WAR BOND MAN

— CLASS OF '63

Someday you'll want to see that boy, or girl, of yours off to college . . . and right now is not too early to start making plans.

Maybe your youngster, like so many other American boys, will work his way through school . . . but even in that case you'll want to be in a position to give him a little help if he needs it.

By what you put aside in War Bonds today you can help make sure he gets the same chance as other boys, tomorrow.

Chances are you're already on the Payroll Savings Plan. Saving as you've never been able to save before. This is fine not only for you, but for your country—provided you keep on saving.

But take your dollars out of the fight—and you will be hurting yourself, your boy's future, and your country.

Buy all the bonds you possibly can. Try to get even more than you ever have before. And remember this . . .

For every three dollars you invest today, you get four dollars back when your Bonds come due. You, and your boy, can use those extra dollars.

Make sure you get those Bonds! Hold on to them till they come due!

When is
GOLD?

FIRE was both a tool and a limitation for the ancients. With it they made things of tin and lead, silver and gold. But their fires were never hot enough for the sterner metals.

Man's progress through the ages has been accelerated each time he has learned to create and control a higher temperature.

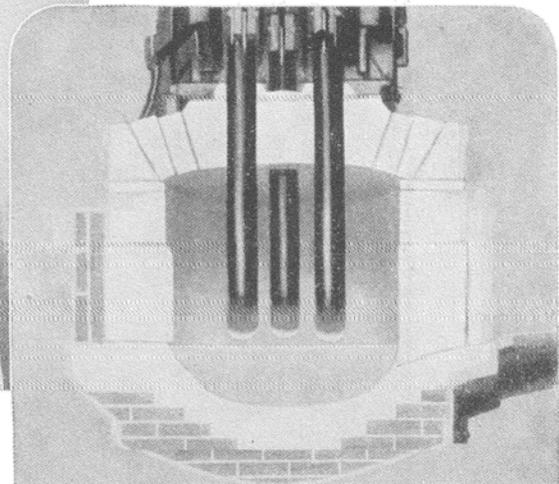

With the electric arc came heat hotter than any fire. And, by means of carbon or graphite electrodes—developed by research of NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC., a Unit of UCC—man put the electric arc to work in furnaces such as the one you see above.

Born in the terrific heat of the electric furnace are many of the alloy steels used in ships, trains, planes and other equipment, and also the ferro-alloys that give strength, toughness, hardness—or the quality of being stainless—to these steels. These materials—and the intense heat that produces them—are vitally necessary to American industrial progress.

Coming from the electric furnace—in addition to alloy steels and ferro-alloys—are phosphorus, abrasives, calcium carbide for acetylene used for welding and cutting, and many special alloys.

For further information write for booklet P-2, "The Story of the Carbon Arc" . . . there is no obligation.

Cross Section of an Electric Furnace

Electricity comes to the furnace on metal bars. It is carried into the furnace by carbon (or graphite) electrodes, which you see projecting down into a brick lined bowl. Carbon is used because, unlike metal, it will not melt.

You see carbon in many forms other than electrodes. Diamonds are pure carbon. Graphite, which is the "lead" in pencils, is carbon—and so are coke and charcoal. This material is the subject of unending research by the National Carbon Unit of UCC.

Fraternity Houses Ruled Taxable

APPEALS to exempt from taxes the Psi Upsilon and Sigma Phi fraternity houses were denied in an order written by the late State Supreme Court Justice Ely W. Personius '98, received in Ithaca January 17. Certiorari proceedings were instituted by the fraternities and the University, protesting the inclusion of the houses in the 1943 Ithaca tax roll on the grounds that they are owned by the University as part of the dormitory system.

Justice Personius, who died December 12, 1944, wrote in what is thought to be his last official ruling: "Controlling is the fact that the buildings in question are not used exclusively for educational purposes, any more than a fraternity off the Campus. We (the court) hold that these buildings are used as private fraternity houses, the same as fraternity houses, either on or off the Campus, which are not exempt."

The court discounted the argument of the University that it owned the land and had ordered construction of the fraternities as a part of the dormitory system by pointing out that the University's title to the buildings is limited, at least so far as beneficial use of the buildings is concerned, because the University could rent rooms in the houses only to persons designated by the fraternity.

"We have seen that in a case of doubt, an exemption statute is strictly construed," the opinion continued. "Was there a doubt in the minds of these parties (the University and fraternities) when they provided by the contract that the occupants should pay an amount equal to any tax lawfully levied or agreed to by the University?"

Justice Personius explained that two conditions are involved in an exemption: 1. That the realtor (Cornell) owns the property, and 2. That it be used exclusively for carrying out its purposes. "While there are certain limitations or conditions on the realtor's absolute ownership, we consider mainly the question whether the property is exclusively used for the realtor's educational purposes."

The order recalls the history of the fraternities which were originally located on the Campus but removed to make way for Myron Taylor Hall. Both received from the University the appraised value of the properties. Subsequently, the fraternities negotiated with Cornell for permission to erect new houses on the Campus at their own expense and then "by gifts the units became the property of the University, but to be used only by undergraduate members of the fraternity."

Differentiating between dormitories and fraternities, Justice Personius said the allocation of students to dormitories is made on a scholastic basis while the allocation of rooms in the fraternities is made on the basis of membership in the fraternity and by the fraternity on no scholastic basis. "The former allocation is for educational purposes, the latter is not exclusively for educational purposes," he continued. "Can it be denied that the latter allocation is not exclusively for educational purposes but is made upon a social basis?"

In the Supreme Court proceedings, University Attorney Allan H. Treman '21 and L. Nelson Simmons '12 represented the University; John M. Parker '96 and Judge Nathan Turk of Owego represented the fraternities; and Ithaca City Attorney Truman K. Powers '30 was counsel for the City and board of assessors of which Henry C. Thorne '10 is chairman.

In the ALUMNI NEWS for July 1, 1943, Edward R. Eastman, chairman of the University Trustees' subcommittee on government relations, explained the circumstances of the tax proceedings then being started. He pointed out that for many years the University had made annual contributions to the City of Ithaca to recompense the city for services rendered, such as police and fire protection and sewage disposal. The previous year, the University contribution was $10,950. But the preliminary assessment roll for 1943 had added to it taxable valuations of University property totalling $475,000 including besides the Psi Upsilon and Sigma Phi houses, parts of Willard Straight Hall and Barnes Hall, the Johnny Parson Club, and five University-owned residences. Friendly conferences between University and city officials brought compromise agreements for that year on payment and foregoing of taxes on all the properties except the two fraternity houses. It was agreed also that whatever taxes should be paid on University properties would be deducted in future from the customary University contribution to the city, but that the question of exemption of the fraternity houses should be decided by the courts. Treasurer's Report for 1943-44 shows that last year the University's contribution to the City of Ithaca was $4,718.40.

The Psi Upsilon and Sigma Phi houses on Forest Park Lane have been leased by the University and occupied as Navy dormitories since 1943. They were built in 1932-33 under agreements made by the University with the respective fraternity corporations whereby the cost of buildings, approaches, utilities, and landscaping were paid by the corporations. The agreements provide that the fraternity chapters shall select students to live in the houses as long as the chapters exist, and that the individual residents pay to the University the costs of services, maintenance, insurance, an additional sum as return on the University investment in land, and whatever taxes should be levied against the properties or sums paid in lieu of taxes. Until 1929, both fraternities lived in houses they owned on land leased from the University on the present site of Myron Taylor Hall.

