

CU Requests $1.6 Million Appropriation Supplement

Cornell officials will present a request to the New York State Legislature for approximately $1.6 million in supplemental appropriations for the Statutory Colleges and for the Geneva Experiment Station. The request has been transmitted to SUNY for presentation to the Legislature.

The 1975-76 budget approved by the Legislature on March 26 cut $648,600 from the budget proposed by Governor Hugh Carey. Carey's budget had reduced support for research, extension and other programs by $641,000 from last year's level, a total reduction in program funds of $1,289,600 which more than offset increases provided for inflation and salary adjustments.

These cuts forced statutory unit heads to plan reductions in the size of their programs and to terminate some 90 positions. Because of severe inflation over the past year, the effect of funding reductions on the college programs for instruction, research and extension is even more severe than is indicated by comparing this year's budget totals with last year's, according to Thomas L. Tobin, coordinator of state relations. "Approximately $1.6 million of supplemental budget appropriations will be required to maintain programs at levels approximating those of last year," he said.

Amounts requested for restoration in supplemental budgets are, by unit: Agriculture and Life Sciences, $505,000; Veterinary $298,908; Industrial and Labor Relations, $282,900; Geneva Experiment Station, $264,000; Human Ecology, $193,016; and General Services, $87,000.

Hardest hit by the Legislature's budget action was the School of Industrial and Labor Relations, whose budget was reduced an additional $204,000 beyond cuts of $95,000 in the Governor's budget. Dean Robert B. McKersie in a memorandum to ILR faculty, students and staff said cuts would be made "in the broad area of extension and public service."

Details of these cuts include reductions in the school's labor studies program, the in-service training program for trade union personnel, the Conference Center, publications, the institutional development program and the placement office. ILR students have protested the incorporation of the placement office into the Office of Resident Instruction, with the elimination of the position of placement coordinator.

ILR's supplemental budget request covers the following areas: $150,000 for the labor studies program, which McKersie said involves more

World Food Day

McHugh to Talk About U.S. Policies

April 17 is national World Food Day. Communities across the country will be sponsoring lectures and exhibits to help teach themselves about the world-wide crisis as well as nutrition problems in the United States.

In Ithaca, World Food Day activities—including slide shows, workshops on nutrition and vegetarian cooking, panel discussions on international agriculture development, and movies—are being organized by the Coalition for the Right to Eat (CRE).

One of the highlights of Ithaca's World Food Day will be a speech by Congressman Matthew F. McHugh on "U.S. Policies and Priorities Concerning the World Food Crisis" at 8 p.m. at the Alice Statler Auditorium. McHugh, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, was one of the co-sponsors of the recently passed bill which prevented a proposed increase in the price of food stamps.

Continuous World Food Day events will be held on the Cornell campus. Free bus service (details to be announced) will be provided between the Ithaca Commons and Willard Straight Hall for community residents who would like to participate in the campus events.

Downtown, all churches will ring their bells at noon on the 17th in acknowledgement of World Food Day, and movies on the food crisis will be shown at the Tompkins County Library. Events are also being planned at Ithaca College.

CRE was formed in September. It now numbers about 80 individual members, and more than 20 member groups, such as Mainline, the Ananda Marga Yoga group, the Interfraternity Council at Cornell, S.O.S. and many more.

Since September, the Coalition was raised more than $6,400 for famine relief which it has sent to UNICEF, according to Arne Youngerman, a Cornell graduate student who was one of the founders of CRE.

"We decided to use UNICEF as the distributing agency for the funds we collect because UNICEF takes a very small percentage of contributions for administrative costs," said Youngerman.

"In fact," he added, "UNICEF takes nothing out of funds designated specifically for famine relief—the entire contribution goes to provide food for those who are starving in such regions as the Sahel district of Africa."

Youngerman said that the $4,700 sent by CRE to UNICEF

Don't Tape Campus Mail

Don't laugh, little things mean a lot. Looked at from the perspective of one year and the entire Cornell Community that two-inch piece of tape unnecessarily used to seal campus-mail envelopes stretches more than 110 miles above McGraw Tower, way out of sight. And so is its cost. More than $3,000, according to the Office of General Services. The office says seven of the 11-million inches of tape used on campus in one year is for sealing campus mail. The flaps can be tucked in in most cases at no cost and a small area of the envelopes sealant used in extreme cases. Tape for photo donated by Photographer Russ Hamilton.

Task Forces Formed; All Groups Named

With appointments announced this week, membership on the task forces in the Cornell University study of priorities is complete, according to Ian R. Macneil, study director.

Macneil named three new members of the task force on University health services: Edward A. Lutz, professor of agricultural economics; Daphne A. Roe, associate professor of nutrition, and Gordon J. Cummings, professor of rural sociology.

Macneil also announced the appointment of four students to various task forces: Judith C. Shaul, Arts '75, will join the student academic services task force; Lauryn H. Guttenplan, Arts '77, will serve on the financial aid policy and administration, tuition levels task force; Deborah A. Lathen, Arts '75, joins the minority programs task force, and Barbara J. Gluckstern, Arts '76 will become a member of the self-governing structures task force.

Charges to 13 forces have been completed and are available to the public in the Public Information Office, 114 Day Hall. Others will be made available as they are completed, Macneil said.

Second Student Trustee Election Procedures

The new election for student trustee will be held Wednesday through Friday, April 16-18. All Cornell students—graduate and undergraduate—are eligible to vote.

This second election was mandated by the University Senate, which ruled that the winner of the February student trustee election was ineligible, since he was not a registered student at the time of and preceding the election.

Students may vote by presenting a valid student I.D. card at any one of nine polling places on campus (see complete list of polling places with voting hours on page 10).

Statements from the candidates running for student trustee appear on page 11 of this issue of the Chronicle. In addition, candidates' statements will be distributed to all students with campus mail boxes the week of the election and at Willard Straight Hall on the election days.

Information on the students trustee election may be obtained at the University Senate office, 133 Day Hall.

Summary Journal Announced

Trustee Committee Meets

Summary Journal for the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Cornell University held April 8, 1975 in New York City.

NOTE: This summary journal, as released for publication, does not include confidential items which came before the meeting.

1. The minutes of the Executive Committee meeting held March 13, 1975 were approved.

2. University Treasurer Arthur H. Peterson reported on the current status of the 1974-75 budget. He briefed the Executive Committee on the ramifications for the statutory colleges and for the Geneva Experiment Station of the 1975-76 budget passed by the State Legislature on March 26. He said Cornell will request some $1.6 million in supplemental appropriations for the state units.

3. The Executive Committee approved University President Dale R. Corson's recommendation that an appropriation of $26,000 be made from the University Unions Reserve account for replacement of gutters and downspouts and repair to the theatre stage lift in Willard Straight Hall, and addition of a pump-out system to the air conditioning system and replacement of stairwell doors in the North Campus Union. President Corson explained that these repairs are needed, even in this era of financial stringency, because of life safety, windstorm damage and other considerations.

4. The Executive Committee approved a presidential recommendation that appropriations be made from the Lewis H. Durland Fund to the Athletic Department to cover half the cost of repairing the stands on Hoy Field.

5. The president reported to the Executive Committee that the New York State Dormitory Authority sold bond anticipation notes on March 26 in the amount of $9 million to replace notes due April 15 on the Lasdon House project at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

6. The Executive Committee authorized the University administration, upon the president's recommendation, to remodel some 6,000 square feet of the west wing basement of Martha Van Rensselaer Hall for an animal facility for research in problems related to human nutrition. The committee also approved project funding recommendations.

