fascinating — "idea-interpreter"

A message from Dr. Mortimer J. Adler,
EDITOR, THE SYNTOPICON

"The greatest mistake anyone can make about liberal education is to suppose that it can be acquired, once and for all, in the course of one's youth and by passing through school and college.

"This is what schoolboys do not know and, perhaps, cannot be expected to understand while they are still in school. They can be pardoned the illusion that, as they approach the moment of graduation, they are finishing their education. But no intelligent adult is subject to this illusion for long, once his formal schooling is completed.

"He soon learns how little he knows and knows how much he has to learn. He soon comes to understand that if his education were finished with school, he, too, would be finished, so far as mental growth or maturity of understanding and judgment are concerned.

"With the years he realizes how very slowly any human being grows in wisdom. With this realization he recognizes that the reason why schooling cannot make young people wise is also the reason why it cannot complete their education. The fullness of time is required for both."

FIRST SNARK SQUADRON ACTIVATED

Snark Guided Missile Becomes Operational

HAWTHORNE, CALIF.—The United States Air Force has announced that its first Northrop Snark SM-62 intercontinental guided missile squadron will be activated late this year. The Snark will be the first such missile to come into operational use.

The squadron, to be assigned to the Strategic Air Command, will be equipped with the high-altitude, jet-propelled Snark missile capable of delivering a nuclear warhead.

The exact site for the new missile unit was not disclosed but SAC officials emphasized that missile units will be so positioned as to reduce problems of noise and to insure that missiles, if ever fired, will not pass over heavily populated regions.

No missiles will be launched from operational sites except in case of attack. For training purposes missile crews will practice actual firing at an established range such as Patrick Air Force Base, Florida.

The Snark missile squadron will be manned by some 500 officers and men. Personnel are now undergoing training in the operation and maintenance of the Snark at Northrop.

The engineering division at Northrop continues in its development work on the Snark while they are in production. Other advanced projects in manned and pilotless flight are also in various stages of development at Northrop's new multi-million-dollar engineering and science center in Hawthorne... all of them vital to the defense of America and other countries of the free world.

missile engineers

As space becomes the missile engineer's province the demand for highly competent talent is ever present. Each development uncovers other areas for advanced study.

Beneath the imposing skyline at Northrop, engineers in the new multi-million dollar Engineering and Science Center are tackling today the problems of tomorrow's flights into space.

Scientists and engineers at Northrop have many accomplishments to their credit, including the USAF-Northrop SM-62 Snark intercontinental guided missile, first such weapon system to become operational with the Strategic Air Command. Research continues on preliminary and advanced projects involving missile guidance and controls, propulsion, flight test engineering, and similar areas of prime importance.

Northrop's 18 years of experience in pilotless flight is seldom matched by other manufacturers in the aircraft or missile fields. This reputation is a principal reason why experienced engineers and scientists have joined the Northrop Engineering Division. As work progresses on the USAF Snark and other vital missile projects career opportunities become available for qualified missile engineers.

University Takes In CURW

AN ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL for Cornell United Religious Work has been authorized by the University Board of Trustees to be responsible for policies and administration of the CURW program and for the operation of Anabel Taylor Hall. The University has also assumed responsibility for financing such of the interfaith activities as are not handled by the affiliated religious groups for their respective programs. Although the Trustees have thus, in effect, brought CURW more closely within the University organization, these actions do not affect continuing support from a portion of the student activities fee as administered by the Student Council or contributions from the religious groups using Anabel Taylor Hall. Additional current operating support and endowment will be sought through the Office of University Development.

Like the provision of the University Charter which regulates its Trustee membership, the legislation creating the new Council provides that "at no time shall a majority of the Council be members of any one religious sect or of no particular sect." The Council has five ex-officio members and nine members elected for terms of two years. Of the elected members, two are chosen by and from the Board of Trustees, two Faculty members and one alumnus are appointed by the President, one representative is elected by the CURW chaplains' staff, and three members are elected by the participating groups of CURW.

Elected and appointed to the Council, which held its first meeting in Anabel Taylor Hall, October 11, are Trustees Francis H. Scheetz '16 and Elbert P. Tuttle '18; Professors T. Norman Hurd, PhD '36, Agricultural Economics, and Robin M. Williams, Jr., Grad '35-'36, Sociology & Anthropology; Charles M. Thorp '16 of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rabbi Morris Goldfarb, director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation; and Professors Edwin A. Burr, Philosophy, Philip G. Johnson, PhD '33, Rural Education, and William A. Wimsatt '39, Zoology. Ex-officio members are President Deane W.

Malott, who is chairman of the Council; the Rev. Glenn A. Olds, Director of CURW; Dean of Men Frank C. Baldwin '22; Dean of Women Mrs. Dorothy V. N. Brooks; and Jack D. McFadden '58, president of the Student Board of CURW.

The first Campus religious organization was created within a year of the University's opening in 1868 when a group of young men organized the first Christian Association. The group was active both on the Campus and in the community, welcoming lonely students, visiting the county jail, and sending out evangelistic bands. After women entered the University in 1872, a joint Association was formed and in 1887 the Christian Association was incorporated as the Christian Association of Cornell University. This new group, popularly known as CACU, operated under a trusteeship made up of nine men and women. It continued as the basic Campus religious organization until the establishment in 1929 of CURW. In 1886, John R. Mott '88, who was later to become secretary of the National YMCA and who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1946 for his humanitarian work, initiated a movement to raise money for a Christian Association building. Alfred S. Barnes heard of the Association's work and its need for a building and gave money for Barnes Hall, which was dedicated in 1888.

In 1919, Richard H. Edwards agreed to become Director of CACU provided the student work of the churches, which were then beginning to place pastors in large universities, could be integrated with CACU as one united program. Five Protestant churches agreed to do so, thus establishing the basic philosophy of CURW. The Jewish and Catholic churches came in in 1929 and the organization changed its name to Cornell United Religious Work. Edwards retired in 1937 and was succeeded by William W. Mendenhall, who remained as Director of CURW until 1954. Under Mendenhall's leadership, CURW saw a period of great expansion both in the number of church groups represented Anabel Taylor Hall—The Campus interfaith center and World War II memorial given by Trustee Emeritus Myron C. Taylor '94 and named for Mrs. Taylor. Besides the offices of the participating religious groups and the CURW staff, the building has an interfaith chapel, auditorium, library, kitchens, lounges, and several conference and seminar rooms.

and in general activities. This expansion culminated in 1952 with the opening of Anabel Taylor Hall, the present inter-faith center and World War II memorial given to the University by Trustee Emeritus Myron C. Taylor '94 and named for Mrs. Taylor.

In addition to the new Council, three groups share in the operation of CURW: a board of control composed of members of the Faculty and administration; a student board of forty-four members that initiates and carries out much of the non-sectarian united work among undergraduates; and the CURW staff which consists of the Director and his assistants and thirteen chaplains and assistants who are supported by and are primarily responsible to their own church groups.

Twelve denominations officially participate in CURW: Baptist, Catholic, Christian Science, Congregational, Episcopalian, Jewish, Latter Day Saints (Mormons), Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian and Reformed, Friends (Quakers), and Unitarian. These groups not only minister to the religious needs of students of those particular faiths, but also unite to work in many non-sectarian areas where students of all faiths have common ground or mutual concerns. For example, CURW offers guidance to Freshmen through informal discussion groups, participation in the University's orientation program, and until they were cancelled for next year, the operation of four Freshman Camps. CURW maintains a One World Club for students of all nationalities and during the last two summers has sent seventy-five students in three groups to Greece and Iran for educational work projects. CURW also sponsors such activities as the Campus Conference on Religion, this year November 17-20, and lectures on "Great Religious Answers" which run through the school year. In the community, CURW has organized hospital visitations, volunteer work for individuals and service agencies in Ithaca, deputations to rural churches, and teams of students to visit nearby high schools.

Alumni Win Promotion

THREE Law School graduates were among nine US Labor Department officials given new assignments by Secretary James P. Mitchell last month.

John J. Gilhooley, LLB '49, of Garrett Park, Md. was appointed Assistant Secretary of Labor and given "line responsibility" for several bureaus. He has been with the Department since 1953. Walter C. Wallace, LLB '51, of Arlington, Va., was named Secretary Mitchell's executive assistant. An editor of the Law Quarterly and 1951 "Graduate of the Year," he became the Secretary's administrative assistant in 1955. Richard A. Schwarz '47 of Woodmere, who received the AB in 1949 and LLB in 1951, was appointed assistant to the Undersecretary of Labor. He entered the Department two years ago.

New Approach to Theater Design—Four of twenty students in Architecture who completed an unusual course in theater design with the model of a theater they created for "The Merchant of Venice." From left are Guillermo E. Vogeler '59 of Caracas, Venezuela; Jose J. Andreu '48 of San Juan, Puerto Rico; Nid H. Shiranan '59 of Dhonburi, Thailand; and Richard Grossgold '57 of South Fallsburg. The ten-week course reversed architectural tradition by designing theaters for specific plays. Under direction of Professors Thomas Canfield and Henry Elder, Architecture, and Kenneth Evett, Fine Arts, the group was assigned Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice," G. B. Shaw's "Man and Superman," and Berthold Brecht's "Threepenny Opera." Before designing their theaters, the group read the assigned plays and then listened to lectures on space and staging by Professor Walter H. Stainton '19, Speech & Drama; on costuming by Mrs. Barbara Oliver, a member of the University Theatre staff last year; and on the plays and playwrights by Professors Arthur Mizener and Edward B. Partridge, English, and Ithaca playwright Seyril Schochen. After the course, the six model theaters produced by the students were displayed in White Hall.

Ag Teachers Retire

TWO MEMBERS of the Agriculture Faculty, Professor Joseph Pullman Porter '17, Floriculture, and Harold Clough, instructor in Agricultural Engineering, retired October 1. Together, they had a total of seventy-six years of service to the University.

Credited with being the first full-time Extension worker in landscape gardening in the United States, Professor Porter joined the Faculty as an assistant in Plant Propagation in 1917, shortly after he received the BS. The next year he was appointed Extension instructor in Landscape Art and in 1919 he received the Master of Landscape Design. His first work was to set up a program which trained home owners and nurserymen in landscaping small properties. As associate professor of Ornamental Horticulture, he originated a series of landscape nursery courses and conducted schools in landscape design for garden clubs and other organizations in eleven States. He was the first Faculty member to give an instructional radio program and the first to present a television program. During World War II, he was an unofficial adviser to the Army on military camouflage and taught the subject to ROTC students.

A former Ithaca alderman, Professor Porter helped develop the first YMCA day camp in Ithaca and started the first two Boy Scout troops when he came here as a Freshman. He is a member of the national honorary fraternities, Epsilon Sigma Phi (Extension) and Pi Alpha Xi (floriculture); Ho-Nun-De-Kah, Senior honor society in Agriculture; and Kappa Delta Rho. He and Mrs. Porter, Sp '21, have four children, two of whom are Harold S. Porter '53 and Charles C. Porter '58.

A native of England where he was an electrical engineering apprentice, Harold Clough came to the University in 1921 as a mechanic in the College of Agriculture. In 1930, he began to teach a course in welding, starting with two students and building up to 120 in later years. He was appointed instructor in Agricultural Engineering in 1937 and assisted with courses for women students. In Summer Sessions, Clough taught vocational agriculture teachers how to operate new equipment being installed in school shops and for about twelve summers he was an Extension specialist, traveling around the State teaching groups of women how to clean and repair sewing machines. He is co-author with Professor Forrest B. Wright '22, Agricultural Engineering, of an Extension bulletin on "Care and Adjustment of the Sewing Machine." He is the father of Mrs. Esther Clough Bradley '40.

For Prospective Students

GUIDE FOR 1958 CANDIDATES has been sent by the Office of Admissions to members of alumni secondary school committees all over the country. The pamphlet gives condensed information about requirements and procedures for admission to the University. Most divisions require prospective Freshmen to take the scholastic aptitude test given by the College Entrance Examination Board and dates are given for this and for applications to the University. Costs, housing, and financial aids to students are also described. An accompanying leaflet tells about "Scholarships Open to Prospective Freshmen in Cornell University" and how to apply for them.

Any alumnus may obtain these pamphlets from the Office of Admissions, Day Hall, Ithaca, N.Y.

Hortorium Acquisitions

"FIVE TO SIX THOUSAND American seed and plant catalogs arrived at the Bailey Hortorium early this summer, the gift of the J. Horace McFarland Co. [horticultural printers in Harrisburg, Pa.] It is a priceless collection, commencing with the first ones they printed in 1882 and continuing through their present production. When added to the present collection, considered the third largest in the world, the importance of this assemblage is materially increased as an archive showing the growth of American horticulture."

"A recent acquisition from Scotland is a collection of 3200 color plates of as many species of rare or unusual plants. Most of these are hand-colored, and came from such famed works as Curtis's Botanical Magazine and Roxburgh's rare volumes on Indian plants. Because of the authenticity of these illustrations, they are most helpful in daily identifications of unusual plants received at the Bailey Hortorium from all parts of the country."

Describes Wordsworth Collection

UNIVERSITY PRESS publication of a definitive catalog of The Cornell Wordsworth Collection, by Professor George H. Healey, PhD '47, English & Bibliography, is marked with an interesting exhibit of items from the Collection in the University Library.

The Wordsworth Collection here has gained international fame as the largest concentration of books by and about the poet and the largest collection of Wordsworth manuscripts outside the family archives. Much of the Collection was purchased for the University in 1925 by Victor Emanuel '19 from the estate of Mrs. Cynthia Morgan St. John of Ithaca, who had spent forty years accumulating it. Emanuel is a Trustee of the University and president of Avco Corp. Professor Healey says in his book:

"Fortunately, the generous enthusiasm that led Mr. Emanuel to obtain the St. John collection also prompted him to sustain and extend it. For thirty-two years now he has presided genially over its steady development. During much of this time he was aided diligently by the first Curator of the Cornell Wordsworth Collection, the late Professor L. N. Broughton [PhD '11]. Later, for a brief but flourishing period, he was advised by Professor R. C. Bald. The Collection was and is, however, an abiding personal interest of his own and, though one of the busiest of men, he is never too busy to see a manuscript or to place a bid at Sotheby's. In depression and in prosperity, in wartime and in peacetime, in Charing Cross and on Fourth Avenue, he has cheerfully but determinedly seen to it that the resources of the Collection were constantly widened and deepened. The result of that persistence is evident. The St. John library of 1925 consisted of about 1000 pieces; the Cornell Wordsworth Collection today (catalogued as 3206 items, some of them multiple) comes to about 3500 pieces."

Book Involves Years of Study

Professor Healey is now Honorary Curator of the Wordsworth Collection. For more than four years he examined and compared books and manuscripts in libraries in the United States, England, Scotland, Ireland, and France to supply in accurate detail for this catalog complete analytical descriptions of the various editions of all Wordsworth's works. It is the first complete bibliographical analysis of all books published by the poet in his lifetime. The Cornell Wordsworth Collection catalog is published in limited edition of 750 copies at $10. With a detailed index, the volume has 462 pages and contains twenty-four colotype illustrations of Wordsworthiana.