Hinchliff on Road

SOUTHERN New York branch of the American Association of University Women, meeting in Binghamton January 9, heard Professor Emerson Hinchliff '14, Assistant Alumni Secretary, speak on Latin America. 150 members attended the meeting.

Next day, Professor Hinchliff represented Cornell at the annual college night conference of Bronx High School of Science in New York City. Nearly 100 prospective Freshmen and their parents crowded the room assigned to Cornell.

Engineers Hear of War

CORNELL Society of Engineers, meeting January 16 at the Cornell Club of New York, heard Leon Swirbul '20, vice-president of Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., tell of the Grumman Hellcat's contributions to the Navy's air war in the Pacific. A Navy Air Corps ace with twenty-four Jap planes to his credit, and the Navy air commander in the Marshall Islands invasion were on hand to enjoy a preview of the technical film, "Fighting Lady," which opened in New York City the following day.

The meeting began, after a chicken dinner in the Club's grill room, with a talk by N. L. Rae of General Electric Co. on the experiences of foreign service engineers. Battle stories, including the Philippine invasion, were told to the 150 persons present.

Time Was . . .

Forty-five Years Ago

February, 1900—Memorial tablet to the late Clifton Beckwith Brown '00, given by the Class of '00, has been placed in the University Library, awaiting its ultimate location in the future Alumni Hall. Corporal Brown left the College of Architecture at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, joined the 71st New York Volunteers, and was killed in the charge at San Juan Hill, July 1, 1898. Speaking at the unveiling ceremonies, President Schurman said, "With the death of Clifton Brown, Cornell has entered upon a new era. He is the first Cornelian to die for his country."

Twenty-five Years Ago

February, 1920 — Jacob Gould Schurman, President of the University for twenty-eight years, has resigned and will retire next June, after thirty-four years service to Cornell.

Automobile Show, with fourteen dealers exhibiting as many as sixteen models each, opens in the new State Drill Hall; dancing is provided until 10:30 nightly.

Alpha Omicron Pi has purchased the three-story stone house on The Knoll, built twelve years ago by Dean Eugene E. Haskell '79, Civil Engineering. Only one other sorority, Delta Gamma, owns its own house, the former residence of William H. Sage on East Seneca Street.

Busch Little Symphony

THIRD University concert was given by the Busch Little Symphony, January 20 in Bailey Hall. Season tickets held by townspeople and members of the University community were augmented by a brisk box-office sale which nearly filled dress circle, orchestra, and balcony. The audience was rewarded with probably the finest concert in the present series.

Adolph Busch conducts his group (twenty-two strings, two oboes, two horns) in the manner of the old concertmaster, indicating tempo with nods and gestures while playing a very fine first violin. To make his position as conductor even clearer to the uninitiated, he wears tails, a sartorial distinction shared only by the soloist of the evening, the seventeen-year-old pianist, Eugene Istomin.

Busch's program began with the Brandenburg Concerto No. 3 in G minor, by Bach, the high spot of the evening for this reporter. It was followed by Hayden's Symphony No. 49 in F minor, Beethoven's difficult Grosse Fugue in B flat major, and one of those smoke-filled intermissions in the corridor and lobby, memorable adjuncts to all Bailey Hall concerts. The second half of the program included Dvorak's Nocturne for Strings, two Negro spirituals arranged by Busch, Samuel Barber's Serenade for String Orchestra, and Mozart's Concerto in E flat major for piano and orchestra, which earned Busch and Istomin a half-dozen curtain calls and sent everyone out in fine fettle.

Birthday Remembrance

GIFT of $400 came to the University from the children of Julian A. Pollak '07 in honor of their father's sixtieth birthday, December 27. It is designated the Julian A. Pollak Servicemen's Grant, and is to be used by the University to assist veterans who come to the University and need additional aid besides that received from the Government.

Donors of the gift are David A. Pollak '39, for more than a year prisoner of war in Germany, Julian A. Pollak, Jr., Betty Pollak Rauh and Morton A. Rauh, Ralph G. Irvine '45, and John M. Irvine '46.

Michigan Turns Out

CORNELL Club of Michigan inaugurated a new series of monthly dinner meetings January 17, when seventy-nine members and guests gathered at the University Club in Detroit. Speaker was Professor Dexter S. Kimball, Engineering, Emeritus, whose subject was "Adult Education, Past and Prospective, and Its Impact on the Next Fifty Years."

Among the invited guests were J. C. Zeder, chief engineer of the Chrysler Corp. and chairman of the educational committee of Chrysler Institute of Engineering; Harry T. Woolson, Chrysler executive engineer and president of the Institute; P. E. Searle, superintendent of Ford Trade Schools; Arnold Lenz, assistant general manager, Chevrolet Division, General Motors Corp., and president of General Motors Institute; R. H. Spahr, chairman, cooperative engineering division, General Motors Institute; Allen Crowe, president of the Economic Club and manager of the Detroit businessmen's committee on cooperation with education; and David Henry, executive vice-president of Wayne University. Some of these took part in the discussion which followed Dean Kimball's address. Also present from Ithaca were Walter C. Heasley, Jr. '30, Acting Alumni Secretary of the University and executive secretary of the Alumni Fund; and Garner A. Adams '35, assistant Alumni Fund secretary.

Dinners are announced by the Club for the third Wednesday of each month, each with a speaker from the University or elsewhere and with prominent Detroit guests invited, to discuss varied phases of the University and educational development. Program committee consists of Club President Linton Hart '14, Philip J. Kent '14, H. W. Peters '14, and Matthew Carey '15.

Pianist Entertains Club

CORNELL Women's Club of Ithaca enjoyed a musicale January 8, in the recreation room of Balch Hall. Claire James, Music, a student of Egon Petri, University Pianist-in-residence, played Scarlatti, Brahms, Shostakovitch, and Chopin.

"Whittier and Winter"

UP to now, we have always regarded "Snow Bound" as a first-class poem by a second-class poet. It has been our custom to read it aloud at least once every winter. It managed to express for us observations, sensations, and emotions that stuck inside; that could not quite emerge and take form without expert assistance. Whittier did the job for us. This, after all, is the true function of the poet.

But this year, "Snow Bound" failed to touch the spot. In comparison with what has been going on for months in the Swamp College School District, Whittier's storm was just a minor episode.

The snowed-up Whittiers, you recall, were plowed out on the third day. They had no electrical life line to go down in the blast, no gas engines to sputter and die. After the stock had been fed and the wood-box replenished, all the Whittiers had to do was sit around the fire, crack nuts, and tell stories.

But there is an epic quality in the current Swamp College winter which takes it, as a literary topic, entirely out of the Maud Muller class. The excellent Whittier isn't quite up to the assignment. It would take a Dante to handle it, or anyway a Milton. One hears above the tempest the cries of demons; the shouts of demigods are smothered in the whirling drifts. This is no time to crack nuts and tell stories.—Romeyn Berry '04 in "State and Tioga," Ithaca Journal.

