Ira Place '81 Dies

Cornell Trustee Since 1910—Was Senior Vice-President, New York Central Railroad

Ira Adelbert Place '81, Trustee of Cornell and senior vice-president of the New York Central Railroad, died suddenly at his home in New York on January 24. He was seventy-three years of age.

Mr. Place's career on the Board of Trustees was somewhat unusual. He was twice elected to fill vacancies. In 1910 he was elected Alumni Trustee to succeed Charles C. Dickinson '91, who was serving his first year on the Board at the time of his death. In 1914, Mr. Place was re-elected Alumni Trustee, but in 1919 he chose not to run. In the fall of that year, however, he was elected by the Board to succeed the vacancy left by the death of Andrew Carnegie. He was re-elected twice by the Board.

President Livingston Farrand characterized Mr. Place's loss as a "great blow" to Cornell. His statement follows:

"I have learned with great shock of the sudden death of Mr. Place. For many years Mr. Place has been a Trustee of the University whose service was distinguished and whose loyalty was inspiring. No task was too great for him to undertake, and no call to Cornell's service was too unexpected to make his response anything else but immediate and eager. In the early days of the organization of the Cornellian Council Mr. Place's wise counsel and great energy made possible the later success of the organization which has meant so much to Cornell's welfare. As a member of the Medical College Council in New York Mr. Place was a notable figure in bringing about the plan for the union with the New York Hospital which was made a reality during the past year. Mr. Place's death is a great blow to Cornell."

Mr. Place was born in New York on May 8, 1854. He took the degree of A.B. in 1881 and the same year entered a law firm in Syracuse. He was admitted to the bar two years later, the same year that he entered the law department of the West Shore and Buffalo Railroad. In 1886 he also joined the law department of the Hudson River Railroad Company, serving as assistant to the general counsel until 1902 when he became general attorney, a post he held for three years. In 1925 he became general counsel of all New York Central lines east of Buffalo.

On December 5, 1906, he was elected a vice-president of the New York Central, a position he left in 1919 when the railroads were taken over by the Government. He served two years under the United States Railroad Administration as general solicitor. With the return of the railroads to private ownership he went back to the vice-presidency of the Central.

He was also president of the Clearfield Supply Company, president of the Canadian Niagara Bridge Corporation, vice-president of the New York State Realty and Terminal Company, and a director of the American Niagara Railroad Corporation, the Hudson River Bridge Company, the New Jersey Junction Railway, the New York and Harlem, and the New York State Railways.

In 1909 he was elected president of the Cornellian Council, serving until 1916. He was also a trustee of Alfred University, the Hackley School, and the Memorial Hospital in New York. He was a member of Psi Upsilon, Phi Beta Kappa, the Adirondack League, the New York State Bar Association, the New York City Bar Association, and the American Bar Association. His clubs were the University, Century, Cornell, and St. Andrews Golf.

Funeral services were held on January 28 in Ithaca. He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Katherine B. Gauntlett of Ithaca, whom he married in 1893; one daughter, Katherine, and two sons, Herman and Willard Fiske.

Gives Women's Dormitory

Anonymous Donor Provides $1,650,000 for New Residence Halls—Unit in Great Housing Plan

Construction work on a group of four residence halls for women students at Cornell is expected to be started this spring as the result of a gift of $1,650,000 by an alumnus whose name has been withheld by request. The four new halls, to be built on ground northeast of and adjacent to the Campus, will form part of a larger group of residential halls for women.

President Farrand, in announcing the gift, said:

"This splendid gift is one of the most welcome additions to Cornell's resources which we have had in many years.

"The University has long been concerned with the problem of the best possible housing of the students, and particularly of the women. A carefully studied plan has been worked out, taking into account Cornell's own experience as well as that of other institutions. We look forward to the time when there shall be a center for the women students of the University, on the new site, fully equipped on the most modern lines and providing in an adequate way for their housing, social, and athletic needs. Of these the dormitory provisions are obviously of first concern. The achievement of the complete plan will take many years but the generous donation which is announced today with one stroke sets us well on our way toward the ultimate goal. The University is very grateful."

The plans adopted for the new buildings are the result of a careful study of the housing for women students based on Cornell's experience of sixty years and on a survey of housing conditions in the leading women's colleges and coeducational institutions in this country.

