PARAMOUNT POEMS

by

MORRIS BISHOP '13

Cornellians everywhere have been charmed by the verses of Professor Bishop as they have appeared from time to time in The Saturday Evening Post, The Westminster Gazette, Life, Judge, Harpers Magazine and other periodicals. Forty-nine of these vagrants have now been collected in an attractive volume.

By the Same Author

A GALLERY OF ECCENTRICS

Here's a book which, if you break it in tenderly and use it judiciously, will color in your hands like a good pipe and give you solace through many a long night. It's a volume, too, to present to any friend who has a nice discrimination in such matters as tobacco, jade, sound wines, lyric poetry, handsome women, and comfortable books.

By arrangement with the publishers, Minton, Balch & Company of New York either or both of these books can be easily obtained through Ithaca. Paramount Poems is $2.00—A Gallery of Eccentrics $3.50.

Tenth Alumni Convention Great Success

$200,000 Gift to Million Dollar Faculty Pension Fund Reported by Edwin N. Sanderson '87—
Rochester Club Shines as Host

The Tenth Annual Convention of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, held in Rochester October 17-18, was highly successful for several reasons, not the least of which is that the Cornell Alumni of that city have for many years taken second place to none in the strength of their club and in the enthusiasm of the individual members. Making the local arrangements for a general convention of alumni from all parts of the country was a relatively simple task for the Rochester group. At least they made it appear simple.

In the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS of next week a detailed story of the convention will be given. The summary at this time will touch only the higher spots.

The report of the Athletic Survey Committee was not read on the convention floor. That had been the plan but the Board of Directors decided that a more appropriate procedure would be to mail copies to the officers of the local clubs, at a later date. The decision of the directors was endorsed unanimously and without debate. Conant Van Blarcom '08, chairman of the committee as well as president of the Corporation, reported that the report had been accepted by the Directors and transmitted to the Athletic Council of the University.

In his report at the conclusion of his second five-year term as alumni trustee, Edwin N. Sanderson '87 discussed at some length the serious situation resulting from the shrinkage of the size of the pensions to professors by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. He quoted editorial references in the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS, made last spring, in which it had been computed that an endowment fund of one million dollars would go far toward a solution of the problem. Mr. Sanderson announced that from a non-Cornellian friend of the University he had secured the definite promise of one-fifth of that amount, the $200,000 to be paid when the other four-fifths should be in hand.

Roger H. Williams '95, the retiring trustee, also made his report which will be published later.

Officers of the Corporation were all re-elected: President, Conant Van Blarcom; vice-presidents, Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04, of New York, and Dr. Floyd S. Winslow '06, of Rochester; Treasurer, William W. Macon '98, of New York; Secretary, Foster M. Coffin '12, of Ithaca.

Twelve district directors of the Corporation were elected as follows: District No. 1: Thomas I. S. Boak '14, of Seneca Falls, New York; District No. 2: Ralph H. Shreve '02, of New York City; District No. 3: Charles R. Vanneman '03, of Albany, New York; District No. 4: Dr. Winslow; District No. 5: Chester T. Reed '03, of Worcester Massachusetts; District No. 6: Alfred D. Warner, Jr., '00, of Wilmington, Delaware; District No. 7: Benjamin O. Frick '02, of Philadelphia; District No. 8: Creed W. Fulton '09, of Washington; District No. 9: Van Blarcom; District No. 10: C. Ray McCallum '18, of Milwaukee; District No. 11: Edward Holmes '05, of St. Louis; District No. 12: Walter C. Yeatman '99, of Los Angeles. The three directors-at-large are Mrs. Finis E. Yoakum (Wilhelmine Wissmann) '11, of Berkeley, California; Dr. Crawford; and Weyland Pfeiffer '16, of Scarsdale, New York.

Other important items, briefly mentioned in this account, were the banquet on Thursday night, the speech of Judge Frank H. Hiscock '75, chairman of the University Board of Trustees; the enthusiastic endorsement of the activities of the Committee on Relations with Preparatory Schools under the chairmanship of Boak.

FUND TO HONOR TEACHER

A fund in memory of the late Professor Elizabeth Avery '97, for fifteen years an instructor in English in the Flushing High School, is being raised by admirers. The fund will be used to furnish a prize to be given each commencement to the student deemed most deserving by the English faculty of the school. Details may be obtained by writing to the principal of Flushing High School.

After she left Flushing, Dr. Avery had charge of the spoken English department at Smith College, where she effected a reorganization. She died on August 12, shortly after she had obtained a leave of absence from Smith College to devote her time to writing.

THE CLUBS

Buffalo

The Club held a send-off luncheon for entering freshmen on September 20, at the Hotel Statler. A hundred alumni and undergraduates turned out to wish success to the young fellows.

About twenty boys from Buffalo and vicinity who are about to enter Cornell were in attendance and were given insight into the ideals of their future university by former Senator Parton Swift '98 and James B. Wilson '19. Wilson is the coach of Lafayette High School football team, which for the past three years has won the interscholastic championship of Buffalo.

Charles G. Seelbach '19 furnished music with his own Cornell orchestra and Neil M. Willard '18 led the singing of Cornell songs.

The luncheon proved a great success and will be an annual affair in the future.

Chicago

At its regular weekly luncheon on Thursday, October 10, the Club elected the following officers: Roger S. Vail '06, president; Lewis Chamberlain '16, first vice-president; Francis P. O'Brien '19, second vice-president; Donald Hoagland '20, secretary; Henry H. Garrett '22, treasurer; Charles L. Felske '24, registrar; Edwin E. Sheridan '11 and Orville G. Daily '20, directors to serve three years.

A complete report of the successful activities of the Club during the past year was made by Daily, the retiring president, including the announcement of the special fund of $500 as a nucleus for the establishment of a permanent scholarship fund, long desired by the Chicago alumni. The Club looks forward to a most successful year under the able guidance of the popular "Rajah" Vail, and a continuation of Chicago's active interest in alumni affairs generally.

New York

The Club held its annual fall smoker on October 3. This year it commemorated the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Club. None of the "fathers" entered into any historical dialogues, and the dry eyes were few. "Tubby" Sailor '07 in his droll and inimitable manner mentioned a good many things everybody was glad to hear about. "Jay" Fassett '12 really told some new stories, but nobody was content until many of the old ones had been retold. He was a success as always. "Hibby" Ayer '12 ran the show, interspersing several of his own hits that are hits. Carl Fenton's Orchestra played during dinner, and the room was filled several times over.

