AGRICULTURE GOES "ALL OUT" FOR WAR

By James S. Knapp '31

Agriculture shares with Engineering the honor of being among the first Colleges at Cornell to think in terms of the war effort. As far back as the summer of 1940, a year and a half before Pearl Harbor, the College's Extension Service was working on farm emergency defense programs. It aided in the formation of the New York State Agricultural Defense Committee, made up of heads of State-wide farm organizations, to sponsor programs for labor-saving devices, to obtain deferment from military service for essential farm workers, and to permit schools to dismiss students to aid in harvesting.

All departments in the College of Agriculture are now on a wartime basis. Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard has said that "Food will win the war and write the peace," and Dean Carl E. Ladd '12 says there is much more truth in this than most persons realize.

Increase Food Production

Agriculture's part in the war is to produce food in sufficient quantities to feed ourselves and our allies; to produce this food in spite of severe shortages of labor, equipment, and supplies. In fact, the greatest food production in the nation's history is desired. It is the job of the State Colleges in every possible way to help farmers of the State to produce at the peak. In order to do this, the Colleges have reorganized their programs of research, teaching, and extension.

Immediately upon entrance of the United States into World War II, research at both the University Agricultural Experiment Station and the State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, administered by the University, was put on a war basis. At that time, the Cornell Experiment Station had nearly 500 research projects underway, many of them relating to food production, distribution, and marketing. All projects were judged and classified as follows:

This ninth article of our series on Cornell and World War II outlines some of the many contributions that the State College of Agriculture is making to the country's war effort. The series will continue with articles on the war adjustments of other Colleges and divisions of the University not yet covered.

1. Those of direct importance to the war; 2, those which can be completed or temporarily discontinued; 3, those which should be continued because of their long-time significance; 4, new ones which should be initiated to aid the war effort.

Since much of the regular work of the Stations relates directly to crop and animal production, protection from diseases and insect pests, and marketing and processing of farm products, the research workers at Cornell and Geneva already have the answers to many of the emergency problems which are arising as a result of the war. Because of shortages and high prices, substitutes will have to be found for certain ingredients of dairy and poultry rations. Similarly, shortages of certain commonly used fungicides and insecticides will tax the efforts of the investigators. Research in pasture and forage crops is being speeded to help farmers get additional feed for their dairy cows. With a shortage of tin, processing and storage of foods by dehydration and quick-freezing is important, and receives attention.

At the new US Plant, Soil, and Nutrition Laboratory on Tower Road, studies are being made of soil and climatic factors in relation to production of food crops high in the minerals and vitamins particularly required for the army and civilian population. Yields in nutrients and not merely tons to the acre is the essential goal. Important results have already been obtained with tomatoes, one of the crops of which the nation asks greater production. The Laboratory, under direction of Professor Leonard A. Maynard, PhD '15, is making studies for the US Army of the nutritive value of certain emergency rations for special troops.

Aid Military Services

The Animal Nutrition Laboratory is spending considerable time on problems referred to the National Research Council by the Army and other Government agencies directly concerned with the war effort. One of these has to do with the shortage of critical feeds. Another study deals with fat requirements for milk production, important because of the impending fat shortage. The laboratory also shares in a cooperative study of the vitamin A value of butter. Professor Clive M. McCay and associates are at work on nutritional problems of special interest to the State Defense Council. Special grants were made both by the Council and the University Board of Trustees to the recently established School of Nutrition to carry on the work.

To obtain the highest yields during the 1942 season, better control than ever will be needed for many common insect pests and diseases. The research men are busy on this, as they

College scientists search for new commercial sources of rubber. Left to right here, in one of the laboratories of the Plant Science Building, are Professors Walter C. Muen-scher, PhD '21, Botany, who holds a weed from Colorado called "Pin-gue" which contains rubber; Ar-thur J. Eames, Botany; Laurence H. offices, where wartime councils have also been formed.

Farm "Minutemen" Ready

Some 15,000 "Extension Minutemen" have been enlisted in the counties in an organization officially launched April 18, on the 167th anniversary of the midnight ride of Paul Revere. These minutemen can reach virtually every farm in each county, on foot or by telephone, on short notice. They work in pairs, a man and a woman being assigned about ten farm families. They don't go from house to house crying "To arms" as did Mr. Revere, but they do carry important farm and home news and find out important needs of farmers in the food production battle. They know the latest on priorities and shortages of farm materials, they help to counteract rumors, they can make surveys such as for labor shortages, and they are on the alert in the nation's war program as it affects the farm and home.

Start Victory Gardens

The Victory Garden program was launched in February with a request from Washington that the Extension Service head it and guide it in the State. A State Victory Garden Council was formed, with Director Simons as chairman, Professor Homer C. Thompson, Vegetable Crops, as chairman of the Extension Service committee, and Professor Albert Hoefer '16 as secretary. In each of fifty-five counties, a county garden council was formed, with the 4-H Club agent as coordinator in most counties. Those who undertake victory gardens receive from time to time printed directions and instructions from the College, telling when, where, how, and what to plant. Orders for these leaflets have been in excess of 150,000 for each issue.

The program goes even further. It urges cooperators not to forget their flowers, shrubs, and lawns, for they furnish valuable recreation and help maintain the beauty of the home in wartime. It puts emphasis not only on growing fruits and vegetables, but on preserving them through storage, canning, and other methods. And a nutriare on scores of other problems directly affecting Uncle Sam's welfare as to foods, feeds, and materials for use at home and abroad.

Scientists Hunt Rubber

Newspapers and the radio have given widespread comment to efforts of the College of Agriculture to find new sources of natural rubber. The B. F. Goodrich Co. has granted $10,000 to finance this research project. University Trustee John L. Collyer '17 is president of Goodrich.