Business School To Open July 1

UNDER DEAN PAUL M. O'LEARY, PhD '29

DEAN PAUL M. O'LEARY, PhD '29

Holds School of Business and Public Administration at the University.

A SCHOOL of Business and Public Administration at the University, to open next July 1, and appointment of Professor Paul M. O'Leary, PhD '29, Economics, as Dean of the School were approved by the University Trustees, January 20.

Following recommendations of a special committee of the Faculty appointed by President Edmund E. Day, the School will "provide training for leadership in private enterprise and in public affairs." Students will be accepted after three years as undergraduates at Cornell or in other accredited colleges, and will be eligible for the Bachelor's degree after one year in the School, the Master's degree after two years, and the PhD after further study. Students who specialize in Public Administration will be prepared to enter government service as economists, trade analysts, statisticians, and economic specialists with State or Federal agencies. Those who specialize in Business Administration will be trained for careers as research economists with concerns in foreign and domestic commerce, with management companies, banks, investment houses, business-research agencies, farm-marketing cooperatives, or as accountants.

Until the curriculum and Faculty of the School are fully organized, the Department of Economics, of which Professor O'Leary is chairman, will administer a course in Business Administration for returning war veterans and civilian students. Beginning next November, students in Arts and Sciences may elect to major in Business Administration toward the AB, their studies to include prescribed courses in Arts, in production management and control given in Engineering, in marketing in the College of Agriculture.

The President's special committee reported in April, 1941. Professor William I. Myers '14, Agricultural Economics, now Dean of Agriculture, was chairman; with Professors Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, Public Administration, now on leave as New York State Commissioner of Commerce; Howard B. Meek, Hotel Administration; Romeyn Y. Thatcher '08, Civil Engineering; John R. Bangs, Jr. '21, Administrative Engineering; and O'Leary. Its report was approved by the University Faculty in December, 1941, and January 24, 1942, the Board of Trustees authorized establishment of the School when it should be feasible.

Dean O'Leary says: "Relations between government and business are now so close as to require little comment. They will continue to be close in years to come. My own experience as an economist and administrator in business and in government has convinced me that both business and government have a desperate need for men and women trained in economics, business operations and practices, and in the processes of government."

Directed OPA Rationing

Professor O'Leary received the AB at University of Kansas in 1922 and after receiving the AM at Harvard in 1924, came to Cornell as a graduate instructor in Economics. A sprinter at Kansas, he assisted Coach John F. Moakley for several years; was appointed assistant professor in 1929 and professor in 1936. In 1939, he was chief economic analyst in the US Department of Commerce, and in February, 1941, was granted leave to join the price stabilization division of the advisory committee of the Council of National Defense. When the Office of Price Administration was organized, he became price executive for textiles, leather, and apparel; then assistant director of the price division; and in February, 1942, was put in charge of rationing as deputy administrator. Resigning from OPA in October, 1943, he was director of the Washington, D. C., office of the Research Institute of America, an advisory service for business management, until last April, when he returned to the University, becoming head of the Department of Economics July 1.

G.L.F. Gives $200,000 for Building For School of Nutrition

DIRECTORS of the Cooperative Grange League Federation, Inc., meeting in Albany January 18, appropriated $200,000 to Cornell University toward the erection of a headquarters building for the School of Nutrition. The gift was made of "$100,000 available on call by the University and the second $100,000 to be made available over a period of not to exceed four years." The GLF board suggested that the new building be named Savage Hall in memory of the late Professor Elmer S. Savage, PhD '11, Animal Husbandry. At Cornell for thirty-six years until his death, November 22, 1943, Professor Savage became widely known for his development of feed formulas for dairy cattle and was a member of the Faculty of the School of Nutrition from its beginning.

The GLF directors also invited the School of Nutrition to use for research the extensive facilities which the GLF controls in downtown Ithaca and nearby for processing, freezing, baking, and retailing foods.

James A. McConnell '21, general manager of the farmers' cooperative with headquarters in Ithaca, which serves 150,000 farm families in New York, New Jersey, and northern Pennsylvania, wrote President Edmund E. Day that the gift was in furtherance of a long-time program, formulated by the GLF directors this winter, "of research and action in the interest of farmer and public welfare. This program is based upon the concept that the farmers of the Northeast have a mutual interest with industry and labor in a better diet for the one-third of the country's population which lives in the Northeastern United States," he said. "The natural products of Northeastern farms—fresh milk, fresh eggs, meat, and fresh fruits and vegetables—are essential to an optimum diet for Northeastern people. Efficient production of these foods is also necessary to maintain a satisfactory standard of living on Northeastern farms and the conservation of Northeastern soil resources. The Cornell School of Nutrition is capable of furnishing much needed leadership in the improvement of human diet in the Northeast, provided it is adequately staffed, housed, and equipped with research facilities."

McConnell pointed out that "it is the long-established practice of the GLF as a farmers' cooperative to cooperate closely with the Land-grant universities in its territory in matters of research." Last year, the GLF Exchange provided $6,500 to the University for investigations in cereal breeding, dairy feeds, farm products, poultry, and farm seeds, and $1,650 more was used for work on dairy cattle from a previous GLF grant.

H. Edward Babcock, chairman of the University Board of Trustees, was the first manager of the GLF, organized in 1922, and since 1940 has been director of the GLF School of Cooperative Administration in Ithaca.

Gift toward a School of Nutrition building was accepted by the University Trustees, meeting in New York City January 20. President Day said of it: "For a great farmers' cooperative to have engaged in such statesmanlike planning and in connection therewith to have contributed to the scientific work of the University is of great import for the future of our national economy. The combination of these new facilities for the School of Nutrition will establish a firm physical foundation for the School's leadership in the farsighted program of improved human diet and more efficient agricultural operation which GLF is projecting, particularly for the Northeastern section of the country."

The School of Nutrition was established in June, 1941, "to mobilize all University facilities for development of a program of teaching and research aimed to cover the field of nutrition, both animal and human, in its broadest sense."

Its Faculty comprises forty-nine members of the Colleges of Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, Engineering, Home Economics, and Medicine, and the facilities of these Colleges are used for its work. Professor Leonard A. Maynard, PhD '15, has been director of the School since its organization and Professor Leo C. Norris '20 is secretary. Students are admitted at the beginning of the Senior year in Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, or Home Economics, or from other colleges if they have had equivalent preparation, and are eligible for the MS after two years' work in the School and for the PhD after further study. Research is being done in the School on varied phases of nutrition, with a number of investigations supported by grants from outside the University. Offices of the School are now in Fernow Hall.

