Beyond College Halls

By JOHN D. MCKEE

An Alumni Features Service Article

[Foreword by the Editor.—John D. McKee, the author of this article, is the well-known alumni secretary, editor, and in fact all-around alumnor at the College of Wooster, was formerly president of the American Alumni Council, and is at present director of aims and policies for that organization.]

IN THE VILLAGE SQUARE stood a log cabin replica of pioneer days. Across the commons one could see the memorial arch through which was passing an academic procession. The familiar strains of march music became audible. Oberlin College had begun the observance of its Centennial Commencement.

As an interested, but detached, spectator, I noted all of the elements in this most typical college scene. Here were the faculty and trustees, the graduating class, the parents and friends, and the alumni. Each was related in some way to the events of the morning. The oldest among them could recall perhaps 60 years of the century just concluding, but the average association would be four years or less.

What, then, is the college? It had come out of the past to these who were privileged to witness the close of one century and the opening of another. Into the future it would go. But what is it?

The late President Thompson of Ohio State, in his final message to alumni on retirement, called it "that persistent something." "There is something about a university," he said, "that persists through the decades in spite of everything else that comes and goes. That persistent something keeps us all alert and I believe is the key to our high enthusiasms as alumni."

We are dealing then with a "persistent something" which is older than parliaments and all man-made institutions except the church. In two years Harvard University will note the 300th anniversary of its founding. Perhaps we are unimpressed until we recall the comparative changes which have occurred in the world since 1636 and then the "persistent something" inside the Harvard Yard becomes significant.

It is my purpose to deal with some of the factors which are involved in this enterprise from the time of college entrance onward. I speak of the undergraduate years first because they constitute the foundation upon which the later structure—alumni life—is built. Students constantly speak of "going out into the cold, cruel world." I admit that in recent years this rather trite expression has had more meaning than it once possessed. But it is still only a half-truth. The great cleavage with the past occurs when a student comes to college. Life is forever different after that, and Commencement four years later is but a transition.

"The youngest undergraduate as well as the oldest alumnus is a member of the college," to quote a favorite remark of President Sills of Bowdoin. The acceptance of this philosophy carries with it a serious responsibility for all teachers and administrators. In effect, it requires us to train students while in college to become good alumni after college.

The realization that he is a part of a college often does not come to an undergraduate until his last week on the campus. Or it may be in that most difficult first year out. But whenever it arises, it brings to him an acute understanding of "what it is that keeps alumni so close to the college and so much a part of it. They can't get it out of their systems. They may graduate but they can never go." "The Dartmouth man is never out of college" is an old saying at Hanover—it is the epitomized expression of a life-long relationship.

After College—What?

We turn now to the other side of the sheepskin. What experiences await one beyond college halls? I refer, of course, to the continuation of college interests in adult life. If I have a thesis in regard to the whole subject, it is this: the articulation of alumni interests in valid, constructive, and genuinely educational enterprise is the high task of the alumni organization and no other function is so fundamental and necessary as this.

It remains a fact that alumni life is much different from undergraduate life. It was therefore natural and normal that alumni would seek to perpetuate the friendships of college days through organization. The young gentlemen of Williams College who formed their "Society of Alumni" in 1821 were the first organized group of that which has since become a universal attribute in colleges and universities.

The Social Age, it might be called, and in thus designating it we must mean both a period of time and a philosophy of life. Chronologically the Social Age in alumni organization flourished universally until the close of the nineteenth century. A great many organizations have never advanced beyond this rudimentary stage.

A great many alumni never outgrow the Social Age although their own colleges may have alumni associations which have developed to a sturdy maturity. These are the alumni who are so pitilessly lampooned by the intellectual writers in the periodicals. No jibe is so bitter and no invective so poisoned as the one which is aimed at Lo, the poor alumnus, who never grew up.

In defense of college reunions, alumni dinners, and the like, it might be said that they only furnish the background for the flowering of friendships and the quiet sense of comradeship. It is a quickening impulse to grow up with one's college contemporaries.

Financial Achievement

The next stage in development after the Social Age is the Financial Age. In a study of alumni achievement recently completed by the American Alumni Council, it was discovered that one-half of all the activities have to do with money-raising. The college presidents of the country have not been unaware of financial aid of this character, ninety per cent of them crediting the alumni with material assistance. It should also be said that when questioned as to what type of alumni assistance is desired by college officers, first place in order of importance was given to financial aid.

We come now to the most striking development, as it is the most interesting, in the chain of alumni relationships. This we shall designate the Educational Era because more fully than any other it embraces a series of projects which indicate that alumni have at last come of age.

Educational relations with alumni are projected on the idea that the graduate is a member of the college for life and that, as such, he is concerned in the development of the college in its finest and most constructive aspects.

One of the first projects to engage alumni in their efforts to keep informed about the college was the alumni periodical. The conveyance of accurate information in a regularized way led to the establishment of what became known as the alumni magazine. No other medium can accomplish this work [Continued on page 300]

Rochester Game

Cornell's nine faced the team of the University of Rochester on Hoy Field in the season's opener Wednesday after the game had been postponed from the previous Saturday because of the rain, and sent the visitors home with the short end of a 5-4 score.