7. Authorization was also granted, as the president recommended, for the University administration to execute a contract for the rehabilitation of the Fine Arts Library.

8. The University administration was authorized, as the president recommended, to go forward with the completion of improvements at the water filtration plant which are necessary to continued reliable functioning and low cost of water service. Involved is the replacement of the reservoir roof, divisional valves and a plant roof section as well as installation of a two-million gallon a day pump. The president also recommended financing arrangements for this project which were approved.

9. The president recommended that the University administration be authorized to proceed with construction of a second electrical substation adjacent to the present Kite Hill substation to serve the growing demand on the main Ithaca campus. The Executive Committee so authorized. A financing recommendation was also approved.

10. The Executive Committee heard a report from the Buildings and Properties Committee and the minutes of that committee's meeting of March 13, 1975 were presented for information.

11. The president recommended some technical changes in the fund raising policy established by the Executive Committee in May 1956 in order to update the policy. The committee approved the changes.

12. The president presented, with his approval, recommendations from the Committee on Memorials. The recommendations were approved. Announcement of the memorials will be made concurrent with appropriate ceremonies.

13. The president recommended a series of personnel actions.

14. The president reported that a contract amendment has been signed with the National Science Foundation (NSF) providing $3.75 million for Wilson Synchrotron Laboratory operations and research during the period March 1, 1975 through Feb. 29, 1976. He reported also that a grant amendment of $1.85 million has been received from NSF for continued support of the Materials Science Center for the July 1, 1975 to June 30, 1976 period.

15. The president reported that the alumnae of Kappa Delta have decided to reactivate the Cornell chapter rather than sell their chapter house at 109 Triphammer Road to the University in accord with Executive Committee action of July 12, 1972.

16. A report of construction grants awarded during the period Feb. 21 through March 11, 1975 was presented for information.

17. The proceedings of the meeting of the Joint Administrative Board of the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center held Feb. 25, 1975 were presented for information.

18. The Executive Committee approved the president's recommendation that the University administration be authorized to proceed with altering the sixth floor of Hughes Hall to provide faculty offices and space for support staff. The president pointed out that future expansion of the law student body as well as expansion and improvement of the Law School's clinical program depend upon the availability of additional space. The Hughes Hall sixth floor is attic space now housing mechanical equipment.

19. The Executive Committee adopted two resolutions concerning the sale of New York State Dormitory Authority bonds. Both resolutions were recommended by the president. One resolution authorizes the sale of Dormitory Authority bonds (Cornell University issue, Series G) to provide some $13.8 million in funding for a group of projects which are for the most part completed or underway — construction or rehabilitation of the Baker chemistry complex, chilled water plant, Willard Straight Hall, Fine Arts Library and utility lines. (The series G project was authorized by the Executive Committee on Dec. 10, 1974 in the amount of $12.5 million. The increased amount is due to Dormitory Authority fees, the debt service reserve and other costs.) The second resolution authorized the sale of Dormitory Authority notes (Computer Note Issue) to provide partial funding in the amount of $2 million for acquisition of the IBM 370/168 computer system and improvements in the Langmuir Laboratory computer facility.

New Animal Facility Funds Approved by Trustee Board

The Board of Trustees Tuesday approved the use of $325,000 of University funds to renovate approximately 6,000 square feet in the west wing basement of Martha Van Rensselaer Hall.

The renovations will provide nutrition researchers with expanded facilities for various laboratory animals, needed to research nutritional problems.

According to Jean Failing, dean of the New York State College of Human Ecology, present facilities in Martha Van Rensselaer are not adequate to support the nutrition research needs of the faculty. "The renovated facility will provide more space for new faculty and free space now being used for some nutritional research in Savage Hall," Dean Failing says.

President Dale Corson recommended that University funds be appropriated to finance the project, subject to reimbursement within five years from the College of Human Ecology and the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences in conjunction with the Division of Nutritional Sciences.

COSEP-Knapp Discussions Continue

Cornell University Provost David C. Knapp said yesterday that he has received further communication from some of the interested parties concerning the proposed reorganization of Cornell minority program functions. To date, Knapp said, the communications have not included specific proposals as to how the University's minority programs might be most effectively organized but instead have sought further information for discussion purposes.

Knapp said he has talked with a representative of the Coalition of Minority Students and has received a letter from a fact-finding committee of the Ithaca Black Caucus. A meeting with the latter group has been scheduled in the near future.

Knapp said he would continue to seek discussion of the issues "in the hope that we come out with very clear indications as to how we can have a better COSEP program at Cornell."

The issue has centered principally on proposed reorganization of COSEP admissions and financial aid, courses at the Learning Skills Center, academic advising and counseling and programs for students under the New York State Educational Opportunity Program (EOP) and Higher Educational Opportunity Program (HEOP).

The discussions, Knapp said, involve no change in the University's commitment to the goals of minority programs. In fact, the University Board of Trustees, in March, reaffirmed its commitment to educational opportunities for minority students and encouraged the University administration to pursue the fulfillment of this commitment.

'Parking Garage Idea Good, But Not Feasible'

The Office of Transportation Services is not currently planning to build a 160-vehicle parking garage near Barton Hall, according to David W. Brown, director of the office, who said Monday (April 7) that "at this point the idea does not appear feasible."

The idea of constructing garages to increase on-campus parking has been present for years, Brown said.

"The concept of a parking garage seems acceptable but this is as far as we've gotten," Brown said. "No feasibility studies have been done." He felt the current estimated cost of between $400,000 and $500,000 "is prohibitive" in the light of University cut-backs in other areas. "The approach is reasonable," he said, "but the timing is not."

"I seriously doubt any feasibility studies will be done in the near future," which he defined as "at least for the period of time the University faces economic difficulties."

The Office of Transportation Services had accumulated a reserve of some $140,000 during its first three years of operation; some $85,000 of this reserve was expended last fall for expansion of B parking lot. Brown said he expects the remaining $60,000 will be used for maintenance of existing parking lots.

The garage in question was principally intended for visitors and for patrons of the Statler Club, with the School of Hotel Administration providing some of the funding, Brown said.

Hotel Ezra Cornell Debates Gambling

The students in the School of Hotel Administration have come a long way since they staged the first of the Hotel Ezra Cornell weekends back in 1925. The Golden Anniversary of the now-famous event on April 25, 26 and 27 will demonstrate this.

Throughout the history of the Hotel Ezra Cornell students have been basically on display demonstrating their managerial and practical skills before the nation's top hotel, restaurant and tourism executives in attendance. But for the past few years the students have designed the program to open a dialogue with the men in the industry and the school's faculty and its students.

For example, a highlight of this year's program will be a seminar on the pros and cons of legalized gambling and its effects on the hotel-tourism industry. Scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday, April 26, in Alice Statler Auditorium, the seminar will center around talks by John S. Kuhlthau, an avowed opponent of legalized gambling and former district attorney of Middlesex County, N.J.; Shannon Bybee, member of the Gaming Control Board of Las Vegas, Nev.; William Friedman, author of books on casino management and games and instructor at the University of Nevada, and Henri Lewin, senior vice president of Hilton Las Vegas.

There will also be a seminar at 11 a.m. on the current programs of the hotel school which will form the basis, in the afternoon, for five different discussion groups in classrooms in the school.