The Library exhibit arranged by Professor Healey in the display cases just outside the main reading room is attracting many visitors. It will remain until November 6. Some of the items are shown for the first time. Rarest of them all is the only known copy of Wordsworth's "Sonnet to B. R. Haydon, Painter," as published in The Examiner and The Champion in 1816. Shown also is one of the thirteen known copies of the Bristol edition of The Lyrical Ballads, two rare chapbooks containing the poem, "We Are Seven," many original manuscripts and letters by the poet and members of his family. The exhibit includes a rare miniature and other pictures of Wordsworth and it has letters and other works by Thomas J. Wise, who was a clever forger of early editions of nineteenth-century authors. Illustrating the value of the Collection to scholars, thirty contemporary books are shown in which the authors acknowledge their use of the Cornell Wordsworth Collection.

Fund Leaders Organize

CAMPAIGN for "leadership gifts" of large amounts in the annual giving program of the Cornell Fund was outlined at a luncheon meeting of thirty local chairmen in Statler Hall, October 12.

William L. Lewis '22, national chairman, noted that the first organized campaign for leadership gifts, in the fall of 1953 under chairmanship of John P. Syme '26, was concerned with about 600 alumni who were considered to be prospective givers of large amounts. This year, he said, there are 3500 such prospects. Syme was succeeded in 1955 by Alfred M. Saperston '19 and Lewis became chairman this year. Chairmen were to organize their local volunteer committees in October and solicitation is to be completed in November, Lewis said. Committees of alumni will be active this fall in sixty-three cities, he said. Joseph D. Minogue '45, director of alumni annual giving, introduced the members of his staff and said that each would assist assigned committee chairmen in their cities.

Last year, Lewis said, unrestricted annual gifts in amounts of $100 or more totalled $489,958 from 1395 contributors: nearly 70 per cent of all the annual gifts received, from 8 per cent of those who gave the total fund. University Vice-president James L. Zwingle, PhD '42, thanked the chairmen for their work as local leaders for Cornell and spoke of their opportunities for satisfaction. President Deane W. Malott referred to the importance of their work as "the backbone of Cornell's day-to-day operation" and thanked them for their effectiveness "to see to it that the University receives the support it needs to carry out its dynamic educational program."

The leadership gifts chairman who came farthest for the meeting is Moulton B. Goff '13 of Los Angeles, Cal. Others present were Stephen S. Adams, Jr. '41, St. Louis, Mo.; Bo I. B. Adlerbert '35, New Jersey; Paul F. Beaver '24, Springfield, Mass.; Warren A. Beh '26, Darien, Conn.; Francis O. Case '16, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Leslie D. Clute '13, Elmira; John G. Detwiler '33, Williamsport, Pa.; John W. Eichleay '26, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Frederick M. Gillies '18, Chicago, Ill.; Guy Gundaker, Jr. '22, Akron, Ohio; Herbert Gussman '33, Tulsa, Okla.; Julius Hendel '21, Minneapolis, Minn.; John K. Entertainers Tour Far East

APPRECIATION of American service men stationed at military bases throughout the Far East was unanimous to the "Cornell Ambassadors" who made a six weeks' flying trip to entertain them early in the summer. This was expressed many times to the group at their thirty scheduled performances in recreation centers and hospitals and at the impromptu gatherings that usually followed in the officers' clubs of military bases in Hawaii, Guam, the Philippines, Okinawa, Japan, and Korea. And after their return, Joseph A. Short of Station WHCU, president of the Savage Club, who was master of ceremonies and in charge of the tour, received letters of appreciation from the commanding officers of several of the posts where the group had appeared. Typical are these comments:

From the 6208th USAF Hospital at Clark Air Force Base, Philippines: "The patients certainly appreciated it and those who are still here often mention you as the best entertainment they've seen in a long time." From the commanding officer, 3960th Air Base Group, Guam: "Your performance at the theater was most thoroughly enjoyed by your entire audience. Your later impromptu performance at the Officers' Club was highly successful, as you may have gathered. We sincerely appreciate your generosity in giving up your vacation period to journey to this American outpost, as well as to other points in the Far East, to give us the pleasure of listening to a group of highly talented men of song and music." From the Commander of Naval Forces Marianas: "The gracious attitude of the entire group and its willingness to appear before as many audiences as possible under adverse weather conditions and in outdoor theaters will long be remembered. Patients at the US Naval Hospital were particularly grateful for your having appeared in their wards and have requested, through their commanding officer, that I thank you for them."

The Sherwoods, triple quartet of the Glee Club, and five others of the Savage Club left Ithaca, June 22. They were flown by Military Air Transport Service from San Francisco to Hickham Air Force Base in Hawaii and on for some 22,000 miles. They returned early in August. The tour was arranged by the Department of Defense and USO Camp Shows. Short says that everywhere they stopped, they found Cornellians to greet them and they were royally entertained by the officers and men of the six bases where they spent several days each. At their last stop, in Seoul, Korea, they were given a dinner by the Cornell Club of Korea and Edwin M. Cronk '41, first secretary of the US Embassy, entertained them at his home and at the Embassy.

This fall, the Sherwoods have published a record of some of their songs, titled "The Sound of the Sherwoods in Rhythm and Shadow." The singing group is directed by John W. Wade '58.

To Meet Engineering Need

MAXWELL M. UPSON '99 is chairman of an alumni committee that will raise funds to complete the new College of Engineering Quadrangle at the south end of the Campus. With eight buildings now erected and under construction, the first objective is to get $1,575,000 for needed equipment and for landscaping the new site. To complete the plan started twenty years ago for development of the College, a wing on Thurston Hall for Metallurgical Engineering, estimated to cost $1,000,000, and a building to contain a nuclear reactor, costing about $250,000, are projected.

The new committee will solicit gifts for this year and through 1959 from the 18,000 Engineering alumni and from corporations and other friends of the University. Buildings of the new Quadrangle now occupied are Olin Hall of Chemical Engineering, given by the late Franklin W. Olin '85; Kimball Hall and Thurston Hall for materials processing and testing, given by alumni and named for former Deans; Phillips Hall of Electrical Engineering, the gift of Ellis L. Phillips '95; and Carpenter Hall, given by Walter S. Carpenter, Jr. '10 and recently opened to house the College administration and library. Upson Hall for Mechanical Engineering, the gift of Upson '99, will be ready early next year and construction has started of a Civil Engineering building given by Spencer T. Olin '21 and an Aeronautical Engineering building given anonymously.

Upson has been a University Trustee since 1925 and is board chairman of Raymond Concrete Pile Co. with offices in New York City. Serving on his committee to complete the College of Engineering development are the other donors of Engineering buildings: Phillips '95, Carpenter '10, and Olin '21. Also members are Trustee Emeritus Ezra B. Whitman '01, Rudolph E. Prussing '04, William B. Mennen '08, Joseph N. Pew, Jr. '08, J. Wright Taussig '08, George V. Dutney '10, Tell Berna '12, Horace C. Flanigan '12, Trustee Joseph P. Ripley '12, Linton Hart '14, J. Carlton Ward, Jr. '14, and Trustees Leroy R. Grumman '16, John L. Collyer '17, William Littlewood '20, Walker L. Cisler '22, Frederic C. Wood '24, and John P. Syme '26.

ANDREW D. WHITE still sheds his aura over the University. I knew him when I was a student (had several interviews with him for The Sun) and the charm of his benign presence continually reappears as I pass his former mansion (now the White Museum) or step inside to see new exhibits or attend some function. Enough other Campus dwellers also knew him so that he is not just a legendary figure in these parts as the University celebrates the 125th anniversary of his birth. This year is also Ezra Cornell's 150th. Momentum is gathering for the University's centenary, not too far distant.

Dexter Perkins, John L. Senior Professor of American Civilization, opened the series of commemorative events* with a talk in Olin Hall, October 3. Perkins has become the community's favorite public lecturer and both he and his audience obviously enjoyed themselves as he expatiated on the relationship between our two Founders and on Andrew D.'s educational philosophy. He will speak again, November 21, and

* Besides the events noted above, the University commemoration of Andrew D. White's 125th year includes a lecture, October 17, by Ordway Tead, vice-president of Harper & Brothers, on "Improving the Intellectual Quality of Higher Education;" two Faculty discussions, October 10 and November 14; and a Sage Chapel service on President White's birthday, November 7. These events were arranged by a Faculty committee headed by Professor Frederick G. Marcham, PhD '26, History. Its other members are Dean Howard B. Meek, Hotel Administration, and Professors Morris Bishop '14, Romance Literature; G. Eric Peabody '18, Extension; Alpheus W. Smith '19, Industrial & Labor Relations; Frederick W. Edmondson, Jr. '36, Landscape Architecture; Edwin B. Watson, MS '43, Thermal Engineering; Earl Brooks, Business & Public Administration; W. Tucker Dean, Law; Henry H. Dukes, Veterinary Physiology; Jean Failing, Home Economics.

at 4:15 November 24, the University Orchestra and Chorus will perform Cherubini's "Requiem in C Minor," the score of which was given to the University by Andrew D. Nearby residents would find a visit to Ithaca rewarding either day.

Setting a striking background for his remarks, Professor Perkins pointed out that there are 80,000 registrants in institutions of higher learning in Great Britain compared to 2,000,000 in America.

He called our development an enormous job well done; one without parallel in history. He said that American faculties are better off than those abroad. As regards library facilities, he elicited an appreciative murmur from the many in the audience who have struggled with European catalogues that list books exclusively by the author's name and have nothing by subject matter.

He called the association of Ezra Cornell and Andrew D. White "the most significant partnership" in American university history, not the least remarkable feature of it being the respect that Ezra at fifty-seven paid to the opinions of the relative stripling of thirty-three. Before 1865, there had been almost no large gifts to education in the United States, except for the enormous legacy of Stephen Girard, the $600,000 from James Smithson, an Englishman, used to found the Smithsonian, and the $600,000 given by its longtime president, Eliphalet Nott, to Union College. So Ezra Cornell's gift of $500,000 and his farm to his University was noteworthy. Ezra insisted on our hilltop site, saying that there would eventually be fifty buildings and every acre would be needed. Andrew D. favored a downtown location, and he was skeptical of the wisdom of converting the land-grant scrip into real estate and holding for a rise.

College enrolment was in renaissance from the Revolution until 1800, but fell into decline thereafter because of restricted curricula, poor instruction, and the diffusion of resources among a lot of small institutions through sectarianism and local pride. Higher education was "stagnant." After non-sectarianism came the admission of women. Professor Perkins pointed out that in drawing up the Charter the Founders had been careful to use the word "persons" instead of "men," so a possible legal hurdle was avoided. In those days, college education for women was generally frowned upon. Women's colleges existed, and Oberlin (which Andrew D. and Ezra visited) had been opened to Negroes and women in the 1830's. When Cornell accepted the first co-ed, Goldwin Smith was so disturbed he said "farewell to all our hopes" and Susan B. Anthony was so elated that she "compared the admission of women to Cornell to the Fourth of July and the coming of Christ." Democratization, the admission of needy students of talent through the State scholarships, was the other big advance. Perkins classified White as "one of four great college presidents between 1865 and 1900," the others being Eliot of Harvard, Gilman of Johns Hopkins, and Barnard of Columbia. His next lecture will treat curriculum ideas.

An extra dividend to me was a sort of interpolated aside in which Perkins indulged. He had objected to the limitations imposed on education by sectarianism and other things and persons and went on to state that "the university is a place for the open mind." That's standard stuff. Not so standard was his criticism of professors who speak recklessly in fields in which they don't have the facts, of their dogmatism in political and economic spheres especially. He termed this "intellectual arrogance" and called for candor, care, and real discipline. I think Andrew D. White would have liked that.

Speaking on city planning education at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Planners in Chicago, Ill., October 15, Dean Thomas W. Mackesey, Grad '39-'41, Architecture, said the current demand for professional city planners is not being met, although many universities have recently established new departments of planning in response to the increase in recognition of city planning as an important government function. Enrollment in the graduate program of City & Regional Planning at the University has doubled in the last four years, he added.

Professor Henry E. Guerlac '32, History of Science, has been elected a membre effectif (full member) of the Académie Internationale d'Histoire des Sciences (International Academy of the History of Science). As guest speaker at the first annual convocation of the colleges of medicine and nursing at University of Florida, in Gainesville, September 23, Dean John E. Deitrick, Medical College, spoke on the importance of building a philosophy toward life as well as a career in the health field. He participated in the planning of the J. Hillis Miller Health Center there in 1952 and was a member of the executive committee of the original medical center study.

Dean Gray Thoron, Law, was one of ten law school deans who signed an appeal for a "yes" vote on the question of calling a Constitution convention to consider changes in the New York State Constitution. The deans issued a statement October 10, in New York City, stating that they might disagree on the desirability of any one change or proposal but that they were agreed a convention was desirable.

Amateur Actors Gather

DRAMATIC ACTRESS Mildred Dunnock was the featured speaker at the annual conference of the New York State Community Theatre Association, which was held on the Campus October 4-6. Best known for her role as Linda Loman in both the Broadway and film versions of "Death of a Salesman," Miss Dunnock spoke on "The Professional Actor Today" before approximately 400 delegates in Statler Hall and the next day conducted a workshop in acting in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall. Association are Professors McCalmon and H. Darkes Albright, PhD '36, Speech & Drama, and Miriam A. Terry, PhD '36, instructor in Rural Sociology, who was in charge of arrangements for the conference. Mrs. Anne Ketcham Blodgett '27 of Ithaca is executive secretary of the Association.

More Associates Join

LATEST INDUSTRIAL FIRM to become a member of the University Associates is Morse Chain Co. of Ithaca. This is the 143d company to become a member of the group that started five years ago of corporations making annual contributions to the University. Member firms get services that include consulting with Faculty members, notices of special short courses for business and industry, a periodical Report to Associates, and other publications and reports from the University.

Other new Associates this fall are Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Radio Corp. of America, Sears, Roebuck & Co., United States Rubber Co., and Worthington Corp. Robert A. Saunders '36, director of corporation projects in the University Development Office, handles relations with the Associates.

Plant Pathology Celebrates

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT PATHOLOGY celebrated its fiftieth anniversary, September 27-28, with a program attended by more than 200 plant pathologists many of whom studied here. Founded in 1907 by the late Professor Herbert H. Whetzel, Grad '02-'04, the Department is said to be the first of its kind in the country.

Technical seminars in Warren Hall opened the two-day program. Conducting them were Samuel E. A. McCallan, PhD '29, plant pathologist of the Boyce Thompson Institute in Yonkers; Stuart G. Younkin, PhD '43, director of agricultural research for Campbell Soup Co., Camden, N.J.; Wilbur D. McClellan, PhD '41, Office of Experiment Stations, US Department of Agriculture; and Lindsay M. Black, PhD '36, professor of botany at University of Illinois. A University lecture on "The Fight with the Fungi" was given by James G. Horsfall, director of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station.

