You'll Have To Hurry!

Sheldon Court seems likely to be completely filled again next year, as it has been for the last two. But there are still a few vacancies, left by graduating Seniors.

If you hurry, there is still time for your son or that neighbor's boy in who is coming to Cornell, to get into Sheldon Court next year.

Boys who have lived with us tell their friends, and each year more Cornell alumni send Freshman sons to us. They find Sheldon Court a quiet, comfortable place to live and work. They know the convenience of our location, just off the Campus on College Avenue; the comfort of our warm, well-lighted rooms; and the friendly spirit that for thirty-six years has made Sheldon Court a real college home to succeeding generations of Cornell men.

Planned and built as a college dormitory by the father of three Cornell sons, Sheldon Court offers advantages not to be found elsewhere in Ithaca. Our boys enjoy living in Sheldon Court, and prices are reasonable.

If you know of a boy who is coming to Cornell next year, send NOW for complete information, with prices and diagrams of accommodations still open. Address:

CLASS OF '39 JOINS RANKS OF ALUMNI

President Suggests Three Requisites for Living

Seventy-first Commencement, in the Drill Hall June 19, brought to a close a year in which the University awarded the largest number of degrees in its history. As a bugle sounded "Forward, March" the procession of 180 capped and gowned candidates for advanced degrees and 850 Seniors of the Class of '39 marched two-by-two out from behind the stage near the center of the Drill Hall floor, along the south wall and back up the center aisle between parents and friends to their places before the platform. They stood as members of the Faculty and of the Board of Trustees paced down the aisle to the platform while the University Orchestra played the March from "Aida," and for the singing of "America" and an invocation by the Rev. Hugh A. Moran, Presbyterian student pastor.

Colonel Waldo C. Potter, Commandant of the ROTC, presented seventy-three Seniors who were commissioned second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps, U. S. Army. Then successively, President Day conferred the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Chemistry upon the candidates presented by Dean Robert M. Ogden '00; Bachelors of Science presented by Dean Carl E. Ladd '12; Doctors of Veterinary Medicine presented by Dean William A. Hagan, MS '17; Bachelors of Architecture, of Landscape Architecture, and of Fine Arts by Dean Gilmore D. Clarke '13; Civil Engineers, Mechanical Engineers, Electrical Engineers, Bachelors of Science in Administrative Engineering, and Chemical Engineers by Dean S. C. Hollister; and candidates for Master's degrees and for the Doctor of Philosophy by Dean Floyd K. Richtmyer '04.

Seated in the front row on the stage, with the President, the six Deans, Dr. Moran, and Colonel Potter, chief marshal, were Dean Cornelius Betten, PhD '06, of the University Faculty, H. Edward Babcock, acting chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Judge Frank H. Hiscock '75, former chairman of the Board.

In his Commencement address President Day urged upon the Class of '39 the importance of three personal standards of character which he termed "profoundly important in the sickness of contemporary society." He disclaimed the thought that the present state of the nation is a subject "unpleasant or uninteresting or hackneyed," saying that "despite the current confusion and perplexities of society, the outlook for you young people does not seem to me forbidding. I am not disposed to commiserate with the present oncoming generation. After all, you have life before you, and life, taken wisely, remains a great privilege." But he preferred, he said, to speak of "certain other matters which even more directly concern your own individual lives. . . . Right now, social conditions being what they are, the norms of individual living have acquired new significance. . . ."

"The present is no time for the timorous. Courage has gone to a premium. Not so much courage to take bodily risks or to withstand physical suffering as courage to push on when the obstacles seem unsurmountable and the goal remote, if not unattainable. But worthwhile living always has required courage in this sense. The more intelligent and responsible we become, the more daily courage becomes indispensable. Life is a never-ending struggle between doubt and decision; between fear and faith.

"The maintenance of morale is our basic problem. Nations have come to see clearly enough that in any crucial undertaking, such as the conduct of a war, if morale goes all is lost. The same holds for the individual—for each one of us. Without spirit and hope, without confidence and zest, life sinks to a level that yields no lasting satisfaction. Faith in the significance of human aspiration and experience, and courage to see this faith into sustained action, these are at the same time an essential of social progress and of individual achievement. The times demand men and women of enduring courage.

"May you members of the Class of 1939, day by day and in whatever paths you may follow, display the stamina needed to make your lives worth living.

"We live in a time of appalling hatreds. Nation against nation, class against class, race against race, group against group, view each other with suspicion and distrust, when not with open hostility. The arts of modern propaganda fan the flames of bitterness, and efforts to promote understanding and consideration fall on deafened ears. The social situation in these respects is deteriorating at a rate that is truly alarming. After all, hatred is a poison which the body politic cannot long withstand.

"In human relations there is no substitute for good will. Social progress is to be achieved through negotiation and peace, not through exploitation and war. The perplexities of these troubled times are only to be resolved by men and women of unflinching good will who work with sympathy and understanding to establish justice, to insure tranquility, to promote the general welfare, and to secure to themselves and posterity the blessings of our hard-won liberty.

"May you members of the Class of 1939 never fail to exhibit the good will of which your times are so desperately in need.

"In one other direction, the present social situation carries implications for individual character that must be recognized. The growing complexity of our economic, political, and social relationships tends to impersonalize more and more our day-to-day dealings. Increasingly we transact business through corporate bodies and governmental agencies, or through large organizations that take the contacts out of any personal context. In matters of ethics and morals we are more nearly on our individual own than ever before. In consequence, individual integrity grows in importance. We need men and women whose word is as good as their bond. Edmund Burke observed that he knew no way of indicting a whole people. Neither is there known any way of policing a whole people. All any government can undertake to do is to police the few who respect no authority not backed by force. The system works because the great majority obey the dictates of their individual consciences.

This year's total of 1487 degrees is the largest number in the history of the University, surpassing the previous record of 1441, in the year 1935-36.

The 1002 first degrees given this year are next in number to the record of 1015 given in 1934-35, when 862 were given in June, as compared with this year's 850. This year's total of 485 advanced degrees is one more than that of the year 1936-37 and is the largest on record. Last year the University gave 959 first degrees and 480 advanced degrees.

"Self-imposed responsibility is what holds any effective society together. We need more of that type of responsibility in our present social situation. The kind of personal integrity that sets its own high standards of right and worthy conduct, that enforces its own exacting rules and regulations, that places its own conscience in continuing judgment over the inevitable mistakes and failures of life, this kind of personal integrity is needed today as never before.

