PRICE 12 CENTS

Moakley Cups Presented

Fifteen Trophies Given by Cornell Clubs
Formally Awarded to Chosen
Track Athletes

At a special meeting of the members of the track squad, held in Ithaca on May 31, the fifteen cups given by as many of the local clubs to those members of the team who had made the greatest improvement during the year, were presented by Coach John F. Moakley. The trophies, known as the "John F. Moakley Cups," are given as the result of the action at the convention of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, held in St. Louis last November. Foster M. Coffin '12, secretary of the Corporation, spoke at the presentation. Rollin H. Spelman '28, captain of the track team, presided.

The following are the awards, with the names of the winners in each event, and of the contributing clubs:

100-yard dash: George E. Heekin '30, Cornell Club of Rochester; 220-yard dash: Herbert B. Eckert '30, Cornell Club of Youngstown; quarter-mile: Charles E. Treman, Jr., '30, Cornell Club of Buffalo; half-mile: Frederick G. Dulaff '30, Cornell Club of Cleveland; mile run: Rosewell G. Eldridge '30, Cornell Club of Michigan; two-mile run: Samuel R. Worden '29, Cornell Club of New York.

These cups were awarded for permanent possession. A new set will be given each year. The basis of award is improvement during the year, attitude toward the sport, and performance.

WAR MEMORIAL BIDS

Bids for the construction of the War Memorial and Boldt Tower in the group of men's dormitories on the Campus were opened on May 29, with the Tift Construction Company of Buffalo, of which Robert Tift '09 is an official, the low bidder for general contracting. The figure submitted was $528,244.

The contracts were not awarded, the bids of several firms being referred to a committee for study owing to the number of alternate bids included. It is expected that the contracts will be awarded early in June.

The receipt of bids for the construction marks the conclusion of efforts to provide funds for the building of the additional dormitories. The War Memorial campaign was successful in the raising of a good share of the funds. Contributions completed the fund for the erection not only of the War Memorial but of two wings of Boldt Tower.

Work is expected to start soon after the award of the contracts. The beginning of work will bring building on the Campus to a high point, as the women's dormitories on Wait Avenue are already in the course of construction.

The Tift Company bid represents the general contracting figure for both the War Memorial and Boldt Tower. The company's bid on the War Memorial was $475,939 and on Boldt Tower $52,305. Dall, Hayden and Treat of New York submitted a combined bid of $585,000. The Ward-Kurz Company Inc. of Ithaca was third with $598,500.

The Jamieson-McKinney Company of Ithaca submitted the lowest bid of $42,920 for plumbing and heating in both proposed buildings.

HYGIENE COURSE REVIEWED

The hygiene courses, given to freshmen and sophomores for several years, will be changed for the academic year 1928-9. The new requirement will be a thirty-hour recitation course, one hour per term for two terms, replacing the old requirement of a sixty-hour lecture course, one hour per term for four terms.

It is expected that the sophomore schedule will be lightened as a result and that smaller freshmen sections in the course will be made possible.

The contents of the course will be continued with few changes, but students will be required to do outside work in preparation for their classes. College credit will also be granted for the completion of the hygiene course in the future, one hour of credit to be given for each of the two terms.

In addition, the Medical Department will offer elective courses for those students desiring advanced work in the subject. Courses to be included as electives are: hygiene supervision of school children, first aid, school hygiene, industrial hygiene, rural and camp hygiene, and mental hygiene.

In the 100-yard dash Russell finished second to Howard Jones of Erasmus Hall High School, handicapped at fifteen feet. Russell ran from scratch and defeated Scholz for second place.

Norwood G. Wright '28, intercollegiate hammer throw champion, finished third in his specialty behind Connors of Yale and Dalenz, unattached. His best throw was 160 feet 5 inches.

Sid Robinson, N. Y. A. C. runner, who has been training with Russell at Cornell during the spring, won the mile run in 4.22 $\frac{1}{2}$ from scratch.

In 1926 Russell was intercollegiate champion in the 100- and 220-yard dashes. Both Russell and Robinson are planning to enter the tryouts for the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam.

NEW PNEUMONIA TREATMENT

A new method of treating pneumonia is being explored by Dr. Pol Coryllos, professor of clinical surgery at the Medical College in New York, and his associate, Dr. G. N. Binbaum. The method is a surgical one suggested when research on the question of "post-operative massive collapse," more generally known as shrinking of the lung after operation, was started in 1926.