Highlight of the celebration was a golden anniversary banquet in Statler Hall. Professor George C. Kent, head of the Department, was master of ceremonies and Professor Emeritus Mortier F. Barrus, PhD '12, who was the first full-time Extension plant pathologist in

A Student Returns—Mrs. Lyman R. Bradley (Katherine Lewis), Grad '96-'97, confers with Professors Gordon M. Kirkwood, MA '39, and Friedrich Solmsen of the Classics Department about completing work for the Master's degree that she started here sixty-one years ago. She entered the Graduate School in 1896 after receiving the AB at Smith and teaching Latin and Greek for a year in a private school near Philadelphia, majored in Latin and English and completed the degree requirements except for a thesis. In December, 1897, she was married to the late Lyman R. Bradley '94 and lives most of the year in Talahassee, Fla., spending summers at the family home in Spencer, near Ithaca. Now she plans to complete a thesis for the MA; "probably it will deal with pax in Livy, or perhaps with Tacitus," she says. Last winter in Florida, she wrote and delivered a four-hour paper on the ten minor Hebrew prophets in the Bible for a church study group. Two of Mrs. Bradley's four children are Mary Bradley Stimson '32 and Benjamin O. Bradley '34 and her sons-in-law include Tuure A. Pasto '34 and Clinton R. Stimson '35. Photo Science Service

Women Sell Cards

PLAYING CARDS decorated with the Cornell Seal are being sold by the Women's Athletic Association, the proceeds going toward the proposed building for women's physical education and recreation. Since the demolition of the Old Armory, the program of physical education for women students has had to be curtailed because of lack of facilities.

The cards have either gold or silver backs, with the Seal in red. They have Redi-slip finish and are priced at $1.50 a pack. They may be ordered by sending payment to Cornell Women's Athletic Association, care of Margaret A. Naab '59, Box 48, Balch Hall I, Ithaca, N. Y.

Team Wins & Loses

A HARD-WON VICTORY over Harvard and an ignominious loss to Syracuse were the results of the second and third football games of the season.

The Harvard game at Cambridge, October 5, was a 20-6 triumph as a result of a strong second-half showing, and there were fondly held notions that Syracuse could be taken in the contest at Ithaca the following Saturday. The only possible similarity between the two performances was the weather. Both were warm, brilliantly colorful days. Score of the October 12 episode: Cornell 0, Syracuse 34. There were a reported 13,000 at the Harvard Stadium and an actual 24,000 seated in the Cornell Crescent to view the renewal of the Central New York rivalry after a hiatus of two years.

Cornell 20, Harvard 6

Cornell should play all its games at Harvard Stadium. It has not lost there since 1916. The six games played have been victories for young Cornell. On the other hand, antiquitous Harvard won last season in Ithaca by an appalling 32-7 margin and in 1954 sort of lucked out a 13-12 win over a better Cornell team.

It was not easy this time. Harvard, under new coach John Yovicsin, who played with the Philadelphia Eagles professional football team ten years ago when Greasy Neale was coach, has instilled the old Eagle balanced T-formation delayed trick offense. It fooled the Cornellians for most of the first half. The line was over-committing and the delaying tactics permitted the Harvard backs to watch and wait, pick their holes, and slide by the fast-charging Cornells. This strategy worked to the extent that it took Harvard only 6:49 of the first period to score. Quarterback Walt Stahura and halfback Chet Boulris were the big guns in the Harvard attack. The point was missed.

Score Tied Quickly

But Cornell found Harvard vulnerable on defense, too. And it came right back and tied the score at 6-6. A neighborhood lad, Leslie M. Tilly '61 of Lynn, Mass., made the tying TD on his very first running play from scrimmage in a Varsity game. He got his chance because the regular fullback, Robert D. Hazzard '59, had sprained his ankle in the opening kickoff in the game against Colgate.

The second half was all Cornell's. The defense caught up with the idea of the delayed buck. It just waited for the play to develop, held position, and stopped the runner at the line. Operating from its wide open alignment, the Cornell team drove sixty-five and seventy-six yards, mostly by running slot plays and just enough passing to loosen up the defense.

Irvin Roberson '58 was the most effective Red ball carrier. He carried sixteen times for seventy-one yards, a 4.5 average. He took it on all the tough carries, when a yard or two were needed for first down on the crucial yardage tries inside the 20. Robert J. McAniff '58, another neighborhood boy from Newburyport, Mass., carried six times for thirty-three, a 5.5 average. Only passes completed in eight tries were Senior Thomas M. Brogan's three tosses to John W. Webster '59 for fifty-eight yards.

A big turning point in the game was Cornell's concluding goal-line stand at the end of the first half. Brogan went back to punt and a bad pass from center made it impossible for him to kick. He was downed on his own 43. Stahura led a drive that almost went all the way. He passed for seventeen yards to Boulris. It was first down on the 22. Boulris ran twice and it was first down on the 9. A buck over left guard brought it to the 5. A short pass went to the 1. Stahura hit the line twice and was stopped cold. On the second attempt, knowing he was short and that time and downs were running out, he threw it in the air and a teammate, Marsh Levin, caught it. But he was on the 2 and the half was over.

It was not a sparkling performance, but it was a winning one and, as such, most happily received by the 2000 Cornell partisans on the scene. Robert J. Czub of Schenectady, Senior guard playing his first season on the Varsity, was chosen for the Eastern College Athletic Conference "team of the week" for his play in this game.

Cornell 0, Syracuse 34

An appalling weakness against passes was the enervating force which upended a scrappy Cornell team against Syracuse. This spasmodic neighborhood rivalry began in 1891. Eastern champions of 1956, the Orange team of 1957 outweighed the Cornellians twenty-two pounds to a man in the line and this was expected to be the critical factor in this game. But to everyone's surprise, the Red line stood up to the Orange warriors like frenzied buccaneers—for the first quarter. And until the passes started to fly, and be caught. This happened directly at the start of the second period. Cornell stopped big and powerful Syracuse cold the first two times it got the ball. It could not get beyond its 46. The next two times, fumbles were recovered by the Red. Cornell had gotten over midfield and looked fully as good as the tough Orangemen. But a Roberson fumble was recovered by Syracuse and in eight plays it had moved the forty-nine yards to a touchdown. A thirty-yard Chuck Zimmerman-to-Glen Preising pass set it up. The point was made and it was 0-7.

Syracuse Passes Pay Off

But Red chances were still good and when End V. Richard Eales '58 recovered a Syracuse fumble on the Orange 33, there were joyous hopes that the score would be neutralized. They were short-lived, however, for on third down Quarterback Thomas M. Brogan '58 threw a pass directly into the hands of Dan Fogarty, who returned it twenty-three yards. Two plays later, Fogarty threw a twenty-yard pass to Dave Baker, who took it on a dead run and outraced the Red secondary to the goal line. So it was 14-0. Two subsequent aerials of twenty-eight and thirty-four yards wrapped it up. Both times, Syracuse got in position on Red fumbles. One pass went from Zimmerman to Tom Stephens and the other from Zimmerman to Fogarty.

Syracuse had encountered difficulty in its first two games because of lack of speed and agility at the halfback position. So Dan Fogarty was changed over from second-string quarterback to a halfback and Cornell felt the full impact of this inspired switch. Fogarty was terrific. So was the whole Syracuse team, once it got going. The lift the successful passing attack gave to both the offense and defense resulted in a resurgence of strength for the other Syracuse resources. There was no stopping the onslaught. Only Coach Ben Schwartzwalder of Syracuse could stop it. And he did, by putting in his scrubs.

Orange Attack Too Powerful

Syracuse operated from an unbalanced T. Its fullback, Ed Coffin, and Fogarty were strong runners from this unusual alignment. Cornell's slot offense with its wide-open spread could not get going against the sturdy Orange line.

Strangely, the Red quarterbacks were throwing strikes with their passes, but they were not being caught. Tom Brogan and Thomas J. Skyeck '59 were sharp in their throwing, but only halfback John W. Webster '59 seemed to be able to hang onto the long ones. Coach James was distraught about the personal failures on passes. "The men were in position to stop the passes, but they hesitated just too long or made a mis-move at a critical time." He pointed with pride to the fine line play of tackle Roger L. Garrett '58 and guard Robert J. Czub '58 and to the running of Robert J. McAniff '58. He also thought the quarterbacking was the best in three games. Coach Schwartzwalder of Syracuse said after the game, "That Cornell line surprised us. It was tough. If we hadn't been able to pass, it would have been a very tight game."

The series now stands at 23 to 10 in favor of Cornell. This was the highest score Syracuse ever made over Cornell. A game is scheduled at Syracuse next year and there are no games planned after that. The lineups and statistics:

Other Sports

VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY won an easy race against LeMoyne College, October 5 on the Moakley course, 18-39, but ran into a stiff one with Penn State, October 12 at University Park, Pa. The State team walloped the Red, 20-35. The winner of the LeMoyne meet and 1955 Hep-tagonal champion, David C. Eckel '58 of Buffalo, ran the fastest any Cornellian ever ran on the Penn State course and still could only finish fourth. He was the first Cornellian to finish. Michael Midler '58, Nathaniel J. Cravener '59, and Charles H. Hill '59 were sixth, seventh, and eighth, respectively. Winner was Fred Kerr of State.

Freshman cross country team beat the LeMoyne freshmen, 26-31, October 5, and was soundly defeated by Penn State, 17-41, at University Park, October 12. Peter Brandeis '61, who won the LeMoyne race, was fourth against State.

A tie and two victories started the Varsity soccer team's season. It played two extra periods with Harvard, October 5 at Cambridge, and still there were no scores. It defeated Cortland State Teachers at Cortland, 2-1, October 12, and beat Colgate, 3-1, at Hamilton, October 16.

Cornell was handicapped in the League match with Harvard by illness of its scoring star, center forward Adelberto Stratta, Hotel School Junior from Rome, Italy. He was Ivy League scoring champion last season. It took an extra period to defeat Cortland, a good team. Cortland scored first, in the second period. Leo M. Butzel II '59 of Birmingham, Mich. tied it in the fourth and Stratta got the winning point on a penalty try in the overtime period. Colgate dominated the first half of the game at Hamilton, but could not score until the last period. The Cornell scores all came within six minutes in the third. The first was by Richard T. Anzola '58 of Bogota, Colombia, and the other two Stratta made, on passes from Richard S. Wimmer '58 of Great Neck and Hans La-waetz '59 of Frederiksted, Virgin Islands.

Freshman soccer players started with two victories. They defeated the Cortland freshmen, 3-2, at Cortland, October 4, and Ithaca College freshmen, 5-2, on upper Alumni Field, October 12.

Six Cornell fumbles, one just a yard from the goal, ruined the scoring chances of the 150-pound football team in its opening game with the US Naval Academy on Alumni Field, October 12. The Navy lightweights won, 19-0. They scored touchdowns on passes in the first and second periods and a third-period score was set up by a pass. Coach William DeGraaf '56 used twenty-two players.

Cornell's sailing team came within one foot of victory in a four-way regatta on the Mohawk River at Troy, October 6. The host team, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, finished first with 34 points. Cornell had 33; Hamilton was third with 27 and Colgate, fourth, with 20. Robert M. Chase '59, Big Red captain, took three firsts and a second in four races in Division A and was high-point man in the regatta. James B. Comly '58 was his crew. Clayton D. Root III '59, son of Clayton D. Root '32, was at the helm of Cornell's Division B dinghy with Jeremy D. Buckley '59 as crew.

Ivy League Advances

PROGRAM of the football game between Yale and Brown at New Haven, October 5, contains a symposium of the eight Ivy League athletic directors on "the most significant accomplishments" of the League. Robert J. Kane '34, Director of Physical Education & Athletics, is quoted thus by Irving T. Marsh in the New York Herald Tribune October 13:

Compare and declare. Has any other group of college presidents taken as courageous a stand in support of intercollegiate athletics as the Ivy presidents? Does any group of colleges underwrite a greater number of sports than the Ivy schools and treat the athletic department the same as the academic department of the university? Do any colleges, State supported or endowed, spend so much money to provide attractive schedules, adequate facilities, the best of equipment, and qualified coaches for all these sports? How many large colleges and universities in the land exact the same standards of athletes as non-athletes at the admissions office, bursar's office, and in the classroom; other than the Ivies, that is? Ivy athletics taste good, as athletics should.

Group Aids Nursing School

COMMITTEE for Scholarships of the Cornell University-New York Hospital School of Nursing has presented the School with $5000 to be used for nursing scholarships. The money was raised at the Committee's annual card party and tea in March and brings to $41,000 the total amount the Committee has given the School since its first gift in 1948. Numbering more than 100 women from the New York City area, the Committee was organized in 1947 to encourage young women to prepare for careers in nursing. To date, 163 students have received assistance from the Committee's Scholarship Fund, including forty-four now in the School.

Aid Science Research

NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION has announced grants totalling $159,600 to seven Faculty members for basic research and training of teachers.

Professor Kenneth I. Greisen, PhD '43, Physics & Nuclear Studies, has been awarded $48,900 to continue cosmic ray research at the Newman Laboratory of Nuclear Studies. Professor Howard B. Adelman '20, Zoology, will use his grant of $24,150 during the next three years to work on his book on Marcello Malpighi, a seventeenth-century Italian embryologist. Professor Jean P. Mitsch, Floriculture, has received $24,050 for research on substances in plants that regulate growth and development. A grant of $15,000 to Professor Franklin A. Long, Chemistry, will be used toward the purchase of high resolution nuclear magnetic equipment to be installed in Baker Laboratory for research on the structure of compounds.

Professor Harry Levin, Child Development & Family Relationships, and Donald G. Forgays, who resigned as professor of Psychology last June to join the staff of Douglass College, received $6300 to continue research on conditions of learning, using children and animals as subjects. A grant of $4200 will be used by Professor Dale R. Corson, Physics, to administer an experimental evening course for high school teachers of biology within a fifty-mile radius of Ithaca. The course will be taught by Professor Lowell D. Uhler, PhD '48, Biology, and Norton H. Nickerson, Botany. Professor Donald B. Melville, Biochemistry at the Medical College in New York, received a grant of $37,000.

Brewer '40 Heads Club

FORMER Alumni Secretary R. Selden Brewer '40 was elected president of the Cornell Club of Ithaca at its annual meeting, October 3. He succeeds Joseph A. McConnell '46, who was named a trustee for three years. Other officers elected are Louis W. Sullivan, Jr. '43, vice-president, and Robert S. Grant '34, secretary. The Club holds weekly meetings in the Big Red Barn on the Campus.

From Mrs. Andrews

EDITOR: When the ALUMNI NEWS printed, last December, its note of Eugene Andrews's ninetieth birthday, a surprisingly large number of its readers, former colleagues and especially sometime students of his, were moved to write to him; delightful, heart-warming letters, telling him how much his work and his personality had meant to them, both at the time they were in Cornell and in their later lives.

Although he looked as if he might be celebrating an eightieth rather than a ninetieth birthday, and was as gay and cheerful with visitors as ever, he really was far from strong. He wanted to answer all those letters, and to do it himself, but he just could not. Writing had become very hard for him, either on the typewriter or by hand, because sitting up to a table or to the typewriter tired his back greatly, and his eyes were no longer what they had been. He kept thinking he would do it on one of his better days.

