PRICE 10 CENTS

THERE is material for a few paragraphs in the building operations now in progress on the Campus. The contractors for the two proposed residence halls have erected two sheds near the site. Evidently they are planning to begin construction without delay. The excavations there are about completed, and great piles of freshly quarried stone have been made ready for the masons.

WORK on the new drill hall is further advanced. There the concrete foundation wall has been finished at the east end, next to Garden Avenue. At the west end there was a large amount of excavation to be done. Great holes in the ground are ready for the piers which will support the two massive towers. The earth which the excavators are removing there is used to widen the east-and-west roadway which will run along the south side of the drill hall, joining East and Garden Avenues. That roadway will form the main approach to the stands on Alumni Field and will be dignified by the name of plaza. Where it passes the Schoellkopf Memorial it has already been graded and bordered with concrete curbs.

THE BUILDERS of the big stand overlooking the track and football field have profited by good weather and have almost completed the concrete work. Only one section of the seats remains to be poured. Work is well advanced on the construction of two great retaining walls for the automobile terraces above and behind the stand. The lower one is finished and the upper one is about half done. When it is all done the stand will be complete except for the finishing touches, such as the concrete blocks which are to support the slatted wooden seats. Spectators will not have to sit on the cold concrete in this stand. And they will have plenty of room for their feet, for the steps supporting the seats are thirty inches wide. This big stand, with a capacity of nine thousand spectators, is not likely to collapse, for, being built against a hillside, almost all of it rests on solid earth. The building of the stand has made a marvellous change in the appearance of Schoellkopf Field. Three months ago, when the builders went to work, the field was bordered on the east by an irregular and ugly slope. Now the slope presents an even face of terraced concrete an eighth of a mile long. There is every probability that this field will be used for football games next fall.

PERMISSION seems to have been given for the double-tracking of the street railway line past the Cascadilla building, for the railroad company has begun cutting into the bank along the old Corson property to make a wider space for its tracks. There will be room enough after a retaining wall is built against the bank and some changes are made at the south entrance of Cascadilla. Double tracks have been laid all along Eddy Street as far up as the corner of Dryden Road. When the present operations are finished the line will be double tracked from College Avenue to Meadow Street, including the section where traffic is heaviest. It is reported that the company contemplates the building of a new bridge for entrance to the Campus directly into East Avenue and the abandoning of the present bridge near the University heating plant. One reason for that plan is that the heating plant will have to be enlarged some day, and the only way it can grow is eastward, where the street car line runs now. In making all these changes the company no doubt is looking forward to the time when it will have to carry crowds to and from the new athletic field on the hill.

THE CHINESE STUDENTS' CLUB of the University will give a reception in Barnes Hall Saturday night to members of the Faculty and townspeople. A number of undergraduates have also been invited. The club has procured Chinese refreshments from a New York caterer.

IN CONNECTION with the work of interesting undergraduates in the churches of Ithaca, Secretary Whitehair of the Christian Association has obtained statistics showing the church connections of members of the freshman class. The figures show that 1400 of the 1600 entering students are members of churches. The church members belong to twenty-three denominations. The Presbyterian church leads with 316 members. The others are enrolled as follows: Methodist, 244; Protestant Episcopal, 204; Catholic, 137; Congregationalist, 111; Baptist, 100; Reformed, 69; Hebrew, 55; Lutheran, 46; Christian Scientist, 26; Unitarian, 24; other denominations, 62; no church connection, 200.

ABOUT $2,500 has been collected from members of the University for the aid of the sufferers in Belgium. A committee of ninety undergraduates collected that amount in a two-day campaign by the tag method. Students, and members of the faculty as well, were approached by the committee wherever they went about the campus until they were "tagged." Each of the colleges had its committee, and the competition soon took on an intercollege aspect. A. C. Peters '15 was in charge of the work. According to the latest figures obtainable, the College of Agriculture had given the most. Arts was a close second, with Sibley, Law, Chemistry, Architecture, Civil Engineering, and Veterinary in the order named. The campaign was well advertised in the daily papers for several days before the collecting began, and large posters were displayed around the campus and down town announcing the need of contributions. The money will be held for additions until December 10, when it will be forwarded to the Belgian Relief Committee in New York.