About 1,000 plants are said to contain rubber. An intensive survey is being made both of those plants known to produce rubber and to find other plants which may bear rubber. Some of the College's outstanding scientists are directing this work, including Professors Lewis Knudson, PhD '11, Botany; Laurence H. MacDaniels, PhD '17, Floriculture; Richard Bradfield, Soil Technology; Paul F. Sharp, Dairy Chemistry; and Carl E. F. Guterman, PhD '30, Assistant Director of the Experiment Station. The committee also has the aid of Dr. William C. Geer '02, who has made available the facilities of his Ithaca laboratory and will appraise the quality of any rubber discovered, and of Dr. Liberty Hyde Bailey, noted horticulturist and plant collector. Scientists engaged in the work are familiar with plants from virtually all over the world.

Ten or twenty of the most promising rubber-containing plants will be grown. In the laboratories, new processes have been developed to determine the rubber content of plants, after which the quality and quantity will be tested. Details of progress are, of course, secret.

In teaching, the College recognizes that many students will leave, and that fewer students will enroll. Courses of study, as in the rest of the University, have been accelerated, fitted to wartime needs, and put on an optional year-around basis. The Faculty is ready to offer training to special groups, in military service, industry, agriculture, or elsewhere. As the national program develops, the need for such special instruction will become clearer.

This year, a special winter term will be offered to beginning students, from November 16, 1942, to March 13, 1943. It is designed primarily for young men who work on farms but find it impossible to leave for college the last of September. They can earn credit for a full term and be taught by the regular staff. It is strictly an emergency arrangement for entering students. Those who can enroll in September are being urged to do so to get the benefit of a full college year and wider selection of courses.

Extension Goes to War

Extension Service in Agriculture is teeming with activities of direct concern to the war effort, organizing men and boys on farms of the State. There are about 38,000 Four-H Club members, and approximately 50,000 Farm Bureau members affiliated with the Service which has its headquarters at Cornell but operates in the counties under the leadership of county agents and 4-H Club agents. To coordinate Extension activities of both the Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics, Director Lloyd R. Simons '11 has appointed seventeen committees to deal with food for victory, victory gardens, farm machinery, farm labor, good living on the farm from the farm, soil conservation, nutrition, health, rural fire protection, discussion groups, recreation, cities and larger villages, publications and information, records, research, reports, and finance.

The programs reach farm people primarily through the county extension

Department of Agricultural Engineering trained fifteen district engineers who are now out in the State with demonstration trucks, helping farmers repair and adjust their machinery to increase food production in spite of the war shortage of farm labor. New York State Defense Council turned this job over to the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture. Fenner tion note creeps into the messages from time to time.

Newspapers have given wholehearted support to promoting victory gardens, with column after column devoted to recommendations and pictures. A committee at the College issues timely information to county coordinators, who in turn pass it on to the papers.

Enlist Farm Help

A comprehensive program has been worked out with the State Education Department and the US Employment Service to bring together high school boys willing to work on farms and farmers who can use their help this summer. Schools will enroll youth and the Employment Service handle requests and placements. The youths will be placed on farms or grouped in suitable camps or transported daily, as the situation may require. They are expected to help alleviate the acute shortage of farm labor in the State, estimated at 45,000 workers.

Put Machines to Work

A State-wide program of machinery adjustment and repair started this spring and will continue through the year, to help farmers get their equipment in shape for 1942 and prevent costly breakdowns during the growing season. The Extension Service is administering and supervising the program, undertaken with an $80,000 appropriation from the State Defense Council. It has the support and cooperation of the State US Department of Agriculture Defense Board, farm machinery dealers, high school teachers of vocational agriculture, and others.

Fifteen agricultural engineers were trained at Cornell to conduct community repair clinics, tractor tune-up meetings, and field adjustment meetings throughout the State. One engineer was assigned to each of fifteen districts. Each engineer is equipped with a demonstration truck closely akin to a blacksmith shop on wheels, which carries equipment that the typical farmer would not have. The object is not to do the work for the farmer, but to show him how to do it, and to call attention to the need for doing it. A special effort was made to get him to order repair parts early, to avoid later hardships and to help both government and nation to plan the best use of metals. Hundreds of meetings have been held in the agricultural counties of the State. As an indication of results, one large manufacturer reported February sales of repair parts in New York at 329 per cent above 1941, and March sales at 144 per cent above a year ago. Plans are also underway to keep in repair and adjust electric motors used to operate milking machines, coolers, and water supply pumps.

Rural Youngsters Help

Four-H Club members are more than doing their bit. They have victory gardens, help in machinery repair, raise livestock and other food products, work on the farm, and take part in civilian defense activities. Clubs in most counties are helping with salvage drives for paper, rubber, rags, and metals. Recently, during 4-H National Mobilization Week, more than 5,000 new members were added to the ranks as the farm boys and girls rededicated themselves to the nation's victory program. They plan to step up production in dairy and poultry products, to produce more pork for home use, and to increase greatly the number of victory gardens. Nearly 2,000 boys are engaged in fire prevention.

The Extension Service also carries on the educational part of the Federal "Food for Freedom" campaign of the US Department of Agriculture. A news service is operated to reach, twice each week, both daily and weekly newspapers of the State with information on food production, Government programs, College activities, priorities, farm labor, and other events in the limelight. A daily farm radio program also emanates from the Campus studios of WHCU, and radio briefs are sent to more than thirty other stations throughout the State.

Use Bulletins, Pictures

The College is issuing a series of at least twenty-five war-emergency bulletins for farmers to help them currently and in anticipation of later needs. They are short and to the point, usually of four pages, and deal with such subjects as emergency hay crops; cannery peas; manure, a wartime fertilizer; lime for New York soils; hay for the dairy herd; meeting the wartime poultry situation; dry bean production; tune up the tractor; wartime organization of the Extension Service; more alfalfa and clover on New York farms; and soybeans.

Plans are also underway to use moving pictures as a supplement to extension teaching in farm meetings next year. Professor Elmer S. Phillips '32 will take films this spring, summer, and fall, in cooperation with College specialists, to show correct farm practices.