Not to be completely outdone by the student extravaganzas of the past which featured such things as a real stagecoaches, converting the Hotel School into a cruise ship and turning the school into a veritable set for the movie "Around the World in 80 days," the students this year plan to transform Barton Hall into the winners circle at a race track, replete with horses and betting booths in the background.

The area will be the scene of

Profile

Friendly Freddy the Cop

"I don't know whether the students are different, or whether we're maybe a little too professional, or what, but the relationship is different from what it used to be."

The speaker is Fred Rosica, often known over the past 13 years he has been at Cornell as "Friendly Freddy the Cop." He is now security administrator for the Safety Division, but for many years he was a beat patrolman — most of those years spent on duty at the corner of Campus and Central.

During those years, in the middle 1960s, he got to know just about every student on campus. He kidded with them and they kidded with him. At least twice a day he went to the Straight and had coffee with them in the Ivy Room. Very often one of the students would bring coffee to him on his corner — particularly on bitter days.

He has always been popular with his "gang," which has included a large part of the student body. In 1967, in The Cornell Daily Sun's Spring Weekend spoof edition, called the Ithaca Enquirer, it noted that Fred Rosica had been named acting president of the University, "pending approval of the Board of Trustees." In the article, he was quoted as saying, "Do I still get to give out parking tickets?"

Often one of his former student buddies stops in to see him on a trip back to campus. "Sometimes I don't recognize them ... You know, they've had their hair cut and they're all dressed up like something out of Madison Ave. I ask them what brought all that about, and they say something like, 'It's tough out there, man.'"

Fred's service at Cornell goes back into the days when "in loco parentis" was very much the University's role, and the Safety Division's officers often took on quasi-father roles.

"I remember this one freshman. I had about three run-ins with him his first week on campus, and finally told him the next time I caught him off base I'd haul him downtown and charge him," Rosica said. "The next time I saw him, though, was in the office. He came in to apologize to me. We've been good friends ever since. He's back on campus now as an assistant professor."

HAPPY DAYS — After the 1964 Saint Patrick's Day frolic on the Arts Quad, Fred Rosica and some of his buddies gather for a cup of coffee at the Straight.

One particular incident that demonstrates the difference he sees in relationships then and now was the Presidential Review of the ROTC in 1964.

On that occasion, 91 anti-war protesters sat down across the Barton Hall floor and prevented the troops from marching. He knows there were 91, because he started on one end of the line and Proctor Lowell George started on the other end, taking I.D. cards.

The event had been publicized in advance, and the usually small crowd had swelled to 2,500 — most of them people who wanted retribution against the protesters.

"We had our full force of 17 men there, plus 7 auxiliaries — and the proctor — 25 people to handle a crowd of 2,500. When they started coming out of the stands in groups, each one of us would take a group of them, usually with people we knew, and talk to them. We talked them out of making trouble. I just don't know if we could do that today."

Keeping young people out of trouble has always been a key point with "Friendly Freddy." He says, "I'm here to see that the kids have a good time, don't get in trouble, and don't get hurt."

Group Improving Vended Foods

Editor:

A group of graduate students, professors and non-exempt employees from the Division of Nutritional Sciences has formed to work on improving the variety and nutritional quality of vended foods available in the vending machine room of the Martha Van Rensselaer Building, where the College of Human Ecology is housed. This basement room is used by many at Cornell — non-exempt employees, faculty, graduate and undergraduate students and guests from all over the campus — but especially by those people working and studying in the buildings bordering the Agriculture Quad.

The group from Human Ecology has heard many complaints about the food in the vending machines. The dissatisfaction arises from the need for a greater variety of foods, foods with more nutritional value and foods that taste better and match better the tastes of the people buying them.

Also, the group is concerned about the room in which the machines are located, and where many people eat. They feel that there is a need for better ventilation, improved lighting, cleaner conditions and a new paint job.

The group approached the Manager of Vending, Dan McCord, and the Executive Dietician for Dining Services, Kelani Woodruff, for their help in making these changes. Both Mr. McCord and Ms. Woodruff were enthusiastic about working with the group. Suggestions have already been made to Dining Services concerning improvements on the room itself. Since the week of March 31, the vending machines have contained some new items suggested by the group. Some of the suggested foods include sandwiches on high-quality whole wheat bread, raw vegetables, fruits, fruit juices, nuts, raisins and other nutritious snacks. New items will be advertised at the entrance of the vending machine room, and a box for suggestions about what should be in the vending machines will be placed near the entrance.

If you have been turned off in the past by white bread, potato chips and candy bars, the group asks you to pay attention to what is happening in the vending machine room, and help them by making suggestions about what you would like to see in the machines.

Campus Traffic Control Clarified

Editor's note: The Cornell Safety Division and the Traffic Bureau are two distinct departments at the University. The Safety Division is directed by William E. McDaniel, and is located at G-2 Barton Hall. The primary responsibility of the division is life safety and moving traffic violations. The Traffic Bureau is part of the Office of Transportation Services, 201 Rand Hall, and is under the management of William H. Richards. The bureau is responsible for traffic flow and enforcing parking regulations on campus. A headline in last week's Chronicle was misleading as to the responsibilities of the two departments.

Black Author to Talk on Own Book

Black author and senior editor of Ebony Magazine Lerone Bennett Jr. will speak on the subject of his most recent book, "The Shaping of Black America," at 4 p.m. today in the Multi-Purpose room, North Campus Union.

Joining Bennett will be Robert Harris, a history faculty member at the University of Illinois in Urbana. Harris, who specializes in slavery in this country and in the history of 18th and 19th century Afro-American movements, will lecture on the "Historiography (cq.) of Slavery." He will join the faculty of Cornell's Africana Studies and Research Center in the fall 1975.

Bennett is widely recognized as one of the foremost contemporary historians of the black experience, according to James E. Turner, director of the center. Some of Bennett's published books are "Before the Mayflower," "What Manner of Man," "The Negro Mood," "Confrontation: Black and White" and the "Biography of Martin Luther King, Jr.," for which he won the "Poor Richard" award of The Society of Midland Authors in 1965.

"The Shaping of Black America" is a "story of the forces that made Black America what it is today — those social, economic and political forces." The book develops the thesis that "the race problem in America was a deliberate invention of men who systematically separated Blacks and whites in order to make money..." according to Bennett.

The lectures, jointly titled "Aspects of Afro-American History: A Critical Education" and sponsored by the Africana Studies and Research Center, are free and open to the public. A reception-book party will follow the lectures in the Conference rooms on the third floor of North Campus Union. Bennett's book may be purchased at that time.

World Food Day Plans Made

as of December 1974 provided supplementary food and health services for more than 1,000 malnourished children for one month, as well as eight deep well pumps which will bring years of clean drinking water and irrigation to drought-stricken countries.

One of the ways in which CRE raised money for famine relief was through a day-long fast last November in which more than 2,000 persons participated. Those who fasted donated the money they would have spent that day on food to CRE, which in turn sent it to UNICEF. More than $3,700 was raised.

"The vegetarian option available to those Cornell students who are on the Co-op 2000 dining plan was the result of the coalition's work," said CRE member Jennifer Freeman '76. She added that students on all Cornell meal plans next year will be able to enroll in a program where they miss one lunch per week — and the money that would have paid for that lunch will be collected for famine relief.