A PUBLIC LECTURE was given on Tuesday evening of this week, under the auspices of Sigma Xi, by Professor William Henry Bragg, F.R.S., of Leeds University, England, who spoke on "X-Rays and Crystalline Structure."

THE LECTURE for this week in the course on the history of civilization will be given at noon Friday by Professor Felix von Luschan, of the University of Berlin. His subject will be "Excavations of a Hittite Capital." The lecture will be illustrated.

The Cornellian Council

Progress Made During the Last Year in Increasing the Alumni Fund

A report of the work of the Cornellian Council during the year 1913-14 is to be mailed by the Council to all graduates and former students of the University. It will be mailed from the office of the Secretary of the University. This report follows:

NEW YORK, December 1st, 1914.

To All Cornellians:

To Cornellians who are subscribers to The Alumni Fund this letter is in the nature of a report of progress and conditions; and to all who are not subscribers it is also an opportunity.

This year the University, with all other institutions and individuals, is facing unusual difficulties because of worldwide conditions. This fact, however, is no reason for not making progress. Every one must just work a little harder.

At the Fall meeting of the Trustees at Ithaca, November 7th, which was attended by the President of the Council as an Alumni Trustee, the apparent conditions of the University were in a very high degree encouraging.

(1) The changes in the business administration of the University, recommended by the Committee of which Alumni Trustee Edwards was Chairman, went into effect on that day. The business administration is now in the hands of three committees:

- a. Committee on General Administration,
- b. Finance Committee,
- c. Committee on Buildings and Grounds.

The office of Comptroller was created and filled. The Comptroller is directly responsible to the three committees and to the President of the University, and under him is a Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds.

(2) The Work on Alumni Field, which, when completed, will afford probably as splendid opportunities not only for the teams but as a playground for all the students, as has ever been devised, is progressing satisfactorily. The Schoellkopf Memorial building is substantially completed. Work on the football stadium is progressing very rapidly.

(3) Plans for the new Drill Hall have been approved and the contract let for considerably less than the $350,000 authorized by the Legislature. Work has been commenced, and when completed this building will enable the University to meet its obligations to the Federal Government and to fill a long felt need.

(4) The contract has been let to the Matthews Construction Company, of Princeton, N. J., which has done so much of the very satisfactory work at Princeton, for the erection of buildings "A" and "D" of the new Residential Halls for men. The amount of the contract for the main construction of the two buildings is $206,000. This does not include the heating, which will be in a separate building, but the original estimate of building "A" was $160,000 and for "D" $100,000. These buildings are two of a general group, to the plans of which much time and consideration has been given by the Trustees; and the construction of these two buildings, which will be a part of the larger and carefully considered group, is the beginning of an enterprise which will be of incalculable value and benefit to the men in the University for all time to come. With the rapid increase in numbers the proper housing of students has become one of the serious problems. Women students, with Sage College and the splendid new Prudence Risley Hall, are now fairly well provided for. These residential halls for men can but add greatly to the well being of the undergraduates and to the right spirit desired by Cornell. These benefits alone justify their erection, but in addition to that they are also a source of revenue, and therefore a substantial addition to the permanent endowment of the University.

(5) Funds for the construction of building "A," the larger of the two, are being provided for by an unnamed friend of the University. It is proposed to use a proportion of the Alumni Fund toward the building of the other, and at the meeting of the Trustees on November 7th the following resolutions were adopted:

"Resolved, that of the net cash balance to the credit of the current Alumni Fund on August 1, 1914, collected by the Cornellian Council, $10,000 be used toward the construction of the second of the Residential Halls now described as Hall D, and estimated to cost approximately $100,000, with the intention that one-half of such net cash balance to the credit of the current Alumni Fund on August 1st of each year hereafter shall be used toward the liquidation of the balance of the cost of such Residential Hall until the full cost thereof to the University, with 5 per cent interest on the balance from time to time, shall be liquidated, the net income from said building received by the University to be in the meantime also applied toward the liquidation of the principal amount of such cost and such interest thereon;

"Resolved, that the Cornellian Council be requested to suggest a name for Building D of the group of Residential Halls for men."

