW D. WHITE,
ITHACA, N.Y.

February 8, 1908.

President J. G. Schurman,

Cornell University,

Ithaca, N. Y.

My dear Mr. President:

Referring to your question of yesterday, the two best names which, in my opinion, I can suggest are those of Mr. Hazard of Syracuse and the Hon. Charles E. Fairchild of Cazenovia. The former is the head of the Solvay Works, a man of broad and liberal views, a graduate, if I remember rightly, of Brown, interested in worthy objects, with large wealth and with sympathies which I think would naturally lead him to take an interest in a institution like this. He is married to the daughter of a very dear, old friend of mine, Mr. Sedgewick, and her family have always taken an interest in Cornell, having sent various young men here.

Mr. Fairchild lives at Cazenovia near us, is a graduate of Harvard and a member of their Board of Overseers, was formerly Secretary of the Treasury and hold high financial position in the City of New York. Of course, I am aware of the trouble and annoyance brought upon him at the time of the insurance investigation, but I think that no thoughtful man has ever, for a moment, thought less of him on that account, and his very high general and financial character still stands unimpaired.

I can think of no others at present but may be able later to do so.

I remain

Very truly yours,

Andrew D. White

My dear Dr. White

At the request of the Alumni Association of the state normal School located at Oshkosh Wisconsin I am to write a memorial address upon the late George Sumner Albee President of the school for twenty seven years (1871 – 1898) He was a graduate of the University of Michigan in 1864 and greatly appreciated the work you did for his Alma Mater. I have often heard him speak of you and quote you and feel sure that you were a constant source of inspiration to him, and I am sure every member of the alumni would greatly appreciate a few lines from you expressing your opinion of the man and his work.

I find that among men connected with Educational institutions he was quite as well known in the East as in the West. Their readiness to contribute opinions and estimates has made me bold as a beggar but it has not lessened my appreciation of such contributions nor my gratitude to the people who are willing to give a portion of their valuable time for the sake of keeping green the memory of a very worthy man. If you will comply with the request you will confer another favor upon a long list already victims

Yours sincerely

My dear Mr White -

You see by this sheet where we wanted your help - Thank you for your letter of Dec 21st. I do fully understand - And yet - and yet - could you really accomplish anything more worth while in a few minutes than by putting two or three strong endorsements of our effort for justice on a sheet of paper - and allowing me, or if you prefer, Prof Nathaniel Schmidt. To make use of them at Albany on the 19th at our hearing? Mr Schmidt who is today in New York wrote me that it would be impossible for him to take three days from the middle of a week of his college work — but I have now explained to him that one day will do the deed for us — (this I know he is very desirous to do) and I feel that a word of encouragement from you might turn the scales in favor of his coming to Albany — Not only do we want him at "the Hearing" — but for our evening meeting in the Assembly Chamber. If you can conscientiously say, on this plea, "Nathaniel, go" — I am sure the gratitude of the women of the state the Antis always excepted — will be yours — But in any case it is yours — So that was a feeble lure! I am sure you will do what you can for us, & ask no more. Yours sincerely Anne F. Miller —

My dear Dr. White:

I am in receipt of your kind letter of February 5th, and the inclosed manuscript. Although it is a very interesting article, I regret to say that it will not be possible for us to consider it as it goes over, in a way, ground already considered by The Outlook, and we also have another article on hand, and I think in type, taking up the question of the religious outlook of Japan.

CARNEGIE INSTITUTION OF WASHINGTON

MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

FEBRUARY 10, 1908

The Committee convened at 10:05 A. M., in Room 532, Bond Building, Washington, D. C.

Present: Messrs. Mitchell, Root, Walcott, Wright, and President Woodward.

Absent: Messrs. Billings, Dodge, and Gilman, all of whom presented regrets at being unable to attend the meeting.

The minutes of the thirtieth meeting were submitted and approved.

The President submitted a financial statement, an abridged form of which will be found on page 10.

The President then reported the following items of business transacted at the offices of the Institution since the previous meeting of the Committee:

1. That an abstract of the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of December 10, 1907, has been prepared and printed, and that copies have been distributed to the members of the Board and to Mr. Carnegie.

2. That the following publications have been issued:

Year Book No. 6 (1907). Trustees' edition and regular edition. Octavo, vii + 242 pages, 11 plates.

No. 66. High Steam Pressures in Locomotive Service. By William F. M. Goss. Octavo, 144 pages, 120 figures.

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

082452

3. That the Nutrition Laboratory at Boston has been completed in accordance with the terms of the contract and is now occupied by Director Benedict and his staff.