The coalition and its activities were the subject of an article appearing in the March 22 edition of The Saturday Review. CRE was also cited for its work in the March issue of News of the World's Children, the UNICEF newsletter.

"We are encouraging everyone not to eat meat on World Food Day," said Youngerman, who explained that it takes about eight pounds of grain feed to produce one pound of beef — grain that could be fed directly to starving people in developing nations.

"There is enough food to feed everyone in the world," he continued. "The problem is to achieve a better system of distribution." This will be one of the many aspects of the world food crisis discussed in workshops on April 17.

More information on World Food Day events may be obtained by calling Youngerman (273-1943) or the CRE office at Anabel Taylor Hall (256-4864).

Graduate students who expect to complete degree requirements this spring should pick up a packet at the Graduate School describing mechanics of thesis preparation. Candidates for a master's degree are reminded especially of the requirement for a thesis abstract to be bound immediately after the title page. The deadline for submission of all materials for a June degree is May 16, 1975. Submission by May 1 is necessary to assure listing in the graduation program.

Doctoral candidates who expect to receive their Ph.D. degree in June are asked to notify the Graduate School if they plan to take part in the Commencement procession. Full information on the June commencement is now available in the Graduate School.

A reception for all graduate students who participate in commencement exercises and their guests will be held in the Sage Graduate Center after the ceremony.

The University of Chicago is now accepting applications for positions as Harper Fellows, to teach required courses (and some specialized ones) in the humanities and social sciences. Appointments are for two years, renewable for a third year; Salaries range from $9 thousand to $12 thousand. Applications must be submitted by April 15. If interested, contact Charles Oxnard, Dean of the College, The University of Chicago, Chicago, Illinois, 60637.

Any National or permanent resident of a NATO country may send proposals on studies of Public Policy (not "purely scientific" or "technical aspects") in relation to natural and social environment. Fellows are paid up to F.B.220,000. Periods are for 6 or 12 months. Applications are due before April 30, in English or French. Refer to Fellowship Programme of the Committee on the Challenges of Modern Society. If interested, contact the Fellowship Office of the Graduate School for outline of application.

Potted Plants Pillaged

Two potted plants worked their way onto the theft sheets in the Safety Division's morning reports this week, amidst another flurry of vending machine ripoffs.

Six vending machines were broken into and the money taken from them, but all merchandise was left intact. Two of the machines were in the basement of University Halls 1, two in North Campus Dorm 10, one in Upson Hall basement and one in Chemistry Research basement.

The two missing potted plants were taken from open reception areas in Uris Hall — one complete with the coffee table on which it sat.

Other thefts reported include $36 in cash from a locked cabinet in Upson Hall; two separate incidents of wallets taken from book bags left in carrels in Olin Library; a battery from a car parked in the old American Legion parking lot; a paperback book, "Contemporary English," from a carrel in Olin Library; a Sanyo cassette tape player and 12 tapes from a locked car in West Dorms parking lot.

Also, a red shoulder bag containing $12 to $15 cash from Sage Graduate Center; a navy blue ski jacket from the track office in Schoellkopf Hall; a 35 mm Nikomatic camera from a table in the Ivy Room of Willard Straight; a battery from a car in West Dorms lot; $34 in cash from a desk in a room at 308 Wait Avenue, and a wallet containing about $30 cash from a purse left unattended in the women's room on the main floor of Willard Straight Hall.

'Diacritics' Sponsors Cinema Symposium

A two-day symposium on the cinema and film criticism including such authorities as Peter Wollen, Samuel Rohdie and Erich Segal, will take place at Cornell April 18 and 19.

Sponsored by "Diacritics," the literary monthly published by the Department of Romance Studies and the University Lectures Committee, the symposium is scheduled both days in Kaufmann Auditorium. The public is invited.

The symposium will start at 2 p.m. on Friday, with lectures by Paul Sandro, professor of French literature at Miami of Ohio University, on "The Ideology of Representation"; Natalie Bluestone of the Radcliff Institute on "Temporal Flux and the Cinema," and Segal, classical scholar and author of "Love Story," who will discuss "Narrative and Film."

There will be two sessions on Saturday, April 19, the first starting at 9 a.m. with lectures by Robert A. Schultz, professor of philosophy at the University of Pittsburgh, "Diagnosing Disputes in Film Criticism"; Naomi Greene, of the University of California at Santa Barbara, "Esthetics and Politics of the Film," and Wollen, British film maker, critic and author, "New Trends in Cinema."

The afternoon session will start at 2:30 p.m. There will be lectures by Donald Frederickson of Cornell's Department of Theatre Arts, "Duplex Structures in Filmic Discourse," and Rohdie, film critic, scholar and editor, "Construction of the Aesthetic and Absence of Person," followed by a recapitulative panel discussion.

It will be the third annual "Diacritics" symposium.

Rubenstein To Give Second Sage Talk

Rabbi Richard L. Rubenstein will conclude his two-week tenure as Sage Chapel Convocation guest speaker with a talk on "Cultural Despair and the Revival of the Image of Satan" at 11 a.m. Sunday, April 13.

Now serving as professor of religion at Florida State University at Tallahassee, Rubenstein formerly directed the Hillel Foundation and served as Jewish chaplain at the University of Pittsburgh.

The Sage Chapel Choir will sing the anthems "He Watching Over Israel" from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and "The Last Words of David" by Randall Thompson at the convocation.

Javanese Shadow Puppet Drama

Museum Hosts Program

The Wesleyan University Gamelan Ensemble will present a Javanese shadow puppet drama or wayang kulit Jawa at 8 p.m. Friday, April 11 in the lobby of the Johnson Art Museum.

The 17-member gamelan troupe is under the direction of Bapak Sumarsum, the dalang or puppeteer. The "gamelan" is the instrumental and vocal ensemble that accompanies the dalang. Included in the gamelan are Bapak Harjito; formerly an instructor in Javanese music at the Academy of Javanese Music and Related Arts, Surakarta, Indonesia, and Ibu Urip Sri Maeny, instructor in Javanese dance at Wesleyan.

The shortened, four-hour wayang kulit to be performed April 11 under the sponsorship of the Cornell Southeast Asia Program is "Kresna Kembang," or "The Blossoming of Kresna." The story and characters portrayed in this play are derived from the Hindu epic, "The Mahabharata."

Shadow puppet shows in Java are traditionally performed throughout the duration of a night, lasting from 8 to 12 hours. "One is not expected to pay constant attention," says Sumarsum, adding that spectators often wander away to obtain food or tea. Children, who form a large part of the audience in Java, often fall asleep during long, philosophical dialogues and wake up when the clowns appear.

But the wayang kulit is more than an entertainment to the Javanese. According to Sumarsum, the puppet play has ceremonial significance, providing a means of contact with ancestral spirits and establishing an atmosphere of serenity and balance. "It is also a means of educating the young

James Weaver will present two weekend harpsichord concerts.

Harpsichordist to Give Concerts

Guest artist James Weaver, harpsichord, will present concerts at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 11 and 12, at Barnes Hall Auditorium.

On Friday night, Weaver will perform Bach's Sonata in D minor and Italian Concerto, Four Preludes and Two Musettes by Francois Couperin, and Rameau's Suite in A minor.

On Saturday night, he will play Bach's Goldberg Variations.

The concerts are free and open to the public.

Weaver has performed frequently for Barnes Hall audiences. He is associate curator of the Smithsonian Institution's Division of Musical Instruments and organizes and directs the Smithsonian's performance program which uses instruments in the collection.