Now those letters cannot be written; but those who wrote to him can have the satisfaction of knowing that their messages were deeply appreciated and that he was greatly honored and pleased by them.—MRS. EUGENE P. ANDREWS

Continue Peru Studies

GRANT of $16,800 has been made by Carnegie Corp. of New York to further the University's study of technological change in non-industrialized societies. Since 1951, members of the Department of Sociology & Anthropology, under direction of Professor Allan Holmberg, have been making detailed studies of the economic and social life of a small Indian community in the Peruvian Andes, where a recent land ownership scheme is changing ownership patterns. The community, known as Hacienda Vicos, is populated largely by Quechua Indians and lies 250 miles northeast of Lima, the capital of Peru. The findings of the project, which is expected to be completed in 1960, will be applied to other Indian villages in an effort to raise the health, education, and living standards of the Peruvian Indians.

Research is being carried on in conjunction with the Peruvian government, the Smithsonian Institute, and other research centers at American universities and is being financed by Carnegie Corp. In charge of the field work on the project is Mario C. Vazquez, MA '55, a native of Peru.

An Undergraduate Observes

By David L. Hye '57

Of Campus Affairs

IT WAS a mixed up two weeks after Sputnik circled the earth for the first time. There wasn't much Campus reaction to the satellite; a few students managed to get out of bed early enough to see the "moon" or its rocket, and the Cornell Daily Sun photographer is still trying to catch it. Now we see that a dance, advertised to be "out of this world," is named after the Soviet invention.

Tetrapacks, those four-sided paper milk packages imported by Cornell from Sweden and reported here a few months ago, have created more confusion. The University Council's deliberations on higher education as found at Cornell received little attention from "letter-to-the-editor writers," who devoted many inches of space to the evils of, as one organized movement calls it, "Tetrahedonism." Tetrapacks will stay, and though true and perfected higher education may be lacking in some phases of our scholastic life, students aren't willing to admit that they care.

Statues at Syracuse were painted red, and Andrew D. White and Ezra Cornell received splashes of orange before the Syracuse game, October 12. The spirited Syracuse men, possibly reacting to a physical defeat on the football field at our last game here three years ago, or to the moral defeat administered by the Cornell Daily Sun "special issue" of the Syracuse Daily Orange published at the same time, tried to paint the Campus orange, but succeeded only in getting caught and spending four hours in the early morning scrubbing away their handiwork.

A noisy pep parade preceded the Syracuse game. A "bulldog burning" rally was scheduled before the Yale game, but was drizzled out. Spirit at football games hit a new high—for one quarter—but faded into nothing as crowds filed from the stadium before the end of the game. Visitors are constantly disturbed over our lack of spirit here at Cornell. Cheerleaders frequently seem to be calling to a dead audience, and often can't even raise the noise level to "bring the team out of the huddle." As often as not, downtown Ithaca boys are the ones who break down and get away with the goalpost cross pieces.

Fall Week End Is Cancelled

In another area, some claim there has been too much spirit. As you will remember, after 1957 Spring Week End, President Malott called together a group of student leaders and requested that an effort be made to "reappraise the structure and atmosphere of the social life on the Cornell Campus." Changes in the Interfraternity Council social code were to be made before further houseparties could be scheduled. Thus we entered the fall term with no officially planned Fall Week End. It was hoped that a code would be approved in time to hold the festivities November 1, 2 & 3. Early in October, after much deliberation, the IFC presented a revised code to the University Committee on Student Activities, whose chairman is Professor Theresa R. Humphreyville, Home Economics. Feeling that it needed time for a deliberate and careful analysis of the proposed code and its implications, the Committee decreed that there would be no Fall Week End houseparties and has been holding frequent meetings to consider the code. We have piled before us twenty or more clippings from the Sun concerning the social problem. From these and from the student reaction surrounding us, here is a personal evaluation of the social situation at Cornell:

If there is any one basic problem, it is probably not quite as simple as girls in fraternity houses, alcohol at football games, spirit or lack thereof, closing hours for parties, regular meals, closed parties, or even excessive drinking. Perhaps the bigger problem is the partially-matured college student attempting to live an adult life according to a twenty-year-old's standards. It can't be done! If a college student is to act like an undergraduate (and why shouldn't he?), let him and control him accordingly. "Freedom and responsibility," yes, but freedom without responsibility, no! Unfortunately, student responsibility on any college campus does not end with an interfraternity council or with student government. Administration control is an inherent part of the educational life. This is not a popular view at Cornell these days. Too many students would much rather collect their educations from a Faculty and give nothing in return.

Nor is this the entire picture. Most students do not know the President or other members of the administration, and few understand or care to understand the problems connected with the running of a University. Communications between the Faculty and student body have not always been as good as they should be. The student government bodies have sometimes worked without a clear understanding as to what falls within or without their realms. The higher echelons have sometimes passed down decisions without explanation, feeling perhaps that this was necessary to justify needed action. Unfortunately, some principles of good human relations have been violated by all of us.

This dissertation has solved nothing; nor will the constant Ivy Room chatter about a lost Fall Week End. We will write editorials about Tetrapacks, complain about Ithaca weather, and probably forget to vote in Student Council elections. None of this is surprising. Editorial comment is valuable; Ithaca weather is worth complaining about; and when it comes to elections, we are doing no better than our elders. But if we do these things to the exclusion of building our own individual, group-influenced but peculiarly personal philosophies, we will probably join, but add nothing to, the ranks of Cornell alumni. Thus, as was said last June, our parties and our systems can never be any better than the individuals who plan them and participate in them.

Awards to encourage more adequate rural leadership from the Paul R. Guldin Memorial Endowment were made by the College of Agriculture. They are for articles by students which appeared in the Cornell Countryman. Top award of $100 went to Douglas D. Innes '59 of Cattaraugus. Second prize of $50 was awarded to Natalie L. Gundrey '58 of Flushing.

Willard Straight Hall board of managers has elected Abner C. Allen, Jr. '58 of Kirkwood, Mo., president, and Thomas W. Kemp '58 of Dayton, Ohio, vice-president. They fill vacancies of board members who left the University. Allen is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Kemp, of Sigma Chi.

Two students now in the fifth year of Architecture won first prize in a scale-model home architectural competition of the Mid-Island Plaza Merchant's Association of Hicksville. Fred H. Thomas '57 of Ithaca and William M. Polk '57 of Erlton, N.J. were the winners among thirty-eight entrants. Their model of a solar-oriented house for maximum coolness in summer and warmth in winter won a $100 government bond.

Joe D. Henninger '56 is assistant to Director of Sports Information Benjamin E. Mintz '43 this year. He is a student in the Graduate School of Business & Public Administration. He finds that eighteen men listed in the Varsity football roster are students in Arts & Sciences, fourteen are in Engineering, ten in Hotel Administration, seven in Agriculture, three in Industrial & Labor Relations, and one is in Architecture.

world at Western Electric

AS THE world's largest manufacturer of communications equipment our continued progress depends greatly on our engineers. They have a key role in the production of some 50,000 types of apparatus and component parts that Western Electric makes in a given year.

● To our engineers falls the monumental task of developing manufacturing operations and of planning the installation of telephone central office equipment across the nation. They devise the new machines, tools and methods needed to do our job. They also shoulder the major responsibilities in carrying out the defense contracts the government has asked us to take over — major projects like the Nike guided missile system and SAGE, the continental defense system.

● In the course of their technical work, engineers participate in such broad managerial functions as production, merchandising, installation, and many others. What's more, we have a record of promotions from within. It's not surprising, therefore, that fifty-five percent of the college graduates in our upper levels of management have engineering degrees.

● Naturally we do everything possible to encourage and speed the professional development of our engineers. Just recently, for example, we inaugurated a full-time off-the-job Graduate Engineering Training Program at special training centers, a program with few parallels in American industry.

● The new engineer moves into the first phase of this program, Introduction to Western Electric Engineering, four to six months after he joins us and devotes nine weeks of study to such technical subjects as communications systems, military electronic systems, product design principles. He takes part in the second phase, General Development, after the first year on the job. In this phase he devotes nine weeks to courses in human relations, semantics, engineering statistics, electronics, measurements and instrumentation, systems circuit analysis. The third phase, Advanced Development (4 weeks per year), is available to selected engineers and is geared to the individual to help develop his creative engineering abilities; goes deeply into such subjects as magnetics, computer applications, electronic switching, radar fundamentals, feedback control systems and technical paper writing.

● Besides this company-wide program, a number of our divisions offer individual engineering courses in their own specialties. We also sponsor a Tuition Refund Plan for out-of-hours study at nearby colleges. Open to all employees, this plan helps our engineers study for advanced degrees at Company expense.

● Truly there's an engineer's world here at Western Electric . . . one in which engineers in every field of specialization can expect to grow.

News of the Alumni

Addresses which appear in these pages are in New York State unless otherwise designated. Class columns headed by Class numerals and the names and addresses of the correspondents who write them are principally those of Classes which have purchased group subscriptions to the NEWS for all members. Personal items, newspaper clippings, or other notes about Cornellians of all Classes are welcomed for publication.

'06 LLB—Thomas B. Gilchrist married Mrs. Grace Johnson Davis of Chicago, Ill., and Palm Beach, Fla., August 24, in Northport Point, Mich. The bride was the widow of Charles S. Davis, a former president and chairman of the board of Borg-Warner Corp., Chicago. Gilchrist is a member of the law firm of Bleakley, Platt, Gilchrist & Walker, 120 Broadway, New York City.

'08 ME—John P. Dods spent a few days at the University the end of September, on a trip from his home in Tucson, Ariz., where he lives at 3804 Calle Fernando. He went on to visit his son in Metuchen, N.J., and October 2 he was welcomed by four of his Classmates at luncheon at the Cornell Club of New York. The others present were George N. Brown, Warren McArthur, Jr., Herbert E. Milder, and Herbert L. Trube.

'09 ME—Frederic O. Eberling retired three months after attending Reunion in 1954 and then he and Mrs. Eberling pulled up stakes in Chicago, Ill., and took off for more than two years of travel in Europe. They managed to visit every country outside the iron curtain between Portugal and Greece, Sicily and the Scandinavian peninsula, except Ireland, Finland, and Luxembourg. They even visited such small places as Lichtenstein and Andorra; also went to Egypt, the Canary Islands, and Yugoslavia. Eberling played tennis in many of the countries. He may be reached Care Dr. T. S. Beecher, 15 Oakwood Place, Delmar.

Ross H. McLean, AB (above). We wish to add some facts about Ross, received after announcement of his retirement as a member of the Emory University faculty. See October 15 ALUMNI NEWS. In the summer of 1919, he was a young first lieutenant in the US Army, and was on duty with the historical branch at the Army War College in Washington after two years service, foreign and domestic, in World War I. Before the war he had earned the AB at Cornell and had both taught and done graduate work at Cornell and University of Michigan. Now, after having taught through the summer session at Emory, he officially becomes an emeritus professor. He plans to indulge the several interests for which he has not up to now had sufficient time. There will be extensive reading, of course, for pleasure rather than for course preparation. He'll read everything he can find on his particular hero, Winston Churchill. He will spend more time outdoors as an "amateur bird watcher and student of nature." He likes photography, too, and will go in for more of that. He loves motoring "particularly in the autumn and spring, and particularly in the mountains;" so he and Mrs. McLean will do some touring, "if there's enough money." A few other facts about Ross: born in Wellsville, Ohio, and graduated from high school there. Summer teaching at Ohio State, Duke, and North Carolina Universities. Extensive summer travels in Europe in 1926 and 1929, the first year as a member of Carnegie Endowment for International Peace study party. Ardent anti-isolationist and supporter of the old League of Nations. Charter member and executive councilman, Southern Historical Association; member of American and Mississippi Valley Historical Associations, Archaeological Institute of America, Omicron Delta Kappa, Pi Gamma Mu. Long time member of Emory library fellowship, scholarship, and research committees. The McLeans live at 1088 Clifton Road, NE, Atlanta 7, Ga.

Albert G. Hallock, BArch, 200 Jacobson Street, Huntington Station, writes: "Health first class at sixty-eight. Still married to first wife, still living in honeymoon home which we designed and built in 1912. Retired from active professional work June 15, 1956. Visited Cornell with B. W. (beautiful wife) in October, 1956, for first time in sixteen years. Currently editing my entire undergrad correspondence to my Mother for the Mann Archives. P.S.: Three married children, nine grandchildren, one married granddaughter. Anything can happen now!"

Here's a couple of items about "Ithacan-Cornellians."

Pink (Bernard L.) Clynes, 1134 East Shore Drive, was recently nominated by the Democrats of the Town of Ithaca as their candidate for supervisor. Pink entered his father's grocery and meat business after his graduation in 1913, located on West State Street. He took over its operation in 1937 after his father's death and operated the business until 1956, when he closed out and sold the site to the Atlantic Refining Co. Pink is a trustee and former exalted ruler of the BPO Elks, a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and of the Ithaca Council, Knights of Columbus, and belongs to the Cayuga Hose Company #1. The election occurs November 5. Irrespective of politics, guess we will have to pull for our Classmate. So here's luck to you, Pink.

Doc (Albert B.) Genuing of Freeville recently gave a talk before the Rotary Club of Ithaca on "Indian Agriculture in this Region." Doc is by way of becoming a recognized historian, especially of early American history in the Finger Lakes area of New York. His speech explained that many of today's farming methods were given to the early settlers by the supposedly backward Indian tribes. The Indian was dependent on corn, beans, and squash which he made into a dish which we have adopted and called succotash. Beans, corn, and squash were referred to by the Indian as the Three Sisters. Corn was the Indian's mainstay because it could be easily planted, cultivated, and harvested, and needed little processing for consumption and storage. It was dried in the sun, hung in the lodge, and remained edible indefinitely. At the time of the settling of America, Doc said, the Indian was almost on a par with the farmers of Europe. Most of the work was done by the women of the village (those Indian braves weren't so dumb!) who tended the fields throughout the growing season and harvested the crop. Probably the men were out a-scalping. (Them last words are mine, not Doc's.)

And now here's a report on almost routine actions of last spring about three '13ers who may not be Indians but certainly are good scouts. Ced (Cedric A.) Major was re-elected president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., a position he has now held for the last ten years. Vic (E. Victor) Underwood, 203 Ithaca Road, Ithaca, was re-elected chairman of the board of directors of Mohawk Airlines, and also treasurer. And Unc (Robert B.) Whyte was re-elected a director of the Macwhyte Co., Kenosha, Wis. He is a retired vice-president of operations for the company. I believe Unc still winters in Bokeelia, Fla.

That's about it for now. So long!

'14 Emerson Hinchliff
400 Oak Avenue
Ithaca, N.Y.

Doc Peters has sent out his annual dues letter, as you no doubt know. If, by any chance, you put it aside unanswered for the nonce and have now lost it, the amount is $6 and it should go to H. W. Peters, 16 Sherman Avenue, Summit, N.J. He tells me that we have some 450 "unregenerate backsliders" who don't pay dues and thus don't get the ALUMNI NEWS. If you know any such, needle them, and don't spare the needle. I like what he said about the movement under way by some of our Classmates really to build up the 1914 Memorial Fund. I heard some talk of this a year or more ago and wish it would develop into more than talk so that I could give somebody credit. That 1916 Endowed Professorship makes me envious. Meanwhile, if we build our working funds up a little, I would like to see the NEWS sent even to the "unregenerate backsliders" starting June 1, 1958, in preparation for our 1959 Reunion. Incidentally, Doc, watch your proofreading; Ced Guise called my attention to your letting "1949" get by you in your letter.