Based on these studies, Cornell has adopted a comprehensive scheme which will eventually accommodate approximately one thousand women students, the number now in residence at Cornell. The plan in its full development will concentrate all the women in one area. At present they are living in the two women's dormitories, Sage College and Prudence Risley Hall, in nine Campus houses, and in seventeen approved residences off the Campus. The area chosen for development comprises about fifty-five acres northeast of the Campus and adjacent to it, overlooking Fall Creek Gorge, Beebe

Lake, and Triphammer Falls. The elevation, the topography, the outlook, and the geographical location serve to make this site particularly suited for such a group of residential structures.

One of the distinctive features of the new housing plan is the erection of small self-contained units which will maintain a residential atmosphere. While the gift just received will provide for a total of 326 women students, each unit of the group will accommodate approximately eighty students.

Frederick L. Ackerman '01 of New York, architect of the Brooklyn Y. W. C. A., the Tryon Art Gallery at Smith College, and many private residences, has already completed the plans for the group and the contract will be awarded soon. It is anticipated that the buildings will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1929.

Discussing the plans, Mr. Ackerman says: "The group will represent the best that can be obtained both from housing and living points of view. The type of plan adopted, as well as the character of the architecture, is distinctly residential in character. From an architectural standpoint this group will be similar in certain respects to the men's dormitory group which is now being developed below the quadrangle. The use of local stone, the freedom of mass, the broken silhouette of roofs, the reflection of an English architectural tradition are points of similarity. The group differs in that the style of architecture employed is of a later date, more in the spirit of the English Renaissance.

"The residential character of the group is emphasized by the comparatively small units, all of which are to be fairly self-contained having their own dining rooms and social rooms. In the interior arrangement formality has been dispensed with and the reception rooms, living rooms, dining rooms, etc., are grouped in an informal way as in a home. The dormitory rooms are arranged with connecting lavatories so that they may be used either singly or in a suite of two. Each dormitory room contains a large closet and a built-in tray section which eliminates one piece of furniture from the room, giving it more of a living room character.

"In addition to the rooms for students, each unit contains accommodation for Director, night chaperon, and guests. Two of the units have dormitory accommodations for visiting alumnae. Each unit contains its small sewing room as well as small laundry, and club or recreation rooms which may be used for meetings of one sort or another. A good-sized recreation room which may be used by the entire group for social functions such as dances, etc., will be provided in one of the units. The four dining rooms will be served from two kitchens. The buildings will be thoroughly fireproof throughout."

Mr. Ackerman made a personal survey of the situation at Wellesley, Smith, Vassar, Bryn Mawr, Northwestern, and the Universities of Wisconsin and Michigan, where opportunity was furnished for studying the problems of use and management of the residence halls at those institutions.

Smith, Wellesely, and Bryn Mawr were each found to represent a different type of housing. At Smith the cottage type prevailed. Wellesely was found to have several groups of large units widely separated from each other. Bryn Mawr, while similar to Wellesely in that it has park-like plan, was found to have residential halls arranged in such a manner as to suggest not the residential community, as in the case of Smith, nor the arrangement at Wellesely, but "quads," as they have been developed at Princeton and Yale.

The Cornell plan incorporates the best features of the Smith and Bryn Mawr developments in that it maintains a residential character and at the same time provides for self-contained units. The arrangement of the rooms will avoid an institutional character in that corridors will be eliminated.

A comprehensive scheme is being developed for the landscaping and arrangement of roads and walks. When completed the roads leading through the new development will furnish a complete view of all the structures as well as a view of the new athletic fields to the northeast, Beebe Lake to the south, and Cayuga Lake to the west.

The architects have taken into account the peculiar contour of the 55-acre lot on which the development is to be made. The composition has been placed so that its main lines and masses of buildings stand at 45 degrees to the north. The whole scheme faces the University, "squares up" with Prudence Risley Hall, and makes use of the bridge or the extended line of East Avenue as the introduction to the scheme. The placing of the buildings at this angle reduces the number of rooms with a northern exposure to a negligible number. It also insures sunlight in practically all of the rooms and at the same time reduces the area of shade in the courts to a minimum. The majority of the rooms therefore will have the much desired southern exposure.

The development of the plan also provides for a modification of the existing roads surrounding it. In the case of Wait Avenue it is proposed to turn it to a point opposite the entrance drive to Prudence Risley Hall. Thurston Avenue also will be rounded out to fit in with the symmetry of the plan.