Program Announced

Spring Festival Concert Set

Arthur Honegger's oratorio "King David," Anton Bruckner's "Te Deum" and the "Pie Jesu" of Lili Boulanger will be featured at the annual spring festival concert of the Cornell Symphony Orchestra and University Glee Club and Chorus at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, April 17 at Bailey Hall.

The performance will be directed by Karel Husa, the Kappa Alpha Professor of Music at Cornell and Pulitzer Prize-winning composer. Soloists will include soprano Sherry Zannoth, contralto Ewa Dobrowska, tenor Thomas Norager and Donald Miller, bass.

Sir Keith Falkner, who was a professor of music at Cornell from 1950 until his appointment in 1960 to the Royal College of Music in England, will provide the narration for "King David."

The Cornell Glee Club and Chorus are directed by Thomas A. Sokol.

Husa, who studied under Honegger in Paris, describes "King David" as "one of the great oratorios of the 20th century."

Honegger was asked to compose music for the play "King David" by Rene Morax in February 1921. By April he had completed work on the score. When "King David" made its premiere performance in Switzerland the following June, it was a triumph, and Honegger immediately set about writing a version of "King David" for concert performance. Morax contributed a text for narrator which explains the action and eliminated the need for staging.

Anton Bruckner composed the first version of his "Te Deum" in 1881, but the full orchestral version received its first performance in 1886. Like "King David," it was an immediate success.

Bruckner, who chose the "Te Deum" as his personal favorite among all his compositions, once told a friend, "If I were called before the throne of God and asked by Him what I had done with my life, I would show Him the score of my 'Te Deum' and hope that he would judge me mercifully."

Lili Boulanger's promising musical career ended with her death at the age of 24 as the result of chronic illness. In 1913 she was awarded the "Prix de Rome" for her cantata "Faust et Helene," becoming the first woman composer to gain that distinction.

The "Pie Jesu" was completed in 1918 shortly before her death. It was her last composition.

Tickets for the spring festival concert, priced at $2 and $3, are on sale at the Lincoln Hall ticket office (256-5144) and at McNeil Music. All seats are reserved. Free bus service to Bailey Hall from the Dairy Bar and parking lot B will be provided on the night of the concert.

Support of Academic Mission

Open Hearing Announced

The support of academic mission task force will hold an open hearing on Wednesday, April 16 at 4:30 p.m. in Uris Hall G-94, chairman Andrew S. Schultz Jr., has announced.

The charge to the task force follows:

Subject areas of this task force include all important support except those excluded, particularly secretarial/clerical service, shops and laboratories, and computer services used directly in research and teaching (but not administrative computing, even that closely related to the academic mission). With the exception of computing, the task force should also deal with such support when rendered to general administrators, since pooling, for example, could easily cut across any distinction between academic and administrative or support missions.

1. Is it feasible to ascertain University-wide costs of this nature with current cost accounting and budgeting methods? If yes, what are they? If no, would it be desirable to develop such cost accounting and budgetary techniques? Why?

2. What is the nature and amount of staff and services needed to support directly the basic functions of (a) teaching and (b) research, e.g. teaching research assistants, assistants, secretarial and clerical, technical, and indirectly, e.g.

professional travel? (Some of the latter may be considered by Task Force No. 18, General Services, but a user slant from this task force would be a useful input of information.)

A. Is it feasible to develop criteria of general application for amount of support to be supplied for teaching and research, taking into account variations in various disciplines? If so, respecting what kinds of support?

B. If it is feasible to develop such criteria

(1) What are the most effective kinds of criteria, e.g. individual teacher/number of students taught, number of courses taught, number of credit hours taught, combinations of such factors?

(2) At what levels should such support be set to achieve economies of operations? (Consider only levels below present levels, unless increased support can be shown to permit decreases in costs elsewhere; be specific about the latter.)

3. Apart from absolute levels of support staff and services, how can the support be organized to render service most efficiently, e.g. pooling of secretarial, clerical and technical staff, not only within departments, but within colleges, and perhaps in some instances, across college lines, merging of laboratories? What cost reductions could be achieved by such changes? (Be as specific as possible.)

4. Are present financial arrangements respecting such services as cost-conserving as possible, e.g. is budgeting done in such a way that users are clearly faced with the costs and with the necessity for making choices between, for example, more secretarial help and less copying facilities? (This question to be meaningful inevitably gets into areas outside the particular focus of this task force, and will require liaison with related task forces.)

5. Would it be possible to develop cost standards for services of this nature, alone, or in conjunction with general services, whereby faculty and others were budgeted certain amounts which they could allocate as they chose, e.g. the person willing to get along without travel would have more funds available for clerical help or copying costs? If it is not feasible to do this on an individual level, is it on a departmental level? Can some similar system be worked out for administrators?

6. Assume that after all economies resulting from answers to the above questions are achieved, a further 15 per cent reduction in cost of such services becomes necessary. How should such 15 per cent reduction be achieved? What should be the priorities within such 15 per cent reduction?

Humanities Society Fellowships Application Deadline Tomorrow

Non-tenured members of humanities departments have until April 11 to apply to The Society for the Humanities for two summer research fellowships to be awarded this year. Each award will amount to $2,000 for two months' residence. The Fellows will be provided with offices in the Andrew D. White Center for the Humanities and secretarial assistance.

Applications (in triplicate) should include a curriculum vitae, an outline of the research or writing project, and a statement of other existing support, or sources to which requests have been made. A Cornell faculty member familiar with the applicant's work should be asked to send a confidential letter of recommendation (with two carbons, please) to the director of the society.

Action will be taken on the applications by the executive committee of the society, on recommendation of a selection committee, before May 1. Further information may be obtained by calling 256-4086.

Anouilh Play Performed

The production is directed by James H. Clancy, who also translated the play into English. Appearing as Orestes is Tim Holcomb, with Bonnie Cohen as Electra, Stella Clancy as Clytemnestra and Anthony Caputi as Aegisthus. Scene design is by Jan Neil, costumes by Michele Plescia and lighting is by Katherine Ganss.

Tickets will be available starting April 10 at the theater box office, ground floor of Willard Straight Hall, from 3 to 6 p.m. weekdays. A donation will be requested. Seating is unreserved.

China Comes To Cornell

A Chinese dance concert was part of the China Week program which continues through Sunday, April 13. Pictured at left is the Flower Fan Dance, a Canton folk dance. The theme of the program which began April 4 is the "Cultural Revolution Continued." Today and tomorrow slide shows and handicrafts sale will be held in the Straight Memorial Room from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The film, "East is Red" will be shown at the Greater Ithaca Activities Center tonight at 7:30 p.m. and tomorrow night at Ives 110 at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 12, a series of workshops is scheduled. Sunday, April 13, a Chinese dinner and lecture will be held at the One World Room, Anabel Taylor Hall. Details of the China Week activities are listed in the Calendar on Page 12.

Cornell Requests Supplemental Appropriations

than 600 persons from trade unions across the state, $39,600 for extension publications and the ILR Review; $37,400 for organized research; $24,400 for the labor education program; $22,500 for accessory instruction, and $9,000 for the library.

In its supplemental request the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences is asking for $400,000 to restore the agricultural research programs cut in the Governor's budget and $105,000 for accessory instruction. The college's budget, which was cut an additional $30,000 by the Legislature, will force reductions in research and extension programs and the elimination of more than 40 positions.

