Davy Hoy Is Dead

Registrar of University Since 1895 Passes in 68th year—Health Was Poor for Some Time

Davy Hoy is dead.

Registrar of the University since 1895, David Fletcher Hoy '91 died early Saturday morning, December 6, of heart disease, after a brief illness. He had been in poor health for more than a year, in part the result of injuries received in April 1929. He was sixty-seven years old.

His death costs Cornell one who had become a part of the University's traditions. Celebrated in song, Davy Hoy was known to thousands of Cornellians. "Give my regards to Davy," the first line of the Bustonian Chorus, tells of the place he had in the life of the University and in the hearts of its sons and daughters.

Mr. Hoy came to Cornell in 1887 and remained until his death. He graduated in 1891, became assistant registrar, studied for a master's degree conferred in 1893, and became registrar in 1895.

It was his great interest in baseball that, indirectly, hastened his death.

For more than thirty years, Mr. Hoy was baseball adviser on the Athletic Council. It was his custom each spring to accompany the team on its trip to the South. He was aboard a bus carrying the players when it plunged off the road near Quantico, Va., on April 4, 1929. Mr. Hoy was cut about the head and face.

Since that time his health had declined. A few days ago he was stricken with heart trouble and complications set in that caused his death.

FIELD NAMED AFTER HIM

Mr. Hoy's interest in baseball brought him a singular honor in 1923, when the new baseball field west of Schoellkopf was dedicated and named Hoy Field. At that time The Alumni News said:

"The naming of the baseball field after David Fletcher Hoy, who is registrar, is a happy thought. To those of the minority who have stepped up to his desk and tried to slip something over on him, something less peaceful than a ball field seems more appropriate—a boxing arena, a bull pit, or the college abattoir. It is his instinct for the detection of crime and his frank disregard for the late Marquis of Queensberry that have won him prominent place in song and story. His renown at repartee has spread of its own weight, and the popular superstition is that Mr. Hoy hangs out in 'Morrill Number Three' and personally sends out bust notices."

The traditions surrounding Davy Hoy certainly created in those freshmen going into his presence for the first time a feeling of awe, but no one denies that he discharged his official duties with an impartiality that won him great respect.

DAVID FLETCHER HOY '91

He was devoted to the University in many ways. He served on the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, the Committee on University Policy, on the calendar, on credentials, and on examinations boards. He was editor of the Ten-Year Books of 1898 and 1908 and of the catalogues of Kappa Sigma, of which he was a member, in 1904, 1906, and 1912.

HIS CAREER

Mr. Hoy was born October 6, 1863, at Bovina, N. Y., the son of John Robertson Hoy and Isabella Wilson (Miller) Hoy. Before entering Cornell he attended the district school at Bovina Center and the Delaware Literary Institute at Franklin, New York.

As an undergraduate he took the science course and was a member of the Christian Association and the Presbyterian Union.

More Cornell Relations

Further Research Reveals that Thirty-two Per Cent of Freshmen Have Relatives Among the Alumni

Owing to the fact that a few freshmen omitted to list their Cornell connections on their registration cards, it is necessary to run a supplementary list of those who have Cornell relatives. The corrected percentage is 32.

Two names should be added to the list of new students whose fathers and mothers both attended Cornell, bringing the number of these to fourteen. They are

Parents	Child
Libby, Luther I. '06 and
Harriet Martin '10	Ruth
Slocombe, Edwin M. '04 and
Beatrice Gilson '04	Beatrice

The revised figures show that out of 1424 members of the new class, 458 have Cornell relatives totaling 832. The number of children of Cornell parents is 134. Of these 94 are sons, and 40 are daughters. Among the other relatives represented there are 134 brothers, 75 sisters, 31 aunts, 156 uncles, 3 great uncles, and 269 cousins. John Treman Mann is the grandson of John S. Waterman '77, and the son of Charles M. Mann '04.