This leaves a balance of $10,000 of the $20,000 available on the first of August last free for such use, from time to time during the year, as may be deemed both most urgent and wise, and would seem to be a fair division of the fund as between current and future needs. If any unseen emergencies arise, such as that of retaining a desirable man or obtaining one, the Trustees will be in a position to meet the situation. Last year two cases arose in which $500 added to the salary of two men was urgently needed. The interest on the $20,000, added to the endowment in 1913, and set aside as a Permanent Alumni Fund, enabled the Trustees to meet the need.

In June, 1913, the Trustees first took action in determining the use to be made of the Alumni Fund by adding $20,000 to the Permanent Endowment. In June, 1914, the Council recommended that another $20,000 be appropriated by the Trustees to University purposes. The total number of subscribers at this date is 4,122, subscribing annually $40,858.50.

The total expenses of the Council for office rent, salaries of Secretary and Stenographer, printing, postage, etc., for the year June 1, 1913, to June 1, 1914, was $6,687.65.

The foregoing statement shows that much is now being done for the betterment of the University. The financial aid which its Alumni have recently given Cornell has been a potent factor in this improvement and has been a more or less direct influence on the increased enthusiasm shown by Cornellians in all Cornell projects. But much remains to be done. The continued growth of the University and the expansion of its influence and usefulness must be provided for.

The Classes of '09, '10, '11, '12, '13 and '14 are certainly doing their full part. To all Cornellians who have not subscribed and who may desire to do so the enclosed blank form will offer an opportunity.

Cornell, 24: Pennsylvania, 12

THE football team won the hardest game of its season when it defeated Pennsylvania at Philadelphia on Thanksgiving Day by the score of 24 to 12. Captain Journeay's eleven lived up to a tradition of Franklin Field by playing its best game against Cornell. It did not have an offense which could be compared to Cornell's, principally because it was decidedly inferior in line play. It depended, especially in the latter part of the game, upon forward passing, and in that it was so successful as to overcome Cornell's lead of ten points and to threaten at one time to win the game. Pennsylvania had a determined if not very well organized defence. To some extent that defence was the reason why Cornell's plays did not work so smoothly and for such gains as in the game with Michigan.

In several respects the Cornell team's playing was below expectations. Early in the game it had a bad attack of fumbling, a fault new to it. Fumbles spoiled its first attack on the Pennsylvania goal and caused its first score to be a field goal instead of a touchdown. Its losses by penalties, chiefly for the offense of "holding," were enormous. One touchdown was lost because a forward pass was made illegally. Another forward pass went out of bounds when Cornell should have kept possession of the ball. A single penalty of forty yards was inflicted because Hill was sent back on the field just before the end of the second period when he was ineligible to return till the beginning of the next period. This was an inexcusable blunder for which the team cannot be blamed. It made Hill ineligible for the whole second half. His absence from the field in that half weakened the team's defence when a strong defence was needed against the Pennsylvania forward passing. The Cornell backs seemed to be quite incapable of preventing the execution of those passes. For the most part they confined their efforts to tackling the receiver after he had caught the ball and had made a first down, instead of getting to the ball first. That has been Cornell's weakness all the season, and the Pennsylvania team deserved its two touchdowns because it picked out that weak spot to attack. With all its faults, however, the Cornell eleven did thoroughly outplay Pennsylvania. And it won admiration by refusing to acknowledge itself beaten when it was behind.

The contest was an exciting one for the spectators. When Pennsylvania, early in the second half, made two touchdowns and overcame Cornell's lead of ten points, it looked for a time as if Pennsylvania might win the game in spite of all the probabilities. Then came a beautiful run by Barrett, who covered fifty-five yards and made a touchdown after catching a punt, and Cornell was ahead again. Even then, however, a single touchdown by Pennsylvania would have overcome Cornell's lead, and the Cornellians in the stands did not recover their breaths until an attack just before time was up had given Cornell another touchdown.