News is coming in from the letter. Changes of address: Martin F. Scanlon, 2726 O Street, NW, Washington 7, D.C.; J. Sellman Woolen, 107 Catherine Street, Ithaca; and John C. Nulsen, 32 10th Avenue, S, Naples, Fla. Johnny didn't say it was just temporary so it looks as though he had deserted Muskegon, Mich. Crawford A. Duntley's address is 1809 E. Lake Bluff Boulevard, Milwaukee 11, Wis.; he is district representative of the A. B. Dick Co., office equipment manufacturers of Chicago. Mead W. Stone is president of Meadowbrook National Bank, West Hempstead. Peb says that he sees George Kuhlke weekly at the Garden City Rotary Club and that in September Dave Stahl and his wife visited them; Dave has retired and lives in Washington, Conn., in the summer and in Fort Myers Beach, Fla., winters.

I'm sure we all enjoyed the reminiscences by Frank Sullivan and Bill Upson in the middle pages of the NEWS of October 1. Frank's sister Kate, twelve years older than he and like a second mother to him, died not long ago after a 5½ months' illness. I must have been in the same Gussie Sill Ancient History class he mentioned, but was seated farther from the window. Bill Upson wrote Morris Bishop that he was well along (had written the first two pages) on a new book entitled Freedom to Meddle. A lecture by Bill last August made the AP wires and caused editorial comment in the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle; his thesis was that a lazy man can be a better citizen than "the eager beaver who causes most of the trouble in this world."

At a recent district conference of Rotary, I ran into Sam Scudder '13 of Kingston, who knows Dutch Schirick, of that city. Sam, as district governor of District 721, gave a word of welcome to the delegates, who were from #715 and #717. Ralph Smith '15 of Ithaca was with me, so we had quite a Cornell atmosphere. Dutch is a Supreme Court justice in Kingston; I remember a year ago reading of a hearing before him on a fight between a "clean union" group of Teamsters and one racket-tainted in which the name of the notorious Johnny Dio was mentioned.

Roger W. Clapp, executive vice-president of the Exchange Bank in Winter Haven, Fla., posed for a final picture in his old office surrounded by whimsical signs and mottos which he has collected over a period of years. His favorite is "Work fascinates me, I can sit down and look at it for hours." However, he must have done some "doing" as well as "looking" during his twenty-seven years with the Exchange Bank. The Bank has moved into new quarters where the decor of Roger's new office is too proper to allow the display of his signs and placards on the wall. But Roger's keen interest in people and his expansive good humor cannot help but warm the atmosphere of his new office. He says that sometimes his job takes on all of the aspects of doctor, lawyer, and clergyman.

Following college and Army (WW I), he joined his family in the furniture business. But during a visit to Ithaca he met and married Harrietta Spafford of Tampa. He visited Florida during a vacation, decided to stay, was with the two banks in Tampa before finally joining the Exchange Bank in Winter Haven. Roger has the Silver Beaver, awarded for leadership in Boy Scout work in the Gulf Ridge Council, is a member of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, the American Legion, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Tampa Yacht Club. He is "doin' fine" and though quite active has given up golf and tennis.

Charles P. (Charlie) Heidt is executive chairman of the Citizens for Christenberry Committee, with offices at 118 Park Avenue, New York City. The Committee, independent, non-partisan, is in process of formation with an impressive list of notables as key members.

Dr. Lloyd F. Craver, 167 East 79th Street, New York City 21: "Have five grandchildren, hoping for more. I am co-chief of Department of Medicine and chief of Medical Neoplastic Service, Memorial Center for Cancer and Allied Diseases, and professor of Clinical Medicine at the Medical College. Regretably due for retirement July 1, 1958, but plan to continue practice more on consultation basis."

J. Stanley Cobb, 514 West Foster Avenue, State College, Pa. Although Stan retired from his job July 1, he is still an agronomist at heart and feels especially fit and sassy. For this reason he wants to keep going and is looking for a job. Asked his age, he admitted to being over twenty-one. He sends best regards to all in Ithaca even though the old high school did burn down. There may be some special significance in that crack to Ithacans; I'm just the copy boy that carries the news to the editor.

Last April Frederick R. Georgia, 103 Caldwell Road, Forest Home, Ithaca, became the boastful and proud father of a daughter. He says: "I am starting a competition for the youngest Class baby (not grandchild) and wonder if any of the senile Class members who have had to retire to Florida want to get their entries in." Take it easy, Fred. Even though a '15er does not father a child at this time, to offer as evidence, senility is not necessarily indicated.

Robert W. White, 600 Fifth Avenue, New York City 20, formerly vice-president and treasurer of Union Carbide & Carbon Corp., has been elected to the board of Kent-Moore Organization, Inc.

'17 Men—More honors to '17ers! September 5 a "coming out" party was held in the Waldorf-Astoria ballroom for a new giant African hybrid marigold named Climax. David Burpee, president of the well-known W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., presided. He told his audience of gardeners, horticulturists, and newsmen that the new flower reaches a size of five inches across and four inches deep. The sturdy flowers are two-to-two-and-one-half-feet tall and bloom from midsummer to frost. Twenty years of research went into the development of these flowers. W. Atlee Burpee, who too is a '17er, is a member of the famous seed company also.

Had a nice letter from Walt Cowan stating his troubles were all behind him and he can't remember when he felt so well. He states his present new job keeps him from any thought of retirement. His office is at 521 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and he resides at 66 Rockledge Road, Hartsdale. We told Ho Ballou '20 in Ithaca that we missed Walt at our Big 40th and Walt's letter was the result.

Bert F. Willcox wrote that he had had a fine summer in Scandinavia and Great Britain. He stated, "Our 40th was a fine Reunion which I shall long remember with delight."

Sunday, October 6, George (Bud) Trefts '27 and Mrs. Trefts (Dorothy Sharpe) '27 held open house at their home in East Aurora, to honor Dr. Al Sharpe on his eightieth birthday. Mrs. Johnston and I attended with Mr. and Mrs. Howie Ortnor '19. Doc Sharpe certainly is eighty years "young" and appears hardly any older than when he coached football, basketball, and baseball during our undergraduate days. Doc's 1915 football team is claimed to have been the greatest in Cornell history. We agree because we saw them play, and have seen every Cornell team since 1915.

The New York-Connecticut crowd wins the handsome prize (you name it) for inspiring the first pre-Forty-year Reunion get-together. And its meeting was on the grand scale, in the wooded hills on the east bank of the Hudson River. Host and spark-plug was Harry E. Mattin, at whose Mearl Corp.'s countryside office setting the party was held, Len Bickwit has supplied the fascinating facts, all gathered by our alert on-the-spot reporter, Charlie Muller's wife. Bless her! Her own Charlie, incidentally, is still a writer, with New York offices at 107 East Thirty-seventh Street. They live in Greenwich. Others present and reported on include:

Will Place, now president of Excelsior Savings Bank, lives at 277 Park Avenue. Hollis V. Warner continues as the big Long Island duckling tycoon, of Riverhead. Julian S. Colyer is a food technologist (gosh what specialists we have!), living in Larchmont, but with his offices at 350 Lexington Avenue. Harry C. Handwerger was there with his wife Eleanor. Harry is a consulting engineer at 155 East Forty-seventh Street, New York City. Johnny W. Weight is New York branch manager of the Exide Industrial division of Electric Storage Battery. Incidentally, he says Hank Greenberg is teaching at Friends Academy, Locust Valley. Chet Robbins plays with plastics at Interchemical Corp., 47 West Forty-fourth Street. His wife was another who had lots of fun at the party. Les Fisher is still top-dog as an investment counselor with Van Strum & Towne, Inc., 85 Broad Street. Naturally, he led the singing and developed the harmony for which '18ers are famous. Dr. Nelson C. Cornell, the distinguished physician on 1045 Park Avenue, was there with Mrs. Cornell, who with Len Bickwit's wife led the bathing beauty parade. They put on quite a swimming show in the beautiful pool on the picnic host's grounds.

There's not space to mention everybody who shared in all the fun that fine September day, but others included such of the famous as Ed Monahan with his wife, P. St. George Prince and Mrs. Prince who proved to be a leader of the harmonizers, Homer B. Neville and Mrs. Neville, Ellis H. Robison (he and Mrs. Robison drove all the way down from Troy), Alex F. Stolz, Paul and Ellie Wanser (who helped Harry Mattin arrange the whole party), Sawyer Thompson (who did all right by the lobster which was broiled on an open fire), Adolph Miron and his wife Ruth, Charles A. Holcomb, Dr. Abby Weinstein and his pretty wife, too, and Dick E. Weber. So, all in all, it was a real grand turnout, and your absent correspondent only wishes the hills of the Hudson had been closer to Washington so he could have made it. Not among those present were others equally regretful, such as Paul Miller, who was on a trip to Chicago in connection with duties as a vice-president of National Dairy, and Walter Palmer, who was on a trip around the world (this was before the sputnik). Anyhow, those present voted for those who missed it, and it was a unanimous vote for more get-togethers as further preliminaries for the Famous Fortieth. Now let's hear from some other '18 groups. Meanwhile, thanks to the excellent staff reporters from up New York way.

As this is written, the Cornell-Princeton game is still in the future, but next issue we'll give you a rundown on the behavior of the group of forty from our Class who have already taken all the tickets reserved by Johnny Hollis. The success of this affair, which is the brainchild of Ed Carples, is due to the characteristic low pressure telephone campaign he conducted. Ed says he enjoys talking to so many good friends, but the trouble is he is so persuasive and has so many friends we soon ran out of tickets and he had to stop. Next time we should reserve 100 seats and I'll bet Ed would sell them all. What a guy!

Louis E. Smith, 2776 Field Avenue, Louisville 6, Ky., writes that he is with the Kentucky State Department of Health, Division of Foods and Drugs—Milk Control. Is married and has one daughter. He also says "Kentucky Colonel for the past twenty years, nothing to it!" Spoken like a true gentleman of 1919, and good judge of milk punches.

Snyder C. Rappleye, 201 Fall View Terrace, Ithaca, reports that he is now on disability leave from American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and returned to Ithaca at this new address in anticipation of pending retirement.

J. Laurence Lee, 1463 E. Meadowmere Lane, Springfield, Mo. Larry says there's not much new to report from his area, but that he hopes to get back to Ithaca one of these days. How about planning definitely to join the Reunion we have coming up a year from next June, our Fortieth. Pretty soon we will start beating the drums and getting organized for a week end on the Hill that you will never forget. How about it, Larry?

Eugene F. Zeiner, The Mermont, Bryn Mawr, Pa., reports that he is the owner of Eugene F. Zeiner & Co. (business address 828 Montgomery Avenue, Narberth, Pa.) and his son Eugene A. Zeiner '53, ME, after four years in the Navy as a jet pilot has now joined him in business.

Paul N. Boughton, 1½ Dolson Avenue, Middletown, is a realtor and farm broker specializing in the sale of country properties in Orange County, which Paul feels is an area just on the verge of a big change in values.

Arnold M. Kline, 38 Lincoln Avenue, Binghamton. Arnold says he was made a grandfather twice in 1956. Has two grandsons: one born to his daughter, Judith Kline Beyer '54; another to his son, Theodore, University of Virginia '51. Arnold is still with Ansco in Binghamton.

Old Kirk shines again! Kirk M. Reid, that is, got himself all lit up a few weeks ago as president of the Illuminating Engineering Society at the national technical conference in Atlanta, Ga., having previously served as vice-president. Kirk, one of the most scintillating personalities in the lighting profession, is senior illuminating engineer of General Electric Co. at Nela Park, and has had a fascinating and brilliant career for thirty-seven years. Almost as well known in national tennis circles, Kirk has been Cleveland city champion and is still winning senior tennis tournaments with regularity. He loves to get Hank Benisch with his sets down, whenever he gets to N'Yawk.

Charles W. Fischer is still in the flower business in Atlantic City, N.J., and is mighty proud of his 100% Cornell family, consisting of Charles W. Jr., AB '47, PhD '51; Ruth Anne, BS '50; and Frances, AB '56. Fish is a-sittin' and a-hopin' that the third generation of Cornellians will soon see the light. We'll keep our fingers crossed, too, Fish.

Willis E. Martin is really stuck on his job as technical service manager of Grand Rapids Varnish Co., having completed a quarter century with that firm. His son Stephen is a CPA and lawyer in Detroit, and another son David received the PhD in nuclear physics at Michigan this year and is teaching at Georgia Tech.

Thanks to the editors of the News who graciously garnished our '20 column in the October 1 issue with so many dashing pictures of our well-known Classmates in a four-page spread headed, "America's Business Leaders Wearing Wool." Take a look-see and you'll recognize Jack McClatchy, Rog McPherson, Buel Trowbridge and we're much too modest to identify that smart-looking boulevardier in the Derby hat.

Also our Hats-off Department sends a bouquet to our neighbor on the left, Mahlon Beakes, who in his '19 column mentioned a few members of our Class who need no introduction (or further mention either) viz: Ballou, Benisch, Sachs, and Solomon, whose combined initials spell a double portion of you know what. It's good to know that all members of the Continuous Reunion Club have been absolved of blame for the lifting of the 105 toilet seats last June, as seventy-five seats were found in the vacant Cosmopolitan Club, unscathed. The boys can let down now, with relief.

Of the many letters received by Doozanooz Don Hoagland in connection with the Class subscription plan, two are particularly noteworthy. One from Virginia says, "Yes, I've been getting the ALUMNI NEWS, but never read it as it is too stereotyped and most uninteresting." Another from Michigan states: "For some reason hitherto unknown to me the ALUMNI NEWS does come to me . . . the names in our Class column do not register with me . . . so two or three minutes suffice for me to turn the pages of each issue." Thanks, fellas, for those kind words of encouragement. We're grateful for your loyal support of our column, our Class, and Cornell. In fact, we frequently need just such bubble-busting pin pricks to deflate our ego and to tell us how good we ain't. But we're most grateful for the other 340 guys who are on our side, and who make this little stint worth while.

If our news services don't break down, and we don't get tripped up by the deadline, we'll have the news of the annual Class dinner in the next issue. S'long, now; see you in a half-month!

'21 *George A. Boyd

Each and every man who attended the Class dinner at Jack & Charlie's "21" (21 West 52d Street, New York) last January holds it among his most cherished memories. It did something for the soul. If there were any power to my prose describing the occasion, those unable to be present have a faint inkling of what they missed. To both categories comes, what is rare in life, a second chance. The big news is that January 9, 1958, will again see "21 at 21" in honor of our pal and Cornell benefactor, Spencer Olin. Circle the date in red and await further details.

Not satisfied with outfitting the Second Army in World War II, Alvin E. West has taken on the entire US Navy. Al has sold his resident buying business to accept the job of head buyer of uniforms and civilian men's wear at the US Navy Ship's Store Office, 29th Street & Third Avenue, Brooklyn 32. Navy's Ship's Stores are the counterpart of Army Post Exchanges. Al's office buys for and controls all Navy Exchanges and Ship's Stores all over the world, wherever there is a Naval base ashore, and also on the big ships afloat. In order to get the job, Al had to pass the Navy physical examination. Not bad for an old codger!