Cornell's bunched hits in the fifth scored three runs for the home team, and saved the day, for Cornell had trailed Rochester by two runs. In the first frame Rochester scored one run, and Cornell two to surge into the lead. Rochester came back in the second with another run to tie the score, and held Cornell scoreless until the fifth, managing the while to bring in two more runs in the fourth frame to place themselves in the lead by that margin.

Pre-game reports on the Rochester nine were not at all what they should have been, and the visiting club turned out to be a serious threat. Pat Hartnett, starting in the box for Cornell, received only mediocre support from his team mates and was relieved by Lindheimer, who did a fine job of pitching. Ted Kreimer, last minute choice for short-stop, started the small Cornell rally in the fifth that placed Cornell in the winning position. He lashed out a single between first and second, and scored on Exter's error at first base. Ernie Downer swatted out a two-bagger, and Bill Dugan scored a minute later on a balk.

Princeton Double Header

After an easy win over Princeton in the first game of a double header on Saturday afternoon, Cornell went down to defeat at the hands of the visitors in the second game. The scores were Cornell 9—Princeton 4, and Princeton 5—Cornell 4.

Cornell took an early lead in the first game when they made seven nicely bunched hits. Six Princeton errors aided in stretching this lead into a victory.

Princeton scored in the first inning, when Perry tallied on Pasto's wild pitch after Myers had advanced him to third on a single. Cornell registered two runs in the second half of the frame when Frost and Dugan scored on LeVan's error. In the second, Cornell added a run when Bradley, who was on with a clean two-base hit, walked home when the Princeton pitcher passed Kreimer with the bases loaded. Pasto scored a second time in the frame, coming in on a forced play at second.

In the fourth inning Cornell tallied four more runs. Pasto opened with a single, and Myers' error on Wallace's sacrifice gave both runners a base. Reichel loaded the bases by intentionally passing Kreimer again. Frost's single brought in Pasto, and Myers' fumbling on Dugan's grounder brought in the other three runners.

In the second game, Cornell started out with a volley that scored two runs. In the third inning, Ernie swatted out a beautiful long fly which tipped the corner of the cage. After he had rounded the bases for a home run, the umpire decided the ball was a foul. Downer stepped back to the plate and on the next throw batted a three base hit. Froehlich batted him in, and Cornell led Princeton 3-0.

Princeton batters scored two runs off Pross in the fourth inning, another in the fifth, when Perry came home on Follansbee's single. Cornell again went into the lead in the seventh and last frame when Downer singled through Kemmerer on the mound. Princeton, coming up for the last time scored two runs to win the game, when Pross walked Perry, who scored on Wegener's base hit, and French, who was on third, was bunted in by Follansbee.

Lacrosse

Scoring an 8-3 victory over Hobart, the Cornell lacrosse team successfully opened its season Wednesday at Geneva.

The Cornell attack men peppered the Hobart goalie from the opening whistle, with Beyerle scoring two goals and Gauerbach one in the first ten minutes of play. Hobart capitalized on Kossack's penalty, and caged a shot while the burly Cornellian was on the sidelines.

McEachron caught the Hobart goalie napping 15 seconds later, however, and whipped the ball past him for another Cornell goal. At the opening of the second half the score stood at 6-3, and despite many substitutions on both sides, Cornell managed to raise its lead by two points before the end.

Defeat at the hands of the Syracuse stickmen for the first time in six years, was the fate of the Cornell lacrosse team on Saturday. Syracuse outdid itself to make the defeat all the more bitter by a ten goal win of 17-7.

Cornell threw a scare into the visitors with the savagery of its early attack, but in the beginning of the second period, Syracuse took the lead at 3-2, and was not headed again. Throughout the remainder of the game the Syracuse stickmen broke continually through a split Cornell defense. Beyerle and McEachron led a brilliant attack, but could not elude the defense as they neared the net.

Until last minute injuries depleted the Cornell line-up, which thereafter suffered from a lack of suitable reserve material, Cornell held the Syracuse outfit to a 12-7 lead, but with some of the best Cornell defense men on the side-lines, the score surged upward until the final whistle.

Rifle Team

Cornell's rifle team has ended one of the most successful seasons in its history, with a record of seventy wins in a series of seventy-one postal matches, and only one defeat in shoulder to shoulder matches, which occurred at the Inter-collegiates.

The last postal match was won by Johns Hopkins, whom Cornell later defeated in a shoulder to shoulder shoot. Victories were gained over teams from Connecticut State College, Army, the University of Vermont, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Norwich University.

On one other shoulder to shoulder match, with the Candor (N. Y.) Rifle Club, Cornell was defeated, and this outfit had been previously defeated by Cornell. In this match Cornell did not use telescopic sights, while the winning team did.

Results of the Hearst Trophy Tournament have not yet been announced, but since Cornell shot with customary efficiency, the team's chances are regarded as fairly good.

CONCERTS TO Finish Music Season

Three concerts on the 4th and 5th of May will climax the musical season at Cornell University. The New York Orchestra, directed by Nikolai Sokoloff, is to play on the evening of the 4th and the afternoon of the 5th, and on the evening of the 5th a spectacular presentation of Mendelssohn's Elijah will close the series.

The performance of the Elijah will be under the direction of Professor Paul Weaver, head of the Music Department at Cornell. A chorus of over 400 voices will be supported by the New York orchestra and a distinguished group of soloists—Richard Bonelli, Dan Gridley, Doris Doe, Emily Roosevelt, and Henry A. Carey, Jr., boy soprano of Ithaca, son of Henry A. Carey '12.