"Whatever the measure of success that you may individually achieve, may you members of the Class of 1939, each and every one of you, develop the personal integrity and self-imposed responsibility which lie at the foundation of every orderly and progressive society.

"There is no mistaking the fact that we face today many grave social problems. Of these I have not attempted to speak. Instead I have tried to bring to your attention some of the implications of our social distress for your own innermost living. Abiding happiness in life lies in qualities of mind and character. Social reform, whatever its range and promise, will never achieve the hoped-for results if it fails to establish the moral and spiritual bases of life together in justice and in peace."

Compliments Class of '39

Speaking in personal vein to the Class of '39, President Day termed it "the first Cornell Class with which I have had a feeling of genuine acquaintance and associated endeavor. The Class has been blessed with an unusual supply of talent, some of which happily has taken the form of a demonstrated capacity for leadership. In more ways than you may realize, the Class has rendered important assistance to this administration of the University. This year just closing has witnessed real progress toward some of the goals which have long been set for student life on this Campus, and this Class has had much to do with the advances that have been made. . . . The sense of gratitude which I feel is to the Class as a whole. I am sorry to see you go. . . . Godspeed the Class of 1939!"

Following the President's address, the entire company sang "Alma Mater," Dr. Moran pronounced a benediction, and graduates joined their visiting guests going out from the Drill Hall and down across the Campus as the bells in the Clock Tower pealed out melodies familiar for four years.

Baccalaureate Sermon

Commencement exercises began Sunday afternoon, with the academic procession which marched as the Chimes rang from Goldwin Smith Hall up the steps and across East Avenue, up the walk beside Rockefeller Hall, to Bailey Hall for the baccalaureate sermon. Following the Faculty marshals, Professors Charles L. Durham '99, Latin, and Arthur W. Browne, PhD '03, Chemistry, marched the President with the baccalaureate preacher, the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, New York City, members of the Board of Trustees, and the Deans and Faculty, their brilliant caps and hoods contrasting with the black caps and gowns of the Seniors who followed, led by their Class marshals, William P. Flanigan and William H. North.

The procession marched into Bailey Hall to the strains of the organ played by Professor Luther M. Noss, University organist. Families and friends of the Class of '39 crowded the dress circle and balcony as the officials and Faculty took seats on the stage and Seniors moved into theirs on the main floor of the auditorium.

Dr. Sizoo urged his hearers to "live deeply," basing his text upon the parable of Christ who told the fisherman of Galilee, "Launch out into the deep, let down your nets." When they obeyed, they brought up a haul which broke their nets.

Although warning that "giving oneself completely to life is always a costly venture," and that "most people are constantly avoiding the call of the deep river and are content with shallow living," the speaker said: "We could be richer and finer than we are. We could all live bigger and better lives. God meant us to soar like eagles, but we are content to fly like sparrows. It is a tragic reflection that we give so little to life. . .

"That man truly lives who burns his bridges behind him and gives himself with increasing consecration to life. . . . The world is full of people who are a half-success, who have just missed being great, and when you inquire into the reason you inevitably come back to this 'ankle-deep' living." In the world of faith, too, he said, many "never go beyond the shallows. They have a religion of a kind, but it does not last. It does not enter into their very being nor does it become a part of their very soul. . . .

"And yet," he concluded, "the satisfactions of life turn on our willingness to follow the deep river. How little people get out of life and religion who only stay in ankle-deep waters! There is no ultimate contentment or satisfaction to those who remain in the shallows. It is only as we give ourselves in joyful abandon to the loyalties of life, however costly they may be, that an abiding peace comes to the human soul."

Crowd at Class Day

The Quadrangle in front of Goldwin Smith Hall had a crowd of parents, other visitors, and Faculty friends for the last Senior singing from the portico and the 1939 Class Day exercises Sunday evening. This year women of the Class have sung with the men, and there were a goodly number among the several hundred Seniors on the steps. Singing before and during the Class Day program was led by Edward H. Sargent, Jr.

Walter H. Foertsch, president of the Student Council and the Class, presided on the platform erected in front of Goldwin Smith. Class histories were read by Daniel W. Kops, former Sun editor, and Ethel R. Piness, Miss Piness being introduced by Sarah R. Steinman, former president of WSGA. Class orator was Austin H. Kiplinger, and Alfred F. Van Ranst, Senior custodian of the Class pipe, handed it on to George M. Walker for the Junior Class.

ALUMNAE EVALUATION

Questionnaire answered by a small group of alumnae at a recent luncheon of the Cornell Women's Club of Chicago gives their evaluation of the University.

To the question, "Why did you go to Cornell?" 30 percent answered because of her high scholastic standing, and an equal number, for work not afforded by women's colleges, such as medicine, chemistry, home economics (sic); 20 percent because of scholarships; 10 percent because of family interest or home in Ithaca; and 10 percent because of acquaintance with a member of the Faculty.

Since leaving, they appreciate especially their opportunities for self-expression, meetings with other alumnae, and having had to do hard work at Cornell.

"Most valuable by-products of your college course" are named by 30 percent as husbands and future Cornellians; among others, developed judgment, association with superior men and women, high scholastic standing, introduction to social sciences, friendships, ability to adjust themselves to living, etc.

Cornell's greatest need is considered by 60 percent to be women's scholarships; by 40 percent, more publicity, especially in the Middle West.

The University's unique claim to greatness was variously described, with scenic setting, scholastic standing, and ability to inspire hard work most frequently mentioned.

REUNIONS BRING BACK 2,137 ALUMNI

Classes of '99 and '14 Make Anniversary Gifts

Again the annual transformation of the Campus has been wrought. Friday and Saturday the Hill was gay with colorful Reunion costumes of men and women, music of bands, and Cornellians old and young in their varied ways renewing acquaintance with each other and with their University. By Sunday morning not a costume was to be seen; University dormitories were being rapidly emptied of conventionally garbed home-bound alumni, and already the first of the proud family groups were being guided about the Campus by their Senior sons and daughters.