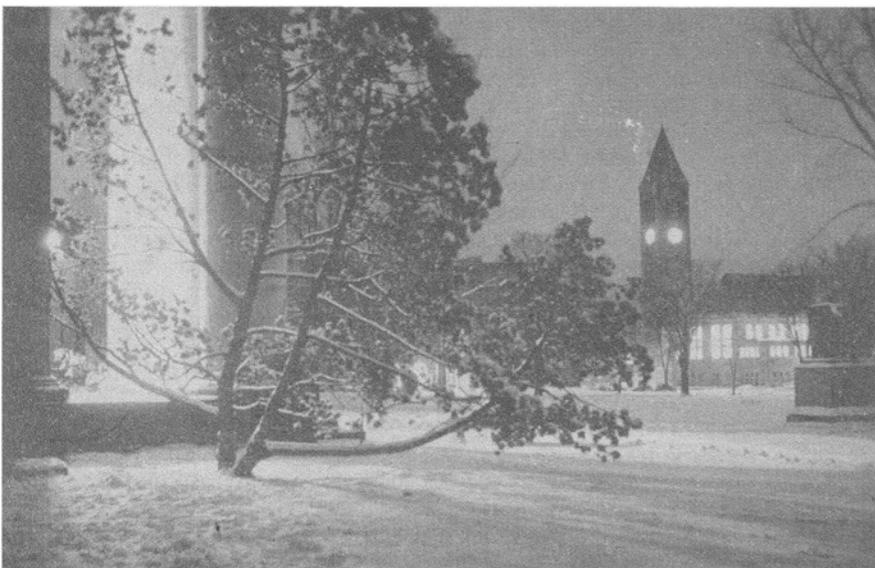

Alumni Win "E"

MISSISSIPPI Valley Structural Steel Co., of which Rollin D. Wood '06 is president, received the Army-Navy "E" December 28 at its Maplewood plant in St. Louis. There and in its plants at Decatur and Melrose Park, Ill., the company has fabricated for the first time in this country railway bridges and portable airplane hangars which are shipped abroad in standard units, for quick erection. Special tools, jigs, and production line procedures were developed for the close tolerances required in the standard bridge units.

Quincy Barge Builders of Quincy, Ill., a joint venture of Mississippi Valley Structural Steel with two other companies, flies the "E" burgee with three stars for sustained excellence in production of Navy vessels.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. of Rochester has a fifth star added to its Army-Navy "E" flag. The company is one of the first to be granted a fifth renewal of the production award.

Fifty Year Reunion

SIX members of the Class of '95 celebrated a Fifty-year Class Reunion January 8, at the luncheon meeting of the Cornell Club of Southern California, in Los Angeles.

Fund Does Well

ALUMNI FUND to January 10 totalled $79,409.87 from 1925 contributors. This compares with $47,610.73 received from 1975 contributors in approximately the first six months of the 1943-44 Fund, according to Walter C. Heasley, Jr. '30, executive secretary.

This year's half-year total was considerably increased by a number of substantial year-end contributions to the unrestricted Alumni Fund made by individual Cornellians and by their business firms.

A post card mailed to all alumni November 18 suggesting that Series F and G War Bonds be purchased in the name of "Cornell University, A Corporation," to aid the Sixth War Loan, has thus far brought to the Fund 129 Bonds with maturity value of $13,200 and 21 checks totalling $544.25.

Both War Bond gifts and contributions from firms are credited to the Alumni Fund to the Class quotas of the persons responsible for them.

Fifth place in the down hill race at the women's collegiate ski tournament, December 30 at the Lake Placid Club, was won by Virginia Rogers '47 of Washington, D. C.

Trustees Propose Labor Members

BOARD TO ADMINISTER STATE SCHOOL

BOARD of Trustees of the University, meeting at the Medical College in New York January 20, approved amending the University Charter to enlarge the Board membership from forty to forty-five by adding the New York State Industrial Commissioner and Commissioner of Commerce, ex-officio, and three Trustees elected to represent labor. This action was taken to implement administration of the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations which was authorized at the University by the 1944 State Legislature.

The proposed Charter amendments will shortly be offered for approval of the Legislature and the Governor. Besides the five additional Trustees, they provide that the Board shall include in its membership at all times at least three Trustees each from agriculture, business and industry, and labor. "This provision," President Edmund E. Day says, "should enable the University to broaden its services in the public welfare." He points out that the present Charter includes as University Trustees the president of the State Agricultural Society and the State Commissioner of Agriculture, ex-officio, and a Trustee elected annually by the New York State Grange, and that the Board has always included members from the professions, business, and industry. The proposed amendments also standardize the terms of all Trustees to begin July 1.

The Trustees formally accepted the State School of Industrial and Labor Relations and agreed to administer it as part of the University. Assemblyman Irving M. Ives, chairman of a joint committee of the State Legislature on industrial and labor relations, introduced a bill last February 18 providing for reestablishing a State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell University and setting up a temporary board of trustees to report to the Legislature plans for "the control, supervision, organization, structure, and administration of the School."

The bill was passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, March 15. It stated as the objects and purposes of the School "the teaching and instruction of students concerning: 1. The history and How Well Do You Know Cornell?

CAN YOU IDENTIFY THIS PICTURE?

THIS sculpture decorates a Campus building. Do you know what it represents and where it is? A prize copy of Professor Becker's book, Cornell University: Founders and the Founding, will be awarded by the Alumni News and University Press to the subscriber who submits, by February 15, the most complete and accurate identification of this "Campus close-up."

Persons who live within twenty-five miles of Ithaca are not eligible to compete. Staff of the News will judge entries, and their decision shall be final. If two or more entries are judged to be equally complete and accurate, winner will be determined by lot. Winner's name and correct description will appear in the Alumni News of March 1.

RESULT OF JANUARY 1 CONTEST

A COPY of Cornell University: Founders and the Founding has been mailed to Professor Alfred Van Wagenen '30 of Ohio State University, who correctly described the object at right as the base of the light standard in front of Bailey Hall. It is the easterly one of the two bronze standards which adorn the low walls at both sides at the foot of the Bailey Hall steps; has been passed by all who have attended University concerts, Reunion rallies, Commencements, Senior Week and Junior Week shows, football rallies, Class smokers, or the many other events held in the University Auditorium since it was built in 1913.

All Cornellians enjoy Professor Becker's book about the early days of the University. It may be purchased at $2.75, postpaid, from Cornell Alumni Association, 3 East Avenue, Ithaca.

Slants on Sports

By Bill Haters '27

CORNELL teams fared well in ten contests January 9 through 20, winning seven. Swimmers splashed to their seventeenth and eighteenth consecutive victories, and the basketball team scored three successive triumphs. The wrestlers and Junior Varsity basketball team broke even in two contests a piece, and the hockey team lost its only engagement.

Swimmers Splash On

JANUARY 9, 1942, the swimming team dropped a 39-36 decision to Columbia in New York. Since then the team has been undefeated in dual and triangular competition.

On January 13, 1945, Cornell swimmers visited New York again and handed Columbia a 49-26 defeat. The victory was No. 17-in-a-row.

Cornell won five first places, including the two relays, as Richard M. Holsten, USMCR, took the 50-yard freestyle in 0:25; Paul Klein '46 won the 150-yard backstroke in 1:49.9; and Paul C. Murray, USMCR, captured the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:39.2. The relay winners were: 300-yard medley, Klein, Murray, and Joseph R. Di Stasio '48, in 3:19.5, and 400-yard freestyle, Wallace White, USNR, Ralph Riehl, Jr., USNR, Di Stasio, and Holsten, in 3:54.6.