BEGINNING IN AUGUST, 1931 the old entrance requirements for admission to the University of California (graduation from an accredited high school) will be replaced by the following: (a) evidence of high school graduation; (b) a record of at least fifteen high school units of which one-third shall be in prescribed subjects; (c) evidence of superior attainment in at least ten of the specified units.

David Hoy Is Dead

The other societies of which he was a member include Sigma Xi, Kappa Sigma, (he had been treasurer and trustee of the Cornell chapter since 1898, and had served as president of the national society), Quill and Dagger, and in the city, the Protective Police, of which he was a former captain, and the Town and Gown Club. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church. He was president of the Cornell Athletic Association in 1912.

On August 6, 1895, Mr. Hoy married Silence Howard of Butler College, who survives him. He also leaves one son, David Fletcher Hoy, Jr., of Glen Ellyn, Ill., '22, one grandson, David F. Hoy, '3rd, two brothers, William Wilson Hoy '95 of Santa Ana, Calif., and M. R. Hoy of Oil City, Pa., and two sisters, Mrs. M. Hoy Davieson, and Mrs. Jennie Hoy Archibald of Bovina.

Funeral services were held at Sage Chapel on December 7. Dr. Martin D. Hardin, minister of the First Presbyterian Church officiated. Interment was in Lake View Cemetery.

DR. FARRAND'S TRIBUTE

President Livingston Farrand of Cornell University said:

"It is doubtful if the death of any man connected with Cornell could leave a gap comparable to that created by the passing of Davy Hoy. For nearly forty years he has been an outstanding figure in Cornell life. What he did here will have a large and permanent place in the history of the University.

"To those who knew his warm heart and the generous sympathy that was his chief characteristic, the word that he has gone brings deepest sadness."

HOTEL SCHOLARSHIPS

The scholarships available for students in Hotel Administration have been awarded as follows: the New Jersey State Hotel Association Scholarship is to be shared equally by Harry S. Jackson, Jr. '32, Asbury Park; Milton C. Smith '32, El Paso, Tex.; and Hezzie G. Ward '31, Midland, Tex. The Savarins Scholarship was awarded to Ralph H. Bevier, '32, Hillsdale, Mich.; the Edward M. Tierney Memorial Scholarship to John H. Bullock '32, Boston; and the International Stewards Association scholarship to Edward D. Ramage '31, Bloomington, Illinois.

UNIONS' ASSOCIATION ELECTS

FOSTER COFFIN PRESIDENT

Foster M. Coffin '12, alumni representative and director of Willard Straight Hall, was elected president of the Association of College and University Unions at the annual convention at Brown University December 6. Edward S. Drake of Ohio State was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

ATHLETICS

QUADRANGULAR CREW RACE

A quadrangular regatta among the crews of Cornell, Harvard, Syracuse, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been scheduled for Spring Day, May May 23. The race will bring to Ithaca the three colleges that finished first, second, and third in last June's Poughkeepsie regatta and a traditional rival.

The four junior varsity crews and three freshmen crews (Harvard not competing) will also engage in the regatta, the largest scheduled for Cayuga since the intercollegiate spectacle of 1920.

Cornell will also row Yale and Princeton in the annual Carnegie Cup regatta at Derby on May 16 and will as usual participate in the Poughkeepsie regatta.

One of the most active fall rowing seasons in history has just been completed. Fine weather and last year's successes attracted a large number of candidates. Freshman oarsmen were trained on the water also, and during the fall as many as nine crews were boated.

Only three men of the sixteen oarsmen who comprised the varsity and junior varsity crews last year will be lost through graduation.

FOOTBALL IN REVIEW

The football team has closed a successful season, in spite of defeats by two major opponents, Columbia and Dartmouth. Cornell defeated Pennsylvania at Franklin Field for the first time in seven years, and that victory constitutes the measure of success for the 1930 campaign.

The Red and White faces next year with high hopes, and with ten of the thirteen players who faced the Quakers eligible next year, if they hurdle scholastic barriers. The number of veterans is the largest carried over a season in several years.