Agricultural research programs in which restoration is requested include dairy cattle and poultry management; plant protection and pest management; production and improvement of fruits, vegetables and ornamentals; land-use planning; responsibilities of agriculture for environmental quality, and development of human, community and natural resources. The accessory instruction request is a "re-request for increased state support" reduced from $435,000 originally authorized by SUNY, according to Dean W. Keith Kennedy's memorandum of request.

The College of Human Ecology, in which the budget was cut $140,000 by the Legislature, is absorbing the full amount of this reduction in faculty and support staff. Thirteen positions will be terminated. This is necessary because funds for maintenance and operating expenses already lag far behind the rise in costs due to inflation, according to Dean

Jean Failing's budget request. These cuts will be distributed throughout the college's three-fold mission of teaching, research and extension/public service.

The college's supplemental appropriation request of $193,016 includes restoration of $80,946 of the Legislature's cuts, an amount which would make its reduction equivalent to that borne by other State University Centers. The college is also asking for the transfer of the Center for Family Life Development back to Cornell from the Division of Social Services and for additional funds for accessory instruction.

The Veterinary College is requesting $298,908 in the supplemental budget. Although its budget was reduced only $25,000 by the Governor and Legislature from last year's level, "the inroads of inflation have been much greater to this college than comparison with the Consumer Price Index would indicate," according to Dean Edward C. Melby's request. For example, costs for drugs and supplies for the Vet College teaching hospital have risen as much as 47 per cent. Melby warned that the college may be forced to close selected diagnostic and disease control laboratories or to curtail educational programs for degree candidates depending on the outcome of the supplemental budget requests.

The New York State Experiment Station at Geneva is requesting in the supplemental budget the restoration of most of the agricultural research programs cut in the Governor's and Legislature's budgets. A total of $292,600 was cut from Geneva programs, and the testing program for regulated agricultural products was transferred to the State Department of Agriculture and Markets. Included in the supplemental request are funds for fruit and vegetable pest management research; fruit breeding and culture; vegetable breeding and nutritional research, and similar research areas.

Cornell's supplemental budget request includes the entire $87,000 for general services cut by the Legislature. The budget reduction has been accomplished by terminating nine positions. If funds are restored in the supplemental budget they will be used for repair purposes, because rising utility costs have forced the University to divert repair funds to pay for utility bills, contributing to "a rapidly deteriorating physical plant."

Traditionally, the puppeteer or dalang is in complete charge of the performance. He manipulates the flat leather shadow puppets, delivers all the dialogue in different voices, describes the scene, comments on the meaning of the action — often drawing in events of the day — and signals the large gamelan orchestra when and what to play as musical accompaniment. The dalang, who must know the stories and character of more than 200 puppets, is revered in Java as a teacher and spiritual guide.

A donation of $1 will be requested from all adults attending the April 11 play. Children will be admitted free and are encouraged to attend. Persons attending are advised to bring along cushions or mats on which to sit on the lobby floor. A few chairs will be available.

MEETING OF THE FACULTY COUNCIL OF REPRESENTATIVES April 9, 1975

At its regular monthly meeting the Faculty Council of Representatives heard a report from Dean of the Faculty, Byron Saunders, approved the slate of nominations for faculty trustee positions and membership on various committees, received a report on computer usage, and approved the appointment of an ad hoc committee to review present legislation regarding appointment procedures. Fifty-seven members and 12 visitors were in attendance.

The meeting was opened by President Corson. The speaker, Wolfgang Fuchs, then presented Dean Saunders who welcomed the six members of the media who were present for this first open meeting of the body.

In his report the dean reviewed the results of the votes on visitor attendance as reported in last week's Chronicle. He also reminded the group of the combined meeting of the University Faculty and the FCR scheduled for May 7. At that time retiring members of the faculty will be recognized. Among other business will be a progress report from Professor Peter Stein, chairman of the University Budget Committee.

He further indicated that the ad hoc Committee on Academic Integrity will be reporting to the Executive Committee in May and that the FCR should receive the report in the fall. He reported that the Grievance Procedure document, exclusive of the section regarding appointment procedure, was approved by the Board of Trustees at their March meeting. For the record, he announced that the College of Engineering had approved a Geological Sciences Degree Program. Finally, he commented on the status of the Bill of Rights and indicated that it would not come back to this body until September or October at the earliest.

Professor William Keeton, chairman of the Committee on Nominations and Elections, presented the following report. There being no further nominations from the floor, it was agreed that the committee proceed with the election.

Professor P.C.T. de Boer, chairman of the Research Policies Committee, then presented a subcommittee report on computer usage. The complete report will be published in next week's Chronicle.

Professor Walter Lynn, chairman of the Executive Committee, moved the following resolution:

"RESOLVED: That the FCR endorse the report from the Committee on Professional and Economic Status regarding the Deans' Council recommendation on appointment procedures."

Professor Lynn explained that the resolution did not amount to an endorsement by the Executive Committee but rather was merely used as a means of getting the matter on the floor for discussion.

Considerable debate followed, during which Dean Saunders pointed out a conflict of legislation relative to one of the other recommendations, specifically the one dealing with role of the Dean of a College in the Tenure process.

Following a discussion of other apparent weaknesses, an amendment was offered to substitute the following for the first sentence of the report: "We have reviewed this document and find ourselves in substantial disagreement with portions of it." The resolution and the amendment were then tabled, opening the way for a new resolution by Professor Lynn:

"RESOLVED, That the Dean of the Faculty, with the advice and consent of the Executive Committee, appoint an ad hoc committee to review the present legislation of the Faculty regarding appointment procedures and to report to the FCR such findings and recommendations as appear to be warranted. Such a report should be received as early in the 1975-76 academic year as possible."

Women's Studies Representatives To Be Elected to Executive Board

The Women's Studies Program has announced openings on its executive board for representatives of undergraduates enrolled in Women's Studies courses during the current academic year, of graduate students, and of lecturers teaching in the program. Each constituency will meet during April to nominate and elect its representative, according to Jennie Farley, director.

Undergraduates enrolled in Women's Studies courses during 1974-75 will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday, April 24, in Willard Straight Hall, Loft 2. Graduate students will meet at 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 23, in Room 200, Ives Hall. Women's Studies Lecturers' meeting is set for noon Wednesday, April 16, in 127 Rockefeller Hall.

The Women's Studies by-laws call for representation of graduate students and undergraduates on the 14-member executive board.

Program lecturers are already represented. That constituency will elect a representative for the 1975-76 academic year this month.

Details may be obtained at 431 White Hall or by telephoning 256-6480.

Pregnant horse shared information about her condition with visitors at the Veterinary College's open house last year. Students are planning a similar demonstration this year and will be on hand to answer visitors' questions.

Veterinary College Open House

Whether you need some advice about picking out a puppy or kitten, want to learn more about a career in veterinary medicine, or merely want a clearer idea of what goes on at New York State's only veterinary college, you'll want to attend Cornell University's Veterinary College open house on Saturday, April 19 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The open house, a student-organized event which annually attracts as many as 5,000 persons, is designed to show the public all facets of veterinary medicine — teaching, research and clinical care of all types of domestic animals. The theme this year is "The Making of a Veterinarian."

Through exhibits and demonstrations visitors in past years have looked into the rumen, part of a cow's stomach, while the animal munched hay contentedly in its stall.