A theory that pneumonia is caused by stoppage of a bronchial tube by infested mucus or secretion has been evolved, and it is thought that the bronchoscope, a metal tube equipped with an electric light to enable physicians to explore throat and chest passages, might be employed in removing such bronchial obstructions in the early stages of the disease.

In studying the collapse of the lung, Dr. Coryllos and Dr. Binbaum observed that the cause was apparently the complete stoppage of one of the bronchi and the absorption of the air in the affected lung by the blood vessels in the tissues of that organ.

They also noticed that the heart moved over to occupy the space vacated by the shrunken lung, that the diaphragm elevated its position to fulfil the same function, and that the sound lung expanded. Such phenomena have been reported in pneumonia also, and these and other similarities between massive collapse and pneumonia stimulated the physicians to further investigation.

They concluded that complete obstruction of a bronchus by mucus or secretion was the immediate cause of pneumonia as well as of massive collapse.

Since the use of the bronchoscope to withdraw the secretion gave relief in post-operative collapse, it occurred to the investigators that beneficial results might also be obtained by employing that instrument in pneumonia. Dr. Coryllos and Dr. Binbaum are developing a technique for treating pneumonia in accordance with this theory, but they insist on the point that relief of the local lung lesion with the bronchoscope does not take the place of with the use of serum to combat general infection.

The bronchoscopic treatment is simple, bloodless, and painless, and no ill effects have been noticed in clinical cases treated thus far. The investigators assert that nothing can yet be said of the efficiency of the treatment, but they hope that with the development of technique it may be of decided value.

REUNION TRAIN SERVICE

Dr. Bishop '13 Resigns

Leaves Post as Zoologist in State Museum to Join Faculty of University of Rochester

Sherman C. Bishop '13, zoologist in the New York State museum since 1916, has resigned to become professor of zoology in the Department of Biology at the University of Rochester. His resignation, the third from the Museum staff in the past few years, follows that of Ephraim P. Felt '94, State entomologist. At Rochester Dr. Bishop will have charge of a new course in zoology which he will institute.

At Cornell, Dr. Bishop, who was born in Sloatsburg, near New York, November 18, 1887, took the degree of B.S. During his four years he served as laboratory assistant in entomology. He was field assistant in the Departments of Plant Pathology and Entomology in 1914 and 1915 and biologist in 1915 and 1916, prior to his appointment as State zoologist on May 8, 1916.

He was a member of the original zoological expedition to the Okefinokee Swamp of northeastern Georgia in 1912. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Ornithological Union, the Society of Mammologists, Ichthyologists and Herpetologists, and of the Entomological Society of America.

THE COLLEGE WORLD

COLUMBIA has announced important changes in its curriculum, beginning next year. The specific changes are these:

1. Requirements for freshman and sophomore A.B. candidates: English A, Contemporary Civilization, and physical education, and two full-year courses, one from each of two of the following groups: mathematics, chemistry or physics, botany, zoology, or geology. Students may be relieved from these by passing achievement tests.

2. Installation of lecture courses requiring attendance but no pre-requisite nor examination, carrying credit for the degree in the same manner as laboratory work.

3. Installation of junior and senior reading courses to be conducted jointly by two or more instructors of different but allied departments.

4. Withdrawal of the course in general honors, and awarding of departmental honors jointly by the committee on instruction and the departments.

5. Assignment of maturity credits to advanced courses, with a requirement of sixty such credits for the A.B. degree and of twenty for students before exercising the professional option.

THE CLUBS

New England

The Club played host to thirty-five boys from that section of the country, at a smoker held at the University Club of Boston on May 25. The Cornell track team was in Boston that week-end for the Intercollegiates.

William G. Starkweather '92, past president of the Club, introduced the speakers. Coach John F. Moakley was the principal speaker. In his usual interesting manner he preached sound doctrine on athletic training, emphasizing his belief that a relatively mediocre athlete who is willing to work hard and conscientiously will in nine cases out of ten beat out the star who rides along on his reputation. Professor John R. Bangs '21, coach of the weight men, provided a running fire of comment on motion pictures that had been sent for the smoker by the Alumni Office in Ithaca. Captain Rollin H. Spelman '28 of the track team spoke from the angle of an undergraduate. W. L. Sweeny, instructor of English in the Revere High School, furnished the entertainment, with humorous impersonations and selections on the piano.