ATHLETICS

Clarkson Wins on Ice

Cornell lost its second hockey game of the season on Beebe Lake January 28 to the strong Clarkson Tech sextet, four goals to one. It was Clarkson's twenty-third straight victory. Heinzman and Dion accounted for the visitors' goals in the first two periods, while Clark got Cornell's only tally in the third period.

Poor ice handicapped both teams, and play was slow. Cornell's team work was poor, plain evidence of lack of practice, but the team played better hockey than it did against Princeton the previous week.

Lose to Princeton

Cornell dropped into a tie for first place with Dartmouth in the intercollegiate basketball league when Princeton defeated the Red and White quintet at Princeton on January 25, 30 to 18. The game ended activity in the League until February 11, when Cornell meets Pennsylvania in the annual Junior Week game in the Drill Hall at Ithaca.

Superiority on the defense told the story of Cornell's defeat, for Layton, who made an average of fifteen points in the first two league games, was held to a single field goal. Captain Schlossbach continued his scoring pace, getting ten points, outscored only by Miles of Princeton with thirteen.

Cornell went out in front in the first half, but near the close of the period Captain Miles got loose to score several times from the field. Princeton finished the half with a three-point lead, 12 to 9.

The second half was all Princeton, the Tigers starting with a burst of scoring that accounted for fourteen points before Cornell tallied. The Cornell attack failed to function, and the Red and White forwards could not slip through the Tiger defense to get close shots under the basket. A barrage of long distance shooting was unavailing.

Princeton sent in substitutes with the score 30 to 12, and Cornell finished the game by scoring six points while the Tiger reserves went scoreless.

GANNETT '98 BUYS PAPER

Frank E. Gannett '98, owner of a group of newspapers in New York and New Jersey, has purchased The Hartford Times of Hartford, Conn., one of the oldest newspapers in New England.

Mr. Gannett is a Trustee of Cornell and former president of the Cornellian Council. He is the owner of papers in Rochester, Utica, Elmira, Ithaca, Newburgh, Beacon, Olean, and Plainfield, N.J.

The Times was founded in 1817 as a weekly newspaper, changing to a daily in 1841. It is the only evening paper in Hartford, and has a circulation which covers a large part of the State. It occupies a new home, constructed in 1920, which is considered one of the most dignified and beautiful newspaper buildings in the country.

CORNELLIAN RHODES SCHOLAR

Eugene W. Goodwillie '27, president of the Student Council and a star sprinter on the varsity track squad for three years, has been elected the 1928 Rhodes scholar-at-large for three years of study at the University of Oxford. Goodwillie is the third Cornellian to receive a Rhodes scholarship in the past eight years. A Buel Trowbridge, Jr., '20 and George R. Pfann '24 were the others.

Goodwillie is now studying law at the University of Chicago. He will begin his studies at Oxford in the fall, specializing in law, modern history, and politics.

He was very active as an undergraduate. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Kappa Delta, Quill and Dagger, Aleph Samach, Majura, Phi Kappa Phi, Book and Bowl, Spiked Shoe, and the Board of Managers of Willard Straight Hall. He was also a member of numerous committees. He won his freshman numerals in track and his varsity C in the same sport.

In 1926 he was a member of the combined Cornell-Princeton track team which met the combined Oxford-Cambridge team in England.

Goodwillie is also the second member of the Class of 1927 to win a scholarship providing study abroad. The awarding of the Prix de Rome to Michael Rapuano '27 was announced last summer.

SPORT STUFF

This week Examinations and the Trustees arrived at the same time. The one visit just about balanced the other. Examinations chill the place with the damp, depressing breath of the tomb. The Trustees create an atmosphere of excitement, expectancy, and hope—like a raffle.

There is a cult among the undergraduate intelligentsia at all the colleges against examinations. I can sympathize with them. Although a member of the proletariat—the intelligentsia either did not exist or were brutally suppressed in the consulship of Plancus—I myself was strongly against examinations. Likewise mumps, short beers, and long sermons.

The evolution, if any, of the university trustee suggests itself as an interesting subject for another thesis. Tradition and Upton Sinclair record the trustee as a ruthless, materialistic magnate in a plug hat who donated a dormitory in return for the right to devastate the first quivering professor who made a noise like a Democrat.

It certainly isn't that way now. An uninformed spectator gets the casual impression that a trustee is just an ordinary citizen who is nervous while performing unaccustomed duties and who, on the Campus, walks delicately as one threading his way among high explosives. He hopes nobody sneezes and starts something.