West writes enthusiastically: "This is really the most varied and interesting merchandising job one could imagine, and also one of the biggest. The oddest feature is that it is one of the very few big chains of stores in the world not interested in making a profit. Our goal is service, nothing else." Al anticipates visiting Naval installations in many localities overseas and hopes that Cornell men in or adjacent thereto will let their presence be known. He would like to see them.

E. Wendell Carrier of 2 English Village, Cranford, N.J., was recently appointed an engineering associate in Esso Research & Engineering Co.'s petroleum development division. The position of associate is a part of Esso Research's technical progression program, designed to offer a course of promotion, prestige, and recognition along technical lines of endeavor equivalent to the channels of advancement on the administrative side of the company's activities. Wendell's Esso career started in 1930 at the Esso Standard Oil refinery at Baton Rouge, La. He has been researching since 1937 and is largely responsible for the process design of his former refinery's Perbunan plant. During World War II, he served on the Government's Manpower Committee of the Rubber Director's Office. Studies at Esso Research have covered hydrocarbon synthesis, synthetic lubricants, and butadiene manufacture. The author of several papers, he has been awarded nearly a half dozen patents. Hooray for an old BChem!

Dr. Horace S. Baldwin, chief of the allergy clinic of New York Hospital, has been elected chairman of the board of trustees of the American Foundation for Allergic Diseases. The aim of the Foundation, established in 1953, is to promote research in that field.

'22 ME—Frederick W. Utz, a vice-president of Stone & Webster Service Corp., New York City, has been elected to the board of directors of Jamaica Public Service Co., Ltd., the principal electric utility serving Jamaica, B.W.I., of which he is also a vice-president. Utz is also president of Safe Harbor Water Power Corp., an electric utility in Pennsylvania. He and Mrs. Utz live at 116 East Sixty-third Street, New York City.

I'm writing this a few days after the Colgate game, September 28, when the Red Raiders completed a touchdown pass with fourteen seconds left in the game and a perfect placement kick gave the eleven from Hamilton a 14-13 upset victory over Cornell, for the fourth in a row. Thirty-five years ago, in 1922, Colgate was on the short end of a 14-0 score, when they took to the air near the end of the game. Three passes netted fifty yards, but Eddie Kaw smeared the fourth one, and the game was over.

Denis B. Maduro, 20 Exchange Place, New York, thinks that the grandfathers of the Class are getting too much notoriety. He thinks he should be congratulated for having two children, Denis, Jr., born July 14, 1954, and Timothy, who first saw the light of day September 2, 1956. Denny, m'boy, for a feat like that, the entire Class of '23 salutes you.

Albert R. Martin, 165 Green Bay Road, Wilmette, Ill., was a delegate to the 100th anniversary of the American Institute of Architects, in Washington, D.C. Also attending were Edward D. James of Indianapolis, and Gumpei Matsuda, who flew from Japan to represent the Japanese Institute of Architects. About thirty grads attended a Cornell luncheon, where the good news was heard from Dean Mackesey that in the near future the College of Architecture will definitely be out of the White Hall attic and into Sibley remodeled.

Raymond F. Jahn (above) is retiring as president of Ford Instrument Co., division of Sperry Rand Corp. Ray was with Ford thirty years, and he is also retiring as president of Sperry Farragut Co. division, which produces components for missile guidance systems. Maybe you can pick up a job managing a few wrestlers, Ray.

I had a nice letter the other day from Henry Luhrs of Shippensburg, Pa. The grit, power, and tenacity that played such an important role for Hank at No. 4 oar in the heavy Varsity crew, were maintained in the many years following graduation. Twenty-five years ago, Hank helped found the Shippensburg Public Library, and served as its president during that time. This year he reached a goal he set for himself, and purchased for $200,000 a very lovely property, and turned it over to the town, as a gift from him, to be used as a library. It's a happy culmination of one of his dreams for his community. Hank is now convalescing from a heart attack which he suffered in July. We all wish you a complete recovery, Hank, and congratulate you for your magnificent gift to your community.

Thomas J. Potts, 757 Hyslip Avenue, Westfield, N.J., is traffic manager of Ciba Co., Inc., 627 Greenwich Street, New York City. Tom received the Master's in Chemistry in 1930, and has four children, Tom, Jr., Richard, Frederic, and daughter Mary who is starting her second year at Centenary College for Women. John Rohrer, 938 Milton Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., is a metallurgist with the Department of Interior, Bureau of Mines, at Bruceton, Pa. He has one son at Lafayette and a daughter who graduated from Smith in 1955. A recent heart attack is keeping John quiet. Joseph W. Spencer, 839 Society for Savings Building, Cleveland, Ohio, has a home in the Bahamas where he hides whenever possible. Three of his four children are married, and he is proud of three grandchildren.

Ronald G. (Tom) Watt, 54 Niaiki Circle, Honolulu, is planning on keeping that date in '58, because he hasn't been back since 1924. Tom is in the sugar business, his two children are married, and there are two grandchildren. This sugar business must be easier than the high hurdles in track, because Tom spends a lot of time ocean cruising under sail and deep sea fishing. George A. West, 1785 Penfield Road, Penfield, looks in the mirror and sees a fellow with a small amount of gray hair, but he'll be around for that Thirty-five-year Reunion. His son Russell graduated from Rochester University, and daughter Susan entered Green Mountain College in Vermont this fall. Donald D. Whitson, a farmer in Afton, has led a grand life. A note from him in the Acacia Newsletter reads, "I've been here thirty years, milking cows and gathering eggs." Ray Ford says that he has spent the last thousand years with Bell Telephone Laboratories at Murray Hill, N.J.

That's all, my friends. Don't blame your reporter or the editors of ALUMNI NEWS for the brevity of this column. You have no one to blame but yourselves, for the simple reason that you just don't send in any news. Since this column started, we've given you information on 132 Classmates. So get out the old pencil and paper, and write me a few lines about what you've been doing for the past many years. If you haven't answered the form sent out by Johnny Cole, fill it out now and mail it to him at 72 Wall Street, New York City.

And don't forget, make a date for '58.

Robert W. Boggs, assistant manager of public relations department of Union Carbide Corp., was elected to the board of directors at the board's June 28-29 meeting in Murray Bay, Quebec. Bob joined Union Carbide as a technical writer after getting the ME at Cornell. He later became supervisor and then assistant manager in the technical publicity department. He served three years in the US Army as a major in the Corps of Engineers, leaving the service as lieutenant colonel. He has been active in the advertising field and is a volunteer coordinator of the Religion and American Life Campaign of the Advertising Council. He is also active in a wide range of civic, sports, church, and volunteer firemen activities.

Ithaca in the fall of the year, an experience we all remember so vividly, is with us once more. The Campus has come to life with Faculty returning from all parts of the world renewed and stimulated for the work ahead. The undergraduate student body has received its annual shot in the arm from a Freshman Class which brings with it new hope, new ideas, great ambitions, and tremendous enthusiasms. Yes, the University has come awake again and with it your reporter, embarrassingly dormant over the summer months. Some news has, happily, accumulated during those months.

Colonel Wilbur M. Gaige, Jr., BS, 1518 Siron Street, Falls Church, Va., is presently on the staff and faculty of the Industrial

College of the Armed Forces at Fort McNair, Washington, D.C. He reports one daughter, Lois Ann, at the Falls Church High School.

Last spring we reported the retirement of Read Admiral Joseph F. Jelley, C, and now are glad to announce that he is settling in Colorado Springs, Colo., PO Box 1874, where we hope he will add his presence to the increasingly active group of Cornellians there.

Thomas L. Stirling, AB, 43 Salem Street, Andover, Mass., is anxious to have Classmates stop by while visiting Phillips Academy with their young offspring.

Alfred J. Kleinberger, EE, is a consulting engineer with offices at 551 Fifth Avenue, New York City 17. He was a member of the committee which recently revised the electrical code of the City of New York. He has one daughter, Judy, a junior in high school.

Malcolm E. Hill, ME, Oxford, is the owner and operator of a retail feed, seed, and farm supply business, and boasts two sons.

Franklin F. Muller, A, BS, proudly writes of his second granddaughter, Karen Anne Smith. Frank's son is at Cal Tech. Frank himself is purchasing agent and assistant plant manager at DiGiorgio Wine Co., PO Box 428, DiGiorgio, Cal., not far from Bakersfield, Cal. He reports that distribution is presently confined to California but hopes it will spread as far as Ithaca by next Reunion time.

Thomas C. Hobbie, BS, 71 West Main Street, Sodus, attended Commencement in June with his father, John A. Hobbie '97. Mary Hobbie '57 received the BS in Home Economics.

Rex D. Tracy, A, 110 Cherry Street, Geneva, is still with American Can Co. in Geneva after twelve years. His work is production control. From the list of hobbies he reports, his spare time is well occupied even though he is single.

Clifford E. Brew, BS, 142 Pine Tree Road, Ithaca, sent his son Doug to Dartmouth where he has been an extraordinarily fine track man, an all-American, was captain of freshman track, twice captain of varsity cross-country, and captain of varsity track. He holds a number of records. Cliff's other son, Clifford E., Jr., is a Senior in Architecture at Cornell.

Donald S. "Steve" Macdonald was recently appointed executive vice-president and director of the newly formed New York City real estate firm of Douglas Gibbons-Hollyday & Ives, Inc., with offices at 745 Fifth Avenue. Steve, our able Alumni Annual Giving representative, was formerly president of Douglas Gibbons & Co., Inc., before the merger of the two companies. Steve and Mrs. Macdonald reside at 23 Highland Place, Maplewood, N.J.

The contest for county judge and surrogate November 5 here in Tompkins County will be all Cornell '26. Republican nominee is the present incumbent, Norman G. Stagg, while the Democratic choice is D. Boardman Lee. Here's hoping it comes out a tie! Norm and Mrs. Stagg live at 316 North Geneva Street, Ithaca. Boardy and Mrs. Lee (Elizabeth Gregg) '29 have two Cornell sons, Douglass, a Senior, and Ed- ward, a Freshman. The Lees reside at 711 East Seneca Street, Ithaca.

Here's a good plug for the NEWS from Richard F. Pietsch. Dick writes: "Recently when I was in Richmond, Va., I perched on a stool at Howard Johnson's for a bite of lunch while reading the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS. A voice from the next stool remarked, 'You don't see many of them around here,' and so I met one of Cornell '48 and had a nice visit. So be sure to read your NEWS in public places; helps you meet folks." Dick's address is Route 1, Crozet, Va.

It is a pleasure to report that M. Birney Wright is back on his feet and again at work after a six months' convalescence following a serious operation. Birney informs us he has four grandsons. His address is PO Box #1026, Morgantown, W.Va. Mrs. Wright was the former Hortense Gerbereux '26.

Leonard B. Richards sends in the following note: "Our daughter Mary Elizabeth, who went to Colorado University for a couple of years, was married to Carl S. Wearner at Boulder, Colo., September 7. Son Len 3d is a student at Holderness School in Plymouth, N.H. (under a Dartmouth headmaster and goes to summer camp with George Munger of Penn.) Hope he can withstand those subversive influences. I am still at same old stand with UGI, in Harrisburg. Currently am sweating out a $3,500,000 construction job at Harrisburg Hospital over which institution I am currently presiding. Between that and the gas company we are assured of a crisis at least once a day." Len and his family live at 135 South Twenty-fourth Street, Camp Hill, Pa.

Truman A. Parish, Box 823, Alfred, is head of the department of economics at the State University of New York Agricultural & Technical Institute at Alfred. Trum advises that he has two daughters (one married) and is looking forward to our "35th" in '61.

Members of the Class were very much in evidence at the seventh annual meeting of the University Council in Ithaca, October 11 and 12. Returning for this occasion were retiring Council Chairman Jack Syme, new Cornell Fund Chairman Norm Steinmetz, Jim Brooks, Del Vincent, Gene Kaufmann, Max Savitt, Warren Beh, John Eichleay, and Trum Lacey.

Sincere thanks go to those who have sent in their news and dues. To those yet to be heard from, may this serve as a reminder!

Roger Warren Jones (above) is located in Washington, D.C., with the US Bureau of the Budget, Executive Office of the President, and holds the interesting title of assistant director for legislative reference. "Rog" also is a director in the War Agencies Employees Protective Association and is vice-president of the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene. Entering the US Army in March, 1942, as captain in the Infantry, he progressed in rank to that of colonel in May, 1945, and was released from active duty in December of that year. In June, 1953, he was placed on the honorary retired list. "Rog" has two sons, Roger H., who graduated from Cornell last June, and Edward Chapman, and a daughter, Cynthia Anne, now Mrs. John Hodges. He lives with his family at 3912 Leland Street, Chevy Chase 15, Md., where he indulges in his widely disparate hobbies of military history and gardening.

Frank B. Campbell is chief of the Hydraulics Analysis Branch, Corps of Engineers of the US Waterways Experiment Station, Vicksburg, Miss. This summer he attended the Seventh Congress of the International Association for Hydraulic Research in Lisbon, Portugal, following which he toured a number of outstanding hydraulic laboratories on the Continent. He also is chairman of the committee on research, hydraulics division, of the ASCE. During World War II, Frank was executive officer of the 13th Naval Construction Battalion at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, and served as commanding officer of the 62d Naval Construction Battalion both at Pearl Harbor and Iwo Jima. He holds the Bronze Star and Naval Unit Commendation. Frank has a son and two daughters, and lives at 1412 South Street in Vicksburg.

Morris A. Fishkin, as project manager for Lipsett Steel Products, Inc., Detroit, Mich., recently completed the Lehigh Tunnel on the Northeast Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Morris, who has two sons and a daughter, resides at 5713 Rusk Avenue, Baltimore, Md.

Some Classmates must have forgotten that the days of the "give-away" are over. We have had a fair response to all past appeals, Cornell Fund, Class dues, etc. But really, you guys can do much, much better if you just put your minds to it. Yours is the easy part of this job. Well, that is off our mind. Do something about it!

Edward M. Palmquist, BS '31, MS '33, PhD '36, and his wife (Virginia Ryan '31) are now at the College of Agriculture, University of Philippines, at Los Banos. He is professor of botany there for eighteen months under the Cornell contract with the US Foreign Operations Administration. He was head of the botany department and earlier this year we reported that he had become associate dean of the college of arts & sciences at University of Missouri. He was instructor in botany at Cornell from 1934-39.

A. Haslup Forman, ME, wrote us last June that he, his wife, Vivian, and son Armstrong H. II, expected to make a two months' tour of the western US and Canada. We are hoping for news. "Has" lives at 7005 Copeleigh Road, Baltimore 12, Md.

George Kanstroom, AB, is a newcomer to our lists and we rush to welcome him. He is chairman of the physical science department of Fort Hamilton High School, Brooklyn. George lives at 104 North Waldinger Street, Valley Stream, L.I.

Horace G. Berean, Jr., Arts, recently was transferred to the New York office of Diebold, Inc., at 2 West Forty-fifth Street. "Hod" is assistant district manager, and lives at 45 West Tenth Street, New York City 12.