Schenectady

The Club is sponsoring Troop No. 2 of the Boy Scouts. At the monthly meeting on October 10, the speakers were Adelbert Jones, scoutmaster of the troop, and E. L. Crabb, assistant scout executive of the city organization. Mr. Crabb has succeeded to the position formerly held by Kenneth B. Spear '23, who last spring moved back to Ithaca to become scout executive of the Louis Agassiz Fuertes Council of Tompkins County.

At the meeting in Schenectady every Cornellian present was given a list of activities wherein he could participate for the benefit of the troop. An added feature of the meeting was a talk by Kenneth A. Reeve '28 on the activities of the Schenectady Gliders' Club.

The Club accepted an invitation of Harold Warner Brown '98 for a party in December at his home. The next meeting will be a smoker on November 14, when a visitor from Ithaca will be Foster M. Coffin '12, Alumni Representative.

Washington

The Club held its first men's luncheon of the year on October 10. William B. Burruss, of wide reputation as a sales counselor, spoke on "Shakespeare the Salesman." He brought out the points of salesmanship as used by Shakespeare in some of his seven hundred characters, and made particular comparison of the sales methods used by the characters involved in the assassination and burial of Julius Caesar. The men of the Club will meet regularly for luncheon on the first Thursday of each month at the Hotel Hamilton. The hour is 12:30. All Cornell men are invited.

WEAI OPPOSES POWER CHANGE

Station WEAI, operating at the University, is opposing the application of a Baltimore station, WFBR, for an increase in power. The increased power would interfere with WEAI, according to Professor William C. Ballard '10 of the Department of Electrical Engineering.

Professor Ballard appeared October 16 in Washington, C. D., before the Federal Radio Commission to oppose the application. He was supported by George O. Sutton, engineer for the commission, who produced statistics showing that the State of Maryland has already had more clear channel assignments, more regional assignments, and more local assignments than it was entitled to on the basis of population.

DELTA CHI HAS ANNIVERSARY

Delta Chi celebrated the thirty-ninth anniversary of its founding at Cornell October 13. Judge Monroe M. Sweetland '90 of Ithaca addressed the alumni, members, and pledges.

Delta Chi was founded here as a law fraternity, but in 1921 it became a general college fraternity. From a single chapter it has grown to include thirty-six chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

BOOKS

Elizabethan Actors

A Dictionary of Actors and of Other Persons Associated with the Public Representation of Plays in England Before 1642. By Edwin Nungezer, Ph.D. '27, Assistant Professor of English in the University of Oklahoma. New Haven. Yale University Press. 1929. 22.5 cm., pp. viii, 438. Cornell Studies in English xiii.

In this useful volume Dr. Nungezer has assembled practically all the available information regarding actors, proprietors of theaters, stage attendants, and other persons connected with play production in England down to the closing of the theaters in 1642. For more than a century and a half Elizabethan scholars have been searching for information regarding theatrical folk, and it is well to have this information sifted, critically evaluated, and condensed into a handy volume like this one. There are something over seven hundred fifty articles, and the average length of each one is a little over half a page. A good many names, of course, are little more than names, while the author is obliged to give John Heminges seven pages, Edward Alleyn nearly eight pages, Richard Tarlton nearly eighteen pages, William Kempe seven pages, and Richard Burbage twelve and a half pages. Shakespeare comes in for less than a page; this indicates to some extent the meagerness of our knowledge of his actual connection with the theater. The select bibliography fills thirty-four pages. The book will prove indispensable to scholars.

In The Journal of Physical Chemistry for October Theodore G. Rochow '29 writes on "The Oiling of Leather." Wesley G. Varmoy, M.S. '25, discusses "Reduced Reactions." Professor Bancroft reviews "Introduction to Modern Physics" by Professor Floyd K. Richtmyer '04, "The General Properties of Matter" by F. H. Newman and V. H. L. Searle, the second edition of "Photochemische Versuchstechnik" by J. Plotbikow, and "Probability and Its Engineering Uses" by Thornton C. Fry.

In The Sibley Journal of Engineering for October Warren B. Flanders '02 writes on "The Trend of Capacity of Steam Turbines." Dr. Pearl G. Sheldon '08 writes on "Earthquakes and Earthquake Resistance Construction." Walter E. Darnell '29 describes "The Wattmeter Oscilloscope." Professor Hubert H. Race '22 and James R. Campbell, Jr., '29 write on "Dielectric Polarization and the Law of Superposition for Hard Rubber." Professor Wallie A. Hurwitz reviews "Elementary Differential Equations" by Thornton C. Fry. Professor Walter R. Cornell '13 reviews "Elements of Practical Mechanics" by C. R. MacInnes.

Alumni Interest Keen

Jervis Langdon '97, and Harold Flack '12, of Cornellian Council Report on Successful Trip

Jervis Langdon '97, president of the Cornellian Council, and Harold Flack '12, executive secretary, returned on October 9 from their good will pilgrimage to the Cornell Clubs of the West. They attended seventeen Cornell dinners and luncheons and report that they found everywhere an increasing interest in Cornell on the part of the alumni. They gave at each meeting a report on the latest developments on the Campus and showed moving pictures taken during the past two years.

Reports have already been given of the meetings held in Chicago, Milwaukee, and Minneapolis. News from other cities follows:

Seattle

Thirty-five alumni attended the dinner of the Cornell Club of Seattle at the University Club on September 19. Hays Matson '14 was elected president of the Club. Thomas D. Stimson '06 and Chester N. Reitze '05 were elected vice-presidents, and Andrew C. Denney '14 secretary-treasurer. Archibald S. Downey '96, the Cornellian Council representative in Seattle, presided.

Tacoma

A luncheon meeting was held in Tacoma September 20. It was the first Cornell meeting held in Tacoma in thirty years. A new club was formed with Judge Ernest M. Card '04 elected president. John A. Rea '69, vice-president; and Raymond P. Tarr '96 secretary.

Portland, Oregon

The dinner in Portland was held at the University Club on September 21. L. Vere Windnagle '17, president of the Club, presided. Wells Gilbert '93 gave some reminiscences.

Davis, California

The traveling Cornellians were entertained on Sunday, September 22 in Davis, en route to Sacramento, by Professors Chester L. Roadhouse '06 and G. D. Phillip who are connected with the State Agricultural College at Davis, California.