Crowds at Drill Hall, Dorms

This Reunion was not the largest ever held, but seemed to be one of the best. The exhibits in the Drill Hall of the various Colleges, "Cornell Today," attracted more visitors and seemed to elicit more interest than the first such display a year ago. Notable here was the display by the College of Engineering of exhibits prepared by industrial firms and other organizations in which Cornell engineers are active, showing their work and the names of their Cornell members. Another center of interest was the booth of the College of Agriculture where the main feature was a large cartoon in color by Stephen M. Barker '40 depicting personalities and work of the College in teaching, research, and extension. Still another was the central display including enlarged photographs of the Campus and the University's Presidents, architect's drawings and models of the proposed sports buildings for men and women, three large-size panels describing the work of the Cornellian Council, the Alumni Corporation, and the new Alumni Association, an exhibit of books by the University Press and Comstock Publishing Company, and a display by the ALUMNI NEWS. Above this central portion was a huge map of the world showing distribution of Cornellians, and from a small booth just below, colored photographs of the Campus taken by Professor Alfred M. S. Pridham, PhD '33, Floriculture, were projected on a screen in sequence, the passers-by watching from the Drill Hall Floor. In the booth of the College of Arts and Sciences the University Theatre had a display of its work, especially "The Cardiff Giant," and the Physics and Chemistry Departments were represented with exhibits. Student drawings, paintings, models, and sculpture were exhibited by the College of Architecture; the Law School and the Veterinary College showed their activities in pictures, as did the College of Home Economics and the Department of Hotel Administration, while the Medical College in New York was also represented in photographs.

Reunion registration, luncheons the two days with tables occupying most of the great Drill Hall floor, and these exhibits made the building a meeting place and center of activities for most of Friday and Saturday. But Class tents at the men's dormitories and the various headquarters of women and the elder Classes in Sage, Risley, and Balch were popular gathering places far into the evenings. Notable at the men's dormitories was the "Super World's Fair" of the Class of '29, which comprised a series of sideshows, tests of skill, and performances by an imported strong man.

Musical Clubs Entertain

Friday evening Bailey Hall was comfortably filled with alumni and Seniors and their guests for the annual Musical Clubs show. First half of the program was devoted to Cornell songs and instrumental selections by the Glee Club and Instrumental Club, interspersed with excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan. Guest artist was Louise Kwan, Grad, Chinese soprano who has been for several years a pupil of Eric Dudley and Mrs. Dudley, and leaves this June with her husband, Tseh Liang Kwan, PhD '38, to return to China. She sang "Who'll Buy My Lavender" by German, and for an encore sang with Edward H. Sargent, Jr. '39 of Albany, "Give Me Thy Hand, O Fair-est." Members of the Men's Glee Club and Women's Glee Club, accompanied by the Instrumental Club and led by Dudley, gave an expert performance for the second half of the show of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "Trial By Jury." It was staged in a court room and played delightfully in authentic costumes of the period.

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings the Dramatic Club performances of "The Cardiff Giant" in the Willard Straight Theater were also well attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

Authorize Alumni Association

Saturday morning approximately 1500 attended the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation in Bailey Hall. President Creed W. Fulton '09 explained the purposes of the proposed change of the Corporation to a Cornell Alumni Association and told of the development of the plan to coordinate the work of the various alumni organizations through this Association. Upon motion, it was unanimously voted to amend the by-laws of the Corporation, as published in the ALUMNI NEWS, to form the Cornell Alumni Association.

"CORNELL TODAY" EXHIBITS OF COLLEGES AND DEPARTMENTS IN THE DRILL HALL INTEREST REUNION VISITORS

Professor A. Wright Gibson '17, Agriculture, reported as chairman of the committee to canvass the ballots for the election of two Alumni Trustees (see page 437), and a vote was taken among those present, as provided by the charter of the University, to fill the vacancy resulting from the previous mail ballot.

President Day "Reports"

President Day, making his "second annual report to this company of shareholders in the great venturing corporation in whose interest we are assembled," bespoke "not only your interest in what is going on here but your full understanding of the ongoing activities of Cornell." He outlined the developments of the last year with relation to the Board of Trustees, the Faculty, the students, and the alumni.

The President paid tribute to Judge Frank H. Hiscock '75 who retired as chairman of the Board of Trustees after more than twenty years, to J. DuPratt White '90 the present chairman, and to Trustee H. Edward Babcock who is acting chairman during White's illness. He spoke of the importance of the Board's recognition of the need for additional endowment and complimented them on the appointment of Provost H. W. Peters '14 with the duty of raising funds for the needs of the endowed Colleges, lauding also the Cornellian Council for its new executive secretary, Walter C. Heasley, Jr. '30, to regain some of Cornell's "lost ground" in financial support in comparison with other universities.

Speaking of the Faculty he said they are a "frank, honest, straight-hitting lot of professors" and that "this is a Campus on which ideas of any sort can be exchanged without serious emotional discharge." He remarked that "nothing is more important than the wise recruitment of scholars, scientists, and teachers."

He paid tribute to the leadership of this year's Student Council, and voiced the opinion that "students should assume more and more of the task of self-government, including, when they are ready to assume it, the responsibility for discipline." He referred to the recent Faculty action recommending to the Trustees appointment of a counsellor of students, whom he said should be of great assistance in "implementing self-government."

Alumni the President urged to "give thought to the problem of how to get closer to Cornell University," saying, "You are missing something invaluable in your own interest if you fail to share in the life of Cornell." He pointed out that only a small proportion of Cornell alumni now keep in touch with the University by taking the ALUMNI NEWS, and said that the new Alumni Association would have his "full backing" in more closely "articulating the individual lives of Cornellians with the ongoing life of the University."

First floor of Bailey Hall was filled to overflowing with Reunion Classes in their colorful uniforms Saturday night, the balcony crowded with townspeople, members of the Faculty, and friends. Charles A. Norris, Jr. '24 presided for the host Class, and his various "stunts" and songs, with Carl Schraubstadter '24 at the piano, were interspersed throughout the program. Another entertainer was Alfred F. Sulla, Jr. '29 with his banjo, and George R. Pfann '24 presented a succession of "average graduates" of the several Colleges who came on the stage in appropriate costumes as he recounted their stations in life fifteen years after graduation. Most opulent of the lot was one "J. Pierpont Gotit" in cutaway and topper, who was introduced as the "average bustee."

Two Classes Make Gifts

During the program Professor Charles L. Durham '99 was called to the platform to introduce the president of his Class, Trustee Maxwell M. Upson, who presented to President Day a check for $20,000 representing an unrestricted contribution from the forty-year Class of '99 to the University. Later, Provost H. W. Peters, secretary of the Class of '14, announced that at their dinner that evening the twenty-five-year Class had presented the President with something over $9,000 as the beginning of a Class of '14 Memorial Fund.