Soon after the game began, Cornell got possession of the ball at midfield and began a running attack which carried as far as Pennsylvania's 10-yard line. There a bad fumble made another first down improbable and Barrett dropped-kicked a field goal. Immediately after the next kick-off Cornell lost fifteen yards by a penalty and had to give up the ball. The defence was too stubborn for Pennsylvania, however, and when the kick was returned Cornell started a march up the field. Two well executed forward passes gained forty-five yards; when the first period closed Cornell was attacking again on Pennsylvania's 10-yard line. Again a fumble halted the advance. It was resumed as soon as Pennsylvania punted, and the ball was carried forty yards to a touchdown. That made Cornell's points ten. Cornell then invaded Pennsylvania territory with a brilliant forward pass, from Shuler to Shelton, good for forty-five yards. Then Shelton made a touchdown on a similar play, but the score was not allowed because Shuler had been less than five yards behind the scrimmage line when he made the heave. Barrett missed two field goals, one of his kicks being blocked, just before the second period was over. Hill's illegal return to the game was made at this time, and Cornell was playing on the defensive when the half ended.

With a forward pass attack early in the second half, Pennsylvania upset things beautifully. They scored a touchdown directly after getting possession of the ball. Then a Cornell forward pass went out of bounds and gave Pennsylvania the ball in Cornell territory. Another series of forward passes led to a second Pennsylvania touchdown, and Penn was two points ahead. It was only a few minutes, however, till Barrett regained the lead with his fifty-five-yard runback of a punt. Pennsylvania made another fierce attack early in the fourth period and carried the ball to within twenty-five yards of the Cornell goal. There it was their misfortune to have a forward pass go out of bounds and so to lose the ball. The tide turned there. From that time Cornell maintained the offensive. The feature of that period was the brilliant running of Collins.

He opened the attack with a forty-yard dash which carried the ball well into Pennsylvania territory. A fifteen-yard penalty stopped the advance and Barrett tried for a field goal but failed. Penn started forward passing again, but this time the defence was more alert and Cornell recovered the ball forty yards from Penn's goal. Collins and Philippi assaulted with such success that Cornell made another touchdown in the last few minutes of play.

Referee—N. A. Tufts, Brown. Umpire—D. L. Fultz, Brown. Linesman—W. R. Okeon, Lehigh. Field judge—J. C. Holderson, Lehigh. Fifteen-minute period.

Cornell gained more than 280 yards from scrimmage, while Pennsylvania's running attack gained only sixty-two yards. Cornell ran back kick-offs 142 yards, more than twice as much as Pennsylvania. In running back punts also Cornell had the advantage, sixty yards to twelve. Cornell made twenty-two first downs to Penn's eleven. Barrett's punts averaged forty-eight yards; the average of Tucker and Avery was forty-four. Penn completed thirteen forward passes for an aggregate gain of 170 yards; Cornell completed three for a total gain of eighty-six yards. Cornell's total loss by penalties was 150 yards, ninety yards of this being for holding or other illegal interference.

The Game, Play by Play

By M. W. HOWE

First Period

Matthews kicked off to Collyer on Cornell's 5-yard line. Collyer brought the ball back to the 19-yard line. On the first formation Barrett circled right end for four yards. He was tackled so hard by Journey that he lost his hold on the ball. Hill recovered it for Cornell on the 24-yard line. Barrett punted over Murdock's head and the ball rolled over Penn's 17-yard line.

Tucker started Penn's offensive by getting five yards through right tackle. Matthews tried the same place but was thrown by O'Hearn and Hill when he had made but two yards. Tucker then punted to Shuler who was stopped in his tracks on his own 48-yard line. Hill made three yards through left guard and Penn was penalized five yards in addition for offside play. Harris stopped Collyer for no gain. Barrett then broke through right tackle for thirteen yards, putting the ball on Penn's 31-yard line. Shuler made four yards on the other side of the line. On the following play Hill took the ball through left guard for a first down on the 21-yard line. Shuler made a yard but fumbled, Hill recovering. Hill made three yards through left tackle before he was stopped by Rockefeller. Shuler went ahead two yards on a play directed at right tackle. With four yards to go on the fourth down Barrett outguessed his opponents and made the distance and first down on the 10-yard line on a play through left tackle. Shuler fumbled again on the next play but recovered after four yards had been lost. Journey stopped Collyer after the Cornell man had made five yards at right tackle. Koons stopped Collyer for no gain on a trick play and it was fourth down with nine yards to go. Barrett dropped a goal from the 22-yard line. Score: Cornell, 3; Penn, 0.