An especially significant feature is the chorus, which combines eighteen local choral units representing all of the various musical forces in the community. The advance ticket sale indicates the probability of an audience of from six to seven thousand people.

The series is in response to demands for the revival of the annual Cornell Spring Festivals, which were among the most important events of their kind in this country up to the time of their abandonment in the spring of 1922.

These concerts close a brilliant season at Cornell, a season which has included concerts by Tibbett, Menuhin, Gabrilowitsch, Szigeti, the London String Quartet, the Budapest Quartet, and the Musical Art Quartet. Over fifty percent of the season subscribers to these concerts are students—one of many indications of a widespread enjoyment of fine music among the undergraduates as well as the faculty in this institution. In developing the Department of Music Professor Weaver and his associates have concerned themselves primarily not with special students preparing for professional work in music, but with the general student body preparing for all types of work in life; the Department emphasizes the importance of music in the general educational program and the part which music should play in making life the more worth while for the average man and woman.

Professor Weaver regards concerts as the most important means of reaching the general student body and of raising the level of musical taste on the campus. Hence, programs by distinguished visiting artists are supplemented by fine concerts given by members of the Department and by various student musical organizations. With this same end in view, the department makes available to all students on the campus a very large library of recorded music, with rooms in which the records may be used any day or evening in the week. The students have used these facilities in increasing numbers. During the scholastic year 1932-33 something over 7,500 students used over 13,000 recordings of classic, romantic and modern music. This year the figures are increased by about 50%. Scores are also available for all of the important recordings, and in rapidly increasing numbers the students read the scores as they listen to the recordings.

There have also been a large number of concerts given free by members of the Music Department and student organizations. These include a violin recital by Professor Gilbert Ross, a piano recital by Professor Andrew C. Haigh, a sonata recital by Professors Ross and Haigh, and a series of fifteen organ recitals by Harold Smith, assistant professor in the Department of Music and University Organist. Two concerts are to be given by the University orchestra under the direction of George L. Coleman, at the second of which, this week, Gilbert Ross will appear as soloist in a Bruch concerto. One of the outstanding musical events of the year was the brilliant presentation of The Mikado by the Men's and Women's Glee clubs, combined with the University orchestra, given before an audience of 2,500 persons.

Along historical, theoretical, and practical lines the offerings of the Department range from elementary courses for freshmen to advanced work for graduates. A major in music is offered for students in the Arts College. The Master of Fine Arts is offered for graduate students in composition. The Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy are offered for students in musicology, under Professor Otto Kinkeldey, who holds the first chair of Musicology to be established by any American University.

NEW ARCHITECTURAL SORORITY

Eleven upperclass women in the College of Architecture were initiated and installed as the Eta Chapter of Alpha Alpha Gamma, national honorary women's architectural society, on Sunday, April 15, in Willard Straight Hall.

Miss Alice Linsmayer, of Minneapolis, national vice-president of the Society, was in charge of the installation and initiation. The sorority was founded in 1922 at the Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri, and now has seven chapters. Membership is limited to women of high scholastic standing who have completed one year of architectural design or composition.

Those who were initiated and installed as charter members of the Cornell chapters were: the Misses Elizabeth Barrus '34, Charlotte A. Dowrie '34, Helen Fagan '34, Elizabeth Jones '34, Natalie Firestone '35, Brownley Leesnitzer '35, Ruth Reynolds '35, Geraldine Kinne '35, Margaret Winters '36, Catherine Williams '36, and Elizabeth Stone '36.

On Thursday, April 19, Miss Mary Ramsay Brown '32, whose idea it originally was to found such a chapter at Cornell, was initiated as an alumna member.

SPRING DAY

Spring Day will once more be observed at Cornell, with the traditional circus and everything that goes to make the annual sports festival one of the outstanding holidays of the year.

The date this year will be May 26, and all campus organizations are swinging into line to make the affair a bigger one and a better one than ever before.

Although there will be no duck race this year, (and why should there be) plans for the annual circus include many other more or less unique attractions, if the forecasts of the committee can be believed.

This year, funds raised through the circus will be used to help send the Cornell track team to England for the Oxford-Cambridge meet. The senior societies, Sphinx Head and Quill and Dagger, are taking charge of the affair, as usual and have appointed as a committee the following: J. B. Brusch '34, F. B. Haire '34, M. B. Hellinger '34, J. F. Hirschfeld '34, J. F. Modrall '34, C. M. Reppert '34, P. M. Riabouchinsky '34, W. R. Robertson '34, F. W. Scott '34, M. F. Untermeyer '34, H. G. Wilson '34, W. P. Burns '35, R. S. Kitchen '35, and G. P. Torrence '35.

MORE STUDENTS COMING

The downward trend of college enrollments recorded at Cornell University during the past two years appears to have stopped, judging from the number of applications already received for the academic year 1934-1935.

According to Dr. E. F. Bradford, director of admissions, the 67th entering class at Cornell will not show a reduction in the number of students over last year if the number of applications continue to come in as they have up to date. While applications lagged during the early part of the year, they have shown a definite up-swing during the past two months. Dr. Bradford believes the improved economic conditions have considerable to do with the increased number of inquiries being received regarding the various courses at Cornell leading to degrees.

Changes in language entrance requirements made at Cornell last year, conforming to modifications of school curricula, are regarded as facilitating entrance on the part of a number of students.