It's a hard life. The Faculty run the place and the alumni put up the money. Both orders carry large chips delicately balanced on both shoulders. Both can detect a small grievance at a long distance with the naked eye. It's the Trustee's job to talk fast and lubricate the situation with banana oil. He's in the situation of a man who's trying to make things go in a household consisting of a flapper wife and a Victorian aunt. No wonder he stays away most of the time.

Class Secretaries Meet

Reunions June 15, 16, and 17 Discussed
Association to Aid Publication for '71 Book

Thirty classes were represented at the annual winter meeting of the Cornell Association of Class Secretaries, held at the Cornell Club of New York on the afternoon of January 21. These New York meetings have come to take on particular significance since as much of the business concerns plans for reunions of the following spring.

Reunions are scheduled next June—Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, June 15, 16, and 17—for seventeen classes. Some will come back under the Dix Plan, some under the Quinquennial, as follows: '73, '78, '79, '83, '88, '97, '98, '99, '00, '03, '08, '13, '16 women, '17 women, '18, '19, and '26. Reports were heard from all of these classes of plans already matured or under way.

The Association voted an appropriation of $250 toward the expenses of a book to be published under the auspices of the class of '71, but which will include the records of the first three classes, of '69 and '70 as well as of '71. This book is being published under the general chairmanship of Judge James O'Neill, secretary of '71, assisted by Miss Bessie F. Speed '06 of Ithaca, daughter of Robert G. H. Speed '71, who for many years was secretary of his class.

The association of Class Secretaries will thus have assisted in the publication of two class books. An appropriation of $250 was voted in 1923 toward the expenses of a book issued at that time by the class of '77.

The Association passed resolutions expressing its sense of loss in the death of Henry L. Stewart, secretary of the Class of '72. A committee composed of Henry W. Sackett '75, chairman, Clayton Ryder '79, and Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04 was appointed to prepare the resolutions.

The following classes were represented at the meeting, names printed in italics indicating representatives other than class secretaries:

Henry W. Sackett '75, Charles Beebe '76, Clayton Ryder '79, Dr. Henry P. de Forest '84, Dean Veranus A. Moore '87, James H. Edwards '88, Willard Austen '91, Elmer E. Bogart '94, George S. Tompkins '96, Professor George N. Lauman '97, John J. Kuhn '98, George H. Young '00, Clarence H. Fay '01, William J. Norton '02, Raymond P. Morse '03, Dean Albert R. Mann '04 and Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04, Robert P. Butler '05, Margaret L. Stecker '06, Antonio Lazo '07 and Mrs. George W. Tucker (Elsie Rand) '07, Andrew J. Whinery '10 and Mrs. Merton A. Darville (Isabel Shepard) '10, Oscar G. Miller '11 and H. Ruth Requa '11, Ross W. Kellogg '12 and Nina Smith '12, Weyland Pfeiffer '16 and Mrs. Harold Flack (Evelyn Alspach) '16, Horace E. Shackelton '19, Mary K. Hoyt '20, Roger W. Hooker '21, Emmet J. Murphy '22 and Ruth Irish '22, Mary E. Yinger '24, Donald R. Ferris '26, Katherine L. Jacobs '26, and Carmen M. Schneider '27.

THE CLUBS

Schenectady

One of the best Founder's Day meetings was held at Schenectady, where an energetic and resourceful Cornell committee secured the privileges of broadcasting station WGY. Cornell was on the air for fifteen minutes on the evening of Ezra Cornell's anniversary. Edwin Place '83 gave a general talk on the progress of education during the last few decades, with particular reference to his own university, and a quartet under the leadership of Harold A. Falconer '23 rendered a selection of Cornell songs. Reports of the broadcasting came in from many quarters around the country.

Utica

Colonel Joseph W. Beacham, Jr., '97 was the speaker at a club smoker held at the University Club in Utica on January 12. Frank A. Schmidt '02 of Ilion was toastmaster. Others on the program were Edward J. Burns '17, Edmond J. Purcell '24, and Henry Lee Merriman '28. Willis D. Morgan '23 was chairman of the committee. Charles B. Mason '95 entertained Colonel Beacham at dinner at the Fort Schuyler Club before the smoker.

More than sixty Cornell alumni attended, bringing with them a number of seniors from the local high schools.

Northern New Jersey

The Club held a most successful dinner and dance at the Maplewood Country Club on January 18. More than 160 Cornell men and women, with many non-Cornellian wives and husbands, attended.