Holsten placed second to Rogers of Columbia in the 100-yard freestyle, and Riehl was second to Rogers in the 220-yard freestyle. Other point winners for Cornell were Clarence F. Urban, USNR, second in diving and the 440-yard freestyle (Rogers won this one, too); John D. Holmes, USNR, second in the 50-yard freestyle; Charles Reynolds '48, second in the 200-yard breaststroke; Norman C. Merz '48, third in the 220-yard freestyle; James R. Del Signore, USNR, third in diving; Benjamin D. Wright, USNR, third in the 150-yard backstroke; and John H. Muller III, USNR, third in the 440-yard freestyle.

At Rochester January 20, Cornellians set two new pool records. The medley relay team—a new combination of Donald Iseman '46, Reynolds, and Holsten—opened the meet with a 3:12.6 effort for the 300 yards. The old record of 3:14.5 was set this season by a Sampson Naval Training Center trio.

Placing one-two in the 200-yard breaststroke, Murray and Reynolds both bettered the old record of 2:38. Murray was timed in 2:33.

Other winners were Urban, 220-yard freestyle, 2:30.4, and 440-yard freestyle, 5:24.4; Iseman, 150-yard backstroke, 1:49.5; 440-yard freestyle relay team of Frederick J. Hammond, USNR, Riehl, Di Stasio, and Holsten, 3:55.6.

Other second-place point scorers were White, 50-yard freestyle; Holsten, 100-yard freestyle; Riehl, 150-yard backstroke; and Muller, 440-yard freestyle. In third places were Merz, 220-yard freestyle; Holmes, 50-yard freestyle; and Di Stasio, 100-yard freestyle.

Cornell was forced to withdraw from the diving event when Del Signore was injured, not seriously, in striking the board. Cornell was awarded one point in this event.

Take Three on Courts

BASKETBALL team started its three-game victory string in Barton Hall January 9, winning easily from Pentathlon Military Academy, a division of the University of Mexico, 52-37. It was strictly no contest, despite Cornell's unusually ragged play. With every advantage in height and reach over the smaller Mexican players, Cornell found it extremely difficult to execute plays properly. The Mexicans outclassed Cornell in floor work and passing.

But fair shooting by William W. Matchneer '48, forward, and Walter D. Way '48, center, put Cornell in the van. The visitors held Cornell to a 5-point lead at the half, 23-18, but could not match Cornell's second-half spurt. Matchneer wound up as Cornell's high scorer with 14 points. Way scored 12. Both are discharged war veterans; Matchneer the son of William W. Matchneer '10 and grandson of Carl J. Hoster '94, Way the son of Dr. Walter D. Way '17 and Mrs. Way (Hilda Greenawalt) '19.

January 13, Cornell entertained Hobart in Barton Hall and scored an easy win, 55-33. Captain Irwin Alterson, USNR, forward, and Way, playing at forward and center, were the top Cornell scorers with 10 points each. McCaslin, Hobart center, scored 11.

Way was used at center because of an injury to Matchneer in practice during the week. Matchneer hurt his knee and had not recovered for the Dartmouth game at Hanover January 20, when Cornell defeated the defending Eastern Intercollegiate League champions, 46-28, to tie with Pennsylvania for the League lead as of that date.

Cornell's zone defense puzzled Dartmouth so successfully that the home team could score only a single point—on a free throw—in the first twelve minutes of play. Meanwhile, Cornell, paced by John G. Kimball, USNR, at guard and Edward T. Peterson '48 at center, picked up 18 points and finished the first half with a comfortable—if somewhat unbelievable—23-5 advantage.

The teams battled on even terms the second stanza, each scoring 23 points. The new forward combination of Alterson and Way, with Peterson at center, worked well. But Kimball came out the high scorer with 17 points. Peterson scored 12 and Alterson, 9.

League standings, as of January 20:

	W	L	Pts	OP
Cornell	2	1	143	118
Pennsylvania	2	1	149	140
Columbia	1	2	129	142
Dartmouth	1	2	111	132

Wrestlers Win, Lose

WRESTLING team scored its second victory of the season January 13 at Bethlehem in defeating Lehigh, 18-12. Falls scored by Captain Rodney G. Stieff, USNR, and Donald B. Campbell '48 in the last two bouts settled an issue that had been in doubt because of a mix-up in the opening contest.

In the 121-pound bout, Hinleun of Lehigh was declared the winner by decision over Phineas P. Kuhl, USNR. Coach Walter O'Connell '12 protested on the ground of a time advantage for the Cornell wrestler, and it was disclosed that one of the timers' clocks had stopped during the bout. O'Connell and the Lehigh coach then agreed that if the bout were needed to decide the meet's outcome, it would be wrestled again.

James Q. Wynn, USNR, lost a decision in the 128-pound class. David H. Huntington, USNR, son of Lowell S. Huntington '19, former Varsity heavyweight, won a decision in the 136-pound class. Clifford Steinbach, USNR, lost a decision and Lehigh led, 9-3, in the first four bouts. Benjamin G. Smith, USMCR, came through with a fall over Turner and 5 points in the 155-pound division. He pinned Turner with a half-nelson and body chancery in 2:40 of the second three-minute period and scored another fall in 2:25 of the third period. Lehigh increased its advantage to 12-8, as Jack T. Rakoski, USMCR, dropped a decision in the 165-pound class.

Stieff, however, threw Gerb in the 175-pound class with a double bar arm in 1:35 of the second period and repeated the fall in 0:10 of the third period. This put Cornell ahead, 13-12, and Campbell clinched the victory by throwing Koran, Lehigh heavyweight, in 0:46 of the third period with a body press.

A week later, January 20, in Barton Hall the wrestlers suffered their first defeat in three engagements as Penn State won a close one, 14-12.

Only one bout was decided by a fall, the extra 2 points scored by Smith of Penn State in pinning Rakoski in the 165-pound class winning the meet. Smith threw Rakoski with a crotch hold in 2:40 of the third period, just twenty seconds before the bout's end.

Five points are awarded for a fall. All other bouts were decided on decisions, worth 3 points apiece. Winners for Cornell were Kulh, 121 pounds; Huntington, 136 pounds; Stieff, 175 pounds; and Campbell, heavyweight.

Stieff and Campbell are undefeated in three bouts this season.

Coach Cointe Returns

GEORGES Cointe, former fencing coach and assistant athletic trainer, has been honorably discharged as a lieutenant in the French Army, and returns February 1 as a member of the physical training staff.

He designed, built, and oversaw much of the operation of the "commando course" on Kite Hill for civilian students in 1942-43, and during football seasons he was on the field assisting Trainer Frank Kavanagh. Varsity fencing was discontinued when he left.

Cointe joined the French Army July 9, 1943, and completed training at Fort Benning, Ga. He went to Casablanca as liaison officer and served in Morocco and Tunisia. He was next stationed in Scotland and England before he returned to France in the Normandy invasion. He saw action with the US First and Third Armies on the Western Front.

In the first World War, he served as an underofficer in the French Army and won the Croix de Guerre at Verdun.