The cow used in the demonstration has been surgically equipped with a "rumen fistula," essentially a window into the stomach which allows veterinary students to observe stomach contractions and obtain samples of partially digested food.

Visitors have listened to the heart beats of various animals through stethoscopes, viewed horses whose internal organs had been painted on their skin in water colors and examined skeletons of domestic animals.

Many of the most popular exhibits and demonstrations will be repeated this year, and new ones are also planned. The equipment used in the care of both large and small animals will be demonstrated, and students will be on hand to show visitors the fundamentals of animal care.

The New York State Veterinary College at Cornell is one of only 18 accredited colleges of veterinary medicine in the United States. It is the oldest state-supported college at Cornell.

Fencing Team Is Second

The Cornell fencing team, the Big Red's most successful squad thus far in 1974-75, may have to enlarge its trophy case to house the team and individual honors garnered this year.

Coach Raoul Sudre's team had its most recent success at the NCAA championship in Fullerton, Calif. They were second — their highest finish since 1954 — to Wayne State for the NCAA title and ahead of such other national powers as Notre Dame, Princeton and NYU.

In addition, the Big Red picked up three individual prizes. All-America honors went to senior Ken Torino of Whitestone, N.Y., and junior Nilo Otero of San Francisco, Calif. Torino was voted NCAA Epee Fencer of the Year also.

"This is a terrific honor for Ken," Sudre said. "The fencers themselves vote for Fencer of the Year based on a man's form and technique. They select the man who epitomizes the finest talent in his weapon."

Torino, who finished sixth in the NCAA meet, has been captain of the Cornell team for two years and is now a two-time All-America.

Otero, sixth in the sabre at the NCAA's, improved on his performance from last year when he finished ninth.

Cornell's third NCAA entry, freshman Greg Massialas of

Raoul A. Sudre, left, head fencing coach, Ken Torino, NCAA Epee Fencer of the Year, and Nilo Otero, who received All-America honors along with Torino, and assistant fencing coach Jean-Jacques Gillet, show the trophies just won in California.

Ann Arbor, Mich., was seventh in the foil.

Finishing second among the 52 schools entered in the NCAA's is Cornell's biggest achievement in a season of successes. The Big Red tied for the Ivy League title (with Princeton) for the second straight year. They were second in the East by virtue of their 9-2 season record and fourth in the Intercollegiate Fencing Association (IFA) tournament at MIT.

Cornell-Held Proxy Votes Explained

The Investment Committee of the Cornell University Board of Trustees yesterday announced how the University will vote its shares at upcoming stockholder meetings of Bristol Myers Company and International Business Machines Corporation (IBM).

The Investment Committee, taking into account the recommendations of the Joint University Senate-Trustee Investment Advisory Committee which met in New York City on April 7, decided how it will vote on social responsibility shareholder proposals on Cornell-held proxies of these two corporations at a meeting yesterday in New York City.

According to Nelson Schaenen, Jr., chairman of the Investment Committee, Cornell will vote 5,000 shares of Bristol Myers Company in favor of a stockholder proposal requesting that the corporation provide a full written report of the description of the overall operations of the sale, manufacturing, packaging and distribution of infant formulas by country and a description of the company's infant formulas, promotional practices and advertising campaigns provided that the board of directors may, at its discretion, establish reasonable limitations on expenditures for the report and need not disclose any information that it deems inconsistent with the corporation's competitive position.

The stockholders submitting this proposal charge that infant formulas may be detrimental to the health of infants in developing nations.

Schaenen noted that while Cornell presently owns some 39,000 shares of common and preferred stock in Bristol Myers because of recent purchases, the University was a shareholder of record for only 5,000 shares when the proxies were sent to shareholders.

In the case of a stockholder proposal requesting that IBM not renew or make new contracts to sell, lease or service computer parts or software to or for the use of the government of the Republic of South Africa or any of its agencies, the committee will vote with IBM management against the proposal. However, Schaenen reports that the University will send a letter to IBM to express Cornell's concern about the governmental racial policies of South Africa and ask IBM whether it is in the corporation's best interests to continue to do business in South Africa at the possible risk of preventing them doing business elsewhere in the African continent.

Schaenen says Cornell will vote against the IBM stockholder proposal because it calls for a change in the articles of incorporation of IBM, and the Investment Committee does not agree with this as a way of changing corporation activities.

GIAC Seeks Volunteer Crafts Teachers

The Greater Ithaca Activities Center, under the auspices of the Ithaca Youth Bureau, serves the Ithaca community in a variety of ways, hosting different organizations' activities (from day care through senior citizens activities), and provides a full schedule of in-house programs for children and adults.

For neighborhood elementary school-aged youngsters the Center offers after-school programs in arts and crafts, sports and games, cooking, woodworking, music and any other area in which there is an interest and a volunteer available to assist in the project. Evening programs for teens are likewise developed and include sports, handicrafts and cooking. Special programs such as swimming, ice-skating, theatre parties, and various evening classes for adults, are attractions.

Volunteers are an intrinsic part of the Center's staff, and may either run, or assist in, scheduled activities, or develop programs for which they have particular skills.

Below are some current requests for volunteer help. Please respond to any of them, or get information about other volunteer opportunities, by calling CIVITAS, 256-7513, Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; or the Voluntary Action Center, 272-9411, Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Cooperative Extension—Nutrition for the Elderly Program needs volunteer transportation for an elderly handicapped woman and her wheelchair, from downtown Ithaca to Titus Towers, at 11:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Service League Shop needs volunteers to work in sales, any day Tuesday through Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., 12:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., or 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., or Friday any shift plus 4:30-6 p.m.

Reconstruction Home needs a volunteer fishing enthusiast to accompany a small group of residents on in-city fishing excursions. Days and hours can be arranged.

Day Care Council needs volunteers to assist in the council office and to be on call, during office hours, as emergency Day Care Mother substitutes. Shifts are from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., or 12:30 p.m. to 4 p.m., any weekday.

Cancer Society needs a volunteer to man the office on Wednesday or Thursday afternoons. Typing skills would be an asset, but not necessary.

Ithaca High School needs volunteer tutors: one for intermediate French, any afternoon; one for chemistry, 12:30 to 3:30 any day, or 8 to 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Thursday, or Friday, or any weekday evening.

Mental Health Association needs volunteers to visit with individual patients at Willard Psychiatric Center, or to assist with small group crafts or educational projects in the Hospital vocational therapy shop. Times can be arranged.

IACC Day Care Center needs volunteers to assist with pre-school children from 1:30 to 3 p.m. on Mondays.

High School Equivalency Program needs volunteer tutors to work with adults preparing for exam in English or reading comprehension or math. Hours for tutoring help to be arranged.

G.I.A.C. needs a volunteer tutor to work with an elementary school student in reading, during after-school hours, at times convenient to both.

Camp Fire Girls needs volunteers to assist with short nutrition projects; basic food preparation, measurement, etc. Groups needing assistance meet at South Hill School, Fridays, 2:30 to 3:30; Central School, Wednesdays, 2-3; and Freeville, Wednesdays, 3:45-4:45. Also, group meeting Tuesday evenings, 7 to 8, at Fall Creek School.

Nursing Home needs volunteers to provide entertainment for an hour or two, once a month or more frequently, if possible. Musical or slide shows are the most effective and appreciated. Late morning, late afternoon or early evening of any day can be arranged.