Matthews kicked off to Barrett, who brought the ball back thirty yards to the 35-yard line. There had been holding in the Cornell interference, however, and that cost a penalty of twenty yards. Barrett punted to Tucker, who was brought down by Gallogly on Penn's 39-yard line. Munsick threw Tucker for a three-yard loss. The Penn fullback just made up the distance on the next play directed at left tackle before he was brought down by Hill. Cool held Matthews for no gain at center. With ten yards to go on the fourth down Tucker punted out of bounds on Cornell's 15-yard line.

Collyer forced Russell back for a two-yard gain. An attempted forward pass from Barrett to O'Hearn failed, but Penn was penalized five yards. Barrett made five yards around right end. Shuler got but a yard at left tackle. Barrett, however, went through the same position for a first down on the 37-yard line. Shuler failed successively to gain at center and right tackle. Barrett threw a forward pass to Shuler, who went ahead for twenty-three yards to Penn's 40-yard line. Philippi now replaced Hill at fullback. A forward pass from Shuler to Shelton made twenty yards more and the ball was on Penn's 20-yard line. Philippi failed to gain at right tackle. He stumbled on the next play and lost two yards. When he took the ball for the third time, however, Philippi tore through left tackle for seven yards. With five yards to go on the fourth down Barrett again outguessed the Penn team and sent Philippi through center for the necessary distance, making it first down on the Penn 10-yard line as the quarter ended.

Second Period

Philippi fumbled on the first play of the second quarter and Hopkins recovered for Penn. Shelton threw Murdock for a five-yard loss on a fake kick formation. Tucker then kicked to Shuler, who fumbled on Penn's 40-yard line. O'Hearn recovered for Cornell. Barrett made three yards around left end and Philippi made five more through Russell. Philippi got a yard at right tackle and another yard for first down on Penn's 28-yard line on a play through center. Journey stopped Shuler after the latter had made but a yard at left tackle. Barrett then went around left, end for a first down on Penn's 14-yard line. Shuler failed at center but made seven yards at right tackle. Philippi made two yards through a hole that Allen opened.

McCutcheon here replaced Anderson. McCutcheon opened up a hole and Shuler went through for a first down on the 2-yard line. On the next play Barrett went through center for Cornell's first touchdown. Shuler kicked the goal. Score: Cornell, 10; Penn, 0.

Matthews kicked off to Shuler, who was forced out of bounds on Cornell's 30-yard line. A forward pass from Shuler to Shelton was grounded, but

TWO professors were retained in the Faculty last year because the income from the first annual instalment of the Alumni Fund enabled the Trustees to vote each of those professors a $500 increase in salary. That first annual instalment had been appropriated by the Trustees to permanent endowment. The report of the Cornellian Council, published on another page, relates that incident, and tells also of the disposition which has been made of a part of the second and future instalments. One-half of each annual payment from the Fund is to be used by the University toward paying the cost of Building D, one of the new residence halls. On the present basis of $20,000 a year, therefore, the Alumni Fund is contributing $10,000 a year toward the building of dormitories for men students, and $10,000 a year for some other purpose yet to be determined by the Trustees. As to the use of that unappropriated income of $10,000 we have heard this suggestion made: Let a part of it, say one-fourth, be available every year for urgently needed salary increases, and let the unexpended balance be appropriated to permanent endowment. That would be a compromise between those who advocate the use of the Fund for current expense and those who think the revenue should be invested. It would provide the University authorities with an emergency fund for maintaining the strength of the Faculty and would at the same time add regularly increasing amounts to the University's permanent resources.

SOME CRITICISM has been made of the proportionately large cost of collecting the Alumni Fund. Alumni have been heard to say that they would rather send their gifts direct to the University than through the Cornellian Council, where a part would be deducted for expense of collection. The answer to that is that the bulk of the Council's expense is fairly chargeable to cost of organization and not to cost of collection. Until the Council was formed, our alumni were not habitually giving financial help to the University. The University now has $40,000 in hand and a substantial income promised for the future which it would not have had but for the solicitation organized and carried on by the Council. The custom of pledges by members of the graduating class was stimulated, if not indeed established, by the Council. An organization was necessary for founding all that work, and such an organization cannot be abandoned all at once. The Council and its secretary are looking forward, however, to an early reorganization which will reduce the cost of collecting the Alumni Fund to a negligible sum.