4. That construction of the Administration Building has been begun.

The President read a letter from Mr. Cass Gilbert, President of the American Institute of Architects, setting forth the importance of a study of the development of cities, as previously submitted in detail to the Institution by Mr. Glenn Brown, Secretary of the American Institute of Architects. After reconsideration of the matter, the President was instructed to notify Mr. Gilbert that the Executive Committee deems it inexpedient to comply with his request for assistance from the Carnegie Institution of Washington for the furtherance of his project.

The President read a letter from Mr. Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress, concerning the disposition of the balance of the grants made for the preparation of a Handbook of Learned Societies. After consideration it was Resolved, That the balance of $274.31 of Grants Nos. 56 and 107, for the preparation of a Handbook of Learned Societies, be expended in reducing to card form the accumulated data with respect to learned societies, for reference use in the Library of Congress.

After explanation by the President and discussion, the employment of a clerk of the works during the construction of the Administration Building was approved by the Committee, and the President was authorized to make such an appointment after consultation with the architects, the salary of the appointee to be drawn from the appropriation for administration.

The President submitted an informal report with regard to the work of Mr. Luther Burbank, reviewing the history of his connection with the Institution and explaining the progress made in preparing a scientific account of his methods in horticulture.

The project for a republication of the classics of international law was discussed, and, pending its further consideration, the President was requested to solicit the opinion of Mr. Carnegie with respect to the desirability of this enterprise.

Upon the suggestion of Mr. Mitchell, the Committee decided to reconsider, at its next meeting, the following resolution passed at the meeting of January 13, 1908, in so far as it relates to a proposed Department of Anthropology:

"Resolved, That the Executive Committee deem it inexpedient to establish, under present circumstances, Departments of Anthropology and of Municipal Research."

The President was requested to have printed in the meantime the petition previously submitted to the Committee for the establishment of such a Department of Anthropology, and to have copies sent to the members of the Committee.

The President read a letter from Dr. L. A. Bauer, Director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism, concerning the advisability of entering into a contract for the construction of a vessel especially designed to continue the ocean magnetic work of the Department. Upon motion of Mr. Root, it was Resolved, That a vessel to serve the special needs of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism be constructed at a total cost not to exceed $75,000, the contracts to be so ordered that the cost within the year 1908 shall not exceed $40,000.

The Committee adjourned at 12 M., to meet on Monday, March 9, 1908, at 10 A. M., at a place to be designated by the President.

on the subject before- but I should say that if she & her husband are not in agreement regarding it, more than, it is not altogether legitimate- I have no knowledge of anything in her disfavor, except from my own impressions- She dresses & gets herself up with cosmetics to such a degree, as to make me feel that she is not a wise woman, & my mistrust leads me on that account to distrust her- One would think to look at her that she was a wealthy & fashionable woman, whereas, every one familiar with their circumstances is aware that they have barely enough to live on. I should advise great caution, & would advise her attorney- & if other people knew that she became quite much interested, & they would not favor her suit. Trusting I have not offended you by my remarks, it is only to serve you & your interests that I do so. Should you come to Ithaca, I should be pleased to see you & talk over matters. Yours very sincerely

P. S. I might add that we have had some difficulty in securing an adequate salary for Dr. Hakes - the endowment of the parish has not been paying its full amount of interest lately, & the Vestry counted on that, & do not make up the deficiency, so that I had to advance $75. six months ago to pay him - & the first of this month I had to call upon the Trustees of the Parochial Fund to secure in some way the last half year's payment - the fund of the parish being in their hands. If you wish to promote the work there I should be glad to be your almoner.

Dear Mr. White,

I am writing to ask if you would be particularly troubled if we were to postpone the printing of the first Stein article for a month, thus making the articles appear in May and June instead of in April and May.

My reason for making this suggestion is that we find ourselves obliged to print in the April number two or three essays which Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin and Company expect to publish in book form during the month of April. It is, consequently, essential that we should use them in the magazine prior to the date of book publication. This unexpected necessity limits our available space in the April number, and the easiest way out of the difficulty would be to postpone your article for a month. I am sorry to suggest this after saying definitely that we could place it in April, but I was not then aware of Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin and Company's plans for the issue of their spring books.

Sincerely yours,

Bliss Perry

My dear President White :-

The Business Men of Ithaca hold their banquet at the Ithaca Hotel on Monday night, February 24th, and they requested me on behalf of their committee to extend an invitation to you to speak on that occasion. The banquet is to begin early. They assemble at half past six and will sit down to the table at seven o'clock, expecting that the same will be finished by half-past ten. The speakers which they indicated were, yourself, Mayor Newman, Dean Crane and Sherman Moreland. They would be glad to have you choose your own subject if you desire

Trusting that we may have the pleasure of having you with us on that occasion, believe me,

Some important and short Events in the Educational world, and at D.C., make it very desirable to have a meeting of our Council as soon as practicable. Could you be with us without great inconvenience at an early day. We have not met for a long time. I tried hard for a meeting in Sept. last; but the Chief Justice was in affliction and others were out of reach.