The principal speakers were President Farrand and Arthur J. Baldwin '92. An all-Cornell quartet, composed of Charles McK. Bomeisler '17, Rea A. Babson '06, Robert P. Tobin '96, and Dr. Arthur W. Bingham '93 sang, with Andrew Jack '19 leading the community singing between courses. Jack also supplied two solos. Arthur L. Stern '17, president of the Club, was toastmaster. The arrangements were in charge of committees headed by William H. Henderson '04 and Mrs. Charles F. Landmesser (Jane Cheney) '06.

St. Louis

The Club met on January 11 at Bevo Mill. Edward Holmes '05, president of the Club, gave the Founder's Day address. Incidental business of the meeting included a general discussion and winding up of affairs of the Cornell Alumni Corporation Convention held in St. Louis last November. A most significant report was the treasurer's, of a substantial balance. All members present who were entitled to participate in the refund voted to sign over their shares to be used toward the purchase of the Cornell Track Cup which must replace the trophy won by the Soldan School last spring.

The Cornell Clubs in St. Louis will take advantage of a visit by Professor Nathaniel Schmidt to entertain him at luncheon on successive days. The men's club will entertain him at luncheon at the City Club on Friday, February 3, when Professor Schmidt will talk on "Cornell in Europe." The women's club will have the professor on Saturday noon, when at luncheon at the College Club he will discuss "Examination Experiments."

Cleveland

The Club held two particularly successful luncheons in December. The guests of honor at the "baseball luncheon" on December 22 were Alva Bradley '07, Billy Evans, the umpire, and Roger Peckinpugh, long a well-known professional player. Bradley heads a syndicate which recently purchased the Cleveland Baseball Club. Evans has been appointed general manager of the organization, with Peckinpugh as manager of the team.

The annual Father and Son Luncheon of the club, held on December 29, drew out a large attendance. Following an old custom the Hermit Club Orchestra played. After the luncheon prizes were awarded to alumni and undergraduates in various competitions, including a prize to the father with the best-looking son and one to the son with the best-looking father.

Philadelphia

Founder's Day was celebrated at the Cornell Club on January 18. George W. Loos '72 spoke on "My Recollections of Ezra Cornell." He was followed by Alexander Wilson '10, who gave an illustrated talk on the Conowingo Power project on the Susquehanna River.

Philadelphia Women

The Club met on December 28 at the home of Anna E. Biddle '10 for a Christmas party. The guests were three seniors and one sophomore now at the University: Mary E. Chestnut '28, Marie C. Jann '28, Olive B. Nicholas '28, and Francesca P. Hauslein '30.

On December 16 the Club met at the home of Miss Martha E. Dick '11. Miss Mary K. Hoyt '20, of Ithaca, was present. Special invitations were issued to the most recent graduates, the purpose of the meeting being to formulate plans for presenting Cornell to the best university material in Philadelphia schools.

Niagara Falls

The new officers for the Club have been elected as follows: president, William Keigh Schneidau; vice-president, J. Winslow Trott '07; secretary, Thomas G. Rickert '25; treasurer, George M. Wicker '10.

BOOKS

A Boy's Story

Puck Chasers, Incorporated. By Charles Geoffrey Muller. 4 Illustrations. New York. Harper. 1927. 19 cm., pp. x, 246. Price, $1.75.

This is a first-rate story of boys' life in prep school; the narrative is full of spirit, wholesome endeavor, ready wit. Lessons, sports, secret societies, good fellowship, make up the life in this mid-Western boys' school. The particular theme of the story is the efforts of a group of boys led by one of their number outstanding in initiative and the qualities of leadership to make ice hockey a major sport at the school. The formation of the team, their struggles to gain recognition, their defeats and victories make up a narrative that will compel the interest of any boy.

Character sketches are vivid and telling. There is Russell Quick, the boy who started the idea—"Russ was a determined cuss—he could hang on to anything he once gripped, whether it was as an idea, an ideal or a mode of action. It was this undoubtedly that gave him his power as a leader, for if it is true that the world steps aside for the man who knows where he is going, it also is true that a lot of people are willing to follow right along behind once that man gets by." Fatso, the advertising manager, pores over Printer's Ink for slogans. Bill Doan, the sturdy center on the team, struggles to make up a condition in English so that he can play on the team—"except for ideas, words, grammar, and punctuation, William Doan was making a famous success of his theme. His writing paper was of the best, his pencil was well sharpened. . . even his handwriting was a delight to the eye—what there was of it." Even Pop White is well done, the jovial old janitor who announces on the eve of a game, "I suppose ye'll be wondering about the ice on the rink—well, I've just flooded it, and," bringing out of a rear pocket a giant thermometer, "I'll sit beside it ivery bit of the blessed night, with this here thing, to see that it freezes solid!"