Hockey Team Loses

HOCKEY team lost to Dartmouth, 10-1, on Beebe Lake, January 20. It was Dartmouth's forty-sixth consecutive hockey victory since 1942. Edmund Cranch, USNR, right wing, made the Cornell score when he slipped behind two Dartmouth defense players for a clean shot at the goal.

No Board Track

FOR more than fifty years, Cornell's indoor track squad has practiced on an outdoor board track.

Not so this season; too much snow. First heavy snowfall came before the track could be erected, and continuing heavy falls have prevented the work. Now it won't be put up at all.

The track squad is practicing on a circular track laid out on the dirt floor of Bacon Cage. It is approximately fourteen laps to the mile. The men will run on dirt in one meet, in the US Military Academy's field house at West Point, but in other indoor engagements at New York and Boston the runners will be at a disadvantage on boards.

Veterinary Honors

PRIZES were awarded to eleven students of the Veterinary College at "Honor Day" exercises January 12, in Willard Straight Memorial Room. Dean William A. Hagan, MS '17, of the College presided, and Professor Hadley C. Stephenson '14, representing the Veterinary Faculty, made the awards.

Horace K. White Prizes of $75 and $25 were won by Grayson B. Mitchell of King Ferry and Joseph C. Shaffer of Rosedale, who maintained the highest averages for the entire Veterinary course. The White Prizes were established in 1872 by Horace K. White '87, brother of President Andrew D. White, and increased in 1928 by his three sons, Andrew S. White '88, Ernest I. White '93, and the late University Trustee Horace White '87. Mitchell also won the first Mary Louise Moore Prize of $25, given by the late Dean Veranus A. Moore '87 in memory of his wife, for the best work in veterinary bacteriology; second prize of $15 going to Gilbert Lewis of Jamaica.

Addison D. Merry '80 Prizes of $30 and $20, given by his son, Dr. Albert E. Merry '06, for the best work in Veterinary Anatomy, went to Henry M. Doremus of Towaco, N. J., and Robert W. Kirk of Stamford, Conn. Anne Besse Prizes of $25 and $15 were awarded to Ralph F. Wester of Clinton and to Shaffer, for the best work in Medicine and Clinical Diagnosis. For humaneness in handling animals, with special reference to anaesthesia, the James Gordon Bennett Prizes of $25 and $15 were awarded to Harrison J. Wilcox, Jr. of Binghamton and to Wester.

Wilcox also won the Alpha Psi gold watch, as "the member of the graduating Class who has shown by his scholarship, character, and breadth of interest that he is best equipped to advance the standards of veterinary science."

Jane Miller Prizes of $25 and $15 for Physiology went to Michael Rothblatt and George H. Herlitz, both of New York City. Charles Gross Bondy Prizes of $25 and $15, for the best work in Practical Medicine and Surgery of Small Animals, were won by Charles S. Duncan of Binghamton and Andrew S. Ritter of Hudson.

Doremus and Kirk are Sophomores, Rothblatt and Herlitz are Juniors, and the other seven prize-winners are Seniors.

Dean Dexter S. Kimball, Engineering, Emeritus, spoke on the history and development of Cornell and the Veterinary College. The program was concluded with a dance sponsored by the Cornell chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

War Letter Published

LETTERS HOME, a new book edited by Professor Mina Curtiss of Smith College and published by Little, Brown & Co., contains a stirring letter from Sergeant Samuel Allen, Jr., US Tank Corps, written May 15, 1943, from North Africa to his family in Hudson, Ohio. Sergeant Allen's tank company is credited with the capture of Bizerte, Nazi stronghold in Tunisia; his letter describes this action.

In the summer of 1940, Sergeant Allen came to Cornell from Miami University to take unit courses in Hotel Administration. He was manager of the Southland Hotel in Norfolk, Va., at the time of his induction. After Bizerte he was sent to Italy, where at the age of twenty-three he died of wounds received in action.

Bangs '21, Administrative Engineering, on leave as director of industrial and personnel relations, Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Ronald Press Co., New York City. 1944. 1,700 pages, $7.50.

Everything factory operators and executives ought to know.

Among the ninety contributors are Professor Dexter S. Kimball, Engineering, Emeritus; Alfred Marchev, president of Republic Aviation Corp. who thirty years ago worked for Thomas-Morse Aircraft in Ithaca, is the husband of Martha Bovier Marchev '12 and the father of Lieutenant George B. Marchev '43, AAF; and the following eleven alumni: A. Griffin Ashcroft '21, product engineer for Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Co.; Ralph M. Barnes, PhD '33, professor of industrial engineering, University of Iowa; University Trustee Thomas I. S. Boak '14, works manager, Winchester Repeating Arms Co.; William B. Cornell '07, professor of management and industrial relations, New York University; Carlos D. Hart '06, superintendent of lead covered cable and station apparatus shops, Western Electric Co.; Harold B. Maynard '23, president of Methods Engineering Council; Allan H. Mogensen '23, industrial consultant; Charles A. Norris '24, chief engineer, Phenolic Molding Material Service, Bakelite Corp.; Jack E. Walters, PhD '34, principal, McKinsey & Co.; J. All other phases of industrial, labor, and public relations of employers and employees tending to promote unity and the welfare of the people of the State." Temporary trustees are President Day, chairman; William B. Groat, Jr., counsel of the joint Legislative committee, secretary; Assemblyman Ives; Louis Hollander, head of the State Industrial Union Council of the CIO; Thomas A. Murray, president of the State Federation of Labor, AFL; Frederick E. Hasler as president of the State Chamber of Commerce; Mark A. Daley, executive vice-president of Associated Industries of New York State, Inc.; and George D. Stoddard, State Commissioner of Education.

President Day expressed the hope that the University Charter amendments would be approved and that the Legislature would complete the organization of the School so that it may be opened next fall, the first of its kind. Its administration by the University, he said, will parallel that of the present State Colleges of Agriculture, Home Economics, and Veterinary Medicine at the University.

Of the new ex-officio Trustees, Edward Corsi is the present New York State Industrial Commissioner and Professor Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, on leave from Agricultural Economics, is State Commissioner of Commerce. The President said that the Trustees would consult labor organizations in the State before electing the other three new members of the Board.

Women's Meetings Off

ANNUAL luncheon of the Cornell Women's Club of New York, scheduled for February 3 at the Waldorf Astoria, has been cancelled in compliance with the Byrnes order. Also a casualty is the annual meeting of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs executive committee with presidents of the thirty-eight active Clubs, which was to have preceded the annual luncheon.

At Work in Near East

NEAR EAST Foundation lists twenty "carefully selected and fully trained men and women" on its overseas staff; seven of them are Cornellians.

Dr. Wilson F. Dodd '20 is overseas director of the Foundation's medical program and medical supervisor in refugee camps for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Paul H. Allen, Grad '34, with twenty years' experience in rural extension work in the United States, is now agriculturalist and administrator of the Foundation's program in Lebanon and Syria.

Wolkof '33, Major Benjamin W. Covington, Jr. '38, a guest, Ben L. Pond '20, Fu Chang Li '23, Chung Lo Liu '22, two guests, T. Y. Chang '36, and a guest.

Teaching, on leave as agricultural statistician for the Near East Foundation, is loaned to the Foreign Economic Administration.