Many members of the College staff are making significant contributions through their services on important committees. Dean Ladd is the representative of agriculture on the New York State War Council; Professor William I. Myers '14 is chairman of the land committee of the National Resources Planning Board; Professor Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, is serving as Commissioner of the State Division of Commerce; Director Simons is a member of the State USDA War Board and of the national committee on wartime extension work. Professor Maynard is a member of the advisory committee on nutrition of the National Research Council and chairman of the Council's committee on animal nutrition; Professor Robert A. Polson is on the field staff of the State Defense Council.

At State College, Penn State beat the Freshmen by an even closer margin, 69-66. The meet hinged on the final event, the discus throw. Cornell needed first and second places to win, but took first and third.

Audenried Whittemore, Jr. won the discus, shot put, and javelin throw as the meet's only triple winner. William R. Bromstedt won the 100- and 220-yard dashes, and Richard T. Stacy the 120-yard high and 220-yard low hurdles. Robert P. Barnes won the broad jump with 22 feet 4 inches, an excellent Freshman performance.

After the meet the team elected David R. Bulk of Babylon, captain. Bulk, a distance runner, was also co-captain of Freshman cross country.

GOLF LEAGUE MATCHES

One point kept Cornell from winning two matches in the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association's Middle Atlantic Division on the University Golf Course last week end.

Penn State won, 5-4, Friday to break a three-match winning streak for Cornell. On Saturday, Cornell defeated Pittsburgh, 6-3, and Penn State also won over Pittsburgh, 8-1.

William H. Middleton '42 and Paul R. Thomas '42 each won two singles matches and paired to win two best ball matches, accounting for six points in the two events.

In a Freshman match on the same course Saturday, Penn State defeated Cornell, 8-1.

BASEBALL TEAM BUSY

In four games last week, climaxed by the Cornell Day doubleheader on Hoy Field Saturday, the baseball team defeated Syracuse, lost to Colgate, and broke even in two Eastern Intercollegiate League contests with Yale.

Colgate won, 8-3, at Hamilton April 28, as Edwin L. Bell '44 and Leo Hamalian '42 gave up twelve hits. Cornell committed six errors and collected only six hits, two by Louis J. Daukas '44, first baseman.

The next day at Syracuse Cornell won, 8-6, breaking a 6-6 tie in the first of the ninth inning when Charles P. Weiss '44, outfielder, playing in his second game of the season, hit for two bases to score Daukas and Harry L. Turner '42, catcher. Raymond Jenkins '42 and Hamalian pitched nine-hit ball.

The Yale doubleheader offered some good baseball for the visiting sub-Freshmen and their alumni "chauffeurs." Yale won the first game, 2-1, and Cornell the second, 6-1. Both were seven-inning contests.

Harrison, Yale's star pitcher, allowed five hits in the opening game, two of them in the first inning when Cornell scored. Ronald E. Stillman '42, shortstop, singled and went to second on an outfield error, was sacrificed to third by Captain Robert C. Ochs '42, and scored on an outfield fly by Samuel W. Hunter '43. In the second inning, Yale bunched three hits and a walk for two runs. Hamalian was taken out in the fifth inning when he walked the first batter, and Bell came in to hold Yale to two hits the rest of the way.

Making his first start of the season, Philip Smith '42 held Yale to four hits in the second game, allowing two of them in the fourth inning when the visitors took a 1-0 lead on a triple by Whelan and a single by Averback.

Cornell clinched the game with a five-run rally in the fifth inning, abetted by four Yale errors. The three hits in the inning were by Daukas, Ochs, and Louis C. Bufalino '42, whose home run into left field scored Hunter. In the first game Bufalino hit a triple. Cornell added an unneeded run in the sixth inning on a single by Jerome A. Batt '43, second baseman, another Yale error, and Stillman's outfield fly.

The split with Yale left Cornell in a triple tie for second place. The standing of the League teams:

	W	L	PC
Princeton	4	1	.800
Columbia	4	4	.500
Cornell	2	2	.500
Harvard	2	2	.500
Pennsylvania	3	4	.429
Dartmouth	2	3	.400
Yale	2	3	.400

Turner, the Cornell catcher who up to the games of April 25 led the League in hitting with a mark of .571, picked up three hits in seven times at bat for a batting average of .500.

The Freshman team won one and lost two games last week. The victory was over Manlius School, 14-3, on Alumni Field Thursday, the team's first win of the season. Colgate beat the first-year players, 4-1, at Hamilton Tuesday and Penn State, 8-2, at State College Saturday.

NAVY VARSITY WINS

For the second week in succession, the Varsity crew lost a race by eight-tenths of a second. One-eighth of a length separated the US Naval Academy and Cornell at the close of the mile and three-quarters race on the Severn River at Annapolis last Saturday. The Saturday before, Cornell lost to Harvard by the same time margin and in similar circumstances.

Cornell defeated the Academy eights in the junior-varsity and freshman races over the same course. The times:

Varsity: US Naval Academy, 9:39; Cornell, 9:39.8.

Junior Varsity: Cornell, 9:53.3; Naval Academy, 10:10.

Freshman: Cornell, 9:47.1; Naval Academy, 10:10.

Cornell Varsity boat started strongly, opening up a lead of an eighth of a length in the first quarter-mile. Navy stepped up its beat, gained the lead in the next quarter-mile, and increased its margin until open water showed between the shells with a mile left to go. Cornell sprinted, rowing at 39 strokes per minute, and cut the Academy lead to three-quarters of a length in the next half-mile. Both crews rowed better than 40 in the

LACROSSE TEAMS WIN

The lacrosse team shut out RPI, 17-0, on Alumni Field last Saturday, with Seth J. Campbell '44, in home, the high scorer with five goals. All told, nine Cornell players shared the scoring, Arthur N. Foster '42, first attack, netting three goals, Robert A. Moore '43, second attack, two, and Roy E. Herrmann '43, a spare, two.

The Freshman team defeated Syracuse, 11-5, on the same field after the Varsity game.

NAME SHELL FOR HART '44

Cover picture this week shows a new shell being carried to the boathouse float on the Inlet, to be christened the "Richard P. Hart." It is named for the late Richard P. Hart '44 who rowed at No. 6 in the Freshman boat at Poughkeepsie last year and who was accidentally killed while working on a power line near Chittenango last summer.