After a disappointing showing against Columbia in mid-season, Cornell reached its peak in the Dartmouth and Pennsylvania games. Princeton had been defeated at Princeton, the first major success, but in New York, Cornell ran into a Columbia eleven tuned to the minute and including Hewitt, star halfback, at his best. Hewitt won that game; it was his most notable feat of a season in which injuries kept him on the bench frequently.

Starting against minor opposition, Cornell rolled up high scores in its first three games, beating Clarkson Tech 66 to 0, Niagara 61 to 14, and Hampden-Sidney 47 to 6. These games indicated a weakness in defense, but against Princeton, Cornell demonstrated its best defensive work of the early season. Its offense failed to click and it was evident that considerable polishing was needed.

In all these games, Cornell had used the forward pass freely, and up until the Columbia game had completed more than fifty per cent of the passes that they attempted—a notable record.

The turning point came after the Columbia game. Against Hobart, Cornell scored fifty-four points, the reserves doing a great part of the scoring.

CLOSE GAME WITH GREEN

The Dartmouth game gave some hint of Cornell's power, particularly on the defense against a running game. Cornell's line play was at its usual high standard, but the backs were unable to cope with the craftily executed Dartmouth passes, and the Indians, getting a high percentage of their passes completed, scored the winning touchdown in the closing period, after Cornell had led, 13 to 12, up to that time.

Dartmouth lost only one game during the season, to Stanford, at Palo Alto, by the margin of one touchdown. With the Army, it ranks highest in the Eastern gridiron sector.

Against Pennsylvania, Cornell had everything. The team functioned smoothly, its running game was highly effective with the fine interference and blocking of the backs, and its forward passing was successful to a high degree, three passes leading directly to the two Cornell scores.

Viviano, whose work in the Thanksgiving Day game was highly praised by football observers, gave a fine demonstration of line plunging. The entire team played heads-up football all the way, the result of a sound training in the fundamentals of the game.

Viviano was the high scorer of the eleven, getting sixteen touchdowns for ninety-six points. He ranked fourth among Eastern scorers.

Handleman scored eight touchdowns and one point after touchdown for 49 points, Beyer scored 36, Cornish 24, Captain Hunt 20 (all points after touchdowns), Pentecost 12, Stevens 12, Smith 6, Lueder 6, Ross 6, Larson 3, and Lundin 1.

Cornell scored 273 points in eight games and had 63 points scored against it.

The season record:

Cornell 66, Clarkson Tech 0
Cornell 61, Niagara 14
Cornell 47, Hampden-Sidney 6
Cornell 12, Princeton 7
Columbia 10, Cornell 7
Cornell 54, Hobart 0
Dartmouth 19, Cornell 13
Cornell 13, Pennsylvania 7.

ON HONOR ROLLS

Five Cornell football players have been mentioned in the current selections of All-America and All-Eastern football teams.

Viviano, halfback, was chosen on the Associated Press All-Eastern eleven, the choice of more than 100 sports writers and coaches in regional balloting. Viviano received forty-four votes, ranking second among the backfield choices only to Macaluso of Colgate.

Captain Hunt was named right guard on the third team, and the two Martinez-Zorrilla brothers, Chris, right tackle, and Jose, right end, received honorable mention on the All-Eastern squad.

On the Associated Press All-America squad, Viviano, Hunt, and Beyer were given honorable mention.

BASKETBALL THIS WEEK

The basketball team will open its 1930-31 campaign in the Drill Hall December 13, meeting Niagara in a non-league game.

The team has been taking shape during the past three weeks, but it still lacks a good center. There are three men who have played the position as substitutes during the past two seasons.

In the guard department, there is plenty of experienced material headed by Captain Murphy. The forwards are headed by Zahn, who earned a place as a sophomore last year.

The schedule this year does not particularly favor Cornell in the matter of league games, as the last five contests in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball Association will be played away from home.

The veterans from last year include Zahn and Kendall, forwards; Schrueder, Young, and Clarenbach, centers; Captain Murphy, Furman, Donovan, and Jervis, guards. There are two promising sophomore forwards, Lipinski and Hatkoff.