Student Trustee Candidates

J. MARC ABRAMS: Before they tell you what they want to do, make sure they've done something. Most of the candidates in this election have had little or no practical experience in the workings of Day Hall or the Senate. I have served a term on the Senate, during which time I obtained the repeal of the five dollar furniture removal fee, got a ruling that let freshmen sit on the Executive Committee and Committee on Committees, had a change machine installed in the washing center at U Hall No. 1, and have a bill pending which will give the freshman Senators a vote; it has passed out of the Executive Committee unanimously. Currently, as a member of AGEDI, I am endeavoring to find and fund new and innovative forms of education.

The juniors in this race are violating the spirit if not the letter of the law by running when they have less than fifteen months left at this university. I will be here for the full two-year term, and will keep in constant touch with my constituency by monthly news releases, immediate notice on important issues, and will constantly search out advice from those I represent.

BETH BALDWIN: I am neither an adept wheeler-dealer, nor an expert political intriguer. If you think a student trustee must exemplify such expertise don't vote for me. However, I am good at urging people to seriously consider the viewpoints, arguments and alternatives raised by those involved in, and affected by, a particular issue, policy or decision. As a committee member of Risley College, I've worked out mutually acceptable agreements between the University Counsel, the Office of the Dean of Students and Risley. As Treasurer I've experienced both sides of the budgetary coin: unlimited wants v. limited means.

As trustee my policy positions would be consonant with the following priorities: 1.

Educational opportunity regardless of economic standing; 2. Maintenance of academic excellence; 3. Degree of administrative consideration given to articulated student needs and opinions; 4. Eradication of mindless expenditure.

CHARLES FARFAGLIA: The financial situation of the University has reached the critical stage. If recommendations of the Weiss Report are carried out, innovative programs will be destroyed and the total academic quality of the university will continue to deteriorate. Much of the current problem is prompted by the national recession, but is being exacerbated by mismanagement of funds by the Board of Trustees. For example, the Board loaned $2 million to the A.G.&P. Dredging Company in the hope that it would receive the contract for the dredging of the Suez Canal. Shortly thereafter, the company's equipment sank in the canal and the University lost $2 million. Because two members of Cornell's Board of Trustees are involved with A.G.&P., I believe this may be a case of board members using University money to shore up their business interests. Another example of this is Cornell's continued involvement in the Pittston Mining Company which was responsible for a recent mining disaster. I demand a re-examination of Cornell's investment policies.

I don't believe we need a trustee who will sit idly by while the administrators cut academic programs, financial aid, and lay off campus employees. As vice-chairman of the Senate Committee on the University as an Employer and as an R.A., I believe that I can forcefully and accurately represent student opinions.

JONATHAN FEIL: The University's chaotic policy of wasteful expansion in some areas and crippling contraction in necessary services causes deterioration of the quality of the Cornell education and of the Cornell experience. I pledge to work for a quality Cornell!

Tuition: Some hike in tuition is unavoidable. But, tuition should not be the single gap filler between income and expenditure.

Budget cuts: Necessary services are being cut while the administrative budget continues to rise. A broadly based study of priorities, involving all segments of the Cornell community, not just administration, must be undertaken.

Investment: Spiralling costs dictate that we must invest now in maintenance and energy conservation projects. These projects will pay off in one to three years. Leaky roofs with over a $200 million endowment is absurd!

Financial Aid: A higher figure must be used as the cost of attending Cornell.

KATHY FRANKLIN: I am running for the position as student trustee. It is the minority caucus students' stand to have myself as a representative of minority interests. However, this does not, by any means, imply that I will be unresponsive or insensitive to the needs of all the students presently enrolled at Cornell. For, should I become elected I would work to both the interests of the entire non-minority body as well as to the minority segment of students.

FRANK L. RUSCIANO: Excerpts from a position paper to be released before the election:

1. Financial Cutbacks: "The trustees' concern is keeping the University running; the student's concern is how it is being run for the four years they are here. Trustees can try to decide how many cutbacks have to be made, but students must be able to decide exactly where those cutbacks will be made. Let's face it — cutbacks have to occur; I will get student feedback as a trustee, though, to determine which programs students want to keep or sacrifice, and make sure student preferences are reflected in the board's actions."

2. Confidentiality Rule: "A trustee cannot evoke the Confidentiality rule and justify it by saying that students should not hear what he has to say, since the mere presence of a student trustee contradicts his argument. A student trustee, as a member and a representative of the student community, has a duty to report on the decisions being made which affect students; to follow a strict rule of confidentiality is to separate oneself from the student community, and to give up one's identity as a student for an identity as trustee."

"Student representation is in danger of being absorbed by the University bureaucracy; this flow of influence must be reversed."

STEVEN L. SUGARMAN: Thoughts and feelings count. We are in the midst of a stage in Cornell's history when the realization of these factors is essential. At present, Cornell is faced with the arduous, but necessary, task of renovating and revamping programs to reflect proposed budgetary changes. But it is important to emphasize that we can no longer adhere to administrative formulas which regulate the University's institutions, yet abandon the human dimension.

We can not afford to dismiss or "cut back" educational ideals and student values in the face of financial cuts. Any forthcoming fiscal recommendations and program reorganization must embody the desires of the student population (as well as those of the faculty and employee constituencies). It is only then that a climate of satisfaction can replace an atmosphere of alienation.

Drawing upon my experiences as a Senator, and as a member of the Physical Education Subcommittee and Student Finance Commission, I would endeavor in my capacity as trustee to insure that behind the clouds of budgetary jargon would lie the students' concerns shaped into workable and revitalized programs.

MARK A. UNDERBERG: Two months ago I ran for trustee. I am a candidate again. Why? In the 1960's Cornell could afford to spend thousands of dollars on fly-by-night projects such as rearranging the Arts quad paths and still maintain a first-rate academic program. Now we can't. Willard Straight Hall is being air-conditioned. The campus store has a new plexiglass cover. The business school's Malott Hall is getting an addition. That's fine. But...libraries are closing an hour earlier. COSEP is being "integrated." The classics department may be phased out. Women's Studies is in jeopardy. And what did you have to say about it? Students must not only be heard, but they must be listened to as well. The University must not be allowed to ignore student input as it has most recently done in the case of Eleanor Macklin. The student trustee term is two years. I will be on campus for those two years — on campus so that your ideas and concerns will be conveyed to the Board. Cornell is an educational institution — not a business. Don't be phased out.

Utility Improvements Approved

The Cornell Board of Trustees has appropriated $700,000 to rehabilitate and augment existing electric and water services at the Ithaca campus.

The action was taken at the monthly meeting, Tuesday, April 8, of the board's Executive Committee in New York City. Some $600,000 of the appropriation will be used for modification of the electric substation on Kite Hill to service more efficiently the University's main campus west of Fernow Hall.

The project is part of a master plan developed two years ago to increase efficiency, reliability and power resources for the campus's long-range electrical demands.

The Executive Committee also appropriated $100,000, largely for rehabilitation of components of the University's 48 year-old potable water system. The funds will be used for replacement of 50 antiquated divisional valves in the water distribution system; replacement of a section of the filter plant roof and replacement of the roof over a one-million-gallon-tank reservoir on the north campus.

In addition a two-million-gallon-a-day water pump will be installed at the filtration plant to provide the plant with greater pumping capacity and security. Two of its one-million-gallon-a-day pumps have been operating since 1927.