At the same dinner, the Provost said, the Class had honored its most distinguished member, Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, with a testimonial of its regard and that of the University for his "eminent achievement." Dr. Hu spoke intimately of his pleasure in attending his first Class Reunion, and of the contributions of Cornell and of other American universities to the world in these troubled times.

Max F. Schmitt '24, president of the Association of Class Secretaries, presented the silver cup for the largest percentage of living members at Reunion to Dr. Henry P. DeForest, secretary of the Class of '84, of which the sixteen registrants constituted 69.56 percent back for their forty-five-year Reunion. Next, Schmitt announced, was the Class of '89, with 41.33 percent; then '14 with 30.27 percent; and '94 with 26.63 percent. The cup for the largest number here went to the Class of '14, with '29 second, followed by '24, '37, and '09. Only attendance record broken, according to compilations made from the official registration records at the Drill Hall, was by the Class of '09, whose total of 126 men and women is the largest for any thirty-year Class. For ten-year Classes the record of 199 made by '27 in 1937 still stands, as do those for fifteen-year Classes of 210 by '23 in 1938, for twenty-year Classes of 169 by '16 in 1936, and for twenty-five-year Classes of 266 by '13 in 1938. This year's total Reunion registration of 2,137 compares with last year's record number of 2,284.

To close the Rally and the last scheduled gathering of the 1939 Reunions, Bailey Hall was completely darkened and as the organ pealed the opening bars for the singing of the "Evening Song" the first of a series of beautiful photographs made in color and arranged for the song by Professor Pridham flashed on a screen on the stage.

COUNCIL BECOMES FUND Gifts Increase This Year

Members of the Cornellian Council at the annual meeting June 17 voted unanimously to change the name of this official fund raising agency to Cornell Alumni Fund. The new name was recommended by the executive committee in the interest of clarifying the purpose of the organization, but it was explained that the Alumni Fund would continue to solicit gifts not only from alumni but from all other sources.

Approximately seventy-five persons attended the meeting, which was held in a side room of the Drill Hall after Saturday's alumni luncheon. They accepted the report of a nominating committee headed by Emmet J. Murphy '22, re-electing Robert P. Butler '05 as president of the Alumni Fund for one year, and as vice-presidents J. DuPratt White '90, Willis H. Carrier '01, and William G. Mennen '08. Christopher W. Wilson '00 was elected a vice-president succeeding Allan C. Balch '89. New members of the executive committee elected to serve for three years are Katharine R. Buckley '01, Edward E. Goodwillie '10, Roger W. Hooker '21, Harold Bache '16 and Bertel W. Antell '29 were elected to serve for two years, completing the terms of H. W. Peters '14 and Wilson. The committee includes also Neal D. Becker '05, Tell Berna '12, Maurice W. Howe '16, and Allan H. Treman '21.

The outgoing executive committee reported that fifty-four Cornell Clubs were participating in the spring Roll Call for gifts to the Alumni Fund, supplemented with approximately 19,000 letters to individual Cornellians and some 5,000 letters through the Class organizations. This year to June 16, it was reported, 5,905 Cornellians had made gifts to the University, 530 more than at the same time last year. Gifts to the Alumni Fund totalled $64,753.10, which is $1,779.94 more than for the same period a year ago. Main effort this year has been directed toward increasing the unrestricted Alumni Fund. Gifts for specified purposes have amounted to $173,451.35 to June 16, as compared with $94,417.53 last year.

It was reported that suggested forms for bequests had been mailed to some 800 members of the committee on bequests by its chairman, Winthrop Taylor '07, and that Jacob Mertens, Jr. '19, member of the bequest committee's executive committee, had prepared this year a third article, "Tax Economy Through Gifts to the University," for the use of the committee.

Four issues of the Cornellian Council Bulletin were mailed during the year to approximately 57,000 alumni.

ELECT ALUMNI TRUSTEES

Elected Alumni Trustees of the University for the five-year terms expiring in 1944 are Paul A. Schoellkopf '06 of Buffalo and Matthew Carey '15 of Detroit, Mich. They succeed Charles H. Blair '97 and James W. Parker '08, whose terms expired.

Almost unprecedented was the necessity this year of electing an Alumni Trustee by vote of degree holders present at the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, in Bailey Hall June 17.

Professor A. Wright Gibson '17, Agriculture, chairman of the committee to canvass the mail vote, announced at the meeting that 10,854 valid ballots had been received, and that Schoellkopf had received 7,029 votes and was duly elected. No one of the other five candidates had received the votes of one-third of all the alumni voting, as required by the charter of the University, and thus it was necessary, as provided by the charter, to take a ballot among the qualified voters present at the meeting for one of the two candidates who had received the highest number of votes. These two, Gibson announced, were Carey with 3,157 votes and J. Brackin Kirkland '18 with 2,889. The ballots thus cast were later counted by the committee and Carey's election was announced at the Reunion rally Saturday evening.

Besides Gibson the members of the canvassing committee were Harrington Place '94, Mrs. Nan W. Bruff '09, Maurice W. Howe '16, and Professor William H. Farnham '18, Law.

START NEW ASSOCIATION Coffin '12 To Resign

Cornell Alumni Association, proposed to integrate and coordinate the activities of all existing alumni organizations of the University, was unanimously approved by the 1500 Cornellians who attended the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation in Bailey Hall June 17. They amended the by-laws of the Corporation to make it into the new Association, after purposes of the change had been explained by President Creed W. Fulton '09.

Directors and officers of the former Cornell Alumni Corporation and representatives of the other organizations included in the Cornell Alumni Association met in Willard Straight Hall June 18 to organize as provided in the new by-laws.

Seven regional directors were elected: William J. Thorne '11 of Syracuse, Wallace B. Quail '19 of New York City, F. Ellis Jackson '00 of Providence, R. I., Eugene C. Batchelar '02 of Pittsburgh, Pa., Elbert P. Tuttle '18 of Atlanta, Ga., Paul C. Stark '12 of Louisiana, Mo., and Carroll R. Harding '10 of San Francisco, Cal. Directors elected by the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs are Mrs. Robert C. Osborn (Agda T. Swenson) '20 and Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04; by the Association of Class Secretaries, Mrs. R. H. Shreve (Ruth Bentley) '02 and Max F. Schmitt '24; by the Alumni Fund, Robert P. Butler '05; by the Home Economics Alumnae Association, Mrs.