Mrs. Norman Sonju, wife of the Freshman coach, christened the boat with a bottle of Cayuga Lake water in the presence of Hart's shipmates of last year and of his father and mother. Hart's parents and other members of his family recently established the Richard P. Hart, Jr. Memorial Fund with an initial gift of $1250 to the University, the income to be used to encourage rowing.

The Richard P. Hart, like most other shells used by Cornell crews, was built by George Pocock of Seattle, Wash.

THIELE '11 GENERAL OFFICER

Commanding the 34th Coast Artillery Brigade at one of this country's most important defense posts is Brigadier General Claude M. Thiele '11. The Coast Artillery has been General Thiele's career ever since he won his commission as a second lieutenant, together with the late Theodore R. Murphy '10 and Octave DeCarre '11, after taking Army examinations in September, 1911. Thiele had received the CE degree the previous June, had been a major in the Cadet Corps, and was then an instructor in Civil Engineering. He is a member of Seal and Serpent.

Three years ago, he was a lieutenant colonel on the staff of the commanding general of the Manila Bay harbor defenses, serving at Fort Mills, Corregidor, with Colonel George Ruhlen '07 and with Captain Curtis W. Betzold '32, who was post veterinarian. As a major during World War I, Thiele was in the Adjutant General's Department of the AEF and went with the Army of Occupation into Germany.

Captain George W. Knox '26 and several other Cornellians are members of General Thiele's present command.

closing quarter-mile, with Cornell just failing to overtake the Midshipmen.

The Junior Varsity took the lead at the start and was never headed, winning by four and one-half lengths. In the Freshman race, the Academy eight took the lead at the start but lost it at the half-mile mark. Cornell pulled out to a win by five and one-half lengths.

TENNIS TEAMS WIN ALL

Not a point did the opposition score in the tennis team's two engagements last week. Cornell defeated Syracuse, 9-0, at Syracuse Thursday and Buffalo by the same score on the Cascadilla Courts Saturday.

In both matches John E. Slater, Jr. '43, Captain Jerome I. Lieberthal '42, William J. Shaughnessy '42, and John R. Dingle '42 played the first four positions in singles. James A. Stein '44 was at No. 5 against Syracuse and No. 6 against Buffalo, with Richard I. Fricke '43 at No. 5 against Buffalo and James B. Dinneen '44 at No. 6 in the Syracuse match. A new doubles combination, Richard A. Perry '44 and Francis J. Worcester '43, played against Buffalo.

The Freshman tennis team also won twice last week, defeating Manlius School, 9-0, at Manlius Thursday and Penn State, 7-2, on the Cascadilla Courts

THE LAW SCHOOL AND THE WAR

By Raymond F. Howes '24

This article continues our series on Cornell and World War II. Like the others, it describes the wartime adjustments which are being made in one division of the University.

Letters from Law School alumni who are in the armed forces indicate that many find their legal training useful. Lawyers may be detailed for specialized service in the Judge Advocate General's Department, the Provost Marshal's Department, Military Intelligence, the Quartermaster Corps, or the legal, finance, and contract departments of Army units in camp and in the field. Like a civilian community, each Army unit has its own police and its courts which administer justice after hearing both prosecution and defense and which give the accused the right of appeal. Hence a Law student, whether he enters the Army as an officer or as an enlisted man, is likely sooner or later to be called upon to make use of his professional knowledge and skill.

Law students have not, however, been given occupational deferment as a group under the Selective Service Act, although most local boards with which officers of the Cornell Law School have dealt have allowed students to finish their courses if they had only a few months to go and were taking an accelerated program. Such actions have been taken on the boards' own initiative, since the Law School has not made any requests for deferment of students.

Forseeing the effects of the Selective Service Act on legal education, the Law School was the first division of the University to adopt a year-around accelerated program. It had a summer term in 1941 for the first time since 1932, and has now accommodated its accelerated program to those of other Colleges of the University, so that it gives three fifteen-week terms in each calendar year. Cornell's Law Faculty was the first in the country to offer to teach during summer terms without additional compensation.

Other special provisions have been made to enable students to complete as much work as possible for the degree before they become subject to Selective Service. The Law School now accepts students from other colleges at the end of the junior year of pre-legal work, a privilege formerly accorded only to students in the College of Arts and Sciences at Cornell. Furthermore, a student may enter the Law School at the beginning of any term, commencing his Law studies immediately after finishing pre-legal training. It is possible for a student to enter the accelerated program in the College of Arts and Sciences June 29, 1942, and to graduate from the Law School in May, 1946. Professor William H. Farnham '18 of the Law School admissions committee makes it clear, however, that there has been no lowering of academic standards. The record of every applicant is scanned with great care, and many applicants are rejected because, in the judgment of the Faculty, they are not prepared to do the quality of work demanded.

As in other divisions of the University, students in need of such assistance may receive scholarships during summer terms on the accelerated program; and scholarships are now available for a larger proportion of Law students than in former years. Men called into military service after the middle of any term are given credit for a full term's work, and if the term happens to be the last of the Senior year, they receive degrees. This arrangement has been approved by the New York State Court of Appeals and by similar agencies in several other States.

Law School enrollment during the fall term of 1941 was 162 students, approximately thirty less than the average for several preceding years. Of this number twenty-five have already been graduated and twenty-five first- and second-year men have been called into military service. Six first-year men who complete their fourth year in the University in May are enrolled in the advanced ROTC course and will be immediately commissioned and called to active service with the Army. Three men in the same class, who have been accepted by the Navy under the V-7 program, will also be called to active duty at that time.

Students who complete their Law courses and are not called into military service have a wide variety of opportunities to help the war effort. They are needed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for many types of work, including protection against sabotage and other subversive activities, and may find employment in numerous other Government bureaus, boards, and departments. Some of them will go into law firms handling the affairs of war industries, to take the place of older men who have been called into Government service. Women graduates, according to recent letters of inquiry reaching the Law School, are wanted by law firms in greater numbers than ever before and at satisfactory salaries. It is anticipated that as soon as this situation becomes widely known, there may be a considerable increase in the number of women applying for admission to the Law School.