F. Irvine Elliott, PhD '44, formerly Extension instructor in Animal Husbandry specializing in artificial insemination of cattle, is director of the Foundation's livestock rehabilitation project in the Balkans.

Helen L. McCune '43, nutritionist for the New York State Food Commission last year, is now supervisor of home welfare in Lebanon and Syria.

Mrs. Margaret Johnson Florea, MS '43, and Marietta C. Henderson, MS '43, have been assigned temporarily to UNRRA for work in Greece.

Ora S. Morgan, PhD '09, professor emeritus of agricultural economics at Columbia University, has been a director of the Near East Foundation since 1930.

Speaker From Pacific

MASTER Sergeant Frank W. Macy '36, AAF, of Rochester, home on furlough after three years in Australia, New Guinea, and the Philippines, addressed the regular Wednesday luncheon meeting of the Cornell Club of Rochester, January 24, on "Our Friends 'Down Under'."

January 31, the Club heard Elmer Lawton, district engineer, New York State Department of Public Works, talk on "Bringing our State Highways Up to Date."

Re-elect Trustees

TWO ex-officio members of the University Board of Trustees have been re-elected as statutory librarian of the Cornell Library in Ithaca and president of the New York State Agricultural Society.

Harry G. Stutz '07, general manager and editor of The Ithaca Journal, was re-elected librarian January 16 by the Cornell Library Association. He is chairman of the Trustees' audit committee and Trustee-Faculty committee on Fine Arts, and is a member of the Board executive committee, government relations subcommittee of the planning and development committee, Library board, and the Board on Student Health and Hygiene.

Harry Bull, dairy farmer of Campbell Hall, was re-elected president of the State Agricultural Society, January 17 in Albany. Seventy-two years old, Bull was an organizer and director of the Dairymen's League and has been since its organization in 1920 a director of the GLF Exchange, the only original board member still serving. He is a member of the Agriculture College Council.

Now in My Time!

By Conroy Berry

LOUIS AGASSIZ never spent much time at Ithaca. But you can still find his fingerprints all over the place. He left his mark on men, and on attitudes of mind. Where that mark remains, academic snobbery cannot flourish.

A Campus dweller with a lively curiosity is constantly being shocked to learn how much has been going on, is going on, that he didn't know about. The latest revelation comes from Professor E. Laurence Palmer's most recent leaflet on "The Cornell Nature Study Philosophy." They still call them "leaflets" although this one runs to eighty pages of compact substance. The continued use of the term is doubtless part of our traditional striving for ostentatious simplicity.

Next to the White Autobiography and the Becker Book, this Palmer opus offers the most promising clues to those still trying to isolate and describe the peculiar essence of Cornell.

To many graduates, Nature Study suggests bedtime stories; an excellent thing, no doubt, but scarcely possessing the dignity that would entitle it to University recognition. Nor can you blame the alumni for this attitude when you recall that it was not until 1899 that a Cornell professor dared to announce a course called Nature Study. Until that time, the custom of the trade required you to call it Ecology or Oecology.

"Bosh!" said George F. Atkinson, the mushroom man, from the head of the table at the boarding house patronized by your reporter in his Freshman year, "I call it Nature Study." And he wist not that he was passing down the spirit of Louis Agassiz along with the alphabet soup.

One day, writes Professor Palmer, a little boy fishing in Cascadilla was startled by a man standing in the middle of the stream. "Come here, little boy," said the man, "I show you something." The man was Agassiz, and what he showed the boy was a minnow pushing pebbles together into a heap. That's all the story, except that the boy went on from there to become Curator of Botany at the Field Museum in Chicago!

That first lot of searchers and teachers—Wilder, Hartt, Dudley, Comstock, Gage, Jordan—had felt the touch of Agassiz. The influence stayed with them, and passed down through them to their students and successors. It was still the Agassiz touch that you got so casually from Louis Fuertes '97. It is still the Agassiz touch that you get on a bird walk behind Arthur Allen '08 through the Renwick woods in the blue mists of a May sunrise.

"Come here, little boy, and I'll show you something." That's the pedagogical attack at Ithaca, and it's all the same to the Agassiz crowd whether the boy be six or sixty!

Post-war education? The word goes 'round now that post-war education will deal also with the proposition that the bread of the labor unions and that of the farm bureaus is all buttered on the same side, and that both groups had better start getting together. Fine! as long as the student never forgets he must get his facts from his own observations, form his own conclusions from his own thinking. And he isn't likely to forget that as long as the Agassiz influence remains!

Nature study belongs in a university. But it should be pursued to a point where the student gets a chance to find out that Aristotle made some pretty shrewd guesses in the field of science; that Socrates, too, left his mark on teaching methods; that America has not yet caught up with Greek thinking except, perhaps, in the matter of plumbing fixtures and such like.

Over the main entrance of Willard Straight appears a Latin inscription that might be broadly translated, "Everything that relates to the well-being of mankind is intensely interesting to me." It comes pretty close to what Ezra Cornell had in his mind. It lets in Nature Study, Labor Problems, Greek Thinking, Rural Sociology, Russian Civilization, English Poetry, Nutrition, and Flying Machines. It rules out all traditional, academic snobbery in connection with the curriculum.

Welles Lecture

SYNDICATED column, "The Lyons Den," by Leonard Lyons in The New York Post January 22 opened with the statement: "Orson Welles' lecture at Cornell University this week was cancelled by order of the university's regents. Welles was told that the regents disapproved of his political leanings."

Fact is that no lecture by Orson Welles had ever been scheduled at the University. Edward K. Graham, PhD '38, Secretary of the University, received a telegram from the William Morris Agency which had gone to the Department of Music December 9 inquiring whether the University would book Welles on the Campus, the nature of his performance unspecified. Graham referred the matter to the directors of the University Theatre who, after discussion with students and others of their group, wired Welles's agent December 15 that the University Theatre would be unable to sponsor his appearance here.

Secretary Graham wrote Lyons these facts January 23, saying also in his letter: "The Board of Trustees has never forbidden a lecture by Mr. Welles, nor does the Board act in the position of censor for public events on this Campus. . . . So far as I have been able to find out, no question of Welles's political beliefs came up, and I rather doubt that anyone here would regard them as carrying much weight, one way or another, so far as an appearance on this Campus is concerned."

In a telephone conversation with Graham, Lyons said he was glad to have the facts and would publish them.

"Grossly Exaggerated"

TO THE EDITOR:

My copy of the ALUMNI NEWS for January 15 arrived late. No wonder it was so long on the road, loaded down as it was with the burden of Patterson '95 and his grandfather's desk.

It was startling—and made me feel over-exposed—when I seemed to see my name and backside featuring a whole page of the NEWS. But then I observed with relief that a good share of the page had been allotted to Rym and his backside: a legitimate feature.

If any reader complains that the space given to my exit exceeds the decent limit, you may promise that the ultimate obituary, when its time comes, can be cut to the bones, thus: "See Vol. 47, p. 282."