Philadelphia

Professor Vladimir Karapetoff spoke to a large and appreciative gathering of the Club at the luncheon on May 19. On the same day, Professor Karapetoff was awarded the Elliott Cresson Medal by the Franklin Institute.

On May 23, George Elliott, secretary of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, spoke on "Philadelphia Opportunities for Cornell."

At the next meeting, on May 29, the speaker was Dr. Francis Taitt, who made a stirring Memorial Day address.

June 13 will be the Philadelphia-Cornell Spring Day, featuring golf, dinner, and burning of freshman caps.

Binghamton Women

Officers for the year 1928-9 have been elected as follows: president, Mrs. F. H. Houghton (Helen L. Carey) '98; vice-president, Mary H. Patton '23; secretary, Margaret I. Kline '26; treasurer, Dr. Sophy Page Carlucci (Sophy E. Page) '02.

Harrisburg

The Club held a dinner on May 18 to which were invited representative high and preparatory school students from that section of Pennsylvania. Dr. George H. Ashley '89 presided and made the principal talk, with informal talks by Thomas Hall '93 and Erwin E. Haslam '96. Motion pictures from Ithaca were shown.

THE LINGUISTIC INSTITUTE

Two Cornellians will participate in the instruction given by the Linguistic Institute to be held at Yale from July 9 to August 17. Professor Herbert C. Elmer '83 will lecture on Latin Syntax and Professor Franklin Edgerton '05 of Yale will lecture on Sanskrit and Pali. Edgerton will also give a special lecture on "The Languages of India."

BOOKS

High School Administration

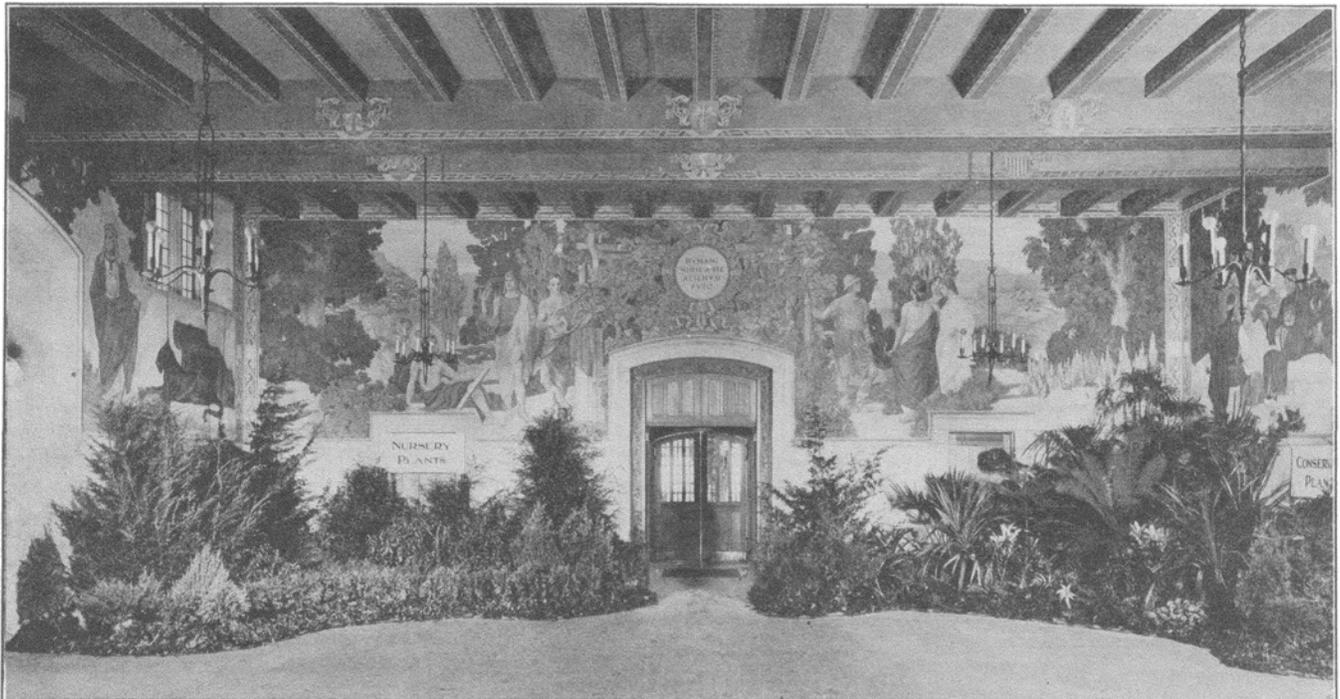

High School Administration. By Herbert H. Foster, Ph.B. '00, Professor of Education in Beloit College. New York. The Century Company. 1928. 20.5 cm., pp. xx, 665. Price $2.75.