Few changes have been necessary in the content of Law courses at Cornell. Men enrolled in the advanced ROTC get instruction in military law. Other Law students are now offered a brief course of lectures on the subject by Lieutenant Walter E. Hopper, Jr. '37 of the ROTC staff.

Nor has the war caused many changes in the Faculty. Professor George T. Washington is the only one thus far called from Ithaca; he has joined the Office of Emergency Management in Washington, D. C. Professor Farnham, while giving full time to his work at the School, has been acting as a member of the Registrants' Advisory Board to Selective Service Board 495 in Tompkins County. All members of the Law School Faculty have been alert to every opportunity to aid students during the present emergency and to sacrifice for the welfare of the University.

RIDEOUT MEETS BOYS

Last of the season's Cornell Club parties before Cornell Day for boys of local secondary schools were those of the Washington, D. C., and Delaware Clubs, April 23 and 24. Professor Blanchard L. Rideout, PhD '36, of the Faculty committee on relations with secondary schools spoke at both gatherings. Motion pictures of the Campus were shown and Professor Rideout and alumni answered the boys' questions about the University.

In Washington, Professor Rideout attended the regular weekly luncheon of the Cornell Club April 23. Buffet supper was served at the Kenwood Country Club to twenty-five alumni and twenty-two boys invited by the secondary school committee of which John S. Gorrell '05 is chairman. The meeting was opened by President Charles E. Krey '19 and turned over to Gorrell.

After dinner at the University Club in Wilmington April 24 with the Delaware Club secondary schools committee, Professor Rideout met ten boys and twenty-five alumni at an evening party. Master of ceremonies was Frank H. McCormick '10, chairman of the schools committee.

ELECTRONICS "ON THE AIR"

Attracted by recently-published accounts of work in electronics at the University, General Electric Co. representatives came to the Campus April 24 to see it at first hand. Their findings will be used in the first of a new series of broadcasts on the CBS network.

Alexander C. Stevens '07, who is in charge of educational sales at General Electric, brought Dawson Powell, science writer, to spend a day at the University. Conducted by Raymond F. Howes '24, they visited the School of Electrical Engineering and the Departments of Chemistry and Physics. In Lincoln Hall, they were shown varied instruction and research, including the special course on high-frequency micro-wave apparatus which Seniors are taking in preparation for communications duty with the Army and Navy. At the High Voltage Laboratory in East Ithaca, Director William A. Lewis and Professor Raymond Agar demonstrated new equipment that produces artificial lightning up to 3,000,000 volts. Professor Peter Debye, Chemistry, demonstrated electronic apparatus used to measure distances between atoms in molecules. Professors R. Clifton Gibbs '06 and Lloyd P. Smith, PhD '30, Physics, showed research equipment and its uses in Rockefeller Hall.

Frazier Hunt, General Electric news commentator, broadcasts over CBS Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings. He will describe the work at Cornell as the first of a series on the uses of vacuum tubes and other electronic devices at various universities.

NOW, IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

They danced, you recall, all through the night before Waterloo.

Something of the same spirit seems to pervade this last, abbreviated term which is slipping away to the brink of Niagara unnoted and uncharted. But a significant fact sticks out once in a while. Here at the first of May we don't know if there is to be a "Poughkeepsie Regatta," and if so, where or when. If a boat-race is to be held May 30, Cornell will take part, but not on June 6. By the latter date, six of the Varsity eight will be in the armed forces and on their way to undisclosed destinations. Events have become that real and that close!

But in the meantime, we're disposed to make the most of what little of youth remains to us. And even the season seems to be conspiring to make what will be the last term for so many a notable one. A feathery shade from little leaves appeared on the Campus flagstones at the end of April that one does not commonly expect hereabouts until the middle of May. Tulips are in bloom, and lilacs budding long before their time. Spring Day houseparties, so often stormbound when Cornell's pagan festival was held toward the end of May, were vouchsafed a soft summer night on April 25.

There was little dancing, we are told, though music trickled out through open doors and windows. Boys and girls chose to sit out on rugs and blankets spread out across fraternity house lawns, to hold hands through the warm, fragrant night and until the sky over Turkey Hill turned to green and yellow at the day spring.

It's a pleasant thing to have one's faith in undergraduate humanity so abundantly justified by the event. Gone are the forums and discussion groups. Gone is all reliance on loose talk to settle anything. Come is the time for tight-lipped action. And—Glory Be—these boys are facing the facts just as young men on this continent have always faced comparable facts: at the last minute when they had to. When there are just a few minutes of boyhood and happiness and gaiety left to you before you pass through the door where the dark begins, the best way to spend them is out on a fraternity house lawn holding hands with a girl and watching the sky over Turkey Hill turn from violet, to green, to yellow.

There has been some disconcerting talk current among the colleges in this last decade. This now turns out, thank God, to have been talk and not conviction. It troubled some of us more than it should have done. We should have realized all the time that it takes more scientific knowledge than we now possess—that it takes more than three generations, anyway—to breed rabbits out of lion stock.

GENERAL ELECTRIC REPRESENTATIVES GATHER RADIO BROADCAST MATERIAL

ADAMS SPEAKS TO CLUB

Dr. Arthur S. Adams, Assistant Dean of the College of Engineering, who is in charge of the Navy courses at the University and of the ESMDT courses for war training, spoke to the Cornell Club of Buffalo April 24. He was the first of a new series of Club luncheon speakers at the Buffalo Athletic Club, and seventy-five members and guests attended. Speaker May 1 was Sergeant James Barrett of the Buffalo Police Department laboratory.