Cornell's total enrollment at the opening of the academic year in October 1933 was 5,671. Approximately the same enrollment is forecast for 1934.

MEDAL FOR JEFFERS '98

Henry W. Jeffers '98 was presented with the bronze medal of the New York Farmers at a recent dinner in the Metropolitan Club of New York. This is only the third time in fifty-two years that the Farmers have found a worthy recipient. Of the two other awards, one was to Leland O. Howard '77, entomologist. The third was to Oakleigh Thorne, beef industry expert.

Samuel Thorne, president of the club, made the presentation of the medal, designed by Paul Manship, sculptor, to Mr. Jeffers, who is president of the Walker-Gordon Laboratory Company.

"For conceiving the idea and for the introduction into practical use of the rotolactor, as well as for his untiring effort and success in the scientific production and transportation of high-grade milk," read the award, which was accompanied by an honorarium.

SELF-GOVERNMENT PRESIDENT

Miss Edith H. McAdoo '35, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McAdoo of Kew Gardens, has been elected president of the Women's Self Government Association. She has been active in numerous extra-curricular fields since her matriculation at Cornell. During her freshman year she was captain of the hockey team and was a member of the lacrosse and basketball teams. She was a member of the Women's Glee Club and did some work with the Dramatic Club. In addition, she was elected treasurer of the freshman class.

As a sophomore, Miss McAdoo continued her work with the Dramatic Club and maintained her captaincy of the hockey team and positions on the basketball and lacrosse teams. To these activities she added social service work with the Cornell Women's Religious Association and class song leader.

This year she was re-elected class song leader and captain of the hockey team. Besides participating in Dramatic Club presentations, she has acted in many productions for the Westminster Players. Even more important are her positions as President of Sage Dormitory and member of Raven and Serpent, women's junior honorary society. She was recently elected to Mortar Board, women's senior honorary society.

ORATION

Fred Berkowitz '34, Miss M. F. Lindsey '34, J. F. Modrall '34, H. S. Phillips '34, and Richard S. Stark '34, will be the final speakers in the Woodford Prize Oration contest which will be held May 8 in the Woodford Prize Oration contest which will be held May 8 in the Memorial Hall of Willard Straight, according to a recent announcement by Professor G. B. Muchmore.

The contest, which is for a prize of $100, was originated by the Hon. Stewart

L. Woodford in 1870 and is limited to seniors of the University, from any college.

The donor of the prize was prominently identified with the founding and early growth of Cornell. At one time he was Attorney-General of the State of New York, and during the Spanish-American War was American Minister to Spain. Judges for the final contest on May 8 have not yet been announced.

HORN TO PREACH

Edward T. Horn '31, will fill the place left vacant by the death of his father, the Rev. Dr. W. M. Horn, as resident pastor of the Lutheran Association of Ithaca. Dr. Horn died in September 1932.

The recent Cornell graduate will receive his degree in theology in May from the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Mount Airy, Philadelphia, Pa., and will be ordained at the sixth annual convention of the United Lutheran Synod of New York in Albany, May 30.

Mr. Horn was one of the very active members of his class during his undergraduate career at Cornell. He was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, and of three honorary societies, Alpha Phi Lambda, Delta Sigma Rho, and Sigma Delta Chi. He was also a member of the C.U.R.W. cabinet, and held a State Cash scholarship.

He was also very active in debating, and was a member of the varsity team, as well as a speaker in the '86 Memorial Contest, and the '94 Memorial Stage. He played freshman hockey, freshman and varsity soccer, and participated in inter-college baseball, basketball and tennis.

It was Horn who foisted upon an unsuspecting Republican party the colossal hoax concerning Hugo N. Frye, imaginary pioneer of that political group. Letters were written to Republican leaders all over the country, inviting them to attend an observance of this mythical man's work for the party. Answers were received by Republicans in every locality, all of whom regretted their inability to attend, but lauded the mythical Hugo to the skies as one of the Party's staunchest supporters.

J. C. WESTERVELT DIES

John Corley Westervelt '94, for more than forty years an architect in New York City, died Sunday April 8, in his apartment at 277 Park Avenue, after a wholly unexpected heart attack. He was sixty-one years old.

Ever since his graduation, Mr. Westervelt had been an enthusiastic supporter of the University, through various alumni activities, and was a trustee of the University for ten years from 1912 to 1922.

On his graduation, he started the practice of his profession in Ithaca, and moved to New York several years later. For more than thirty years he was architect for the Childs Restaurant Company. He was a member of the American Institute of Architects, the Architectural League of New York, the University Club of New York, the Cornell Club of New York, and the Town and Gown Club of Ithaca.

SEALS AWARDED ARCHITECTS

Gold seals were awarded to three students in the College of Architecture for architectural renderings on a railroad station for a large city, which were recently completed.

Those students who were awarded seals are: Miss Natalie Firestone '35, George Nemeny '34, and Robert S. Kitchen '35. Nineteen students submitted work in this, the longest problem of the year.

In other classes four men received gold seals for their problems. They were: B. L. Lynch '35, for a design of a swimming pool, and D. W. McNulty '36, John Sullivan, Jr., '36 and H. E. Hebeln '37, for projects on a private residence.