Paul A. Schoellkopf '06

Schoellkopf is vice-chairman of the board of the Niagara-Hudson Power Corporation and a director in many other industrial and financial enterprises. President of the Cornellian Council from 1931 through 1933, he is a cousin of J. Frederick Schoellkopf '05 who was Alumni Trustee from 1928-38, and was a contributor to the fund given by the Schoellkopf family for completing Schoellkopf Field and the original stadium. He is a member of Quill and Dagger, Zeta Psi, and of the Cornell Clubs of New York and Buffalo; father of Paul A. Schoellkopf, Jr. '41.

Matthew Carey '15

Carey is head of the Detroit firm of Matthew Carey & Co., dealers in municipal bonds, secretary of the Class of '15, a former president of the Cornell Club of Michigan, was chairman for the State of the Cornellian Council Roll Call of 1930, and is chairman of the McMullen Regional Scholarship committee for Indiana and Michigan. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi and the Cornell Club of New York; is an alumni director and former chairman of the board of Student Agencies, Inc., and was non-fraternity representative on the committee which organized the first Student Council.

Whiton Powell (Jeannette A. Gardiner) '26; and by the Cornell Society of Hotelmen, Edgar A. Whiting '29. These, together with Paul O. Reyneau '13 representing the Cornell Society of Engineers, Professor A. Wright Gibson '17 representing the College of Agriculture Alumni Association, and Dr. Donald W. Baker '29 representing the Veterinary College Alumni Association, elected Creed W. Fulton '09 a director-at-large. It was unanimously agreed to defer the election of two other directors-at large until the fall meeting of the board, which will be in Ithaca October 6.

Foster M. Coffin '12 announced his resignation as Alumni Representative of the University, to take effect when the University Trustees shall have appointed a new Alumni Secretary as executive head of the Alumni Office, but not later than December 31, 1939. Increasing development of Willard Straight Hall as the center of Campus life for students, alumni, and Faculty has led the board of governors of the Hall to appoint Coffin its full-time director effective July 1. He has been director since the building opened in 1925, and under his leadership the Hall has grown steadily in importance in the University, with more and more students participating in its varied activities. As the University's first Alumni Representative, Coffin also organized the present Alumni Office in 1920, and has since directed its operations, serving also as secretary of the Alumni Corporation and of the Association of Class Secretaries, along with his duties at Willard Straight Hall.

The directors of the Alumni Association elected Fulton to continue as president until the next convention, in 1940, and continued also in office Mrs. Osborn and Tuttle as vice-presidents, Coffin as secretary, and Archie C. Burnett '90 as treasurer.

The executive committee of the Alumni Association was organized with Fulton ex officio, Butler representing the Alumni Fund, Mrs. Osborn representing the Federation of Women's Clubs, Schmitt from the Association of Class Secretaries, Tuttle as the district director, and Gibson from the College alumni associations. A seventh member, it was agreed, would be elected at the meeting of the directors next fall.

STUDENT LAW ASSOCIATION officers for 1939-40 are Edwin A. Williams '40 of Buffalo, president; Robert S. Leshner '41, vice-president; and Mary E. Madden '40, secretary-treasurer.

JULIETTE MACMONNIES COURANT Prize of $50, open to Senior women for the best four-year record in Frerch, has been awarded to Virginia H. Bennett, daughter of Fred L. Bennett '05 of LeRoy. The Prize was founded in memory of Juliette M. Courant '16 by her mother.

About ATHLETICS

BASEBALL TEAM LOSES

The baseball team missed its chance last Saturday to settle the Eastern Intercollegiate League championship question once and for all by losing to Dartmouth, 3-1, at Hanover in its final game.

The team ended the twelve-game League campaign with nine victories and three defeats. The nine victories, all in a row, set up a new League record.

Harvard, by winning its two remaining games with Yale, can tie Cornell for the title.

Lendo of Dartmouth held Cornell to three hits, two of them from the bat of Walter J. Matuszczak '41 of Lowville. George F. Polzer, Jr. '40 of Staten Island went hitless and dropped to second place in the race for the Charles H. Blair '97 bat.

Polzer finished the season with a batting average of .413, compared with the mark of .432 held by Lupien of Harvard, the leader.

Walter J. Sickles '41 of Pearl River allowed six Dartmouth hits in losing his second game in eight League starts. He and James A. Young '40 of Cherry Creek held their rank, however, as the League's leading hurlers. Young won three games and lost none.

Sickles also connected for Cornell's one other hit.

The lack of hitting against Dartmouth dropped Cornell to fourth place in the team batting averages with a mark of .264, but the team improved its fielding average to .959 to lead the other six teams.

Polzer stole one base against Dartmouth to join Broberg of Dartmouth and Johns of Harvard in a three-way tie for the Princeton A. A. Cup, awarded annually to the League's best base-stealer.

Polzer also maintained his lead in total bases with his fourteen singles, three doubles, one triple, and one home run. Michael J. Ruddy '41 of Alden, Pa., likewise set the home run pace with two. Sickles, by adding two strikeouts in the Dartmouth game, continued to top the League in strikeouts with forty-four in eight games.

Before the Dartmouth game, Cornell played twice at Cooperstown, which is celebrating baseball's one hundredth year. Cornell lost to the University of Virginia, 8-1, June 15, and defeated Illinois Wesleyan, 3-2, in a ten-inning game June 16.

The team elected Polzer, who plays shortstop, captain to succeed Robert F. White '39 of Cleveland, Ohio.

POUGHKEEPSIE RACES

Cornell crews finished three, four, five at Poughkeepsie last Saturday—a showing disappointing to many alumni and Ithacans who followed the crews to the Hudson, but a distinct improvement over last year's record of two fifth places and a sixth.

The Freshman eight, undefeated in the sprint season, finished third behind Washington and Columbia, defeating Syracuse, California, and Wisconsin.

The Junior Varsity, with a poor record in early races, finished fifth ahead of Columbia and behind Syracuse, Washington, California, and Navy.

The Varsity, victor in three of its four early engagements and loser to Yale by ten feet in the Carnegie Cup Regatta, finished fourth, trailing California, Washington, and Navy and leading Syracuse, Wisconsin, and Columbia.