A REVIEW of our football season is a pleasanter task this fall than it has been for a good many years. This has been the best season since 1901, when Cornell's only reverse was the 8-6 defeat by Princeton. For the first time our eleven has won two successive victories over Pennsylvania. Cornell played its best game of this season against Michigan. A more stubborn defence was met at Franklin Field, and the team showed faults there which had not revealed themselves earlier. The record of the whole season shows that Sharpe, Reed and Van Orman have established a school of football at Cornell.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

The Cornell Club of Western Pennsylvania announces that its regular weekly luncheon will be held each Friday, until further notice, in the private room at McCreery's, corner of Wood Street and Sixth Avenue, between the hours of 12 and 1:30. Any Cornell men in the city on Fridays are cordially invited to attend. McCreery's is a large and well known department store, centrally located; it offers good service and privacy.

The entertainment committee for 1914-15 has been announced, as follows: K. W. Gass '12, chairman; Roger S. Findlay '09, W. K. Frank '11, and Blinn S. Page '13. This committee will have charge of the weekly luncheons, the monthly dinners, and all other entertainments, exclusive of the annual banquet.

The following committee, to be known as the Committee of the Classes, is also announced: Norman L. Shaw '05, John W. Todd '06, Walter S. Wing '07, W. H. Watson '08, Thomas Cosgrove '09, Herbert K. Kneeland '10, F. F. Zimmer '11, P. W. Jones '12, Blinn S. Page '13, and George W. Ramsey '14, to represent their respective classes; and W. F. Patton '06, to be assisted by another man not yet appointed, to represent especially the interest of those club members employed at the several Westinghouse works, or living in the Borough of Wilkesburg. This committee, of which the secretary of the club will act as chairman, has been organized for the purpose of assisting the executive committee to get into touch with the members of the club whenever necessary, for the purpose of crystallizing opinion on any given problem or project relative to the University; to foster interest in the club; to increase the steady attendance at its functions, and to develop the esprit de corps of the Cornell men in the Pittsburgh district by means of an internal organization along class lines. The club's theory is that the class is the proper unit of internal development. It does not know that this plan has ever been tried thoroughly by any other Cornell club. The chairman (John H. Scott, 5734 Kentucky Avenue, Pittsburgh) will be glad to receive suggestions from any other organization within which the plan has been put into operation.

The second Beefsteak Dinner will be held at the Hotel Schenley on Saturday evening, December 5, at 7 p. m. sharp. The price is $1.25 a plate. Visiting Cornell men are urged to attend. Address Karl W. Gass, 125 Stratford Avenue, Pittsburgh.

THE RETURNS AT BUFFALO

The Cornell men who are members of the University Club of Buffalo had a direct wire service at the University Club for the Cornell-Pennsylvania game. To the club for the occasion they invited all Cornell men of Buffalo and vicinity who are not members of the University Club. About one hundred attended. The bulletins were read by Warren Tubbs '04, while Lee M. Francis '98 chalked the plays out on the football board. It was a good party.

WOMEN'S CLUB OF NEW YORK

The annual business meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of New York was held at the Women's University Club, 106 East Fifty-second Street, on November 14. The following officers were elected to serve two years: President, Miss Ethel Stebbins; corresponding secretary, Miss Margaret Graham; directors, Miss Susan VanWert and Miss Elizabeth Ashburner. After the business meeting tea was served, and the members present seemed to enjoy talking to old friends and meeting new ones.

THE THIRD UNIVERSITY CONCERT of the year will be given in Bailey Hall to-morrow night by the Flonzaley Quartet.

THE REV. H. P. DEWEY of Minneapolis will preach in Sage Chapel next Sunday.

BIG WINTER TRACK MEET

A new engagement on the winter schedule of the track team this year will be the first annual indoor meeting of the I. C. A. A. A. This will be held in Madison Square Garden on the evening of Saturday, March 6.