Here is a business-like, scholarly, and entirely adequate treatment of the important subject of the administration of the high school. The day has gone by when the high school principal can go it hit or miss and expect to succeed without any waste of time or effort or any mistakes in his relations with his staff, without such guidance as is available in this book.

The first part deals with ideals, aims, and fundamental principles of administration. The principles are based on the general idea that the school is an assemblage of human beings working together to achieve a common and high end, and not merely a collection of equipment tools.

Part II deals with the faculty. It has been found by Koos that the average day's work for high school teachers is slightly over 8½ hours a day. In view of the highly intensive work to which the average teacher gives much of that time, it seems rather excessive. The average teacher is pretty certainly overworked, and it would be economy for the school to insist on shorter hours and greater efficiency during working hours.

Part III takes up the pupils and their needs, with chapters on personnel, physical, vocational, and social needs, and determining and providing for intellectual endowment and for academic achievement. The discussion of examinations is intelligent and fair. In many classes, notably English and history, it would be well to have two sets of marks, one of which might be letters and the other figures, to indicate the quality of subject matter and the manner of expression. Thus B75 might well indicate second rate expression and third rate knowledge of the subject.

THE SPRING FLOWER SHOW IN WILLARD STRAIGHT HALL—THE LOBBY

The show was held under the auspices of the Department of Floriculture and Ornamental Horticulture, the Society of Pi Alpha Xi, and the Cornell Florists Club.

The fourth part handles the studies; there are chapters on the curriculum, supervision of classroom teaching, special types of school work, and the daily program. There are sensible descriptions of the modern school library, laboratory, workshop, and gymnasium.

Next comes a discussion of the school life. We are coming to understand that over and above what the school teaches the pupils in the classroom, it imparts many valuable lessons as an institution. Lessons in manliness and womanliness, in ethics, the fundamentals of good citizenship are perhaps more valuable than all the facts the pupil learns from his immediate teachers. The life of the school as a whole, then, must be on generous lines, inspiring, and vigorous. For some pupils it makes all the difference between loving the school life and the tasks it involves, and loathing all that belongs to it.

Finally there are good chapters on management, finances, records, and reports, external relationships, and the small high school. The book concludes with several appendices, including an admirable bibliography of sixty-five pages and a good index. It will be widely used as a text for schools of education and for private readers, and will do much to elevate ideals of procedure in this field of effort.

THE NOMINATION OF TRUSTEES

NEXT WEEK the polls for Alumni Trustee will close and two new members will be added to the Board. Apparently any two of the four candidates will make acceptable Trustees. The results have usually been good. The Alumni Trustees have been capable members of the Board.

Yet regardless of the results secured, the method of choosing the nominees is intolerably casual. The directors of the alumni association, as a part of the routine of a single meeting, select candidates to fill out the number of nominees to five. If enough accept the opportunity we have "one more than twice as many candidates" as there are vacancies. The idea is good.

The system has never succeeded, however, in producing that "one more than" candidate. The natural distractions of purposeful lives have thus far interfered with the full fruition of the scheme. The desired result of having more losers than winners, of taking the emphasis off defeat, has never been accomplished.

Shall we have a preferential primary? We hope not. A mail canvas, however, among the various alumni officers—class secretaries, club secretaries, Cornellian Councilors—might help the directors of the Corporation to produce that fifth candidate for an office that should be the ambition of every alumnus who thinks enough of his University to be willing to devote a few days a year to its service.

Better yet, of course, the alumni groups as such or any ten alumni might stir themselves a bit and do their own duty themselves instead of sitting by and expecting the directors of the Corporation to do their thinking for them.

Architects Exhibit

Cornell Men Show Their Work in Final Art Exhibition of Year in Morse Hall

The work of thirty-one architects who received their training at Cornell features the final art exhibition in Morse Hall which opened May 25. Discussing the exhibition, Professor William H. Schuchardt '95 of the College of Architecture said:

"An invitation was recently issued by the College of Architecture to alumni who graduated some fifteen to thirty odd years ago, to exhibit photographs or drawings of completed buildings designed and executed by them as well as paintings, water colors, or other expressions of art. A gratifying response on their part has made this exhibition of absorbing interest not only to students and lovers of architecture, but to those who may desire evidence of the influence in the direction of high professional attainment which can be charged to the college. It will be of interest to Cornellians to know that many of the leading architects of the country received their first training on this Campus and that the ideals inculcated here are evident in the high character of the work shown."