The one important fact is, that the N. E. A. more active men and the State University presidents are both satisfied with the pending bill & are getting another.

Dear Uncle Andrew.

The time in which our can appeal your case expires on the 20th. inst. In view of what you have said, to wit, that you thought "substantial justice had been done by Judge Andrews" I am now disinclined to appeal for an appeal does not mean that we are sure to better our condition, it might mean only an increase in expense, for our chances would be perhaps no more than even that the Appellate Division would take my view of the case. I feel that without you are willing to assume all responsibility for the appeal that I would lack the proper state of mind to make the best fight possible.

ANDREW S. WHITE

SYRACUSE, N.Y.

We have established the fact of ownership & the relations of the owners in a general way. Judge Andrews bars some doubt as to the rights of the owners in the land. We have also been awarded back taxes & assessments amounting to $470.00 & it has further been decreed that in the future you are to pay only your just share of the taxes & assessments instead of all. While I hate to see your interests suffer, as not strongly worked out & settled, I do not want to go ahead with the feeling that I am not heartily indorsed for there is an old saying that, "there is nothing certain in this world but two things, namely, death & taxes," & if the end of the litigation was not clearly & beyond all question a benefit to you I would feel greatly disappointed.

We can try to stop now when you are clearly a winner & when the back taxes that have been recovered will I think pay all expenses or nearly all, incurred in defending your tax deeds.

The difficulty in settling the case has been increased very much by the fact that Mr. Farmer & his attorneys have grown arrogant thro the misuse of power. They are used to having their way & to robbing every one & to imposing on every one, so that a prosecution that is only liberal they take as an affront, being next to getting their way by stock or coup. We are not dealing with people who believe in the theory that all people are equal before the law. They are the enemies of that idea, the kind that during the last twenty years have been making an Judge Taft says a plutocracy out of the Republic. They are sure that hope I can settle with them on any terms that would not indict me for incompetence or dishonesty, without I have them where they are clearly that if they dont come to these terms they must suffer far worse on account of some collateral circumstance, such as the proposed sale of the Herald property to the Syracuse Post Standard which might fall thro owing to their inability to give a clear title. Furthermore they are the kind that will spend money freely to litigate from clear vindictiveness. I am not afraid of them or their methods so long as I have my own client at my back clearly convinced that he is willing to be responsible with me for and working in sympathy & in harmony with me. Please write me again after considering this & my last letter.

Faithfully yours,
Andrew.

Dear Mr. White;-

Your letter of yesterday received, and I note what you say in regard to obtaining two letters of credit, also that you have heretofore secured them through Morgan & Co. Knauth, Nachod, & Kühne are the agents of banking house through whom the Trust & Deposit Co. here write their foreign drafts. They are a very prominent firm, and do extensive business in this line. You can draw checks for the necessary amounts for the letters of credit, deposit same here with Trust & Deposit Co. and same will draw interest until entirely drawn by your drafts from Europe. Or, you may obtain them through Trust & Deposit Co. on Morgan & Co. , but I can not say that the amount will be interest bearing.

You can instruct me to obtain the two letters of credit for one thousand pounds each, stating whether you prefer them drawn on Morgan & Co. or Knauth, Nachod & Kühne, and I will have same ready for you when you come through Syracuse or mail them to you as you direct. Your balance in Trust & Deposit today is $12313.16. Can obtain letters immediately on Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, but will take about one week to get same on Morgan & Co. I would advise to purchase letters on the former firm through T. & D. Co. of this city by check on your account. I know of nothing more explicit or expedient than a letter of credit for your purpose.

Awaiting the pleasure of your instructions in the matter, I beg to remain,

Hon. Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N. Y.