HOTELMEN THANK STATLERS

New York chapter of the Cornell Society of Hotelmen at a recent meeting presented to trustees of the Statler Foundation a scroll expressing the gratitude of Hotel alumni for the gift of Ellsworth M. Statler Hall to the University. President James A. Morrison '30 of the New York chapter and H. Victor Grohmann '28, who designed the scroll, presented it to Mrs. E. M. Statler and Frank A. McKowne of the Foundation. The scroll reads:

"The New York Chapter of the Cornell Society of Hotelmen wishes to extend, as a group and as individual members, its sincere gratitude and deep appreciation to Mrs. Ellsworth M. Statler, Mr. Frank A. McKowne, Mr. Edward H. Letchworth, as trustees of the Statler Foundation, for its magnanimity and munificence in providing funds for the erection of a new building to house the activities of the Department of Hotel Administration at Cornell University to be known as Ellsworth M. Statler Hall.

"It is altogether fitting and proper that this fine new hall of learning should bear the name of one of our noblest hotelman whose foresightedness and generosity have for many years assisted in the maintenance of this course where men are trained and educated for the great hotel industry."

The Statler Foundation announced last December that it would support a new building at the University for the Department of Hotel Administration. Selection of an architect and site for Statler Hall are now being considered.

ROCHESTER HAS ROTHWELL

Speaker at the regular Wednesday luncheon of the Cornell Club of Rochester May 6, at the University Club, was James L. Rothwell '20. His subject was "Accounting, Theory and Practice."

FOUR AT HARVARD

New students at the Harvard School of Business Administration are Mynderse V. Booth '39, William H. North '39, Richard T. Meister '40, and Frederick W. Jaqua '42. They are candidates for the Master of Business Administration degree, and as members of the Harvard ROTC unit will be eligible for commissions in the Army Quartermaster Corps or the Navy Supply Corps.

LONG ISLAND DANCE

Cornell Club of Nassau County invites all alumni of the vicinity and their friends to the annual spring supper dance May 16 at the Nassau Country Club in Glen Cove. Music by the orchestra of Paul Muro will start at ten. Cornell officers and men from Mitchell Field and other Army and Navy posts on Long Island are being especially invited. Chairman of the committee is Douglas M. Halstead '31 of Garden City.

DRAMATIC CLUB GOES BACK

Youths of 1942 tried valiantly to make "Love in '76" and "Rappings and Table Movings" amusing, when these two comedies of 1857 and 1853 were presented by the Dramatic Club in the Willard Straight Theater May 1 and 2. Most of the actors were the younger members of the Club.

"Love in '76" concerned a sly young female in love with a Colonial officer and her successful attempt to outwit a British major. Gwen C. Schmidt '42 of Tenaflly, N. J., as this minx, and Paul W. Leighton '42 of Twin Falls, Idaho, as a doddering school-teacher, managed to carry the play through.

"Rappings and Table Movings," a one-act "after-piece," was funny because of the antics of Edward D. Eddy '44 of Ithaca. It was the story of a hoax played by Misery Ann Mawkins, a Cayuga County medium, on some innocent Londoners.

Costumes and settings for both plays were interesting.—H. H. '40

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

CHIMEMASTERS J. William Sowerwine '42 and Phyllis F. Dittman '43 held "open house" in the Bell Tower one afternoon last week, inviting undergraduates to see the Chimes played and to send in advance requests for selections. Added attraction was the serving of soft drinks and cookies. Some forty guests came, and the requested selections included Gilbert and Sullivan, Cornell songs, and (on a bet) the "Jennie McGraw Rag" which the two Chime-masters divided and together completed in less than one minute. The program ended as usual with "The Evening Song" at six.

ARMY AIR FORCE officers had an audience of some 400 students at a mass meeting in Baker Laboratory April 30, at which they explained the new plan of enlisting privates in the Air Force Reserve, to be called for training as aviation cadets after graduation. A popular speaker was Lieutenant Elliott Vandevanter, West Point '39, recently returned with the DSC for service in the Philippines and Java. He is the son of Elliott Vandevanter '08. A recruiting unit for the new Air Force program is to visit the University shortly.

SPEAKER May 1 in the Friday series of non-resident lecturers to Seniors in Mechanical, Electrical, and Administrative Engineering was Lawrence E. Gubb '16, chairman of the board of the Philco Radio & Television Corporation, Philadelphia, Pa. He spoke on "Radio, Television, and the Future."

MUSIC MAKERS who have taken part in undergraduate recitals in Willard Straight Hall this year gave a cabaret performance in the Memorial Room May 5. Guests were seated at tables, and the program, titled "Wine-Time in the Vineyard," included songs and instrumental numbers by the student performers.

DISSATISFACTION with the conduct of Student Council elections last week under the new constitution, which was designed to eliminate "politics," is voiced by Cornell Daily Sun editorial writers and columnists. Votes were credited according to proportional representation, and an ambiguity as to the necessity for a majority vote made it uncertain until the Council ruled in a special meeting next day whether a president had been elected. The Council's ruling confirmed election of Roy B. Unger '43 of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, as president. Another provision on which dispute arose resulted in election of Mitchell R. Zavon '44 of Woodhaven, because he was not a fraternity member, although he garnered but twenty-seven votes.

CORNELL DAY May 1 and 2 brought 433 schoolboys and seventy alumni to visit the University for a successful spring week end. The prospective Freshmen guests were enlisted by secondary schools committees of twenty-seven Cornell Clubs of the Eastern seaboard and as far west as Chicago. Story and pictures of Cornell Day next week.

Others elected to the Council were Louis G. Helmick, Jr. '43 of Fairmount, W. Va., Richard L. Walter '43 of Woodmere, William A. Basse '44 of Highland Park, Mich., Robert W. Ballard '44 of Trenton, N. J., William J. Rothfuss '44 of Plainfield, N. J., and Peter W. Stone '45 of Staten Island. An Interfraternity Council ruling imposed a penalty on any fraternity if less than three-fourths of its members voted in the election. Twelve of the twenty members of the Student Council, under the new constitution, are the officers of Campus organizations.