Thirty-one Cornell architects, practicing their profession throughout the country, are represented, and there is shown every type of building—skyscrapers, warehouses, churches, schools, hospitals, museums, and residences. The exhibitors:

Frederick L. Ackerman '01, New York, Egbert Bagg '07 of Utica, George H. Burr '05 of Boston, Mass., George W. Conable '90 of New York, Herman Dercum '02 of Cleveland, Ohio, Alexander C. The Week on the Campus

INSTRUCTION is over for the school year. At one o'clock Saturday the teachers closed their notebooks with a sigh, and the students opened their notebooks, also with a sigh.

MEMORIAL DAY occurred last week. The University celebrated the holy day by conducting business as usual. Hill dwellers discovered that the Nation was rendering honor to its dead when grocers did not answer the telephone, when the mail failed to arrive, and when a confident push on the bank doors resulted in a stubbed nose. The University has been abused for its lofty disregard of legal holidays. Classes are to be held even on the Fourth of July. Is it sacrilege for the University to do its work while the Nation is kneeling before its shrines? Well, have a look at the Nation kneeling before its shrines next Fourth of July and then give your answer calmly.

THE FRESHMEN burned their caps in the annual bonfire last Monday evening. The wisecracks had wagged their beards dismally, remembering the revival of underclass warfare which has occurred this Spring and has been duly recorded in these columns. The police were mobilized and the officials of the Strand, the dark and bloody battle-ground of past years, quaked at every uplifted voice. But no sophomores appeared, no battle was waged, no mobs of Jacques descended to sack the city. The warlike satisfied their lusts by simply yelling very loudly for an hour. This would be a good way to wear out the will-to-fight in larger conflicts.

THE TRACKMEN of the varsity and freshman squads assembled on Thursday for a final get-together. A very pleasant air of mutual congratulation reigned, as was just and proper. The track team has had a season which was not far from brilliant. The John F. Moakley Cups, donated by Cornell Clubs of the country, were presented, and moving pictures of the athletes in action shown.

THE BIDS for the construction of the War Memorial dormitories and the Boldt Tower were opened on Tuesday. They have not been awarded yet, as other factors beside price enter into the question. For instance, if you or I should shoot in a low bid just for the fun of the thing the Committee would be justified in not giving us the contract. However, there can be no harm in noting that the low bid on general construction was $528,980, submitted by the Tift Construction Company of Buffalo. George Tift was '09. The Jamieson-McKinney Company of Ithaca was low bidder for the plumbing and heating, and George V. Cooper of New York made the low bid for the electrical installation. The A. B. See Company submitted the low bid for the elevators. Did you know there were going to be elevators? Think of the students riding up and down in elevators! Why, when we were students, you remember, we used to run down eight flights of stairs, carry a pail half a mile to the pump, break the ice with a hatchet, and run all the way back in order to wash before breakfast.

MR. A. B. SEE, whose company got the elevator contract, has just written a book proving that all higher education is dastardly folly. The University harbors no grudges, however. It will gladly buy his elevators, and would probably even be willing to make a swap: some elevators for some higher education.

AS YOU MAY have inferred from the foregoing, a little news has to go a long way this week. Don't be discouraged; we have been saving some facts.

THE ARNOT FOREST, down Pony Hollow way, had an informal opening last Saturday. Properly enough, there was no formal program, and no attempt to embellish Nature. The members of the Department of Forestry were present, and pointed out to a considerable number of visitors the chief features of the tract and explained the experimental work that is planned.

THE UNIVERSITY requirement in hygiene is to be altered from a sixty-hour lecture course to a thirty-hour recitation course, to be required of all freshman students. This is apparently a response to the grumbling of the undergraduates, which has been audible in recent years. They have complained a good deal about the necessity of learning something about hygiene. Perhaps they had ground for complaint; perhaps it was simply the fashion. In one year everyone grumbles about the gymnasium; the next about the food; the next about military drill. Yet the gymnasium, military drill, and the food remain the same.