Sacramento

A dinner of the Cornellians of Sacramento was held at the Elk's Temple on September 23, with twenty-two present. This was the first Cornell meeting ever held in Sacramento. A new club was formed with Walter B. Townsend '21, president and Mrs. Gerard B. Lull (Margaret Young) '04 secretary-treasurer.

Northern California

The annual dinner of the Club was held at the University Club of San Francisco September 24, with sixty present. Glenn S. Warner '94, coach of the football team at Stanford, gave an interesting talk on football on the Coast as well as football at Cornell. Oscar Fernbach '95, financial editor of The San Francisco Examiner, presided. Arrangements were in charge of Harold W. Knowles '12, president of the Club.

Oakland

A tea was given for Mr. Langdon and Mr. Flack by the Cornell women of Northern California at the home of Mrs. Finis E. Yoakum (Wilhelmine Wissmann) '11 on the afternoon of September 25.

Santa Barbara

Leon R. Phillips '12 was the host at a luncheon at the University Club. A new club was formed with George R. Bliss '07 president and John A. Berger '12 secretary. While in Santa Barbara, Langdon and Flack called on Charles A. Storke '70, secretary of the Class of '70, who claims to be the first man to enter Cornell.

Los Angeles

The Chimes, the official publication of the Cornell Club of Southern California, makes the following report of the dinner held in Los Angeles on September 27.

"Langdon and Flack spoke entertainingly and told us of the latest Campus news. Flack furnished the material facts and Langdon gave us the spiritual manna. Both these ambassadors of good will and spreaders of gospel of Cornell proved, on close contact, real human fellows and made a lot of friends."

While in Los Angeles, Langdon and Flack called on Mr. and Mrs. Allen C. Balch, the donors of the Balch Halls for Women at Cornell. Both Mr. and Mrs. Balch evinced a real interest in Cornell, and are intensely interested in the successful working-out of the buildings which they have recently given. Clarence D. Coulter '18, president of the Cornell Club of Southern California, presided at this gathering.

San Diego

Twenty-two Cornellians attended the luncheon given at the University Club on September 28. More than one-half of the alumni resident in San Diego attended this luncheon. Of this number four had graduated from Cornell more than fifty years ago. J. William Fisher '05, the president, presided at the luncheon. Ralph T. Chace '09, secretary, was in charge of the arrangements.

Chace made the following report:

"A great deal of interest was shown, by those attending, in the many activities in which the University is engaged, and the plans they have for the future. The character of the country, and the distance from Cornell, is quite a problem with the alumni of the Western colleges, and visits such as Flack and Langdon's do much to help eliminate those handicaps."

Salt Lake City

A dinner of the Cornell alumni of Utah was held at the University Club on October 2. Judge William M. McCrea '00 presided. Taylor J. Chamberlain '14, secretary, was in charge of the arrangements. William Story, Jr., '96, president, was unable to be present on account of illness.

Ogden

A luncheon was given for Messrs. Langdon and Flack by Lawrence T. Dee '14 at Ogden, Utah on October 3.

Denver, Colorado

A dinner of the Denver Club was held at the University Club on October 6. Fritz Nagel '12, former president of the Club, presided. Arrangements for the dinner were made by James B. Kelly '05, secretary of the Cornell Club of Colorado.

Kansas City, Missouri

A luncheon was held at the University Club on October 7, at which Newell Lyon '97 presided. Plans were made for the reorganization of the Club. An election of officers will be held at the next meeting.

St. Louis

A luncheon meeting of the Club was held at the City Club on October 8. This luncheon was presided over by Ralph McCarty '96, president. Enthusiasm was engendered by Edward Holmes '05, secretary, who led the songs and furnished the humor for the occasion.

Langdon and Flack were entertained by the Cornell women of St. Louis at a tea given at the Wednesday Club meeting on the afternoon of October 8.

PLANS COLLEGE INN

A college inn, the Ezra Cornell, will soon be a reality in Ithaca. It will be located at University Avenue, Willard Way, and Lake Avenue, overlooking Cayuga Lake.

The Ezra Cornell will serve the University as a laboratory for the hotel management course in the College of Home Economics.

The directors of the corporation are the Hon. Frank A. Dudley, chairman; J. Leslie Kincaid, president; William M. Leffingwell '18, vice-president; Sherman Peer '06, secretary and treasurer; Frederick L. Ackerman '01, Hamilton Allport '15, J. Lakin Baldrige '15, Hamilton B. Bole '11, Jes J. Dall, Jr., '16, Victor Emanuel '19, J. Allen Haines '99, Morris S. Halliday '06, John McF. Howie, Jervis Langdon '97, William J. Norton '02, Herman G. Place '17, Paul A. Schoellkopf '06, Waldo F. Tobey '95, and Walter L. Todd '09.

Mr. Dudley is president of the United Hotels Company of America and vice-president of the American Hotels Corporation. As chairman of the educational committee of the American Hotel Association he fostered and developed the hotel management course at the University, a movement now accepted as one of the most progressive steps ever undertaken in the interest of the hotel industry.

Mr. Kincaid is president of the American Hotels Corporations and a director in the United Hotels Company.

ATHLETICS

Cornell 13, Princeton 7

The football team found itself Saturday and defeated Princeton on Schoellkopf Field by the score of 13 to 7. This was Cornell's first victory over Princeton in the new series that started in 1927, and the first time since 1907 that a Red and White eleven has triumphed over the Orange and Black.

The victory was deserved. Cornell was keyed up, played through four hard periods without a slump, played aggressive, alert, and intelligent football, and wound up with superb defensive play in the fourth period. The team clicked right along, though the going was harder in the second half and much of that time Cornell's rôle was defensive. As a final demonstration of quality, however, the team, after taking the ball away from Princeton on downs on the twenty-five yard line for the second time in ten minutes, launched an offensive that went forty-five yards for three first downs and was going strong when the game ended. Cornell used fourteen players and not a substitution was made until the last quarter.

The team was on its toes all the time except for a brief but costly minute right after it had earned a touchdown in the first period. There was no conscious let-down, of course, but perhaps their own enthusiasm, and that of the stands threw the players off their balance. For it was then that Eddie Wittmer caught a kick-off on Princeton's fifteen-yard line and ran through the Cornell team for a touchdown. Here was a test for any team's morale. What would be the effect of that devastating run? To the credit of this team be it said that it settled right down to business, and in a few minutes seized a good opportunity and scored again. That score, as it turned out, settled the game.