The complete schedule:

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

December	13	Niagara at Ithaca
	18	Clarkson at Ithaca
	20	Rochester at Rochester
	22	Buffalo at Buffalo
	31	Ohio State at Columbus
January	1	University of Ohio at Athens
	2	Cincinnati at Cincinnati
	10	Yale at Ithaca
	17	Columbia at Ithaca
February	4	Alfred at Ithaca
	7	Pennsylvania at Ithaca
	11	Dartmouth at Ithaca
	14	Princeton at Ithaca
	21	Pennsylvania at Philadelphia
	23	Columbia at New York
	28	Princeton at Princeton
March	7	Yale at New Haven
	14	Dartmouth at Hanover

WRESTLING OUTLOOK BRIGHT

The wrestling team is preparing for its 1931 season, with the outlook for a successful team bright. More than 150 men are practicing on both the varsity and freshman squads.

Although three intercollegiate champions, Trousdell, 125-pound class, Captain Johnson, 165-pound class, and Wakeman, 175-pound class, have been lost by graduation, the squad includes several veterans and some promising material.

Sophomores include Cothran, 165-pound class, undefeated with the freshmen last year; Penny, football center 175-pound class, also undefeated last year, and Lundin, another football player, unlimited class.

The schedule:

WRESTLING SCHEDULE

January	17	Columbia at New York
February	7	Syracuse at Syracuse
	14	Lehigh at Ithaca
	21	Pennsylvania at Ithaca
	28	Penn State at Ithaca
March	7	Ohio State at Columbus
	13-14	Intercollegiates at New Haven

A NEW BRIDGE

Where Fall Creek leaves its gorge to burst out into Beebe Lake, a stone arch bridge now spans the flood. It completes the shore-line path around the lake. It should prove an excellent place from which to dive into the swimming pool which lies directly beneath it.

OBITUARIES

MRS. LUCY MURRAY BARTO '91

Ludy Murray (Mrs. Daniel O.) Barto died at her home in Urbana, Ill., on October 13. She was born in Eureka, Calif., the daughter of John S. and Jane Deuchar Murray. She received the degree of A.B., and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She was married in 1892 to Daniel O. Barto '77, who died in 1921.

HULDAH E. ADAMS '17

Huldah Ellen Adams, assistant librarian at the Biblical Seminary in New York, died at the Flower Hospital in New York on November 21. She was born in Silver Bay, N. Y., on December 16, 1894, the daughter of James and Anne Bartlett. She received the degree of A.B. and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

ROMAN J. GREIL '21

Roman Jacob Greil, a vice-president of the Commercial Investment Trust Company, died in New York on November 15, of spinal meningitis. He was born in Montgomery, Ala., on October 1, 1898, the son of Nathan and Anna Roman Greil. He received the degree of LL.B. and was a member of Zeta Beta Tau. His mother and a sister survive him.

THEODORE W. PENNOCK '10

Theodore Eddy Pennock, president and general manager of the Standard Automatic Machine Company, died on October 20 at his home in Rochester, N. Y. He was born in Saratoga, N. Y., on June 5, 1886, the son of James W. and Amelia Wilson Pennock. He took two years of mechanical engineering. His mother, his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Barrows Pennock, and two sons survive him.

COUNTRYMAN WINS PRIZE

The Cornell Countryman won two cups for excellence in magazine publishing at the annual convention of the Agricultural College Magazines Associated at Chicago last month.

One cup was awarded for presenting the best magazine and another for the best cover pages throughout the year.

The publication also won third prize in the contest for the best home economics section.

THE CLUBS

BOSTON WOMEN

The Club held its first meeting of the year on November 22, at the home of the president, Mrs. Horace Van Everen (Alice L. Berkefeld) '91. Twenty-one members were present. Plans were made for a luncheon to be given by the club for all visiting Cornell women at the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the American Association of University Women. This anniversary will be celebrated in Boston next April.