We now seem to be getting back to the children department. Perhaps one of the best of the Class is Frank L. O'Brien, Jr., ME, who last winter took his six children on a Caribbean cruise for their education but found he was not too old to learn. Thomas D. Kelley, AB, attorney with Kelley & O'Sullivan, 505 Arctic Building, Seattle, Wash., still has but five children, three girls and two boys. He feels we should have a Reunion almost every year. Dr. Chris P. Katsampes, BS, is assistant professor of pediatrics at University of Rochester school of medicine. He has three children, Peter, Anne, and Andrew. Carleton H. Endemann, AB '31, LLB '33, is in the law department of Esso Standard Oil Co., at 15 West Fifty-first Street, New York City. He lives at 171 Whitehall Boulevard, Garden City, L.I., with his wife and three children, two boys and a girl.

At this time of the year, and under the conditions now existing, we feel it fitting to close this column with a note on Ernst Clarenbach, Jr., BS, who lives at Beaver Lakes, Hartland, Wis. "Junie" is president of Hotel Medford Co., Milwaukee, and is president of the Milwaukee Hotel Association. As the World Series is now on its way back to New York, should we congratulate you, Junie, or sympathize with you on what was undoubtedly an extremely heavy week end.

After twenty-five years you may have lost track of some of your Classmates. Here is what has happened to some of them:

He is married, has two daughters, and lives at 601 Walnut Street, Rome. Carl Schabtach is manager of the large turbine generator engineering department of General Electric Co. They live at 1196 Lowell Road, Schenectady. Bob (A.) Wilson is with Lincoln Electric Co. and lives at 2531 North Park Boulevard, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Dick Browne is with Gibbs & Cox, naval designers and consultants, in New York City. Bolte, USA (ret.), on behalf of The Association of the United States Army the top award of $750 at the nation's first Armywide Science Conference held at West Point in the summer. Colonel Benenson has been a research investigator at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research in Washington, D.C., since November, 1955. His paper, entitled "Enzymatic Debridement of Full Thickness Skin Burns," was considered the best of the 100 scientific papers submitted at the Conference. The judges were civilians not associated with the Army in any way. His paper reported on Army research of great significance in this era of atomic weapons, when severe skin burns may occur to large numbers of persons at one time. Present treatment of severe skin burns requires tedious painstaking surgical removal of all skin that has been devitalized through its full thickness followed by skin grafting. A prospective method was outlined for applying a dressing to the burned areas which will selectively digest the dead tissues and spare the healthy. Last June at our Reunion we collected a substantial file of questionnaires to be used as background for these Class columns. We are going to start working through them alphabetically, but since we, as a "W", know what it means always to be last, we're reporting them alphabetically in reverse for a change.

Irving L. Yosovitz is in the systems engineering department of Stromberg Carlson in Rochester. He lives with his wife, Rose, and daughters, Marcia and Gwen, at 60 Victoria Drive in Rochester.

Perhaps the leading contestant for the title of Class Nomad is Al Wolff. When last heard from he was living at 1055 Nicholson Avenue in Lakewood, Ohio, with his wife and three children. Al reports that in the last four years Union Carbide Corp. has moved him from St. Louis to Dallas to Pittsburgh to Cleveland, where he is presently manager of carbon specialty sales for National Carbon Co. Despite all the problems attendant on so many moves, Al was one of those who rowed on the Inlet during Reunion.

Gerald S. White is sales engineer for Babcock & Wilcox Co. in Boston, Mass., where he lives at 231 Washington Street, Belmont, with his wife, Barbara, and his two children, Tom and Suzanne. Jerry says he enjoyed the Reunion last June and is looking forward to our Twenty-fifth.

Sheldon Weisberg is a sales executive for Morrison Steel Products in Buffalo. He lives at 377 Lincoln Parkway there with his wife, Melba, daughter, Wendy, and son, Fred. Shel writes: "I began to earn a living, then got married, had two wonderful children, bought a house, acquired a mortgage, and began to earn a living for the mortgage, got thin, then got 'pleasingly plump.' I lost my hair, my chest slipped, but I love my family, happy in my work, lousy in my golf, and was glad to be able to be at our 20th Reunion."

Quakertown, Pa., is the home of Gerald H. Weierbach where he lives with his wife, Evona, and his children, Jane and John. They are happy in their new house at 213 South Ninth Street in Quakertown. Gerry is pretty busy as president of Best Made Silk Hosiery Co. in Quakertown.

'37 Women—Grace Sedgwick Prinsloo, our Classmate from South Africa, reports her activities since returning to her home in Transvaal in 1938:

After leaving Cornell, I came home to my job of home economics extension officer, Department of Agriculture, Pretoria, our administrative capital. It wasn't long before our Union (same as your Federal) Department of Public Health decided on starting a nutrition section and I was transferred to take charge of all nutrition matters in that department. Was just getting underway when the war came in 1939 and again I was transferred to the Department of Defense to take charge of all matters relating to the nutrition of our army. My department came under jurisdiction of the surgeon-general . . . I drew up all ration scales, more than fifty of them, as we had huge groups of foreign nationalities here, including thousands of prisoners-of-war, but my special baby was organizing, equipping, and training staff for the dietary departments of military hospitals in the Union, North Africa, and Italy. . . .

We are not diet-conscious in South Africa and the good hospitals leave much to be desired . . . There is no training for dietitians in this country yet, and those who have qualified fully have done so abroad, but in the end I had a staff of about 500 semi-qualified dietary assistants and fifty qualified dietitians manning the military hospitals . . . our food standards were pretty good . . . the patients certainly appreciated us. Our highest praise came from our late beloved leader Field-Marshal Smuts, who patted one of my sergeant dietary assistants on the back one day after a grueling struggle getting out "specials" for a big convoy of wounded and told her that she and her colleagues were the people who really won the war! Were we proud! We all had military rank, major, captain, and lieutenant for dietitians, non-commissioned rank for dietary assistants.

I met my husband during the war, Colonel Hendrik Prinsloo, and we were married in April, 1946. . . . We bought this lovely farm and have another close by called Bloemkrans, which means a wreath of flowers, about 2200 acres in all. There isn't much game except buck but the bird life is wonderful, guinea fowl in the woods, thousands of water fowl (wild duck & geese, flamingoes, pelicans, spoonbills, egrets, and even seagulls & sea-eagles so far inland!). We are high up in the world, about 6000 ft. above sea level, and our climate is cool and lovely in summer and sharply cold in winter, but nothing like the freezing cold of Ithaca. I ride a good deal. My husband is a keen horseman and great sportsman. I help him round up the sheep and cattle sometimes and it keeps the figure in shape, although my avoirdupois has gone up quite a bit since Cornell days.

. . . I have an extensive garden, both flower & vegetable . . . grow lovely English raspberries, a rarity in this country. Make raspberry jam and sell it . . . do all my own sewing, bread and cake baking, canning, butter making, etc. . . . Am president of local women's branch of The Transvaal Agricultural Union which keeps me in touch with neighboring farmers' wives and also run the restaurant at our annual big show in Ermelo, our nearest town, thirty-two miles away. I do a bit of judging of home products in our county shows . . . Life is very full on the farm . . . there are always visitors . . . about once a year I fly down to Cape Town where my side of the family lives. . . . I often think of Cornell and plan to visit the USA someday again. I subscribe to Time which I read avidly to keep in touch with the American scene. . . . My very best wishes to all at our Twenty-year Reunion."

Note: Any Classmate who returns her Reunion questionnaire with a five-page letter and snapshots of her homestead, herself, and her three Scottie dogs, deserves to get letters in return. Address mail to Mrs. Hendrick Prinsloo, Lake Banagher, Lothair, East Transvaal, South Africa.—Carol Cline

Good words from Bill Hamrick: "Came home from the Mission Field in the Belgian Congo in August, 1953 (because of chronic malaria). Entered Northwestern U. in September and took hospital administration, one year formal study and one year residency at Methodist Hospital in Houston. Received the Master's in '55 and became first assistant administrator of St. Luke's Episcopal & Texas Children's Hospitals in The Texas Medical Center. Was here two years and have just now been appointed administrator of the Southwest Texas Methodist Hospital in San Antonio, which will be the first unit of a medical center in San Antonio. Of course, my wife and three children (Bill, 16, David, 14, and Pat, 13) have followed."

Karl Nelson's current address is Sachem Road, Weston, R 2, Westport, Conn. Bob Breckenridge is director of research for National Carbon Co. (division of Union Carbide Corp.). A recent New York Times article concerning Bob's work started out as follows: "The National Carbon Co. said today its scientists had 'melted and welded' graphite for the first time in history and had 'grown' large crystals of a light-sensitive substance—cadmium sulfide . . . Dr. Robert G. Breckenridge, director of National Carbon's multimillion dollar laboratories in suburban Parma (O.), announced the new procedure . . ."

Phil Nolan is living at 1111 South Lahoma, Norman, Okla. Bob Ferlauto's address is RD 3, Perkaskie, Pa. From 18 Glen Hill Road, Louisville 7, Ky., Burt Eaton sends the following: "Am married and have three children, Susan, 16, Hank, 11, and Cyndie, 9. He's married and has five children, lives in Palo Alto, Cal., does business at 340 Pine Street, San Francisco, and plans "to be in Ithaca for the Twenty-year Reunion."

Dick Anderson writes: "I have been transferred from southern Louisiana to our Philadelphia general office and have been here about four weeks." Dick's address is Sun Oil Co., 1608 Walnut Street, Philadelphia 3,

Pa. John Cooper lives at 41 Long View Road, West Hartford 7, Conn. Paul Dittman picks up his mail at 221 Strathmore Place, Corning. Indirect word comes about Henry Gleason: "Dr. Gleason is now in India, organizing the work in linguistics at Deccan College and translating his recent textbook on linguistics into the Hindi language. He expects to return in September, 1958."

Chuck Lounsbury merely says: "I'm alive!" His new address is 250 East Seaman Avenue, Freeport, L.I. Vern Kreuter says he's "still working for a living; 3 children (2b, 1 g)." He asks for Wor Dodd's address, which is c/o Philip Wyman, RR 1, Box 216B, Cincinnati 27, Ohio. Al Early is now working in the office of the County Counsel of Los Angeles County (11 Hall of Records, L.A. 12). His new home address is 4198½ South Fourth Avenue, Los Angeles 8, Says Al: "Nothing new or startling. Trying condemnation cases like mad."

One last note: applause is overdue to Johnny Tausig, who's been handling the taxing job of taxing you for Class dues. It's a thankless job which he's been doing with no complaints. Do him and the Class the honor of sending in your $5, if you haven't already. 'Til next time. . . .

I have a lot of corrected addresses for you. I hope if any of them are in your area you will call on them and welcome them. I have been delighted when Cornellians have called me saying that they saw my address in the ALUMNI NEWS and thought they would call and welcome me to the area. I would personally like to thank each and every one of them here and now. I only hope that we all welcome the newcomer to our area.

'47 Men—Have just returned from a fine trip to Boston, Mass., where I saw that revitalized Cornell team get its first win of the season. Aside from the good sporting event, I did manage to see Frank Carney, our effervescent insurance man in the Bean City. It's too bad that Frank cannot get more interested in Cornell affairs; he is secretary of the Cornell Club of New England (1957-58 marks his sixth year in the job), he is area chairman of Massachusetts for the Class of '47, and he gives a great deal of assistance to our athletic department in many ways. Frank and I had a delicious lunch of oysters and clams, clams and oysters, oysters and clams. My stomach never growled once. At the MIT faculty club, where we had a luncheon served by manager Bill Morrison '36, Frank introduced me to his wife, Caroline. After four minutes of thought, I still cannot find a good adjective for describing Caroline. She is a charmer. Thank you, Caroline and Frank, for making my day so nice.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America issued a press release on Clifford H. Whitcomb of 15 Sherwood Drive, New Providence, N.J. Although Whitcomb is a member of the Class of '43, he did receive his degree in 1947 and the MBA in 1948. We all wish him well in his new job as assistant comptroller of Prudential. He is married and has three children.

From Dick Brown '49 I have learned that Don Barins has climbed another rung on the Fanny Farmer ladder of success. By this time, I expect that he has moved himself and family to the New York City area where he will take over new duties in the Fanny Farmer organization. Unfortunately, I do not know the exact title. Just where the Barins family will set up housekeeping is also a question, but I hear they are trying for the Westchester area. If you read this column, Don, you can imagine my interest in finding out correct information. Please comply.

A bit of late news that dribbled in from NYU: Steve Dempsey, 533 Chestnut Street, West Hempstead, and Jim Mawha, Jr., 135 Booraem Avenue, Jersey City, N.J., received the MBA in June, 1957. Men, I am sorry that this news is running so late.

There is welcome news from Toms River, N.J. Max Bluntschli, member of our Class nominating committee, writes that his wife presented the family with a little girl, Carolyn Ann, September 9. I remember at Reunion time Max telling me proudly of his son, Peter, who is a four-year-old. So the Bluntschlis are a happy foursome now and will be able to sit down at the bridge table before long.

Remember the rather involved blurb I wrote on Ernst E. Goldman? He was the guy working in Haiti for Tippets-Abbett-McCarthy-Stratton Engineers, our boy being a design engineer. Well, he has transferred to the main office at 62 West Forty-seventh Street, New York City 36. There is a request that mail be sent to the above address. Maybe we could get Ernst to write a guest column on life in Haiti.

Don't give up on the world yet; surprise situations can always crop up. Take, for instance, the fact that I have at last received a communication from Ken David. A new mailing address is the reason, I guess. It is 501 Carolwood Lane, NE, Atlanta, Ga. Ken and his wife have two children, going by the names of Susan 2½ and Tommy 7 mos.

Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. has announced the promotion of Bob Olney to national field sales manager of National Advertising Co., a subsidiary of 3M. Another graduate who is keeping his ties with the Cornell area is Walter A. Flood. He is a research engineer at the Cornell Aeronautical Lab in Buffalo. After many story-book type adventures, I wound up as first mate of a crew of twenty-one. After two more voyages between the Hawaiian and the Society Islands, including a fabulous visit to Bora-Bora, the island of islands, it came time to go back to work and reality." After all this, he and his brother, Howard '51, have just started a small construction outfit, Hownor Associates, Inc., working out of Long Island City.

After lo these many months of neglecting the '55 ALUMNI NEWS column, you might have suspected that I was working hard in the Army. Let me correct that impression immediately. I, like millions of other patriotic Americans, did nothing.

Now that my military vacation is ended, I promise not to skip another issue, at least until after Reunion next June. Which brings us to another point. I'd like to hear any and all ideas about Reunion, gags, gimmicks, and garb. I'll try to publish all of these ideas and pass them along to the Reunion chairmen. After our Class's terrific showing in the Alumni Fund drive last year, we should be capable of staging a rousing Reunion.

On to names and addresses. Bill Lerner and wife Billie Campbell '55 are both students in New York City. Bill, after a rugged year with the Quartermaster Research & Development Branch atop Mount Washington, New Hampshire, has started law school at NYU. Billie is in her third year at Cornell Medical College. They can be reached at 427 East 69th Street, New York City.