FLOWER SHOW PRIZES

Cornell floriculture students exhibiting at the National Flower and Garden Show in Rochester during the past week took three first and three second prizes to place third in the sweepstakes for the greatest number of points with a total of nine.

Robert Bell '34 took first prize for his calceolaria specimen; H. S. Storey '35 showed the best pelargonium; and J. A. Norton Sp. showed the best climbing rose.

Second prizes were awarded to T. P. Newman Sp., for his hydrangeas, and to R. H. Carpenter '37 for his displays of calceolaria and climbing roses.

Students of the University of Illinois took first place in the student sweepstakes with a total of twenty points, earned through seven first and eight second awards. Purdue University was second with ten points. Rules of the show required that the students must have planted and grown their entires.

Nearly five hundred students arose early Sunday morning to take the Lehigh Valley Railroads excursion special to Rochester, which was arranged specially during the Show. Seven special coaches were filled to overflowing with students. In Rochester a caravan of special trolleys conveyed the Cornell undergraduates from the railroad depot to Edgerton Park, the scene of the exhibition.

REPPERT '04 LECTURES

Charles M. Reppert '04 C.E., chief engineer of Pittsburgh and distinguished graduate of the College of Civil Engineering, was the main speaker at a banquet of the Cornell Civil Engineers held at Willard Straight Hall Thursday. The function, which is a revival of the annual engineering banquet of a decade ago, was attended by practically every student in the Engineering College.

The student body as a whole acted as host to the Ithaca, Elmira, and Binghamton chapters of the American Society of Civil Engineers and to a number of C. E. alumni who came to Ithaca to attend the banquet.

Mr. Reppert outlined the steps taken by the city of Pittsburgh in relieving unemployment through the use of CWA and PWA funds. His address was enthusiastically received by the students and guests present.

Mr. Reppert is the father of Charles E. Reppert, Jr. who graduates from the College of Civil Engineering this June. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and is the assistant editorial director of The Cornell Daily Sun.

KERMIS, agricultural dramatic club, elected the following officers at a recent meeting: M. N. Knapp '35, president; Miss F. E. Smith '35, vice-president; Miss H. M. Shaver '35, secretary; and M. J. Treat '35, treasurer.

NEEDHAM AT KNOXVILLE

Professor James G. Needham '98 Ph.D. was honored by the Cornell alumni of the University of Tennessee at a dinner in the great ballroom of the Andrew Johnson Hotel during his recent visit to the South. It was a pleasant company of about one hundred persons made up of local Cornellians with their wives and a number of local naturalists. After a social hour there was a program of vocal music and an address by Professor Needham.

Among the prominent Cornellians at the University of Tennessee are Professor Gordon M. Bentley '01 B.S.A., head of the department of entomology, who arranged this dinner, and Dr. John H. A. Morgan, president of the University, now loaned to the federal government as one of the triumvirate comprising the Tennessee Valley Authority.

MOOT COURT

Members of the Huffcut Club defeated those of the Van Cleef Club in the final case of the annual Moot Court arguments for the first year law students on Saturday, April 14, before three visiting judges in the Court Room of Myron Taylor Hall.

John Friedman and Hubert Hanson, speakers for Huffcut, presented arguments as appellants in the moot case of the Transcontinental Railroad vs. Brown. Alfred Swan and Ward Whipple represented the losing Van Cleef Club.

The decision was handed down by Presiding Judge Augustus N. Hand, judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Second District, at the annual Moot Court dinner, held in honor of the visiting judges in the Terrace Room of Willard Straight Hall on Saturday evening. In revealing the decision, Judge Hand explained that the decision was based not at all upon the merits of the case, but on the manner of presentation. He then added that in the opinion of the Moot Bench, it would have gone the same way, if decided upon the merits.

The Hon. William Clark, Judge of the United States District Court for New Jersey, and the Hon. Riley H. Heath '12, justice of the New York Supreme Court, who sat on the Moot Bench with Judge Hand, also spoke at the dinner, and recounted personal experiences on the bench and outlined what they believed to be present day legal trends.

MAURICE J. BONN, German professor of economics in Berlin, recently a member of Cornell's faculty while on a visit to America, has just published The American Adventure, a "study of Bourgeois Civilization." It has been translated by Mabel Brailsford, and is obtainable at the John Day Company, N. Y. Reviews term it "careful and accurate," and written with "understanding sympathy."

The Week on the Campus

IT WAS ONE of the larger week-ends featuring—intermingled—the Junior Smoker, a dog parade, the Freshman Banquet, kidnappings, a peace conference, old fashioned class riots and a football coaches convention.

THE SENIOR SOCIETIES, which revived last year the moribund Spring Day carnival with the vastly successful duck regatta, have announced that the circus will again be the morning feature of this year's Spring Day on May 26. The financial avails thereof will be applied toward the expenses of the track team on its invasion of England—jointly with Princeton—for the return match with Oxford and Cambridge. Neither at Princeton nor Cornell are there funds available for this trip in the depleted coffers of the athletic association. The appealing project will be financed at both places by subscription and kindred devices.

THERE WAS much old-fashioned rioting and disorder incident to, and preceding, the Freshman banquet of Saturday night. Groups of underclassmen milled around the Hill on several nights. There was a good deal of kidnapping and stripping of rival leaders. Trolley cars were stopped, boarded, and mussed up. For three nights the local constabulary slept on their arms.