All of the scoring was in the first half. But the second half was not tame. On the contrary, those last two quarters were packed with anxious moments. It was either team's game almost up to the last. Princeton strove desperately to score and only a stout line and an alert and intelligent backfield defense against the pass checked the Tigers. To many Cornell's defensive play in the last period will linger as the high-light of the game.

Team play, power, and precision were big factors in Cornell's victory. The offense was grounded on the running attack, but it was a pass over the middle of the line that opened the way for the first touchdown; and it was a pass that brought the second touchdown. Also it was an interception of a Princeton pass that paved the way for that touchdown. The off-tackle drive was useful, but some devastating plunges through the middle of the line in which Scott was the biggest factor caused Princeton a lot of trouble. The tigers were pretty well "set" for off-tackle drives, but the plunges at center and guard caught them unawares.

On defense Cornell's tackling stood out. Usually it was sharp, decisive, clean-cut. The line played aggressively against heavier opponents. It conceded nothing. And Princeton's running game, while making quite a bit of yardage, was never threatening. The Tigers never got inside of Cornell's twenty-yard line by rushing. An intercepted pass put Cornell on the five-yard line once, but the ball was never carried beyond the twenty-yard mark and only twice inside of the twenty-five-yard line.

Princeton bothered Cornell quite a bit with a short pass behind the line that sent the runner through the line instead of out to the wings; but after several uncomfortable minutes that was solved.

Individuals who stood out were Captain Wakeman, who played a brilliant game; Scott, Stevens, and Johnson in the backfield; Martinez at left tackle. This was essentially a team victory, but these men counted. For Princeton, Wittmer, Bennett, and Zundel in the backfield were conspicuous, the ends were on the job, and the tackles also. The Tigers did not seem to be in as good condition as Cornell, and Coach Roper made many substitutions.

The Crescent was packed except for the extreme end sections and several thousand people sat on the Princeton side of the field. The crowd must have numbered at least 25,000. Princeton brought a good band to Ithaca and Cornell had two bands, the freshman musicians making their first appearance and doing a good job. Good feeling and good sportmanship dominated the party all the way through.

The victory brought great celebration on the field. The scene after the final whistle had declared Cornell the winner almost equalled the celebration staged after Cornell's 24-23 victory over Dartmouth in 1926. The players found it difficult to get away to their dressing rooms. Thousands of spectators formed behind Cornell's R. O. T. C. and freshman bands to parade around and around the field. The celebration was halted only for the few minutes that the singing of "Alma Mater" required.

Cornell offered a football unit, drilled to the split-second. But as the game progressed, the Red and White offered its own stars. Captain Wakeman heads the list. His brilliant defensive work and his aggressive following of the ball were tremendous factors in the Princeton defeat. He was in every play, often dashing through his side of the line to wheel and bring down a Princeton back going through the other side of the line. He was down the field under kicks, and it was his close following of the ball that provided Cornell's first opportunity to score.

Midway in the first period, Stevens got off a long punt to Scarlett, Tiger quarterback. Wakeman tackled him the moment he got the ball, and the Princeton man dropped it. Wakeman recovered for Cornell on Princeton's thirty-yard line. Cornell took it over for a touchdown, going into the air to gain needed yardage when line plays failed. Scott scored the touchdown on a plunge through center from the two-yard line. Wakeman kicked the goal.

CORNELL-PRINCETON—A MOMENT OF ACTION IN THE SECOND QUARTER

Scott starred in the Cornell backfield. He weighs 180 pounds, and hit the line savagely. He was given the ball frequently. When two or three yards were needed, it was Scott who got the assignment, and it was Scott who got through. His line plunging was very effective.

Stevens, a sophomore, was the other outstanding Red and White back. He played his greatest role in the second period when Cornell, with the score tied at 7-7, tallied what proved to be the winning touchdown.

One of Bennett's passes zoomed into the air. Stevens, covering his man, picked the ball out of the air at mid-field, and aided by fine interference ran down the sideline until he was forced out of bounds by Wittmer at Princeton's fifteen-yard line. It looked for a moment as if he were off for a touchdown, but he did not cut behind an interferer going in to take out Wittmer. The latter eluded the intereferer and got his hands on Stevens to halt the run.

The touchdown came anyway, and by the forward pass route. Johnson called for three line-plays, and they gained only a few yards. On the fourth down, Johnson stepped back and tossed the ball off right end to Stevens, who stood on the goal line. Wittmer was in on the play, but Stevens just got his hands on the ball as Wittmer tackled him. They fell in a heap on the line, but the ball was over for the touchdown. Wakeman's place-kick for the extra point was wide.

Princeton's touchdown was the result of the most spectacular play of the game, and it came with startling suddenness. After Cornell's first touchdown, Hunt kicked off to Wittmer, who took the ball on Princeton's fifteen-yard line. The Tiger back gathered speed quickly, shook off several tacklers, and was through Cornell's first line in a flash. Straight down the field he ran, leading three Red and White pursuers in the race to the goal line. Stevens caught him at the five-yard line, but Wittmer went over, and Barfield kicked the goal to tie the score.

The second half was less spectacular, but it was nevertheless a thrilling thirty minutes, for both teams showed fine defenses. Princeton's thrusts into Cornell territory were at all times dangerous, but the Red and White line, outweighed, fought a magnificent battle, and an alert passing defense stopped the Tiger's aerial forays.

Twice in the fourth quarter, Princeton, striving desperately to score, penetrated Cornell's twenty-yard line. And twice Cornell took the ball on downs, when Princeton passes were incomplete on fourth down.

With a few minutes left to play, Cornell again took up the offensive, and with Scott still plunging into the line, marched from its own twenty-five yard to Princeton's thirty-five yard line, making three first downs. Then the final whistle halted the fray.

First Period

Barfield's kick-off was returned twenty yards by Johnson to Cornell's thirty-one-yard line. Princeton was off-side on the first play. Johnson was stopped at the line, but Scott, in two plunges, made first down. Another off-side penalty for Princeton and two plunges by Scott gave Cornell another first down on Princeton's thirty-eight-yard line. Scott's second plunge netted him twelve yards.

Stevens and Handleman were stopped with slight gains. Johnson was nailed for a loss by Yeckley. Stevens punted out of bounds on Princeton's twenty-five-yard line.