WINNERS of the student art show in Willard Straight Hall were Jane T. Spargo '43 of Rome, for her sculptured head of a Negress, titled "Basin Street," and Frederick C. Gjessing '42 of Glover, Vt., for his "Still Life" painting. Prizes of $15 for each of the two classes were given by members of the Faculty.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI has won the Pan-Hellenic Council cup for the sorority having the highest collective scholarship average. It was awarded at a May Day tea at Willard Straight Hall, Ruth M. Ohringer '43 of Pittsburgh, Pa., president of the house, being crowned "Queen of the May."

ELLSWORTH MACGILLIVRAY, who had a photography studio on State Street during the early years of the century, died April 27 in Norwalk, Ohio, at the age of seventy-three. MacGillivray inherited many negatives from Jeff Beardsley, who was a photographer in Ithaca when the University was opened, and it was MacGillivray that Charles E. Courtney preferred to take pictures of the Cornell crews. A set of his crew pictures hung in the old Cornell Club of New York on Forty-fifth Street.

WINNERS OF THE "C" since last spring were guests at the fourth annual banquet given by the Department of Physical Education and Athletics in Willard Straight Memorial Room April 27. Robert J. Kane '34, Acting Director of the Department, presided, and President Edmund E. Day and Chairman H. Edward Babcock of the University Board of Trustees spoke of the importance of athletic training to the service of the country.

SWIMMING in the University pool at the upper end of Beebe Lake officially opened May 2, with Walter C. O'Connell '12 again in charge of lifeguards there. Warm weather the last two weeks, however, has attracted a number of undergraduates to the sun-tempered waters of the Campus creeks.

ETA KAPPA NU, scholastic honor society in Electrical Engineering, has elected Corles M. Perkins '42 of Milwaukee, Wis., Charles G. Morrison '43 of Verona, N. J., and Peter Winokur, Jr. '43 of Philadelphia, Pa.

SEVENTY MEMBERS of the men's and women's journalism societies, Sigma Delta Chi and Pi Delta Gamma, gave a "Journalism Banquet" in Willard Straight Hall April 29. Romeyn Berry '04 and Professor Bristow Adams recounted their experiences with student publications and journalists at Cornell. Certificates were presented to the Cornell Daily Sun for the best editorial of the year and to the Cornell Countryman for the best feature article, one written by Jared Van Wagenan, Jr. '91.

ITHACA COLLEGE celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a dinner at the Ithaca Hotel May 2. President Edmund E. Day was an invited speaker. The college began in 1892 as the Ithaca Conservatory of Music.

SENIORS in Professor Frank O. Ellenwood's course in heat-power engineering were addressed April 30 by Otto de Lorenzi '15, assistant general sales manager of the Combustion Engineering Co., New York City. He gave an illustrated lecture on modern steam generating units, with motion pictures of furnaces in operation. Week before, Professor Ellenwood took his class on an inspection trip through the plant of the Air Preheater Corp. at Wellsville.

SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER May 10 is The Rev. G. Bromley Oxnam, Bishop of the Methodist Church, Boston, Mass.

CORINTHIAN YACHT CLUB sailors on the Severn off Annapolis, Md., May 2 and 3 took third place for the Middle Atlantic Dinghy Association championship. Naval Academy crews won with a score of 92, Lafayette 84, Cornell 83, with Drexel Institute, Stevens Institute, Haverford College, Princeton, and Pennsylvania, also sailing. James P. Beardsley '43 of Auburn has been elected commodore of the Cornell Corinthians; Bruce A. Pope '43 of River Forest, Ill., vice-commodore; Robert H. Underwood '42 of Ithaca, secretary-treasurer. Beardsley, Pope, L. Jackson Moulton '42, and William J. Grant '45 sailed at Annapolis.

Call of 1917

"C. U. —in '42"

By Herbert R. Johnston, Class Secretary
81 Tacoma Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

In spite of the many handicaps facing our Twenty-five-year Reunion, returns and deposits are coming in every day from all sections of the East and Middle West. CHARLIE (SHEP) SHEPARD writes from Washington, D. C., "The following have indicated that they expect to be in Ithaca in May: JOHN COURTNEY, FRANK CULLIMAN, JACK GARDNER, C. SHEPARD, IVAN BUYS, EDWIN HALL. Many others have indicated they would like to attend including WALTER S. CHILLINGWORTH who is now located at 1347 Jefferson Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. Indications are that there should be over 200 in Ithaca for the Reunion."

BILL CRIM, our Reunion chairman, states he is gratified at the tone of co-operation expressed in letters and other responses from the fellows planning to return to Ithaca May 23. Many will stay over night in fraternity houses. Others tell the committee not to worry about Saturday night accommodations. They will probably be up all night anyhow, and it won't be the first time they have done so, especially in Ithaca.

The following address changes were received recently: JOHN H. HATHAWAY, 140 West Street, Room 940, New York; ROLAND M. WATT, 226 McCully Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.; WALTER B. BALCH, 777 El Camino Real, Burlingame, Cal.

Your secretary had a letter recently from PACKY PASKOW from Portland, Ore., in which he makes the following statement: "I stopped off at Salinas, Cal., to look over the new Government guayule (rubber) plantation—some project! Am sending you a souvenir twig off a bush, so you can start in competition to JOHN COLLYER." We'll keep the twig, Packy, but only as a souvenir! Our days of pioneering are over, especially with the head start which John has!

works for Curtiss Wright. They live in Caldwell, N. J.

ELIZABETH WILSON, too, has a new name for our files: Mrs. Richard S. Morris of 1933 Portage Avenue, South Bend, Ind. Thank you for your letter and your $1 Class dues. Since graduation Betty has worked in the auditing department of a Scranton department store. A choir group she took part in was chosen to sing at the World's Fair. They sang some numbers in Welsh, including ones in the picture, "How Green Was My Valley." Dick Morris was in the chorus, too. Betty's folks moved to Indiana and she got a job with Studebaker Corp. where she is now in the budget and expense department. Dick came west and they were married December 26. He works on defense work in the Kingsbury Ordnance Plant.

ESTHER CLOUGH is teaching home ec in King Ferry Central School.