A New French Periodical

With the November number a new French quarterly, The French Review, makes its appearance under the editorship of Professor James F. Mason, of the Department of Romance Languages and Literatures. It is conducted under the auspices of the American Association of Teachers of French. The first number contains 76 pages and includes the following items: "The American Association of Teachers of French," Charles A. Downer. "French Art in America," Paul Claudel. "A French Teacher's Language Scale," A. G. H. Spiers. "En Marge des Examens d'Entrée au Collège," O. T. Roberts. French Teachers' Forum. "Why Teach French?" Colman Dudley Frank. "French Class-Texts Published in the United States," Alexander Green. Varia, James F. Mason. Review of "Bouddha Vivant," René Taupin. Bibliography, Hélène Harvitt. The Librarian's Corner, Albert Cru. A. A. T. F. News. Membership in the Society is worth $2.50 a year.

Books and Magazine Articles

In Bird-Lore for November-December Professor Arthur A. Allen '08 writes "The Autobiography of a Mother Grouse." The article is illustrated.

In The London Times Literary Supplement for December 29 there is a review of Professor Frederick C. Prescott's "Poetry and Myth."

In The Saturday Evening Post for January 21 Kenneth L. Roberts '08 has a play entitled "Victims of the Plague." The plague referred to is the collecting of antiques. There are illustrations.

In The Menorah Journal for January Professor Charles A. Beard, '99-00 Grad., discusses the question, "Is Babbitt's Case Hopeless?" answering it in the negative. The article is the subject of comment by Simeon Strunsky in The New York Times Book Review for January 22.

THE NEW WOMEN'S DORMITORIES

THE gift for building four units of the women's dormitories is a magnificent one. It makes possible the first step toward an objective that will give Cornell a rounded development so necessary in a university.

It must not be thought that the completion of these four buildings alone means an immediate abandoning of all the present housing facilities south of Fall Creek. Nor does it mean the increase in the number of women students.

The first result, not obvious to casual observation, will be the giving up of the so-called outside houses, former residences taken over as small dormitories. Eventually, as more units are provided, Sage College is scheduled to become an administration building, either through remodeling or rebuilding.

When three times as much more money is available for the purpose, the assumption is that all Cornell women, except those whose homes are in Ithaca and possibly the members of sororities, will be housed in Risley and in these sixteen projected units on the north shore of Beebe Lake.

The outlook of the women students in Cornell affairs has imperceptibly but steadily broadened. With undergraduate activities of their own as well as with greater participation in general activities appropriate to their sex, an esprit de corps has grown up among the women that has welded them into a unit like no other one group in the University. A model self-government organization, a skeleton standing committee ready for immediate action for any object whatever, strong class organizations, an established point system, a chapter of an intercollegiate senior society, and a powerful pan-Hellenic organization give them certain advantages not possessed by the men. Of recent years their well developed system of intramural athletics has budded into intercollegiate competition in several branches.

In short, Cornell women now enjoy—with the single exception of a close knit residential district—all the advantages for student contacts offered by the small college for women, without sacrificing any of the educational opportunity offered by a great university. This exception is now on its way to elimination, thanks to the generosity of the anonymous family of Cornellians who have so liberally provided for this need.

Gratification over this gift need by no means be limited to the women of Cornell. Even the hard-boiled coed-hater, relic of an earlier civilization, must join in the chorus if he is open-minded. He need not worry that the restrictions on the number of women students will ever be lifted. The time is at hand when to recommend Cornell to any young woman who is intellectually fit will be recognized as a service to her and to the University. The maintaining of high standards of capacity, appearance, and good breeding among the women students should be as much the concern of the Cornell alumnus as it has been of the alumna.

The gift for women's dormitories will for these reasons eventually make Cornell more broad-minded and progressive, more truly national and democratic.

Dr. Bentley Returning

Will Succeed Professor Titchener in Chair of Psychology—New Professor of Political Science

Professor Madison Bentley, Ph.D. '98, of the University of Illinois, will return to the Faculty, on which he served from 1898 to 1912, as Sage Professor of Psychology, succeeding to the chair held for so many years by the late Professor Edward B. Titchener. His appointment was ratified at the meeting of the Board of Trustees on Saturday, January 28.