A lateral pass, Wittmer to Scarlett, lost six yards. Scarlett punted to Johnson who returned the ball eight yards to Princeton's forty-seven-yard line. Scott failed to gain, and Cornell lost five yards for off-side play. Stevens, on a fake kick, gained seven yards off right tackle. Princeton was again off-side. Johnson was stopped by Barfield at right tackle. Cornell was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Another five-yard penalty was added for delaying the game, and Stevens kicked to Scarlett on Princeton's thirty-yard line.

Scarlett ran around left end for four yards, and Levick added three more. Wittmer punted to Cornell's fifteen-yard line, where Handleman downed the ball in a wild scramble. Three line-plays failed to gain, and Stevens punted sixty-five yards to Scarlett, who fumbled as Wakeman nailed him. Wakeman recovered on Princeton's thirty-yard line for Cornell.

Scott failed to gain at center. Stevens, on a delayed buck, went through center for nine yards, and Handleman made it first down on Princeton's eighteen-yard line. Stevens was stopped by Duncan, but Scott made four yards through center. Levick knocked down Johnson's pass to Lueder. Handleman passed to Scott for a first down on the eight-yard line. Scott got three yards at center, Stevens added three more, and Scott went through for the touchdown. Wakeman kicked goal.

Wittmer scored on an eighty-five-yard run from Hunt's kick-off. Barfield kicked goal.

Hunt kicked to Wittmer, who returned the ball thirty yards to Princeton's thirty-seven-yard line. Levick was thrown for a loss, and Scarlett kicked to Johnson on Cornell's thirty-five-yard line. Wittmer recovered Scott's fumble at midfield after

A SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION

TO the Rochester Cornellians goes well merited appreciation of those who attended the Convention, last week, for a program that was complete in arrangement and varied in entertainment. The Rochesterians have had every reason to have had the convention many years before the tenth, for their value to Cornell as a Club, as well as their opportunities for satisfactory and comfortable entertainment. It is a tribute to the restraint of this club that it has permitted the convention, year after year, to go elsewhere.

The present officers of the Alumni Corporation should also come in for a share of the praise. Undoubtedly, even before time has loaned perspective to the occasion the tenth convention must take credit for obviously showing the value of annual conventions.

Much progress was made on relations with preparatory schools, and on the project looking toward the consolidation of alumni agencies to the end that Cornell may eventually have a single, all-powerful, alumni control of all alumni activities.

To the so-called Committee of Seventeen should be accorded much credit for a valuable piece of research on Cornell's athletics. True, the report was withheld until after the end of the present football season, but the evidence of thoroughgoing effort and intelligent thought was obvious, and Cornell is to be congratulated that its alumni have not stultified themselves with an orgy of excesses paralleling those of the alumni of several other colleges, which give rise to the trade term among professional alumni of "athletic morons."

On the whole Cornell is to be congratulated on every phase of the Tenth Convention.

AN INTERESTING REVIVAL

The Dramatic Club will present a revival of that fine old American classic, "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room," Friday and Saturday evenings, November 1 and 2. You may or may not remember that the famous "Temperance Drama" which flourished for half a century or more was dramatized by William W. Pratt, Esq., from a long-forgotten novel of the same name, by T. S. Arthur. The Club will present "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" as nearly as possible in the form and manner that characterized it in its hey-day—the last decade or two of the nineteenth century.

A few of the high spots of the venerable drama are "Father, Dear Father, come home to us now," sung by little Mary Morgan; the fight in the tavern; little Mary's fatal injury; her touching departure for another and a better world; Morgan's attack of delirium tremens; Morgan's great reformation scene; and the murder of Willie Hammond.

Carlsark Battles Storm

Ketch Manned by Cornellians Completes Atlantic Voyage at Gibraltar—
Weagant Writes Story

A more detailed story of the Carlsark, forty-six-foot ketch manned by Cornellians, and its voyage from the Azores to Gibraltar comes to light in special correspondence published in The New York Times for October 13. The author, Carl L. Weagant '29, is the owner and skipper of the Carlsark.

On the voyage from the Azores, the Carlsark sighted a steamer, and Henry M. Devereaux, one of the crew, was put aboard, leaving as able seamen Joseph M. Rummeler '29 and Dudley N. Schoales '29.

Weagant's story tells of the loss in mid-ocean of Cheerio, the cat and mascot of the vessel. "On the morning of the 14th (August 15) Cheerio was last seen taking his daily scamper on the forward deck. All search proved fruitless, and we concluded that a swinging pulley had knocked him overboard, or else some siren flying fish had beckoned him to follow her down to Davy Jones's locker. We missed the noisy little devil with his katzenjammers and kittenish pranks. However, that very noon the long-awaited breeze came out of the west and, like old salts, we blamed our ill luck on poor Cheerio, vowing that the next cat should be as black as a Gulf Stream squall and not gray like the morning watch....

"Owing to the misty weather we did not sight the European Continent until forty miles within the bight of the Iberian Peninsula, when the lofty Sierra Madres threw off their hazy cloak to give us our first glimpse of the Old World.... The morning of August 21 found the good ship in sight of old Gibraltar but with little wind and a rapidly falling barometer. By afternoon the wind was blowing a half gale directly out of the Straits, but despite it we managed to beat our way to Cape Trafalgar, where we started a battle second only to that waged by Lord Nelson in the same waters. We had encountered what the Spanish mariners call a 'Levanter,' and shall never forget it.

"Having come some 4,000 miles and now with our goal in sight we were determined to continue a beat to windward in what the naval authorities at Gibraltar later classed as a 'howling gale' when boats ten times our tonnage were running for shelter or hove to.

"The mainsail blew out before we came out of the lee of Trafalgar. It wasn't missed, as there was all we could hold with only jib and mizzen-sail. As we reached the middle of the Straits the wind in all its rage tore our mizzen; so we quickly substituted the storm trysail. By midnight we had reached the Moroccan coast and sought quieter water in Tangier Bay,

The Week on the Campus

IT was Cornell's Day; such a day as has been vouchsafed to us but seldom in these dark years. Even those who are accustomed to hold that too much fuss is made about victories, sport, and non-intellectual activities found themselves strangely hoarse when the game was over. Many who deplore the public lack of gentlemanly reserve at such exhibitions, in comparison with the polite "Played, sir; played indeed!" at the cricket matches at Lord's, were discovered yelling from the stands advice and warnings, which were fortunately not heeded by the team. And those who, in the past, have sung in a tentative minor: "Cornell victorious; the champions of all!" (an assertion denied by all evidence) belloyed their hymns with that air of conviction so essential to sacred psalmody. In short, the mood of Ithaca might best be rendered in the consecrated words:

"O day of rest and gladness,
O day of joy and light,
O balm of care and sadness,
Most beautiful, most bright!"