CAMPUS DWELLERS and the more responsive of upper classmen usually deprecate excesses of this character. But in the present case one seemed to notice something akin to quiet gratification on the part of understanding ancients who are acquainted with the youthful mind, if any, and have seen countless generations of students come and go—not infrequently by request. Wrecking trolley cars and turning boys loose without their clothes five miles from home is a silly and annoying business, to be sure, but the ancients welcome, at any price, a return to youthfulness on the part of youth. We're fed up with having undergraduates act like melancholy and harassed middle-aged people. When a boy is 18 he is more wholesomely employed on a Spring night—we submit—in pulling off trolleys than he is in settling the involved social, economic and political problems of Europe. To settle the problems of Europe there is opportunity enough in the daytime—and after 18.

THE BERRY PATCH, for twenty years that column of the Sun wherein the lighter moods of student and professor might find expression in the printed word, is about to be discontinued. There arises—or is about to arise—to take its place a new department to be known as "Beer and Skittles," which is to be conducted by an individual whose identity has not, as yet, been disclosed. The Sun offers this new departure "for what it may prove to be worth in the way of diversion and very, very light satire."

THE DUBIOUS element in this new literary adventure arises from the vastness of its ambition. Very, very light satire is an evanescent thing which can be captured but rarely—seldom every day in the week and never with a headache founded on beer and skittles.

THE NATIONAL Students League of which a unit has recently been established at Cornell, gets itself into the newspapers (including this one) with astonishing frequency and astuteness by avoiding no subject from which a single atom of controversy can be sifted. Last week it published resolutions: (1) opposing any war the government might undertake and pledging its members not to participate in any such war; (2) favoring the abolition of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and the use of the funds thereof for the federal support of education; and (3) demanding that all students who have been expelled from the University for action against the R.O.T.C. be immediately and unconditionally reinstated.

COMPLIANCE with that last demand would occasion some difficulty and embarrassment to the University administration inasmuch as—despite the inference to the contrary—no student has ever, at any time, been expelled from Cornell for action against the R.O.T.C.

WHEN Mr. Glenn S. Warner, noted football coach at Georgia, Cornell, Carlisle, Pittsburgh, Stanford and Temple marched heavily up the campus on Friday to be the guest speaker at the Junior Smoker the bells in the tower were played in his honor. The piece selected for this purpose by Mr. Thomas Dransfield, chimesmaster, was "To A Wild Rose" by MacDowell.

THAT SAME Junior Smoker was undoubtedly the best arranged and most successful one held in years. The audience packed Sibley Dome in spite of the substantial admission fee which is now charged. The whole thing moved with a snap and was finished under two hours. Mr. Bart Viviano presided. Mr. Walter O'Connell, wrestling coach, to whom the affair was dedicated, returned thanks. Mr. Pop Warner's reminiscences were interesting and amusing. Professor Died-erichs, president of the Athletic Association, presented the letter men of the year with their athletic diplomas and, at the end, Messrs. Jake Goldbas and Tony Balash, boxers of Cornell and Syracuse respectively, punched each other with enthusiasm for three fast rounds.

THE PRINCETON-CORNELL joint track team has booked passage by the Ile de France (tourist cabin) sailing from New York July 7. The meeting is scheduled for the White City, London, on July 21. This date is made a week later than on previous occasions in order to avoid conflict with the Eton-Harrow cricket match and to enable a good many of the same people to see both events.

YOU'VE READ, perhaps, of these student meetings and conferences which are being held in increasing numbers around the country. The Cornell Conference on War and Fascism was held here on Friday and Saturday. It would have accomplished much if it had done nothing more than draw these wise and enlightening words from Professor Carl Becker—"You have asked me to state my opinion of the value of student conferences on questions of current interest, such as war, Fascism and the like. . . There is, of course, no reason why a group of students, all of whom are pacifists, or all of whom are Fascists, or all of whom are communists, should not meet to discuss anything they like. What is objectionable is a conference by students who represent a particular cause, and who then endeavor to create the impression that their views are those of the general body of students in a college or in colleges generally."

SOME TWO HUNDRED football coaches and athletic directors from schools and colleges in New York and Pennsylvania assembled in Ithaca on Friday and Saturday to hear Mr. Gilmour Dobie of Cornell and Mr. Andrew Kerr of Colgate discuss offensive and defensive tactics in football at a conference held in the theater of Ithaca College. By reason of their presence in town there was a noteworthy gallery of ancient athletes at Friday's football practice on Lower Alumni.

THE BEAUX ARTS BALL will be held Friday night in the top floor of White Hall. These lovely things, designed and executed by the students of architecture are now held every other year. Every year involved too much time and effort. The motif this time is the Deep Sea. If previous experience is a guide there will be 16 mermaids, 10 neptunes, 5 pearl divers, 4 crabs and a fish. R.B.

PARENT-TEACHERS

With "Present Day Essentials of Education" as the general topic for discussion, the Cornell Parent-Teacher Institute opened Monday morning, April 16, in Barnes Hall, and continued until Friday. Mrs. Carl R. Brister was general chairman.

Professor Julian E. Butterworth, of the Department of Rural Education, and Director of the Graduate School of Education, presented the greeting of the University at the opening session at 2 p.m. Monday afternoon. Professor E. N. Feris, of the department of Rural Education then outlined the week's program. Other speakers throughout the week included Dr. Kurt Lewin and Professor Clyde B. Moore.