WILLIS C. GORTHY '30 of Buffalo was badly injured on Friday when his motorcycle skidded at the corner of Stewart and Thurston Avenues and threw him against a tree. He suffered a fractured skull and collarbone. He was slightly improved at last reports. He is expected to recover unless his injuries prove to be more serious than now appears to be the case.

SIGMA DELTA CHI initiated as an associate member, last Monday, Barry Faris, general news manager of the International News Service. Three undergraduates were also initiated.

PHILIP J. STONE '29 is to continue during next year as chimesmaster. Robert J. Wallace '30 has been reappointed assistant chimesmaster, and P. L. Hulsander '31 and I. D. Shire '31 have been appointed to the staff as the result of the freshman competition. Charles B. Lipa '27, last year's chimesmaster, will ring the changes during the summer session.

PROFESSOR GUSTAV CASSEL of Stockholm, one of the world's foremost authorities on banking economics, lectured last Monday on "The Rate of Interest and the Bank Rate." Other lecturers were W. E. Marshall of New York, who spoke on "Lilies and their Culture," and Lester H. Germer '17, whose subject was "Optical Experiments with Electrons."

CLARENCE DARROW was a visitor in our midst last Friday. A Journal-News reporter interviewed him; Mr. Darrow, using his famous trial technique, turned the interview into a cross-examination of the reporter. Mr. Darrow, who had never been in Ithaca, found the early history of the University so interesting that he went to the Corner Bookstore and ordered a copy of the biography of Ezra Cornell. By the way, how many Cornellians have a copy of the biography of Ezra Cornell?

ARNOT FOREST OPENED

The Arnot Forest, near Pony Hollow between Elmira and Ithaca, was opened on June 2, with President Farrand, Judge Cuthbert W. Pound '87 of the Board of Trustees, and members of the Department of Forestry in attendance. The forest, which is a recent gift to Cornell from the heirs of Matthias Arnot, was visited by one hundred persons at its opening.

The tract is being used for experimental purposes by Cornell foresters. Professor Ralph S. Hosmer, Professor Arthur B. Recknagel, and Professor Cedric H. Guise '14 were in charge of the opening.

PHILIP J. STONE '29 of Washington, D. C., heads the board of the 1929 Cornellian as editor-in-chief. Others named are Louis B. Carver '29 of Hanover, Pa., art director; George S. Gladden '29 of Detroit, Mich., business manager; Edward H. Stiefel '29 of Maplewood, N. J., circulation manager; Alpheus F. Underhill '29 of Buffalo, senior associate manager; Josephine R. Hunter '29 of Ben Avon, Pa., women's editor; Dorothy A. English '29 of Woodhaven, associate women's editor; Emmett C. MacCubbin '30 of Baltimore, Md., Roger B. Nelson '30 of Jamestown, William T. Reed '30 of Dunkirk, Ernst H. Suerken '30 of Pompton Plains, N. J., and Morton D. Weill '30 of New York, junior associate editors; Edward R. Bose '30 of Rutherford, N. J., Charles M. Freeman '30 of New York, Pierson S. Phelps '30 of Kingston, and Lewis J. Wolcott '30 of Corning, junior associate managers, and E. Gest Hodge '31 of Cincinnati, Ohio, sophomore associate manager.

PROFESSOR BENTON S. MONROE '96, who has served on the Ithaca Civil Service Commission since March 1, 1921, has been appointed for a six-year term expiring June 1, 1934.

It has been our policy for several years to mail the things for you if you buy them at the Co-op. Post Office Station No. 2 is at the Co-op. It is a bother carrying packages to the Crew Race or Baseball Game. It is the way the Co-op can still help you.

von Engeln Concerning Cornell

Do you know enough about the University to talk convincingly to others who might become interested? Read "Concerning Cornell." Know the history, the traditions, and the illustrations in the book will help. The present prices are: cloth binding $3.00, leather $4.50.

Book of Views

There is hardly likely ever to be another edition. The supply of the present edition is getting low. You should have a copy. Only $4.00. Send your order to the Co-op.

Cornell Songbook

Have you ever seen a copy? Some of the Cornell songs you may know. Here is a chance to learn them all. Many know all the songs because they have a songbook. Only $1.75, postage paid.

Bookplates

There must be many more who would like to see samples. The samples are very convincing. They bring orders. Cornellians have libraries so why not bookplates? The price is only $1.50 per hundred. Printing the name is extra.