EVERYBODY who is anybody was at the game, of course, from the President to the least freshman. Others observed were George Eastman, of the Eastman Kodak Company, and Franklin D'Olier, former commander of the American Legion.

YOU WILL FIND the financial report of the Athletic Association on another page. Look first at the operating surplus of $23,386.20. That is more than four thousand dollars better than last year; it is large enough to allay any apprehensions, but not large enough to rouse any alarm about sport. Football made thirty thousand more than in 1927. Thank heaven for that; as a result baseball, track, rowing and the rest were enabled to lose a great deal more.

SATURDAY'S HAPPINESS was, no doubt, ephemeral. But an abiding peace was brought to Faculty bosoms by the announcement, on Friday, of the activity of the Alumni Association in the creation of a pension fund. Many of the Faculty were put in a very bad way by the announcement, last spring, that the Carnegie Pension Fund would drastically diminish its promised payments. Professors who are close to the retirement age found that the support of their latter years was suddenly withdrawn. Professors are no more improvident than any other group; but when you have been counting on a pension you don't usually struggle to create a retiring fund of your own. There have been some very bad moments in professorial families recently when the head of the house retired to his study to work out sums to which there were, apparently, no answer.

CORNELL has no adequate pension system of its own. The Carnegie Fund deals only with the older Faculty members. The younger professors greet the creation of a University Pension Fund with a gratitude so keen as to be almost in bad taste.

THE COLLEGE OF ARCHITECTURE is showing an exhibit of its prize-winning work in design and fine arts in the Morse Hall gallery. Other exhibits are to follow later in the year. An informal exhibition of the work done by George Frazer '21 while he was prizeman at the American Academy in Rome is likewise being shown in White Hall.

THE RIFLE TEAM has elected Francis E. Mulvaney '32 captain and Eric R. Osborn '30 manager. The club plans several telegraph meets, an outdoor meet in the spring, and a trip in the course of the winter.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB put on an effective presentation of Shaw's "Man of Destiny" with two of the same master's shorter plays. David Kaplan '31 as Napoleon and Louis Harris '32 as Giuseppe the innkeeper bore the individual honors.

THE WOMEN have been enjoying class picnics on the shore of Beebe Lake, thus taking the best advantage of these tingling autumn evenings.

BISHOP G. ASHTON OLDHAM '02, bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of Albany, was the Sage Chapel preacher on Sunday. Bishop Oldham is one of the most eminent of our clerical alumni, and one of the most welcome of our chapel visitors.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT has commissioned Abram V. Tunison '30 a first lieutenant in the Field Artillery, and G. A. Rothjen '30 a second lieutenant in the same arm.

PROFESSOR Howard W. Riley '01 of the Rural Engineering Department of the College of Agriculture addressed the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in Amherst, Mass., last Saturday.

THOSE OF YOU who make Ithaca from time to time should note that there are now five daily buses between Ithaca and Syracuse, connecting with the coast to coast services of the Colonial Greyhound Lines.

BUT INTERNAL COMMUNICATIONS decay as intercity service increases. The Cayuga Heights trolley line, familiarly known as the Great Northern, was discontinued last Friday after fifteen years of faithful service. During most of those years it ran chiefly on sentiment. The present management of the Ithaca Traction Company has at length rebelled against supplying such lavish service for the benefit only of a few stray domestics. The Heights have been almost completely motorized; it remains only for the householders to motorize their domestics.

"THIS IS NOT THE AGE of man; this is the age of insects," writes Professor James E. Boyle of the Department of Rural Economy in the current Atlantic. "As fast as one bug is destroyed we discover two new ones to take his place. Hence our worst pests today are bugs which our grandfathers never heard of. We may venture the prophecy, therefore, that our grandchildren will be struggling with new and more harmful insects than we now know. Even at the present moment entomologists estimate that we are acquainted with only one kind of insect out of eight or ten actually in existence. . . They are all our competitors—we are all bidders for the world's limited food supply. Who shall inherit this earth, man or bug, will depend on the last analysis on which creature is most efficient in securing his daily ration." Professor Boyle concludes with a tribute to Professor John Henry Comstock '74 and Anna Bostford Comstock '85, pioneers in the study of entomology and among its leaders during the last half century.

THE COLLEGE WORLD

VIRGINIA this year has 2,238 students, more than last year. In the college there are 1,281, in law 285, in medicine 232, in engineering 179, in education 97, in the Graduate School 164. In the last summer session there were 2,016.

HARVARD undergraduates in good standing, except freshmen, will no longer be required to attend the last class immediately before or the first class immediately after a one-day holiday.

THE CATHOLIC Students' Travel League has just been organized, with the primary purpose of serving the needs of Catholic students going abroad. The executive secretary will be William V. McCarthy, and the officers are at 551 Fifth Avenue. Forty tours to Europe in 1930 have been outlined, nearly all of which include a visit to the Passion Play at Oberammergau.

THE VERMONT University store last year did a business of $59,000. A decade ago it was $18,000.

THE YALE Alumni Weekly lists nineteen colleges and universities which either were founded by Yale men or had Yale graduates as first presidents. Cornell is of course on the list.

THE YALE Alumni Directory, just issued, lists 35,825 living Yale men.

WISCONSIN started the year with a record enrollment of 9,238, nearly 400 more than the figure of 1928. This year's freshmen, like those of last year, were required to arrive on the Campus three days before registration, for orientation.

COLUMBIA GAME LUNCHEON

At the Columbia game, Saturday, November 2, a buffet luncheon, particularly for the alumni and their friends, will be served in Memorial Hall of Willard Straight Hall from 11:30 to 1:30. There will be no luncheon served in the Drill Hall.

Princeton had lost five yards for off-side play. Handleman intercepted Wittmer's pass on Cornell's forty-five-yard line and ran fifteen yards as the first quarter ended. Cornell 7, Princeton 7.

Second Period

Scott made five yards at center. Zundel intercepted Stevens's pass on Princeton's twenty-three-yard line. Cornell was off-side and Princeton made a first down. Wittmer's pass was incomplete. Wittmer made five at right tackle, and Zundel added first down at midfield. Princeton was off-side. Wittmer made four. Bennett's long pass to Yeckley was knocked down by Scott on Cornell's five-yard line.