WAR AND FASCISM

Because we are driven by necessity to find economic outlets, we are in a state of prelude to war now, said Nathaniel Pfeffer, in the opening lecture of a three-day conference on War and Fascism on Friday night.

Pacts, treaties, pledges and covenants are absolutely frivolous and absurd, declared the speaker, for they do everything but eliminate the necessity for war, but cannot do that.

Describing the situation in the far East, Pfeffer said that the recent trouble between China and Japan occurred when Japan recently become a modern nation, followed the practice of the other modern nations, and stepped into China to seize territory for an outlet for her imperialistic expansion, just as the European nations did before her.

The Hon. William E. Sweet, former governor of Colorado, now with the public relations Division of the N.R.A., spoke Saturday evening in Baker Laboratory on the "Program and Significance of the N.R.A." He pointed out that the N.R.A. was becoming a permanent institution in this country, and explained that it is directed against the concentration of wealth in a few hands. "If a democratic and stable society is to be assured there must be a wider distribution of profits of out industry. This is the general purpose of the N.R.A." he said.

On Saturday afternoon, the conference heard war and Fascism discussed from the points of view of the professional fighter, the idealistic pacifist, and the communist, when Col. Conrad Lanza, of the U. S. Army; the Rev. Leslie T. Pennington, of the Unitarian Church, and Donald Henderson, secretary of the American League against War and Fascism, spoke.

J. H. Burchard '34, was elected general chairman of the conference during the Saturday afternoon session.

THE WORK of Parker Bailey '34, Toccata-Ricercata-Finale on the Chorale "Singt den Herrn ein neues Lied," opened the program played by Professor Harold D. Smith, university organist in Bailey Hall on Thursday, April 19. This composition, which Bailey produced in the summer of 1933, is dedicated to Edwin Arther Kraft, organist and choirmaster of Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, Ohio. It was publicly performed for the first time at Kraft's silver anniversary recital last November. Bailey is a member of the senior class of the Cornell Law School. He took his undergraduate work at Yale.

PROFESSOR JULIAN P. BRETZ of the department of American History, is chairman of the NRA Compliance Board of Ithaca, succeeding Professor James P. Boyle, recently resigned.

KEEZER ON CODES

Dexter M. Keezer '23, executive director of the Consumers' Advisory Board of the NRA concluded the series of Dew Deal lectures on the Messenger Foundation on Thursday evening in Baker Laboratory, speaking on "Consumers and the New Deal." Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Professor Frank H. Knight of the Economics Department of Chicago University were the other speakers on this series.

Stressing the fact that the makers of the codes were unimportant in comparison with these who administrate them, Dr. Keezer maintained that intelligent and responsible men are needed for this vital function. He called upon Cornell to provide more men of the calibre of those Cornellians who are already in Washington.

In his talk, Dr. Keezer reviewed at length the intricate process of erecting the codes, of which some three hundred are now completed. The speaker brought out well the fact that the NRA workers all have to work at top speed in order to accomplish the aims of the administration, and to illustrate this mentioned the fact that the lecture which he was delivering was prepared in the short intervals between his appointments for he could find no other time.

HOTEL EZRA CORNELL

A list of events on the program of the annual Hotel (for-a-day) Ezra Cornell, conducted each spring in Willard Straight Hall by students in Hotel Administration, have been announced, and include in addition to the annual spring meeting of the Cornell Society of Hotelmen, a conference on hotel problems and economics, at which Professor George F. Warren is scheduled to speak.

For the wives of visiting hotelmen and alumni a bridge and tea has been arranged, at which the ladies will be guests of Willard Straight Hall while their husbands are engaged at the economic conference.

Over 3,000 invitations to attend the affair have been sent to hotelmen throughout the world. This number is considerably larger than in past years, the purpose being to acquaint a greater number of hotelmen with the Cornell School of Hotel Administration, and the work that is being done here in that field.

Promotion plans this year include personal calls on many of the prominent hotel managers in the East to extend invitations to the ninth annual opening of the Hotel-for-a-day.

Staff members of the ninth Hotel Ezra Cornell are: Hubert E. Westfall '34, managing director; Truman Wright '34, assistant manager; Frank M. King '34, second assistant manager; John J. Ferraro '34, third assistant manager; G. S. Lombard '35, maitre d'hotel; Calvin C. Raidt '34, publicity director; Harry I. Shinnen '34, reception manager; Henry A. Montague '34, front office manager; James W. Miller '34, entertainment; Paul F. Hartnett '34, personnel manager; John H. Waldron '34, steward; Robert M. Brush '34, headwaiter; George M. Hand '34, superintendent of service; W. T. Angle '34, House officer; Carleton B. Hutchins '34, engineer; Alan H. Goldenberg '34, auditor; David S. Tucker '34, comptroller; and Miss Barolyn A. Coon '34, hostess.

DR. NATHAN VAN ETEN '89, former president of the Medical Society of the State of New York, spoke recently in opposition to the program of socialized medicine proposed by such organizations as the Milbank Fund. His chief contention was that many patients admitted free to clinical service in the city could well afford to pay. "We should establish a credit agency which will serve to bar such dishonest individuals by revealing their true financial standing," was his suggestion.

DR. CHARLES DILLER RYAN, of the Cornell psychiatric center, has been named on a special committee of prominent psychiatrists to make a technical study of the procedure at the new Bellevue Mental Clinic in New York City.