This event has been arranged by the Inter-Collegiate Association in response to a demand on the colleges for a general and distinctly collegiate meet which will serve as an objective point for winter training. Unlike the other contests held by the Association, the Indoor Meeting will not involve the determination of any championship. Points will not be scored and no trophy will be given. This is done to prevent too strenuous preparation for a meet which comes at a time when track teams are still in the early stages of their development.

The track events will consist entirely of relay races, while the three field events, the shot put, the high jump and the pole vault, will furnish a contest between teams of five men each in which the scoring system will be the same as that employed in the cross-country run.

A novel feature of the evening will be a dinner given by the Association to the contestants and former track champions. This will be held in the concert hall of the Garden immediately after the last event.

Cornell should be strongly represented, particularly in the pole vault and in the 8000-yard relay race.

Tickets for the games will be placed on sale in February at the club houses of the various colleges in New York.

ALUMNI CALENDAR

Saturday, December 5.

Pittsburgh.—Beefsteak Dinner of the Cornell Club of Western Pennsylvania, at the Hotel Schenley, Pittsburgh, 7 p. m. sharp. $1.25 a plate. Visiting Cornell men are urged to attend. Address K. W. Gass, 125 Stratford Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Wilkes-Barre.—Cornell Night will be celebrated at the Hotel Redington, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on Saturday, December 5, 1914. There will be a speaker from the University, views of University doings, eats, and songs. If you have not already received a notice, send your name and address to E. B. Wagner, 56 North Washington Street.

Association Football

The Cornell Team in Second Place in the League

The association football team has completed a very good season. It is now ranked second to Pennsylvania in the league, which comprises also teams from Princeton, Columbia, Harvard, Yale, and Haverford. On a Thanksgiving trip the team made the following record: November 26, tied Pennsylvania, 2—2; November 28, defeated Haverford, 3—0; November 30, tied Yale, 0—0. The Pennsylvania team has several games yet to play, but its standing is so good that Cornell can not do better than finish the season in second place. Princeton was the only team which defeated Cornell this year, and tie games were played with Harvard and Columbia.

another from Shuler to Shelton was good and Shelton ran to Penn's 25-yard line. Barrett went through right tackle for nine yards before he was forced out of bounds. Philippi made it first down on Penn's 15-yard line. Shuler failed at left tackle and Cornell was penalized fifteen yards for holding. On the following play, a forward pass from Shuler to Shelton, the latter crossed the Penn goal line, but the ball was brought back because Shuler was less than five yards behind the line when the ball was thrown. Two more forward passes failed and an opportunity to score was lost when Barrett's attempted drop-kick was blocked by Koons. The Penn man fell on the ball on his own 39-yard line.

Avery made four yards through right tackle before Collyer stopped him. On a double-pass play, Murdock to Avery to Moffatt, Penn made ten yards and in addition Cornell was penalized, putting the ball on Cornell's 35-yard line. Two line plays and two attempted forward passes failed and Cornell recovered the ball at this point.

Collyer circled left end on the first line-up for twenty-five yards putting the ball on Penn's 41-yard line and possibilities were bright for another touchdown. Collyer lost two yards, however, before Barrett made five yards around left end. An attempted forward pass was intercepted by Murdock, but the play was not allowed; Penn had been offside and was penalized ten yards. Philippi could not find a hole in the line and in swinging out around right end lost seven yards. On a double-pass play Collyer made four yards at center but Barrett could not gain at left end. Hill replaced Philippi. Barrett tried a drop-kick, but the ball fell short. Cornell was penalized forty yards for illegally substituting Hill, and the ball went back to the Cornell 30-yard line. Barrett immediately punted and as neither team could gain through the opposite line the period ended with another exchange of punts.

Third Period

Russell kicked off to Collyer, who sprinted back to the 20-yard line. Henning got Shuler behind the line for a two-yard loss and Barrett was able to get only two yards at left end. Collyer was injured in this play and was replaced by Collins, who played quarter on the defensive and halfback on the offensive.