Cornell had to fight off Syracuse in a blazing finish to take fourth place in the four-mile Varsity race. Never a contender, Cornell started slowly in sixth place, moved up to fifth in the first one and one-half miles, dropped back to sixth midway in the race, regained fifth place with a mile and one-half to go, and hung on to fourth position in the final mile.

The Varsity tried hard to catch and overtake Navy in that last mile as Washington, up ahead, challenged California. But Navy responded to every Cornell bid and finished better than two lengths ahead.

Cornell fought off Syracuse to win by a half-length.

The Varsity times: California, 18:12 $\frac{3}{4}$  (new record; old record of 18:19 set by Navy in 1938); Washington, 18:14; Navy, 18:22 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Cornell, 18:31 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Syracuse, 18:34 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Wisconsin, 18:43; Columbia, 18:50.

The Junior Varsity started in fifth place and stayed there, ahead of Columbia, throughout the three-mile race. Columbia challenged near the finish and Cornell saved itself from last place only by a deck—some fifteen feet.

The Junior Varsity times: Syracuse, 13:56 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Washington, 13:57 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; California, 14:05 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Navy, 14:09 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Cornell, 14:25 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Columbia, 14:26 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

The Freshman eight was slow off the start of the two-mile race, trailed only by Columbia, but pulled up to fourth place in the first half-mile. At the mile mark Cornell was third and, with a half-mile to go, second. But there Columbia, coming from last place, overhauled Cornell and set sail for the leading Washington crew.

Columbia almost caught Washington as Cornell fell behind, holding a substantial advantage over Syracuse. As Washington won, Cornell trailed Columbia by nearly two lengths and finished a bit more than two lengths ahead of Syracuse.

The Freshman times: Washington, 9:31; Columbia, 9:32 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Cornell, 9:38 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Syracuse, 9:46 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; California, 9:49 $\frac{3}{4}$ ; Wisconsin, 10:04 $\frac{3}{4}$ .

After the regatta, James Lynah '05, Director of Physical Education and Athletics, disclosed that Coach Harrison Sanford and his assistant, Norman Sonju, had been re-engaged two months ago for the 1940 season.

The oarsmen elected James A. Young, Jr. '40 of Angelica, as commodore to succeed John R. Furman '39 of Elmira. Young rowed at No. 6 in the Varsity boat.

The boatings:

Varsity: Bow, Arthur A. Moak '39 of Brooklyn; 2, John W. Kruse '42 of Davenport, Iowa; 3, William E. Fisher, Jr. '40 of Stevens Point, Wis.; 4, Robert J. Harley '41 of Westfield, N. J.; 5, John R. Furman '39 of Elmira; 6, James A. Young, Jr. '40 of Angelica; 7, Clay R. Davis '39 of Scarsdale; stroke, Richard K. Collins '40 of Ithaca; coxswain, George A. Sears '40 of Brooklyn.

Junior Varsity: Bow, Richard G. Davis '41 of Arlington, Va.; 2, Peter C. Foote '41 of Milwaukee, Wis.; 3, Benjamin E. Dean '39 of Owego; 4, John Weikart '41 of Baltimore, Md.; 5, William D. Lotspeich '41 of Cincinnati, Ohio; 6, John C. Perry '41 of Ithaca; 7, Stanley W. Allen, Jr. '40 of Glendale, Ohio; stroke, Christian J. Haller '42 of Ithaca; coxswain, Charles E. Boak '41 of New Haven, Conn.

Freshman: Bow, Philip C. Morse, Jr., of Greenwich, Conn.; 2, DuBois L. Jenkins of New Paltz; 3, Edmund G. Miller of Pelham Manor; 4, Daniel Schwarzkopf of New Rochelle; 5, Franklin P. Eggert of Westfield; 6, William W. Paty, Jr., of Honolulu, Hawaii; 7, John G. Aldworth of Garden City; stroke, William N. Kruse of Davenport, Iowa; coxswain, Fred H. Guterma of West Newton.

FROM FAR BELOW . . .

By Robert L. Bliss '30

Well, next to the Cornell baseball team and crew, the King and Queen kept the place buzzing for a few days. Now that they've gone, we kind of miss them. They seemed like darned nice people. And after the tabloids got through stirring up circulation by being irate about the King's advance specifications on how his bed should be made, everyone seemed to settle down to just plain liking them. As one old codger, who watched with us as they went through Wappingers-Falls up Hyde Park way, said, "Well, if them two crackpots Hitler and Mussolini can call on each other and strut around in each other's countries, it'd be a pity if we Americans couldn't get along with nice people!"

One of the more heated topics of conversation is about the best way to get out to the Fair from town. The Pennsylvania Railroad gives you a nice ride from Penn Station to the exhibit area for a dime. The subway out of Grand Central does the same for a nickel but throws in better than a dozen stops and they let you out at the parking section and you have to hike it, or buy a push-wagon man to get you to where you want to be. The Eighth Avenue Subway, boarded at Lexington Avenue at Fifty-third Street (where they even take you down and up in escalators) is the shortest and best way we've found. A two-minute walk from the Club, a couple of stops and one change with no waiting—quick, clean and direct—lands you right between the amusement section and the exhibit area, just a spit from Heineken's Mill, which makes a nice home base to work out from, anyway.

Of course, if you have the feeling that you'd like to be pampered a bit, nothing baits your ego like that Fairway Yacht Club trip. Sumptuous commuters speed out every twenty minutes from the Yacht Club at Fifty-second Street and East River. Before you go, you can have anything from a bracer to vichyssoise and breast of guinea hen served on the water-level terrace with the river lapping at your ankles, cool like. Best time to go is when it's getting dark. You have all of the New York skyline turning on for you as you ride the tugboat swells up under Queensborough and Hell Gate bridges, and as you ease into Flushing Bay you're in the hoicest seats for the ten o'clock showing of the Fair's fireworks, which incidentally, is something. The trip takes forty minutes.

The rides in the Fair's amusement area are worthy of mention, as they have all the standard ones and some new departures.

It's remarkable when you think what a human being will pay to have a machine do to him! If you got half the bumps in a city-owned bus that you get in the Stratoship, you'd write a letter to the Times. And don't think the kids are the only ones that get a bump out of them. You see well-turned-out gents who might be Tulsa bankers or the mayor of Bangor, Maine, getting more lift than a sophomore does out of hell week. The parachute drop (controlled, of course) with ten great big aerial petticoats on the go all the time is the most popular ride, and pretty authentic all 250 feet of the way. Then there's a thing called a water bug, one of the best of the gang-'em-and-sock-'em school. Large wind-shield-enclosed motorized inner tubes driven like a car, and you can bump hell out of your neighbor as you tear around in the breakers. A supercharged midget car raceway, where even the bowl revolves as you pump up your pressure to get more speed—but that's for the quick and the dead. Somebody's going to come away on stumps some night.