IRVING C. BOWER '01 C.E. has just been appointed second city manager of New Rochelle, N. Y. He has previously served as city manager of Pontiac, Mich., Lima, Ohio, and Greenboro, N. C. Last fall he was appointed manager for the sub-divisional Code Authority of Ohio. He has a son now attending the University of North Carolina.

THE MEN'S COUNCIL of the C.U.R.W. elected the following officers at the annual meeting held last week in Barnes Hall: John Senesi '36, president; M. W. Osborne '36, vice-president; Lawrence Barbieri '34, secretary-treasurer. At the same meeting, the C.U.C.A. elected three trustees for three years to succeed themselves: Mrs. Ernest Merritt (Mabel Vickery) '05, Professor William M. Sawdon, and Paul S. Livermore '97.

About The Clubs

New York Women

Miss Margaret Cuthbert, '08, was guest speaker at a buffet supper given by the Cornell Women's Club of New York last Tuesday (April 17) at the Barbizon Hotel. Miss Cuthbert, who is a niece of Miss Gertrude H. Nye, Warden of Risley Hall, and who has charge of the speakers bureau of the National Broadcasting Company, described the ins and outs of the radio business.

Practically concurrent with the development of the alumni magazine, which was primarily an alumni gesture, came a friendly welcome from the college. It decided to invite alumni to sit on its governing boards and actually thereby to share in the policies and councils of the institution. This rapprochement has been openly sought, for the most part, and has accomplished most excellent results.

Among the recent trends in the direction of alumni cooperation have been those of assisting the college in its prospective student work; in passing critical judgments on applicants; and in contributing to scholarship and student aid funds.

In recent years the colleges have made serious efforts to establish a broad boulevard over which might pass the mutual interests of college to alumni as well as of alumni to college. The colleges have become conscious of their obligation to establish ties other than sentimental and financial ones.

The College's Responsibility

"Has the college a definite responsibility for continuing education after graduation?" The asking of this question with all of its implications has provoked more thought on the general subject than any other question in alumni relations. A large number of college executives and teachers have agreed that such a responsibility does exist.

Academic commentators, however, have not viewed the average graduate as a very promising subject for adult education. William McAndrew has been severe enough to say that "The Alumni do not consciously form a living nucleus for the American ideal. Our educated hordes are not numerously going higher. Like the educated Indian, they step out from the higher institutions and go back to the blanket."

Of course, this question cannot be raised without involving the colleges. If the educational vaccine doesn't take, is it altogether the patient's fault? We know that it is not and we admire the frank way in which Professor Newlin and Committee G of the American Association of University Professors admitted their culpability in the matter.

In appraising the alumni movement, they pointed out that "the problem of interesting the alumni in the intellectual life of the college is primarily a problem for the institution itself, to be worked out through its own active agents of intellectual propaganda, the members of the faculty. Unless they, at the heart of the whole situation, so overflow with enthusiasm for intellectual growth and achievement as to be a persistent source of genuine inspiration to those with whom they come into contact, very little and nothing permanent, can be hoped for from casual meetings and occasional messages.

"Their students will catch the fever in their classrooms; as young alumni they will be eager to continue the contacts they have found stimulating, so that bulletins, magazines, reading lists and information will be asked for, not merely 'sent'; as older alumni their interest will naturally ripen into pseudo-parental supervision over prospective candidates for admission, accompanied by a keen following of new movements and issues; and machinery will take its proper place—that of a tool instead of a goad—and will be motivated from the proper source of power—the teaching staff of the institution."

Only as the alumni have a belief in the validity of the institution's educational processes can any satisfactory and permanent relationship be established. With out this factor only non-educational and even anti-educational influences may be established. This is why the Athletic Age in the life of an institution is likely to be so detrimental. It leads the alumni into pernicious interference with athletic control which properly rests within the institution's purview. It leads to exploitation of alumni interest in harmful practices such as professionalism, and it gives a wholly wrong impression to the general public as to alumni influence and power.

Aims of Alumni Education

The fundamental aim of alumni education must be the encouragement of the personal, intellectual life of the individual alumnus. Thus the projection of the college's interests into the lives of its alumni depends upon strong foundations, sound techniques and genuine understanding.

In its finest conception the loyal alumnus is loyal to the educational program which he not only found valid when he was an undergraduate but which has been the sustaining force of his life. Viewed from the inclusive angle that education should cover the whole of life, the true loyalist sees education in its synchronized setting. It is a large and intelligent and inspiring conception.

On this basis the relationship of alumni to our first-class institutions becomes understandable. They are implicit believers in the educational soundness of their college; they are zealous of its standing in education; and consequently they lend their efforts to its advancement. Alumni relations at their highest potential deserve the kind of respect which alumni bring to their college when they have begun to grow up.

"The alumni task lies," as President Thompson has pointed out, "in securing in the consciousness of alumni that they are a living part of a growing university to which they may make some contribution of thought or idealism."

"Universities grow through the creative power of imagination and the persistent influence of university sentiment and tradition. These find expression chiefly in the alumni.

"The alumni are indeed the university and are its ripest fruit, its ultimate justification."

And just as the college must ever look out to its alumni for the final evaluation, so must the alumni ever look back to the college. Each complements the other, neither is complete without the other, and only as they advance together may the institution become truly great.
