A PUBLICATION OF THE CORNELL HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Acknowledgements

The Editorial Board of this journal is deeply grateful for the generous support and advice of our two wonderful faculty advisors, Professors Holly Case and Claudia Verhoeven, without whom this entire project would have been impossible. We would also like to thank Professor Eric Tagliacozzo, the History Department at Cornell University, the SAFC, and the many students who took the time to submit their work to this publication.

On the Contributors

Denis Hurley is a freshman at Cornell University, studying government and economics. He is originally from Albany, New York.

Victoria Gao is a junior art history and physics major at Cornell University. She focuses mainly on twentieth-century photography and nineteenth-century western European prints and paintings. She is also a photographer with the Cornell Daily Sun. Her hometown is Marietta, Georgia.

Zachary Newkirk is a junior at Cornell University. He is studying history and government and plans to attend law school after his undergraduate studies. He hails from Gainesville, Florida, and is interested in nineteenth-century American and European history.

Caitlin McHugh graduated from Cornell University in December 2010. She received degrees in chemistry with honors and history with distinction. Caitlin is currently employed by the Institute for the Physical Sciences, Inc., located in McLean, Virginia. She is originally from Newtown, Pennsylvania.

Mark Collins is a senior at Cornell University, majoring in feminist, gender, and sexuality studies and government. His main historical focus centers on women's and gender history and the history of sexuality. After graduation, Mark plans to pursue a doctoral program in history. He is from North Smithfield, Rhode Island.

Robert Schur is a junior at Cornell University, majoring in history. He enjoys studying a variety of topics, especially unconventional aspects of history, though he has lately focused on early American history, with forays into Russian and Chinese history as well. After graduating, he would like to pursue either a law degree or a Ph.D. in history. He is originally from Chicago, Illinois.