Bennett kicked out of bounds at Cornell's twenty-yard line. Johnson was stopped by Barfield. Stevens made four yards at left end. Stevens's pass was intercepted by Bennett on Princeton's thirty-five-yard line, and the Princeton back, who replaced Scarlett, ran it back thirteen yards. Wakeman nailed Levick for a three-yard loss, and Princeton lost five more for off-side play. Wittmer tried two passes and both were incomplete. Bennett kicked to Johnson, who ran back nine yards to Cornell's thirty-one-yard line. Handleman made a yard at center. Johnson, on a fake kick, made seven. Scott scored first down on Cornell's thirty-seven-yard line. Two line plays failed, and Stevens dropped Johnson's pass. Stevens kicked to Zundel on Princeton's thirty-three-yard line.

Bennett made nine yards on a lateral pass play. Wittmer made the first down. Stevens intercepted a pass on Cornell's forty-five-yard line, running forty yards. Scott made a yard at center, Stevens added two more, and Scott got three more yards. Johnson passed to Stevens, who scored a touchdown. Wakeman missed the goal.

Hunt kicked to Wittmer who ran thirty yards to midfield. Wittmer's lateral pass to Bennett gained five yards at left tackle. Bennett passed to Lea for a twenty-five-yard gain. Bennett's pass grounded. Bennett's pass to Wittmer made a first down on Cornell's eighteen-yard line.

After one line-play, Princeton tried three passes, two grounding. Handleman intercepted the third pass on Cornell's three-yard line. Handleman made five yards. Scott went through for first down on Cornell's eighteen-yard line. Stevens punted to mid-field as the half ended. Score: Cornell 13, Princeton 7.

Third Period

Wakeman kicked off to Reinmund, who returned the ball twenty-five yards to the Tiger thirty-yard line. Three plays gained eight yards. Then Bennett kicked to Johnson, who returned nine yards to Cornell's thirty-four-yard line. Princeton was off-side twice, Cornell getting a first down on its forty-eight-yard line. Two plays failed to gain, and Stevens' forward pass was dropped by Handleman. Stevens kicked over the goal line for a touch-back.

Zundel, in two plunges made seven yards, but Bennett lost ground. Bennett went through for twenty yards. Zundel made another first down on two plays. Princeton was off-side, and Bennett's pass to Zundel brought no gain. Zundel hit center for three yards. Bennett passed to Lowry off right end for six yards. Bennett kicked to Johnson who was tackled by Barfield on Cornell's twelve-yard line.

Princeton was again off-side. Johnson recovered a Cornell fumble, losing a yard. Stevens kicked to Bennett, who returned the ball thirteen yards to midfield. Three plays gained six yards, and Bennett kicked out of bounds on Cornell's thirty-yard line. Stevens turned left end for seven yards. Handleman, in two plays, made first down. Cornell was stopped in two plays, but Stevens, on a fake kick, made six yards as the period ended. Score: Cornell 13, Princeton 7.

Fourth Period

Stevens kicked to Reinmund on Princeton's forty-five-yard line, and the Tiger back returned nine yards. Zundel made three at center. Cornell was off-side and Wittmer went through for first down on Cornell's thirty-six-yard line. Bennett was stopped, Wittmer in two plays made a yard, and Bennett's pass to Wittmer was incomplete, Cornell taking the ball on downs on its thirty-three-yard line. Kanich replaced Handleman and gained two yards in two plays.

Johnson got loose for fifteen yards, but Cornell was penalized fifteen yards for holding on the play. Stevens lost three, and Scott failed to gain. Stevens kicked to midfield. Zundel made three, but Wittmer failed to gain. Princeton was penalized five yards for delaying the game. Two passes by Lowry were incomplete, and Cornell took the ball at midfield on downs.

Johnson failed to gain, and Stevens was thrown for a yard loss by Wittmer. Stevens kicked to Scarlett on Princeton's twenty-yard line. He returned the ball five yards. On the next play, Scarlett swept around Cornell's right end for forty yards. The play was a lateral pass, Wittmer tossing to Scarlett.

Football Only Sport to Make Profit

Annual Financial Statement of Athletic Association Shows Gain of $145,189.72—Surplus Available

The annual report of the Athletic Association for the year ending August 31 shows that football, of all sports, alone returned a profit. The Association closed the year with gains in football and in the general account, leaving an operating surplus available for the reduction of indebtedness of $23,387.20.

The report follows:

1. The item of cost in all team accounts includes guarantees and distributive shares paid to visiting teams.

2. The Navy Account includes cost of, and receipts from the observation train at Ithaca, and of observation train tickets at Poughkeepsie.

3. The general account is credited with such general items of receipt as membership and winter sports tickets (none of which are credited to any sport), Spring Day Circus, etc. It is debited with such items of disbursement as interest on indebtedness, administration salaries and expenses, new construction, etc.

Zundel made four and Scarlett five yards. Zundel went through for a first down on Cornell's twenty-five-yard line. Scarlett lost five yards when Wakeman broke through to nail him. Wittmer made four, and Scarlett two yards, but Lowry's pass on fourth down to Wittmer grounded, and it was Cornell's ball on Cornell's twenty-two-yard line.

Kanich made three yards, and Johnson dashed through for a first down on the thirty-two-yard line. Scott made four at center, and Kanich added two more. Scott went through for first down at midfield. Scott gained eight yards in two plays. Kanich fumbled going through the next play, but Stevens, interfering, picked up the ball and ran to Princeton's thirty-five-yard as the game ended.

Harriers Victorious

The cross-country team won its first race of the season October 18, defeating Alfred's harriers over a five-mile course, 15-68. Cornell, gaining the first five places, had a perfect score. Captain Levering led the field, running the distance in 26.06½ and finishing more than fifty yards of his teammate, Ranney.

Alfred's runners were led by Vance. Last year Alfred defeated Cornell over the same course.

The summary:

1. Levering, Cornell	26.06½
2. Ranney, Cornell	26.25
3. Eibert, Cornell	26.49
4. Eckert, Crosby, Higley, Cor.	27.08

SPORT STUFF

Last Saturday afternoon I sat in the information booth. The experience is somewhat different from watching the game, but in many ways far more diverting.

Three minutes after the kick-off one alumnus became unconscious, colorless, and rigid. The theory was that he had been drinking. The members of the fence patrol who slipped him in the ambulance thought he was dead. At the moment I was afraid he wasn't. We haven't found out yet.