The board also ratified the appointment of Professor Bruce Williams of the University of Virginia to the chair of political science.

Professor Bentley will begin his work here on July 1. He is recognized as one of the outstanding psychologists in America. He studied for his Ph.D. degree with Professor Titchener, and has made notable contributions in the fields of psychosomatic functions and social psychology.

He was born in Clinton, Iowa, June 18, 1870. He took his bachelor's degree in science at the University of Nebraska in 1895. He studied three years at Cornell and upon taking his advanced degree he became an assistant in the Psychology Department. He was later appointed instructor and assistant professor, and in 1912 he went to the University of Illinois as professor of psychology and as director of the Psychological Laboratory.

In the World War he was a captain in the air service, and he now holds the commission of major in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

He is a member of the American Psychological Association, of which he was president in 1925, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, and Phi Kappa Psi.

He is the author of "Studies in Social and General Psychology," 1916; "Critical and Experimental Studies in Psychology," 1921; "The Field of Psychology," 1924, and "Studies in Psychology from the University of Illinois," 1926. He has also contributed to periodicals and encyclopedias. He is the editor of The Journal of Experimental Psychology and one of the editors of The American Journal of Psychology.

Professor Williams received his B.S. degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1912 and his M.S. there in 1914. He served as a lieutenant of infantry in the World War after two years of study in Johns Hopkins. He returned to Johns Hopkins after the War as University Fellow in political science and took his Ph.D. degree in 1920. He went to the University of Virginia as assistant professor of political science, became associate professor in 1922 and professor in 1926.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Gamma Delta, the American Political Science Association, and the American Society of International Law. He is an editor of The American Political Science Review, in charge of the section on international affairs, and one of the editors of The Virginia Quarterly Review.

He held secretarial positions in the Williamstown Institute of Politics in 1923, 1924, and 1925. In 1927 he was chief secretary of the Round Table Conference there. He was also a member of the Board of Advisors of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia in 1927. This year he is the Albert Shaw lecturer on diplomatic history at Johns Hopkins.

He is the author of "State Security and the League of Nations," 1927, and of numerous articles and reviews.

C. U. C. A. CAMPAIGN SUCCESS

The financial drive put on by the Christian Association to meet the 1928 budget of $2,000 was oversubscribed by $315.37 in the four-day campaign ending January 19. Thirteen fraternity houses exceeded their quotas. They were Alpha Gamma Rho, Pi Lambda Phi, Kappa Delta Rho, Alpha Zeta, Beta Theta Pi, Theta Alpha, Chi Psi, Phi Epsilon Pi, Sigma Phi, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Alpha, and Phi Kappa Psi.

The oversubscription will make possible the construction in the spring of the Association's outing cabin on property overlooking Cayuga Lake about three miles from the Campus. The funds in excess of the amount needed for the budget will be used to provide furnishings for the cabin.

The drive was conducted by students, and the summary of funds obtained in each of the four days of the drive is: January 16, $711.97; January 17, $524.40; January 18, $451; and January 19, $628.

CLASS DINNERS

Indicative of the general development of the class reunion idea, at the time of the meeting of the Association of Class Secretaries in New York, the men of three of the classes which are not scheduled for reunions next June met for dinner or luncheon.

The men of '90 met at the Cornell Club for dinner on January 21, with Professor James A. Rice of Ithaca as the guest of honor. The men of '07 had luncheon at the Club on that same day, with R. Warren Sailor and Dr. Thomas F. Laurie, respectively from Ithaca and Syracuse, numbered among the out-of-town visitors. The men of '12 had a dinner on the night of the 20th, when forty-four of the class met at Cavanaugh's on West Twenty-third Street. Ross W. Kellogg, secretary, came in from his new home in Norwalk, Connecticut, while Harold Flack and Foster M. Coffin represented Ithaca.

The Week on the Campus

THE BIG news of the week is of course the magnificent gift of $1,650,000 for the construction of women's dormitories. You may read of the details to your heart's content on other pages.

ONE OF THE MOST significant phrases pronounced in connection with the gift was uttered by Dr. Farrand: "We look forward to the time when there shall be a center for the women students of the University, on the new site, fully equipped on the most modern lines and providing in an adequate way for their housing, social, and athletic needs." The imagination is tempted by this suggestion of a lordly and beautiful living center for the women. They will find that such an establishment will afford them the charms of life in an all-feminine college, in combination with the advantages of co-educational instruction.