SHOTS OF THE WEEK: Ted Edstrom '25, in from Sweden for the Fair. . . . A Fairway yachtload of Ned Sheridan '11, Frank Finch '11, John String '10, Bill Smith '38, Ben Rabe '36, Red Laughlin '36. . . . J. C. Rockwell '04 back from the Philippines, getting his bearings after being out there twenty-eight years. . . . A fresh crop of students on the town with their collective ear to the ground. . . .

WOMEN'S FUND GROWS

Two hundred fifty alumnae, back for Reunions, heard a report from Mrs. R. H. Shreve (Ruth Bentley) '02, chairman of the committee in charge, that the Federation Scholarship Fund had now passed $10,000, enough for one new scholarship at the University for a woman. Contributions have been made through fourteen Cornell Women's Clubs, and by 224 individuals, of whom fifty-seven have given $100 each. The committee will continue its work to finance additional scholarships with principal units of $10,000 each before next June, pledges being payable up to 1943.

Mrs. Shreve reported at the breakfast for all women Saturday morning in Willard Straight Memorial Room. Returning alumnae were welcomed by Olive G. Worden '31, president of the Cornell Women's Club of Ithaca, and she introduced Mrs. Robert C. Osborn (Agda T. Swenson) '20, president of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs, who presided. Mary H. Donlon '20, Alumni Trustee, briefly told of the importance of the work of alumnae to Cornell and of some of the needs of the University, and Sarah R. Steinman '39, this year president of WSGA, spoke of student activities.

Singing was led by Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist (Elizabeth H. Reigart) '19, and Della Cook Clark of Ithaca sang the "Alumnae Song" written by Alice L. Smith '20. A resolution of appreciation was voted to Edith W. Ouzts, AM '30, retiring social director of Willard Straight Hall, for her cooperation in the work of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs. Senior members of Mortar Board were guests of honor at the breakfast.

Annual meeting of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs Friday afternoon voted to affiliate with the new Cornell Alumni Association, and elected its president, Mrs. Osborn, and Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04 to represent the Federation on the Association's board of directors. By-laws were amended to provide for a new Council of the Federation, composed of the executive committee and the presidents of Cornell Women's Clubs, which will meet twice a year. Mrs. James W. Kideney (Isabel R. Houck) '22 of Buffalo was elected first vice-president of the Federation, and Ruth I. Stone '10 of Oak Park, Ill., was elected third vice-president. Mrs. Frederick D. Colson (Edna M. McNary) '00 was elected a director. Miss R. Louise Fitch, Dean of Women, reported on the administration of the two loan funds in her charge, the Dearstyne Fund established with a bequest from Florence E. Dearstyne '85, and the Alumnae Fund. The several reports of committees included that of Mrs. Simon H. Gage (Clara C. Starrett) '18, whose committee has been making a study of methods of awarding scholarships, and who urgently requested suggestions from all alumnae for use in the final report which will recommend procedure for handling of grants from the Federation Scholarship Fund.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Edmund E. Day was guest of honor at a tea in Willard Straight Hall for all alumnae.

ALUMNI FUND

It was reported that the memorial fund drive of the Class of 1939, under the chairmanship of Thomas I. S. Boak, Jr. and Madeleine B. Weil, had brought pledges to make annual gifts to the Alumni Fund from eighty percent of this year's Seniors. President Butler on behalf of the Alumni Fund presented Boak, Miss Weil, and Jansen Noyes, Jr. with copies of The Autobiography of Andrew D. White inscribed by President Day. Noyes was active in the memorial fund campaign, and was appointed 1939 men's Class representative to the Alumni Fund after Boak had been elected Class secretary.

The Alumni Fund approved the plan of coordinating the University's alumni activities through the new Cornell Alumni Association, and voted that its president should be designated, ex officio, as the Alumni Fund member of the Alumni Association's board of directors.

NOW, IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

Every year toward the end of June Mr. Foster Coffin has written around to everyone he can think of, asking for suggestions as to how Class Reunions might be improved. Through the decades, we have given him a couple of pretty good ones ourselves, such as placing an unlimited supply of matches around practically everywhere for the benefit of those Classes with no pockets in their Reunion costumes. The most pathetic sight in the world is a group of old grads away from home and with no pockets and no matches—nothing but a sentimental mood and the tobacco habit.

This year, however, the best idea will come from Mr. Henry Burgweger '04, who suggests that on and after the thirtieth Reunion of any Class the practice of attempting to call the Classmates by their given names be abandoned and that everyone who shows up shall adopt, and be addressed by, the common appellation "Charlie." He thinks Charlie is a good enough name for everybody to use, but if more variety is desired it may be obtained by having the even Classes stick to Charlie while the odd ones address one another as "George."

NEXT ISSUE JULY 13

This is our last weekly issue for this college year. The next ALUMNI NEWS will appear July 13, and it will contain accounts of the separate Class Reunions submitted by Class secretaries and Reunion chairmen, together with some of the group pictures of Reunion Classes. Material for this issue must reach us not later than July 3. We solicit also informal Reunion pictures if they come to us with the persons in them identified, and will return them after use if requested.

Our second summer issue will be published August 17, and we shall resume weekly publication September 28.

Mr. Burgweger's weakness has always been names. Although an excellent student in college and an astute business man in later life, he has always had a marked tendency to get names mixed up. When we sat next to him through Professor Catterall's course in English History 21 (that was in the cold winter of 1903, as we recall) he was always writing Henry VIII when he meant George III; Horace Walpole when he intended to say Cardinal Woolsey.

It will be all right with Comrade Burgweger if those members of a Class who make a fetish of remembering names (family, given, middle, and nick) continue to display their talent, but even such, under the Burgweger Charlie Plan, must give way a little and say Charlie Vincent, Charlie Crawford, Charlie Swift and Charlie Emery (George, of course, in the case of the odd Classes).

The scheme applies alike to men and women. Mr. Burgweger observes correctly that the old co-education barriers seem to have evaporated in some miraculous manner and it isn't bad having the girls around when one gets used to it. The only point he makes in this connection is that any girl who sticks around has got to be Charlie just like everybody else.