Dear Mr. White;-

Your letter of yesterday at hand, and I note what you say regarding the two letters of credit. As stated in my letter of yesterday, your balance at the Trust & Deposit Co. today is a little over twelve thousand three hundred dollars. Now, I would suggest that you give a check sufficiently large enough to cover the two letters of credit. Then the bank will make a special account or I should say two sepcial accounts for $5000 each calling them Andrew D. White "Letter of Credit Acct. and Mrs. Helen Magill White Letter of Credit Acct. You will receive your letters of credit and all drafts against same will be charged against these accounts, without any further checks of drafts from this office. These accounts will continue to draw interest the same as if left in your general account, and act as security against the letters of credit. Any bookkeeping in connection with the five thousand dollars for Mrs. White's letter of credit could be done through your hooks here, if such amount is to be carried in the sense of a special charge against her for the letter of credit; and in this manner we could avoid the taking of her bonds from the trust box and placing them with Trust & Deposit for secufity. This suggestion is made with the assumption that you might draw on your balance of twelve thousand three hundred for the amount of the letters of credit. It is customary to make the letter of credit out in the full name of the holder thus Mrs. Helen Magill White. I think this is the best manner to do it, and trust you can glean enough from my letters to make the matter clear to you.

(over)

Yours very respectfully, Frank J. Barrett

Dear Sir-

Very many thanks for your letter of the 20th Jan. I am sorry I shall not be able to see you in Naples this spring as I should have liked to speak you about the translation. I am very glad that you will supply me with the amendments you have just made to your book. But I still see another difficulty in the translation of those passages you have quoted literally from other works. As to the passages cited from a book in a foreign language I think I can translate them in German from your english translation, but as to the citation out of german books I think I must give them in the original text. By undertaking a journey to germany this spring or summer I hope it will be possible for me to get these books for some time so that I can look at the quoted passages, but I do not always find in your book the number of the volume and the page of the sentences quoted, so it will be extremely difficult for me to find them. Would it not be possible for you to help me in this difficulty? If I give you a list of these citations would you oblige me by telling me where to find them.

As to Mr. Appletons I have ~~not~~ not yet received an answer. Regarding Mr Diederichs he has asked ~~some~~ me for information about your book and for a proff of translation. I will send the translation of one chapter to him today. I remain dear Sir truely yours

Hobart College,

February 14, 1908.

Fellow Alumni and Friends of Hobart College:

It has long been felt by those interested in the history and work of Hobart that its walls should contain some special and permanent memorial of its third and greatest President, Benjamin Hale. Not only those who were under him as students, or otherwise knew him personally, but those to whom the story of his life-work for the College has come only as a tradition, recognize the fact that he was practically and in a most real sense its Second Founder.

We now hope to realize our long-cherished wish through an effort suggested and munificently begun by a student of Dr. Hale's day, the Hon. Andrew D. White, LL.D., to place conspicuously in the Coxe Memorial Hall, the life-like marble bust presented by the Alpha Delta Phi Society, enshrined in a niche and tablet of bronze and marble suitably inscribed, as shown by the design herewith sent you. The cost of placing this memorial will be $815.00. It is hoped that the next Commencement may see it completed and in place through the generous gifts, not of Alumni and former students alone, but of all who honor the memory of Hobart's noblest and most devoted Head.

Subscriptions toward this object should be sent to the President of the College on or before April 1st, as it will require two months to complete the memorial.

JOHN W. HOYT, Chairman.

THE VICTORIA, WASHINGTON, D. C.

February 14, 1908.

My Dear Sir:

You will see by the enclosed Appeal in behalf of the proposed National University, so heartily presented by Senator Frye, that our noble cause still lives. Moreover, I am glad to inform you that the National Educational Association and the Association of State University Presidents have both at length appointed committees of three strong men each, which, together with the U. S. Commissioner of Education, are to be a "Committee of Conference on a National University", that they are at work on a modified bill, and are expected to get working delegates to Washington.

And then both the American and George Washington University presidents, by recent friendly words and requests for interviews, show new signs of a readiness to find some way of working out a union of forces.

These facts indicate the importance of prompt and vigorous action on our part. But I am greatly embarrassed for want of funds. At least one man of fortune admits having in mind some endowment of the University or the enterprise. But a crisis is on. We must at once make an earnest campaign; and, having exhausted my own resources, I am compelled to ask means for office assistance, printing, stationery, and postage from such of my colleagues as are presumed to be at once earnest and able to aid. Any contribution, however small, will be gratefully received.

Very sincerely yours,
John W. Hoyt,

Hon. Andrew D. White,
Ithaca, New York.

My Dear Mr. White:-

Your kind letter of the 8th of this month received here the day before yesterday. Please accept thanks.

I have immediately undertaken to trace Prof. Takahashi, of whom I last heard through a letter dated Riverside Cal. the 25th of Jan. In that letter he stated that the same day he would leave for Texas, and thence, go to Washington D.C., and to New York City. I wrote to him c/o of both the Japanese Embassy and the New York Consul General, enclosing copy of your last letter, and asked both the acting Ambassador and the Consul General to help me in locating the Professor, and if possible to cause the letter to reach him so that yet he may reach Cornell before the 24th of this month.