WHY DOES THE DONOR choose to remain anonymous? The fashion of anonymity has been growing among donors. One has not forgotten the Mysterious Mr. Smith of Boston Tech. Of course, to give away a million and a half without asking for gratitude or the world's applause argues a rare disinterestedness, a satisfaction in well-doing for its own sake. Nevertheless, it is a good thing for the recipients to know that their advantages, even their comforts, are due to some man or woman who wished them well. We are happy to have the character of Ezra Cornell as our tradition; we are glad that this institution is not known as Anonymous University.

SPEAKING OF ENDOWMENTS, The Nation pointed out that the proposed Naval expenditure for the next financial year, $740,000,000, considerably exceeds the total permanent endowment of all the colleges, universities, and technical schools of the country. Write your own editorial.

PROFESSOR BRUCE WILLIAMS of the University of Virginia, a young scholar whose name is already well known, will come in the fall as professor of government. Thus the Faculty changes from year to year, replacing old cells by new, yet remaining in structure and character the same. Life.

FEW NEW STUDENTS will enter in the second term. They are to be admitted only in the College of Agriculture and the Hotel Management course. This will be hard on those bright boys who finish their high-school courses at mid-year and have to wait until September for college entrance. But the Faculties of the Arts and Architecture Colleges has always had a terrible time arranging the schedules of the mid-year entrants. The February high-school graduate with eight months to waste probably does not think the educational routing system very efficient. No doubt the solution lies in the development of high-school post-graduate work, looking toward the establishment of a junior college in every city.

WE WERE NEEDLESSLY apprehensive last week about the appropriations for the Plant Pathology Building. Assemblyman James R. Robinson '10 explained that the difference between the $1,250,000 requested and the $1,100,000 proposed by Governor Smith can be made up from a number of unexpended balances from other State projects. Savings on the foundation already completed at a cost below the appropriation can be used, for instance, without special legislation.

THE POULTRY JUDGING team won the judging intercollegiate in Madison Square Garden last week, defeating Penn State by a break, and leaving the other contestants far behind. The team gained permanent possession of the challenge cup, on which they already had two legs. John B. Holloway '28 had the highest number of points toward the team score; George H. H. Gibson '28 won the gold medal for the most proficient individual judge.

LAST FRIDAY it was announced that Fernando Chardon '28, our beau sabreur, was chosen to try out in the spring for the American Olympic fencing team. This invitation indicates that he ranks among the few foremost American foilsmen. But the next day, Saturday, we learned that Chardon had had his chest pierced by the breakage of a foil in practice. He is in the Infirmary; the seriousness of his injury has not yet been ascertained.

THE YALE DAILY NEWS, the Oldest College Daily, has just been celebrating its semi-centennial. Attention, Cornell Daily Sun (Founded 1880), the Oldest College Daily.

ROSS G. MARVIN '05, who lost his life in Peary's North Polar expedition, and other members of the party, will be honored with gold medals, according to a bill introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania. The medal would be presented to Mr. Marvin's mother, Mrs. Mary J. Marvin of Elmira.

N. B., CLASSES OF '88-'98: the Ithaca Street Railway, a correspondent of the Journal-News informs us, was the second electric system in New York State, and the ninth in the United States. The description of the operating methods would amuse you. The trolley itself was a small four-wheeled truck riding on two trolley wires; when the two cars passed at the switch opposite Williams's Foundry one conductor leap-frogged his trolley over the other with the aid of a long forked stick. What a change we have seen since those primitive days! For the better, I mean.

BATTLE PLANES leap into action—springing from a five-acre deck—sure of a landing place on their return, though a thousand miles from shore.

This marvel of national defense was accomplished—and duplicated—when the airplane carrier, U.S.S. Saratoga, and her sister ship, U. S. S. Lexington, were completely electrified.

In each, four General Electric turbine-generators deliver, combined, 180,000 horse power to the propellers—enough to drive the ship at 39 miles an hour—enough to furnish light and power for a city of half a million people.

The General Electric Company has developed powerful marine equipment, as well as electric apparatus for every purpose of public advantage and personal service. Its products are identified by the initials G-E.

And in the familiar occupations of daily life, electricity is working wonders just as great—improving industrial production, lifting the burden of labor, speeding transportation, and multiplying the comforts of home.