We think that Comrade Burgweger has got something there, and we pass the Charlie Plan on to the powers that be with our enthusiastic endorsement. Indeed, we are inclined to believe that the Burgweger Charlie Plan will one day rank in public esteem above the Dix Plan (thought up by Mr. Winthrop Yates Dix '89) and our own Free Match Plan for all Classes without pockets in their Reunion costumes.

OPEN CANCER HOSPITAL

New Memorial Hospital for the Treatment of Cancer and Allied Diseases, the latest unit in the medical center which includes Cornell Medical College, the New York Hospital, and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, was dedicated June 14, with Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former president of the University, as a speaker. The twelve-story building, erected at First Avenue and East Sixty-seventh Street in New York City at a cost of $5,000,000, is the largest of its kind in the world.

Dr. James Ewing, professor of Oncology at the Medical College, is director of Memorial Hospital; Dr. Frank E. Adair, assistant professor of Clinical Surgery, is attending surgeon and executive officer; and Dr. Lloyd F. Craver '15, assistant professor of Clinical Medicine, is attending physician and chairman of the Hospital's fellowship committee. These and other experts on cancer spoke at a scientific meeting in the auditorium of the new hospital before the dedication exercises.

Concerning THE FACULTY

FRANK E. GANNETT '98, University Trustee, was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws by Oglethorpe University and gave the Commencement address May 27. June 9 he spoke at a meeting of the Kansas State Editorial Association. In a debate, "Freedom of Speech: Should it be Curbed?" in the June issue of The Rotarian, he writes an article, "No! The Individual is His Own Censor."

DEAN DEXTER S. KIMBALL, Engineering, Emeritus, was one of two men awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering by Lehigh University June 13. The citation said, in part, "In the field of education he has added to our knowledge, stimulated thousands of young men to their lasting benefit, and endeared himself by his guidance, good will, and generous co-operation." This was Dean Kimball's fifth honorary degree.

PROFESSOR CARL L. BECKER, History, was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters by Columbia University June 6. In the citation he was called "devoted student and scholarly interpreter of the history of the American people and their ruling ideas."

PROFESSOR RICHARD BRADFIELD, Agronomy, spoke at the annual convention of the National Fertilizer Association, held at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 7. He told of the great improvements made in fertilizers in the last twenty-five years.

PROFESSOR JAMES W. PAPEZ, Anatomy, attended the annual meeting of the American Neurological Association at Atlantic City, N. J., June 5-7.

WILLARD W. ELLIS '01, librarian of the College of Agriculture, has been re-elected grand treasurer of the Grand Commandery of the State of New York, Knights Templar. He is a past grand commander of the State Commandery.

PROFESSOR LEONARD C. URQUHART '09, Structural Engineering, and Mrs. Urquhart are the only Ithacans with national bridge ratings, according to the American Contract Bridge League. A total of ten master points are necessary to receive such ratings.

ALBERT R. BRAND '33, research associate in Ornithology, and P. Paul Kellogg '29, instructor in Ornithology, have reported their experiments leading to the discovery that some birds do not hear ordinary human voice tones, but only sounds two octaves and more higher than middle C. The tests were made with an electric platform on which birds stood while feeding. They were trained to know that a whistling sound was a warning that their feet would get an electric shock. Then the sound was varied to measure the range of hearing.

MAY ATHERTON, instructor in Physical Education, will study dancing with Martha Graham in New York City early this summer. She will then teach dancing during Summer Session.

DR. ALFRED M. S. PRIDHAM, PhD '33, instructor in Ornamental Horticulture, has been elected president of Pi Alpha Xi, national honorary fraternity of floriculture and ornamental horticulture. The fraternity was founded at Cornell.

JANE S. HOSMER, daughter of Professor Ralph S. Hosmer, Forestry, was graduated cum laude from Smith College June 12.

CADET JAMES I. MUIR, son of Lieutenant Colonel James I. Muir, Military Science and Tactics, received his commission at the United States Military Academy June 12. Next day he married Lucile Grace of Honolulu, T. H., in the Academy Chapel.

PROFESSOR WILLIAM E. STANLEY, Civil Engineering, attended the annual convention of the American Water Works Association in Atlantic City, N. J., June 11-15. He read a paper on "A Safety Code for Water Distribution." Charles H. Capen, Jr. '13 spoke on "Wholesale Cost of Water" and Francis M. Dawson, MCE '13, discussed "Methods for Determining Water Hammer Pressure."

SUMMER THEATRE SHOWS

The Summer Theatre announces six stage productions in the Willard Straight Theater during Summer Session, and its film division will show five programs of motion pictures.

July 7 and 8 a Summer Theatre company will give "It Can't Happen Here," by Sinclair Lewis. The next Friday and Saturday evenings, July 14 and 15, Anton Chekov's "The Three Sisters" will be produced. Four one-act plays on New York State themes will be given July 21 and 22. July 28 and 29 the Theatre will give either Victor Wolfson's "Excursion" or "Our Town," by Thornton Wilder. August 2 and 5 "The Cardiff Giant" will be given, and the season will close with George Bernard Shaw's "Candida," August 8, 9, and 10.

First film of the Summer Session program will be "Mayerling," July 5, at 7:15 and 9:15. On successive Tuesday evenings two showings will be given of "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," with Franchot Tone '27 and others, July 11; "Grand Illusion" (also at 4:15), July 18; Charles Laughton in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," July 25; and "Un Carnet de Bal," August 1.

Willard Straight Is Open All Summer

Its cool rooms, quiet service, excellent restaurants, and Campus location looking down upon the Lake and valley are available the year 'round to alumni, their families and guests.

Ithaca is particularly attractive in summer. There are always leisurely people about, and someone at Willard Straight to tell you which of your old professors is in town, or to fix you up at the Golf Club.

Sometimes alumni drop in just for over night, only to remain for days and days, enjoying the freedom and comfort of Willard Straight while showing the family the loveliness of the Campus, and the country 'round about, where they went to college.

Plays in the Willard Straight Theater, summer night dances, art exhibits, Summer Session lectures—there's always something going on.

Rooms are $2.50 single; $3.50 double. It's always prudent, though frequently not necessary, to make reservations in advance.

The restaurant service in cafeteria, soda bar, main dining room, sandwich room, or on the terrace will somewhere match any taste or pocketbook.