One man came up to read the gas meter. We haven't any gas at Schoellkopf.

A lady who said she represented the Parent-Teachers' Association wanted to sit in the press box in order to study the moral influence of college football on girls and boys. She was told to take the air in large quantities. That's where we have the advantage of the poor teachers. They have to suffer in polite silence.

It's remarkable how many friends the visiting coach has on the eve of the game. At least a score wanted to be passed in to see Bill Roper. We offered to send a compet in with a card or a note but no one took advantage of the opportunity.

One striking looking blonde said she was the wife of one of the scouts and had lost her husband in the crowd. Wouldn't we let her into join him in the scouts' box? When we asked her "What name?" she couldn't remember. That was one of the most pathetic cases of amnesia we have ever seen. When last observed she was walking in the general direction of the Lehigh Valley station. These railroads are more credulous.

You don't have to see a football game to know what's going on. The pitch, volume, and location of the cheers, groans, and imprecations indicate at any moment just what the situation is. R. B.

while we set to work sewing the mizzensail in the light of the red African moon.

"It was impossible to come about into the wind, as the slatting of the sails would have rent them into a thousand pieces, so we executed a more dangerous manoeuvre and giped around, facing out into the open Straits again in all the gale's fury. Before we had cleared the famous Pillars of Hercules our wounded mizzensail fell again, shattered, so on went the trysail.

"By this time the seas were tremendous and an occasional comber would break, shoving the Carlsark sideways for twenty-five yards; but our worthy little ship always remained on top.

"About three o'clock in the morning a grandfather comber struck us near the bow, smashing the jib to smithereens.

"Dud and Joe were cat-napping below in their oilskins and the impact of the wave plus the machine-gun fire of the slatting remnants of the jib, brought them to the deck to rescue the pluckily little sail. The lashing wind had fouled the ropes aloft and the jib would not come down.

"Rummler, as mad as a hornet, climbed the mast and went to work on the lines, swaying about like a fly on a cow's tail. How he stuck was a miracle, but he accomplished his purpose, returning to the deck rather battered. It was a dangerous feat and not necessary, although it served to calm his rage.

"We were left with only a storm trysail, which carried us back to Trafalgar, whence we had departed twenty-four hours before."

In the January number of The Bryologist Professor A. LeRoy Andrews reviewed "Morphologie und Physiologie des Formwechsels der Moose auf genetischer Grundlage" by Fritz von Wettstein.

PRESIDENT HAS BUSY WEEK

President Farrand last week had one of his busiest weeks, keeping speaking engagements in several sections of the country and getting back to Ithaca in time to witness the Cornell-Princeton football game.

He spoke October 14 at the one hundredth anniversary of Illinois College at Jacksonville, Ill. The celebration also marked the twenty-fifth year of the presidency of Dr. Charles H. Rammekamp '96.

On Thursday, October 17, he addressed the tenth annual convention of the Alumni Corporation and was the guest of honor at a reception Thursday evening. That night he boarded a train for Providence, R. I., where he spoke Friday at the inauguration of Dr. Charles A. Barbour as President of Brown University.

Help Burn the Mortgage

Buy a

Life Subscription

CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS

for $50

The Corporation has recently purchased its building and adjoining real estate to a total valuation of nearly $100,000. The mortgages are to be reduced from the sale of the life subscriptions.

The Cornell Alumni News Publishing Corporation herewith offers life subscriptions for the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS for fifty dollars cash.

Life subscriptions may be made out to an individual or they may be issued jointly in the names of husband and wife. Obviously they cannot be made in the name of an organization.

The balance on your present annual subscription will of course be refunded on receipt of the life subscription payment.

A life subscription will eliminate the bother of the annual bill for four dollars.

When You are in Ithaca Make the Co-op Your Headquarters

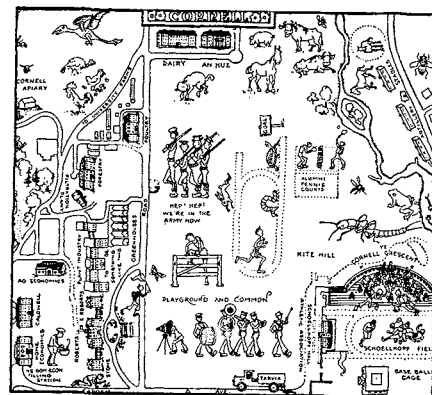

We Mail Your Purchases for You

When one is hurrying from a luncheon to a ball game or another group meeting it is an easy matter to lay down a package and forget to pick it up. To save you the trouble the Co-op mails your packages for you. Spend a little time at the Co-op and buy Cornell things.

Postcards of the Campus

Visitors to the campus wish to send a description to their friends. Postcards can now be mailed with one cent stamps. More postcards are being used. Viewbooks cost a little more but the description is better. The "Book of Views" leads when a good description of the campus is wanted.

The Campus Map $1.50

The campus map was the biggest item at Christmas time. Some did not buy because they had not seen one. Here is your opportunity while you are in Ithaca. The Co-op is conveniently located on the campus.

A place for alumni that will be pleasant to stop at for games, reunions or just to make a visit.

Organized by a small group of alumni, without profit to themselves, but it should be owned by the alumni body in general.

Approved by the University—needed by the alumni and the University community and useful to the hotel management course as a laboratory.

An unusual management contract, at actual cost plus a fixed fee of $3,625 per year with the United Hotels Company, assures efficient and profitable management.

To avoid the experience of other college inns where two or three years were required for organizing and financing at a large cost and so that ground can be broken late this fall, the Cornell Inn Corporation urges the support, through a substantial subscription, of every alumnus.

$400,000—5½% 20-Year First Mortgage

Cornell University has agreed to loan on first mortgage and at the rate of 5½% up to 50% of the cost of the land and buildings which amount is now estimated at $400,000. The first mortgage loan will not exceed this sum.

12,000 Shares—6% Class A Stock Par Value $50.00 Callable at $55

The A stock is entitled to 6% non-cumulative dividends. 50% of earnings, after payment of dividends, to be set up as sinking fund for retirement by call or lot. Each share to have one vote. Extra dividend of 3% permissible in any year after payment of sinking fund.

2,400 Shares No Par Class B Stock

Each share entitled to one vote and, after retirement of A, may receive dividends.

OFFERING

The Finance Committee offers 2,000 units, consisting of five shares of Class A stock and one share of Class B stock at $250 per unit.

Subscriptions should be sent to