It was a happy thought of the make-up man to offset those receding rumps with a stickful of "Coming Events."—WOODFORD PATTERSON '95

On The Campus and Down the Hill

Tribute to Cornell University for its war contributions, including "18,000 Cornellians in service," the Army and Navy programs on the Campus, and the training of 22,000 persons for war industries throughout the State by the Faculty in the ESMWT program, was paid by Hal McIntyre on the nationally broadcast Eversharp program, January 23. McIntyre led his band in a stylized version of the "Alma Mater."

"Jam session" arranged by the fledgling music committee of the Student Council packed the Willard Straight Memorial Room, January 16. Piano, trumpet, bass, drums, and vocal, handled by civilian and Naval students, gave enjoyment to the multitude. Strains of "I Can't Get Started" recalled the shade of the great Bunny Berigan to the vaulted room where he played for the '38 Senior Ball.

"Early American Blues" sung by Josh White, guitar-picking Negro minstrel, and Libby Holman, the original torch girl, will be the music committee's first big venture, February 3. Josh visited Cornell January 15 to test the acoustics and lighting of Bailey Hall, a far cry from your intine night club, his usual milieu. He was sure, however, that "Libby can holler loud enough," and departed well satisfied, stopping only to sing for Professor Harold Thompson's class in American Folklore.

Captain Arthur S. Adams, USN, University Provost-elect, addressed 208 graduates of the Midshipmen's School, January 24, in his second commencement appearance in Bailey Hall. The following day he was to speak at the annual schedule-making conference of the ICAAAA in New York City.

Cornell for Victory's new "Meet 'em and Date 'em" committee arranges open houses in sororities, dormitories, and cottages every Sunday afternoon for service men. Ten such shindigs were well attended January 21. The committee's present goal is a date for every service man February 3, at Winter Wonderland in Barton Hall.

Cornell Dance Club held open house January 16, in the recreation room of Risley Hall. An audience of perhaps 100, including interested members of the Faculty and not a few roommates of the performers, watched beginning, intermediate, and advanced groups demonstrate their barefoot agility in the modern dance. Garbed attractively in brief blue tunics, the girls climaxed their presentation of rhythmic, spatial, and dynamic movement with an antiphonal interpretation of "Lazy Mary, Will You Get Up?" Cookies and root beer were also served.

"The Cornell Widow announces with pride the forthcoming selection of the most beautiful coed of the Freshman Class by John Robert Powers, president, Powers Models." The Widow has elected Myron E. Mendelson '46 of Woodmere, associate editor, and Caroline M. Steinholz '46 of New York City to the art staff.

Letter published in The Widow for Christmas points out the time and paper wasted by ending letters "Yours truly." It is signed "Yours truly, Jay Kay, Ltd." and has been attributed to James K. Fraser '97, a founder of The Widow in 1894.

Andrew H. McPherson, contractor and builder, died January 12 in Ithaca. With his son, Donald McPherson '31, he built many Faculty houses in Cayuga Heights and Forest Home. His daughter is Mrs. Charles E. Barnett (Ellen McPherson) '27.

Lucy Prather, beloved cook at the Seal and Serpent house for thirty years until she retired in 1938, died January 6 at her home in Gaithersburg, Md. Professor Morris G. Bishop '14, Romance Languages, on leave as a civilian with OWI, writes December 29 from overseas: "This morning I took on a new job. I reported at 6 a.m. and did a broadcast in German. It was evidently a success, and the result is that I will report every morning at 6 a.m. and probably won't get a morning off or a leave to Paris until the war is over. I am pleased, however, as I have previously broadcast in French, Italian, and Swedish, and it seemed a shame not to let the Germans listen to my German. Maybe it will bring their surrender a little closer. Unfortunately, after my broadcast I am not through, as I am in charge of recordings, prisoners of war, and anything else that occurs to someone who wants to impose on someone's good nature. 'Impose on Good Nature Here,' is the sign over my door. But I am lucky in having the assistance of Corporal Joseph W. Eaton '40, who prepared for his present assignment by specializing in Rural Sociology. . . . I live very comfortably in a handsome house, with heat and hot water, excellent food, and admirable service. About twenty of us have two housemen, a cook, two maids, and a local policeman who waits on table in full uniform, including hat. It is true that the nights have been pretty noisy."

An armored Field Artillery battery commander, he was engaged in personal reconnaissance near Maizieres-les-Metz when he suddenly encountered a group of strongly-entrenched Germans. "Drawing his pistol, he organized a small group of volunteers, and advancing at their head under the protection of covering-machine gun fire, charged the enemy position." The ferocity of the assault so unnerved the Germans that they surrendered. "Determined to ferret out the remainder of the enemy strongholds, he proceeded to scout along the boundary of the bivouac area." Advancing, he was repeatedly pinned down by fierce machine-gun bursts poured down upon him from concealed positions. "Deducting from the staccato rhythm of the guns their approximate location, he crept forward until he came within a few yards

ALL the old-timers agree that Ithaca is having the hardest winter in many years and you will remember that Ithaca winters were no prize at any time! The skiers have been right in their glory and the Co-op has had a bull market for Ski Equipment, Ear Muffs, and Warm Clothing. There's a long winter still ahead!

The most popular item at the Co-op right now is St. Valentine Greeting Cards. One Navy boy just bought nineteen cards; it just doesn't seem possible that one fellow could have so many girls. That's a real manpower shortage!

We've had a modest response to our special offer in the January 1 Alumni News and the returns are still coming in. Remember, all we need is a post card with your name, address, and Class.

Our best Valentine gifts for girls are those Sterling Silver Barrettes with Cornell Seal. They are $2 and $3 and we have them without the seal for $1.50. Or she might like a Sterling Silver Charm Bracelet (from $3.50 to $5, depending on the number and variety of charms.)

And so, we've filled another column without saying a great deal—but just reminding you that we are still around after fifty years.

GUIDANCE AND PERSONNEL SERVICES IN EDUCATION

BY ANNA Y. REED

Professor Emeritus in New York University, Resident Lecturer at Cornell University, 1940-1944.

DR. REED'S recently published book has received instant acclaim. Certain distinctive features of the volume call forth special commendation:

INCLUSIVENESS. With the advantage of unusually wide experience over many years, the author applies her knowledge of guidance and personnel services to the work of public education, of college administration, of public employment services, of business concerns, and of philanthropy.

EMPHASIS ON EDUCATIONAL EXPERIENCE as an integral factor of education has been stressed.

ANALYSIS OF PROBLEMS. An entire section is devoted to nomenclature, legitimate functions, and problems involved in the setting up, administration, and appraisal of guidance and personnel services.

A book of lasting interest and value to the educator or the businessman. 496 pages, $4.75

Every branch of the Armed Services uses the telephone. No. 14 of a series, Field Artillery.

Long Toms—blasting unseen targets—are directed by voices flashing through this artilleryman's radio telephone "switchboard." Using its 10 channels, he connects the commander with spotters up front and in planes; then with battery commanders who focus tremendous firepower. He is helping soften up the long, hard road ahead.

Message for YOU!

Every time a 155mm "Long Tom" is fired, it costs Uncle Sam $37.78. Our leaders believe in using vast numbers of costly shells to prevent losing priceless American lives. Help provide the ammunition—invest all the dollars you can in War Bonds!