Barrett punted to Merrill, who fumbled on his own 40-yard line but recovered. Cornell was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Two plays directed at the Cornell line failed, but a forward pass from Avery to Hopkins took the ball to Cornell's 24-yard line, where Collyer stopped the Quaker. Moffatt made seven yards through center and hit the same position three times more in succession. He barely made first down. Barrett threw Merrill for a one-yard loss and Cool stopped the same player for no gain on a play directed at his position. On the next play, however, Avery threw a forward pass to Merrill across the goal-line for a touchdown. Russell failed to kick the goal. Score : Cornell, 10; Penn, 6.

Barrett kicked off to Merrill, who raced back to the 36-yard line with the ball before Shelton brought him down. O'Hearn stopped Rockateller for no gain, and Moffatt could not gain through Anderson. O'Hearn threw Merrill for a two-yard loss. On the fourth down, with twelve yards to go, Avery punted out of bounds on Cornell's 19-yard line. An attempted forward pass from Shuler to O'Hearn went out of bounds and the ball reverted to Penn on Cornell's 43-yard line. A forward pass from Avery to Hopkins worked better than Cornell's attempt and the ball was brought to the 25-yard line. Moffatt made five yards through Anderson. Another forward pass from Avery to Gotwals put the ball on Cornell's 10-yard line. Munsick threw Avery for a three-yard loss, but a forward pass from Avery to Koons scored Penn's second touchdown. Avery failed to kick the goal. Score : Cornell, 10; Penn, 12.

The ball went out of bounds on both of Russell's attempts to kick off, and Cornell put the ball in play on the 40-yard line. Barrett and Philippi could make but three yards each on plays through center. Collins tried on the next play but could not gain an inch. Barrett then punted out of bounds on Penn's 18-yard line.

Philippi stopped Merrill for no gain on an attempted end run. Penn was also penalized five yards for offside play. Avery punted to Barrett on Cornell's 40-yard line. The Cornell's quarter caught the ball on the run and, aided by good interference on the part of his teammates and good footwork on his own part, raced the fifty-five yards that stretched between him and the Penn goal line for a touchdown. Barrett also kicked the goal. Score : Cornell, 17; Penn, 12.

Fourth Period

On the first play of the fourth quarter Philippi drove Avery out of bounds for a six-yard loss on an attempted end run. On the following play Allen and Tilley threw the same player for the loss of another yard. A forward pass made only three yards and Avery punted across the Cornell goal line for a touchback. Cornell put the ball in play on the 20-yard line, but Barrett punted when he could not gain around right end and Penn threatened the Cornell goal line again with another forward pass attack.

Philippi stopped Merrill when he had made but six yards after receiving a pass from Avery. Hopkins fumbled another forward pass from Avery. From a fake punt formation Moffatt made but a yard at center. Philippi stopped another forward pass and Penn was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Another forward pass failed, but one from Avery to Merrill made thirty-five yards and the ball was on Cornell's 24-yard line. A forward pass went out of bounds and the ball was Cornell's on the 16-yard line.

Collins made six yards around left end before being forced out of bounds. On the following play Collins broke through right tackle for a 40-yard gain before he was stopped by Merrill on Penn's 38-yard line. Collins made four yards more at right tackle, but Russell stopped him in an other attempt at this position. Philippi made ten yards through center, but Cornell was penalized five yards for offside play. Collins made eight yards through right tackle. Philippi added two more at center and after Collins had made three yards at right tackle Barrett again made it first down on Penn's 15-yard line. Collins made eight yards through right tackle, but Cornell was penalized fifteen yards for holding and the ball was back again on the 23-yard line. The distance could not be made up and Barrett was forced to try a drop-kick, which failed.

Penn put the ball in play on the 20-yard line but after two forward passes had brought the ball to midfield, McCutcheon broke through and threw Avery for a fifteen-yard loss on another attempted pass. This time Penn could not make up the distance and the ball reverted to Cornell on Penn's 44-yard line. On two plays Collins made twenty-four yards at left tackle. Philippi made five more at right tackle. Collins made three yards through left tackle and Philippi six more at the other side of the line. Collins brought the ball to the 4-yard line through left tackle and Philippi gained six yards and Cornell's last touchdown in two more plays. Barrett kicked the goal. Score: Cornell, 24; Penn, 12.

Barrett kicked off to Merrill, who brought the ball back to the 40-yard line. Shuler intercepted a forward pass just as the game ended.