Roger Grigson (Spring Grove Lane, West Chester, Pa.) writes: "Looked in the last few ALUMNI NEWS and haven't seen a damn thing on our Class." Editorial comment: Observant cuss, aren't you? Rog also announces an offspring, William Geoffrey, born September 23, and reveals that he is selling fire alarms. Special discounts to Cornellians who buy in bulk.

Otto Schneider, one of my few faithful correspondents who writes whether columns appear or not, sends news from the Midwest. He reports that Jeff Machamer and wife, former Sue Hurd, are now in Montreal while Jeff does graduate work in geology at McGill U. Also, Otto tells that Don Meyer is in a six-month training program with the thundering herd, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, in Chicago. Finally, Otto's address: Army Liaison Detachment, 755th ACW Sgdn., Williams Bay, Wis.

Lt. Richard E. Godfrey recently completed his course in the Army Artillery & Guided Missile School, Fort Sill, Okla. Dick graduated fifth in a class of ninety-six. So, why did the Russians get their earth satellite up first? Aside to Dick: If you haven't read Rally Round the Flag, Boys yet, pick it up soon. It's all about guided missiles, R. A. captains, suburban life and, of course, sex.

I take it all back. Not everybody in the military is doing nothing. R. Tad Slocum is busy flying B-47's with the 342d Bomber Sqdn., Biggs AFB, El Paso, Tex. Not too far away, Dave Levin has been flying F-86D jet interceptors at Perrin AFB, Tex. By the time this column comes out, Dave expects to be with an interceptor squadron at the Manston RAF station in England.

Pat Conlon and wife Connie Salm '55 are living in Tokyo and entertaining occasional Cornellians. Pat reports that Doug Brodie visited in May as did Bill Rieflin '56, both Korea-bound. Pat's mailing address: US 51340830, Hqs 3rd Operations Gp, APO 613, San Francisco, Cal.

More news next issue, definitely. Remember Reunion. To paraphrase an old Notre Dame cheer: '55 in '58, this is the year to dissipate.

'55 Women: Mrs. Harry C. Olsen

APO 284, New York, N.Y.

Have some announcements that best get in print before they're anniversaries. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shapiro '54 (Maxine Ross) are currently looking forward to the first birthday of their son, Alan Michael who was born December 18, 1956. The Shapiro family lives at 135-10 Grand Central Pkwy., Kew Gardens. Carol Penn married Murray F. Lewis, LLB '55, February 3. They are permanent residents of Ithaca at 609 Cayuga Heights Road, and husband surprisingly enough is practicing law. The George Dalsheimer's (Sandra Klivans) are finishing up their Air Force life at 1042 East Hickory, Altus, Okla. Planning to go back to Baltimore shortly with their new addition, Janet Ellen, who was born last March.

Have a long letter from the Clark Phillips '55 (Sue Streeter) which I'll answer some day, honest, but anyway after both collecting MS's from Cornell in September, Sue and Cy are in Oxford, where he is assistant agricultural county agent in Chenango County and she has a part-time job as a home demonstration agent also with the county. Sue goes on to say that the best of their recent acquisitions is Cynthia Sue, born April 23, and that this young Cindy is truly a joy. Sue writes too that the Fred Jensens (Marilyn Brady) are in Oakland, Cal., and really sold on the West. Fred is with the Navy and Marilyn is a teaching dietician in a city hospital.

The Richard C. Grabows '44 (Nancy Eisenberg) of 65-60 Wetherole Street, Forest Hills, have likewise increased their family. Jennifer was born May 15, and Nancy no longer lists herself as a legal secretary, but now it's housewife. Dick is a lawyer in New York City.

Marge Toxen writes that they had a son, Robert Michael, June 18. Her husband, Arnold, is completing the PhD in physics at Cornell and they are living in Ithaca.

Two weddings on June 22. Barbara Ramsey married Robert Adsit, a Union College grad. Barb left Binghamton Gas Works sometime ago and taught school in Pittsfield, Mass., where she hopes to continue teaching this year. The Adsits reside at 84 Taconic Avenue, Lenox, Mass. Barb also writes and being that it's a lazy day I'll quote, "I wonder if other Classmates have enjoyed seeing pictures of Ann Blodgett Brown, who is an editorial assistant of the American Home magazine, in recent issues of that magazine?" Que bueno? So, to our other June 22 wedding, Elizabeth Tyler married Donald R. Davidson. Bette taught at Watkins Glen for the last two years and will be teaching second grade at Cayuga Heights this year while Donald is busy studying at the Veterinary College. The Davidsons live at 206 Stewart Avenue.

The Richard Bauers '55 (Bunny Miller) are at 396 North Martin Avenue, Mounty Holly, N.J. Bunny is social editor and feature writer for the Mounty Holly Herald, a weekly newspaper, and Red is stationed at Fort Dix where he is in a troop information office, giving classes to basic trainees.

Bob Gerhardt writes that he's now managing the Camp Lejeune officers' club dining room, of all gung-ho things; his address is C.O.M. Paradise Point, Camp Lejeune, N.C. If anyone was wondering, he's a 2/Lt., USMCR.

From the State University of New York medical school in Syracuse comes word that James W. M. Owens, now in his second year, is president of his class for the second consecutive year. Jim, who gives his address as 518 Bradford Parkway, Syracuse 3, reports that other Cornellians in his class include Julian Aroesty, Bill Kremer, Roger Kushner, Howard Levine, George Pomerantz, Stuart Schwartz, Ara Sheperdigian, Sam Thier, and Allen Unger.

Dave Andrew notes that he's serving in the Combat Information Center (we trust not all twenty-four hours each day) aboard the carrier Lexington, operating with Task Force 77 during a six-month cruise in the western Pacific. Address: Ens. R. D. M. Andrew, USS Lexington (CVA-16), c/o Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, Cal.

Production of 8 lbs., 15¼ oz. of male offspring, moniker unspecified, August 15, is mathematically reported by John D. Allen, now stationed at Fort Lee, Va. We suspect that his wife Toni had a hand in the proceedings; anyhow, they live, it seems, on West Main Street, Mendham, N.J.

Dick Hill was married September 7 in Roxbury, Conn., to Wells graduate Anne Chickering; Dick's mother, incidentally, is Dorothy Lampe Hill '26. Dick, 2/Lt. USAR, has gone on active duty and now attends the Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky.

We're snowed, Clive. In somewhat greater detail, Clive M. Usiskin allows as how he's an aeronautical research scientist with the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics in Cleveland, with home address as follows: 18821 Sloane Avenue, Lakewood 7, Ohio.

We'd fully planned to build up to a crescendo at the end of this column for a rare mention of the current activity of your self-effacing correspondent, but all's lost. (If anyone is interested, the latter is now a reporter for the New York Herald Tribune.)

Bob Seidenberg, back at Harvard law school for a second year (along with Bob Ridgley, Ed Berkowitz, Wayne Wisbaum, and countless others whose names found their way into this space all too frequently last year) and busily immersed in the mysteries of trusts, corporations, and other such matters dear to the hearts of all of us, reports a new address: 308 Holmes Hall, Cambridge 38, Mass.

Word has it that Alexander F. Ruggie, who married August 3 Shirlee Forman '58, is busily engaged in seeing that USS Gen. Wm. Mitchell, one of the Navy's most luxurious ocean liners, makes regular runs to Yokohama and Inchon. He and wife live at 2326 West Plymouth Street, Seattle 99, Wash.

Joan Kelly, a Vassar graduate, and Pfc. Peter Strack, Jr. were married August 24 in the Pattonville Chapel, Ludwigsburg, Germany. Honeymoon, romantically enough, was in the Bavarian Alps; tough break, kids.

More than three months ago the first copy for this column was prepared while returning to my summer job in New Jersey after a week end at home. Somewhere along the way, Poughkeepsie, New York, Newark, East Orange, and finally back to Ithaca, that copy was misplaced. I maintained at the time that it would have to turn up eventually, and sure enough, it did. So here, in shorter form, is the old news that should have been printed months ago.

Bob Black was married June 15, with Carrl F. Berner, Roy A. Glah, William B. Brown, and Peter B. Weeks '59 acting as ushers. Bob attended one month of school at Virginia, and has now reported to that distinguished ship of the line, USS Betelgeuse, cargo ship out of Norfolk. His home address is 831 Park Avenue, Baltimore, Md. Bob Browning, with BME in hand, and a two-year Air Force stint ahead, married Priscilla Edwards '56, August 3, in Great River. Tom Itin, our chairman of Alumni Annual Giving, is an employee relations staff assistant with Socony Mobil Oil Co., Inc. His address is 72 Walraven Drive, Teaneck, N.J. Dave Hirsch is enrolled in the Harvard school of business, but presumably still cheered loyally for Cornell October 5. Speaking of Harvard, we understand that one or two parties brought back together many recent graduates. Unfortunately, we got only to the Somerset Hotel gathering where we saw Jean Purdy '56 and Audrey Jones, found out that we had just missed Paul Noble, and heard that Tom Keating was somewhere within a five-mile radius.

Jerry Dorf will report to the Anti-Aircraft & Guided Missile School at Fort Bliss, Tex. in March, 1958, and until then is working as an industrial and labor relations assistant for the New York Times. His address is 3620 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn 10. Dave Perlman, our ex-YASNY engineer, promises to return to Campus to "help louse up the ratio" for the undergrads (modest of him, isn't it?). He is working as an electronics engineer with Eastman Kodak Co., and lives at 1224 Lake Avenue, Rochester 13. Ross Bell, February graduate of the Hotel School, and second lieutenant in the US Army, ranked number two in a class of seventy-seven at Fort Sill, Okla. He is currently located at Mortar Btry., 1st Battle Group, 8th Inf. Regt., 4th Inf. Div., Ft. Lewis, Wash. Among others going on for advanced degrees: Matthew Syrigos at University of New Hampshire, Rog Fisher and Richard I. Rowen at Princeton, and Stuart B. Goldman at Yale.

Michael Goldstein was married July 3 to Carole S. Grossman, a '57 Wellesley graduate. Their address is 8322 Delcrest Drive, University City, Mo. He is attending Washington University school of medicine. Anthony J. Leone, married June 15 to Norma Leonardi, has entered the Albany Medical College. David L. Hanselman, best man at the Leone-Leonardi wedding, attended the National Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa. He trained assistants who in turn trained scouts in the value of and need for conservation practices. Mordecai Blaustein, honors graduate, has also entered Washington University. Edward J. Rogers, new vice-president of production for the Wayne Sportswear Co. of Suffern, married June 16 Anne Hollander of Spring Valley. Well, enough for this issue; hope to see many of you in Philadelphia the 28th, if not in Ithaca before then.

'57 Women: Diane Heasley

It seems that some people in the world read the News and follow through with even a wedding announcement. Gerry Kravitz and Neil P. Loeb were married September 8 in Brooklyn. Thank you so much for scrapbook material. Hope that others will follow your example.

Judy Reusswig wrote a nice note giving some of the details of her job at Procter & Gamble in their research department. She has finished her training program and now will start traveling throughout the United States. She also sent the details along of a family wedding. Brother Ted, ME '56, and Joan Jeremiah were married in Huntington, L.I., September 7. Judy was a bridesmaid as were Beth Barstow '55 and Dorothy Jeremiah Jackson '53, rather a strong Cornell representation.

Another letter arrived from the East. Rita Feldman Loeb wrote that she and husband Armin were married July 7 in Rochester. Attendants included Eleanor Sosnow '58 as maid of honor, and Gerry Kravitz Loeb as bridesmaid. Rita is working as an editor at University of Pennsylvania Press while her husband is working for the PhD in psychology. How's that for a switch in loyalty. They are living at 527 South 42 Street, The Eric House Apartment 1 D, Philadelphia 4, Pa. She also included a great deal of other news including news of Shayna Kagle who was married in July to Arthur Panzer and they, too, are living in Philadelphia.

Carol Gibson Worthington sent along her address but no details of her existence except that she and Ned are living at 511 South Decatur, Malden, Mo. I for one would like more details as would Mimi Hester Ridgley.

In Rockville Center, Sue Baudendistel and Jim Liedell '55 were married September 14. While in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Lois Shaffer and Robert C. Stempel were married September 3.

Marilyn Moore is now living in New York at 58 West 58th Street, Apartment 7P, while working for Newsweek. She spent seven weeks in Europe this summer.

Anabel Stresino is now wandering through South America. She wrote that she had sold a painting a few weeks after arrival in Venezuela, where she can be reached at Av. No. 9, No. 69-47 Maracaibo, End. Zulia, Venezuela, SA. I for one would love to have a letter from you, Anabel.

A news release from the Visiting Nurse Service of New York announces the recent appointment of Mrs. Joyce Edgar Schickler (Nursing '57) to the staff there.

Flo Weinstein was married July 7 to David Perskie. Teresa Lighton and Herbert Kahn were married June 29 and they honeymooned in Europe. Kayla Zakarin and Melvin Gluck '56 were married in early September.

On the scholastic side, Barbara Feignbaum is in Philadelphia attending the Wharton Graduate School of Finance.

From the Pacific comes the news that Sharie Flynn arrived here October 5 for a week's stay before heading on to Japan and then Manila. Met her at the plane and what a colorful event. You will find that the arrival of a good friend here in the Islands is quite an occasion. Everyone has his or her hand filled with flower leis in assorted colors and sizes for the visitor. It is always such a joyous occasion and this was no exception. We spent the next five hours catching up on people and events. Sharie related her experiences on a trip through the United States on her way to the West Coast. This was the first step along the way towards eventual educational undertakings in the Philippines.

Just a short conclusion concerning my job here. I am quite involved with teaching art to the sixth and seventh graders at Punahou School. It seems that I am learning more than they each day. I find them a very stimulating group with a good sense of humor and in many cases talent. They really run a race through the week and it's a job to keep up with them. Enough from the Islands for another issue. Don't forget to keep the news coming in. Am anxious to hear from all of you. Aloha, again.

Nature was working for you . . . a billion years ago

Age-old natural gas supplies the raw materials for everything from new textile fibers to wonder drugs

CENTURIES BEFORE the time of man, great masses of plant and animal life were buried under layers of earth, rock, and water. Gradually, natural chemical reactions changed that buried matter into gas and oil.

The great importance of natural gas began when scientists learned to separate and use its parts. For example, out of Union Carbide's pioneering research in petro-chemistry came "Prestone" all-winter anti-freeze, which took the worry out of cold weather driving.

Life-saving antibiotics and exciting new textiles are also yours because of petro-chemicals. Then there are today's plastics . . . such as soft, pliable polyethylene film used as a protective wrapping for everything from food to clothing . . . and vinyl plastics that bring you tough, wear-resistant floor tiles and unbreakable phonograph records.

Wherever you turn today, you'll find something that's been made better by the magic touch of chemicals from the people of Union Carbide.

STUDENTS AND STUDENT ADVISERS: Learn more about career opportunities with Union Carbide in ALLOYS, CARBONS, CHEMICALS, GASES, and PLASTICS. Write for the 1957 edition of "Products and Processes" booklet J-2. Union Carbide Corporation, 30 East 42nd St., New York 17, N. Y. In Canada, Union Carbide Canada Ltd., Toronto.