LOUISE BURNETT was married at her home, April 4, to Gilfon Miller. Mail will reach her at 96 Edgemont Road, Katonah. JANET GREENWOOD gave me the news, and we gather that Louise is still teaching Home Ec in Katonah.

Also from JAN, we extend congratulations to CORNELIA SNELL BENSELY, and say hello to Julia Eaton Bensely, born April 12.

CLASS OF 1941

Women

By Ruth E. Cochran, Class Secretary
403 Elmwood Avenue, Ithaca, N. Y.

MARGY BRASS GREENE and her husband RICHARD W. GREENE, also '41, live at 372 Longwood Avenue, Boston, Mass. He's attending Harvard Medical College and Marge is going to business school.

CONNIE MERRITT became Mrs. Roger M. Merwin, April 9. Her husband will graduate in Hotel Administration this May, and she's teaching in Gilbertsville High School.

ELEANOR SLACK plans to be married to JAMES FOSTER '34, August 1. Jim is assistant county agricultural agent in Onondaga County, where "Slacky" plans to join him, leaving her job as assistant home demonstration agent in Broome County.

VIOLET SCHULKE has been working for the Sperry Gyroscope Co. in Brooklyn, but expected to be transferred to a new plant in Lake Success, L. I., at the end of April. 605 West Wilson Avenue, Bellmore, is her address.

NANCY COPELAND, who left college in the middle of her Senior year for a literary career, is now business girls' editor of Charm Magazine, where her job is to write up the activities of girls working in industries. She plans to come back this summer to finish work for her BS.

GINNY BUELL was in town the other night from her headquarters in Elmira, and she gave me the latest about JANE FRIER. Jane is now assistant personnel manager for Sears, Roebuck in Syracuse. Her address: 765 West Onondaga Street.

Word from KAY BARNES informs us that she's senior girl's supervisor at a fresh-air camp in Ohio. You can write her at 2801 East Boulevard, Cleveland.

From Box 27, Union Springs, comes news from MARIE BAHNMULLER. She's been teaching social studies in the central school there (and liking it very much) since last September.

Men

By Ensign Raymond W. Kruse, Class Secretary
131 Washington Street, Brighton, Mass.

LEONARD LEWIS recently asked me what the situation is on Reunions this year. I'll answer his question here so that any more of you with the same question in the back of your minds will find the answer. It was decided to have not only a Reunion in Ithaca but also in all cities where there is a considerable group of alumni for the benefit of those who could not get to Ithaca for the festivities. The city affairs will take place May 23, Saturday night, and no doubt the roof of each establishment will be blown off.

'41 does not have a scheduled Reunion this year, but all of you are more than welcome to these various city Reunion night affairs. I suggest getting in touch with the local Cornell Club to find out the dope. No doubt many Army, Navy, and otherwise people will not be able to make the affair at the nearest Cornell Club, but there certainly is nothing stopping all the Cornellians in your camp, fort, or wherever you are from getting together and celebrating. Read the ALUMNI News for latest developments.

Lieutenant ROBERT C. ROSS has been down in Panama since November, and has travelled all over the Republic and Zone by airplane, railroad, boat, and truck, and even spent a month in the jungles. Come on up to Boston, Bob, where things are somewhat civilized! A letter addressed to Bob's home, 121 Panfield Road, Brighton, N. Y., would be forwarded to him.

An article came out in a paper recently announcing the marriage of Lieutenant SAMUEL HAIGH, USA, to Grace Kelly of Trumansburg. Congratulations to you from '41! Down at the bottom of this article was a little note that wood ticks can live four years without food; just what the connection is with the marriage I don't know, but I wouldn't suggest your trying to beat the wood ticks by all means.

PORTER (PETE) GIFFORD writes that he is on his way overseas on a special project for the Air Corps. Where he's going nobody knows, but you can bet your boots the Japs or the Nazis will feel the results of Pete's efforts. He adds that STU MCKINNEY is still safe and sound as an ensign out at Pearl Harbor, and that HAYS CLARK, another ensign, is engineering officer aboard the destroyer USS Schenck.

Another engagement is that of Lieutenant HOWARD S. POTTER, engaged to Virginia Shrigley of Salem, Mass.

Some more new addresses have come in: JOE GIOIA, another second lieutenant, at Camp Blanding, Fla.; OLLIE FULLER, at River Road, Stat. F., R. 9, Milwaukee, Wis.; and Lieutenant CRAIG KIMBALL, Camp Cooke, Cal.

ART DUBOIS and TIBBIE STEVENSON are holding the fort down at the Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla.

BILL SORN is responsible for a lot of the news this time. BILL himself was married December 20 to Lynnette Tripp, daughter of Dr. LYNN H. TRIPP '18. The wedding took place at Delmar. Best man was BOB RANDALL, and EMERSON COLE and ALFRED METZ '44 served as ushers. Bill has been working on test for General Electric since graduation, but on April 1 reported to Windsor Locks, Conn., as a second lieutenant in Air Corps Ordinance.

Getting back to Bill Sorn again, his permanent address is 32 Edgewood Avenue, Albany.

You'll Find Friends Here!

There won't be bands and fire-engines in Ithaca for Class Reunions this year. But there will be alumni coming back for the Commencement week end May 23-25, to see old friends and renew acquaintance with Cornell. They'll enjoy the Campus in May, with most of the students still here, attend Senior singing on the Quadrangle, lunch together in Willard Straight Hall, and gather for Class dinners around town.

You'll hear from your Class secretary about further plans.

Reunion Broadcast

President Day and Dr. Hu Shih '14 will speak at the annual Alumni Association meeting in Bailey Hall Saturday evening, May 23. Their talks will be broadcast on the NBC Blue Network at 7:30, with songs by the Glee Club, music of the Chimes, and a brief dramatization of Cornell at War. Then the program will switch to a Cornell Reunion Dinner in New York, where the Classes will gather, Dean Dexter Kimball will preside, and there will be songs by Arthur Kent '28 and Dorothy Sarnoff '35.