I am so very anxious that you and he shall meet, and I would be so grievously dissappointed by a failure.

You say that before sailing you will have considerable business at New York City. Can you please kindly beforehand inform the Japanese Consul General at New York City of your intended address when there, and of the probable length of your stay?

When once in the Mediterranean, why not extend the trip to Japan, passing by Suez and returning by way of San Francisco or Seattle? April and May are the most pleasant season in Japan.

Mr. Aiba, the Japanese Consular Agent here at Portland these last five years, has just been called to Japan for consultation, and left Seattle on the 4th of this month. He is a most superior man, speaks

The Andrew Dickson White Papers, Cornell University

English well, and is in thought, word and deed a most thorough gentleman.

Allow my enclosing an introduction to him. The house and Street are on the address given in Japanese. Besides, Baron Hayashi, with whom you are acquainted, in the foreign office, can at once direct you. No one with a mind like yours, and with your experience, has ever visited Japan. You will notice what no one did notice before; and you will better than any one ever did before, understand and explain the great movement going on. A correct understanding, a proper "wurdigung" is what is wanted. This is what I attempted in the article on the "World Significance of Japan". I do not feel very hopeful as to the reception by Mr. Abbott, but I shall be glad to hear.

I have read what Mr. Griffis wrote about Japan. It is very able, but I fancy that he does not quite correctly interpret Buddhism. The Outlook probably will not entirely agree with my position as to a new form of Christiniaty to be evolved in Japan, but might join issue, and comment. This would delight me. "Du choc des opinions jaillit la verite". I should like further to develop the idea, and to specify the lines of probable evolution.

Always,

Yours faithfully,

ANDREW S. WHITE
SYRACUSE, N.Y.

February 14th, 1908.

Honorable Andrew D. White,

Ithaca, N.Y.

Dear Uncle Andrew:-

Your letter is at hand, and I interpret it as being tantamount to a suggestion to settle at all hazards, securing the best terms possible, under the circumstances.

From my previous letters, you, no doubt, understand that to settle on their terms means that the attorneys' fees an d counsel fees, amounting to $500, and the costs, amounting to $78.00, must be paid out of your pocket. On the other hand, my terms contemplate a settlement which is about $400. better for you.

While my judgment is that I could handle the matter so that you could not only get the more favorable settlement above mentioned, but, furthermore, a settlement that would be worth at least $500. more to you, I feel that up to the present I have so fully explained the facts to you that your last letter amounts to a decision on your part, substantially, to settle upon the best terms obtainable- but settle. I do not like to assume the responsibility of doing anything else under these circumstances, but you must remember, in answering this letter and giving me your ultimatum, that the other side are apt to demand more and more as rapidly as we concede ground, until the whole thing becomes a farce, and wholly unreasonable. Certainly you would not have me go quite to this length; therefore, please define the line upon which you would stand and fight.

(ASW-H)

Yours faithfully,

Andrew.

OFFICE OF NATIONAL COMMITTEE TO PROMOTE THE ESTABLISHMENT OF
The University of the United States

(A Committee of some Four Hundred Members, including Ex-Presidents of the United States, ex-United States Senators, ex-Cabinet Officers, Ambassadors and ex-Ambassadors, heads of United States Scientific Bureaus, State Superintendents of Public Instruction, two hundred and fifty College and University Presidents and heads of the most important national organizations, scientific and patriotic.)

JOHN W. HOYT, Chairman.

THE VICTORIA, WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb 15, 1908.

Hon. And. D. White, LL.D.
Ithaca, New York.

My dear Ambassador:

I have just read your letter of the 13th with mingled pleasure and regret — glad even because of deep interest in whatever concerns your welfare and that of all who are dear; regret because I seem to be having signs of embarrassment from some of the university men of the country as well as from the faithless Chairman of the Senate Committee. Nevertheless, Heaven be with your going and make it fruitful of much good to your dear self and family.

If after the reading of the enclosed draft from President James, either here or abroad, you either are pleased to say anything, I shall be glad to hear it.

Senator ___ is loyal and will stand with us. Spoke yesterday of getting a second edition of Appeal.

With all good wishes,

Most truly yours,

John W. Hoyt.

Dear President White:

I am sending by express a copy of our Publication of the Fillmore Papers, which I ask you to accept with the compliments of the Buffalo Historical Society. You may observe that I took the liberty of using your note to me regarding Greeley's imprisonment in Paris. I felt sure you would have no objection and it seemed to add to the interest of my note on Fillmore.

Trusting you may find the volumes worth looking into, and with sincere wishes for your continued health, I remain

Sincerely yours,
Frank H. Severance