ROCHESTER

William M. Vanneman '31 was the speaker at the luncheon on November 26, with members of the University of Pennsylvania Club of Rochester joining in the meeting. Vanneman is president of the Cornell Crew Club, an undergraduate organization of wearers of the rowing C. He rowed in the two winning junior varsity boats of 1929 and 1930, stroking the crew last spring. The speaker's father, C. Reeve Vanneman '03, was in the audience.

BOOKS

A TEXT BOOK ON WRITING

Highways in College Composition. By Homer A. Watt and Oscar Cargill, Professors in Washington Square College, New York University. New York. Prentice-Hall, Inc. 1930. 205 cm., pp. xvi, 750. Price, $2.

This is a decidedly business-like, systematic treatment of the problem of composition-writing for college students. The writers are of course well aware that such a book cannot make a writer; but they are fully justified in holding that "a class that follows a carefully planned textbook will progress more surely and more logically in the acquisition of power than will one which gropes its way without a book under the uncertain guidance of a half-experienced teacher."

The authors have had experience in teaching college students in half a dozen States and have endeavored to meet the needs of all sections of the country and of all types of students. They have had in mind the student as he is, not as he ought to be or may be after graduation.

In writing on the theory of composition they have endeavored to be entertaining; and we think they have succeeded admirably in this respect without losing dignity or cheapening the book. They present the so-called "rules" of writing not as arbitrary commands but rather as the results of the long experience of the writing guild in adapting the expression of thought to the particular type of audience for whom it is intended. Their admonitions are well fortified by an admirable body of selections from a variety of authors, classical English and modern; among these we note two Cornellians, Professor Thomas N. Carver, Ph.D. '94, of Harvard and Elwyn B. White '21.

There is plenty of useful and fresh apparatus in the way of exercises and suggestions for theme-subjects. The Digest of the Essential Rules in Composition will be found valuable for reference. The valuable analytic table of contents (seven pages) and the careful index (eight pages) make it easy to find any topic or selection quickly. The volume will at once take its place in the front rank of books of its class, as a standard work for college students and a reading and reference book for the amateur writer.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINE ARTICLES

In Science for November 21 is printed Professor Georg von Hevesy's introductory lecture on "The Age of the Earth." He seems to decide in favor of about three billion years.

In Torrey for September-October Professor Walter C. Muenscher, Ph.D. '21, writes on "Some Changes in the Weed Flora of Whatcom County, Washington."

In Bird-Lore for September-October Professor Arthur A. Allen '08 presents "The Hell-Diver's Story," illustrated with some of his own photographs.

In Indogermanische Forschungen for October Professor Herbert C. Elmer '83, A Latin Grammar is reviewed by J. B. Hoffman. In the issue for January Dr. William T. M. Forbes '08-9 Grad. had a note on "The Phaistos Disc."

In The Journal of Social Forces for October Professor Boyd H. Bode, Ph.D. '00, Conflicting Psychologies of Learning is reviewed by Levi L. Bernard and J. S. Bernard. The same writers also review Professor Walter B. Pillsbury, Ph.D. '96, A History of Psychology.

In The London Times Literary Supplement for July 17 there was a review of Dr. Solomon A. Rhodes '20, The Cult of Beauty in Charles Baudelaire.

In The Graduate Magazine of the University of Kansas for November Professor Edward L. Nichols '75 writes "Recollections of William Suddards Franklin," Kansas '87, who took his D.Sc. here in 1901. There is a portrait of Franklin, and there is added an appreciation of him by Dr. Vernon L. Kellogg, '91-2 Grad. Professor Frank H. Hodder writes an obituary of Selden L. Whitcomb.

WILL ALUMNI ABSORB

FURTHER EDUCATION?

HOW MUCH education will an alumnus consent to absorb? Speculation on this fruitful topic might well arise from a few paragraphs devoted to adult education in the report of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Corporation, read at the recent convention and published in our issue of November 27.

The mistake that one commonly falls into in discussing alumni is generalization. Alumni are individuals. There might be as wide variations between the mental habits of two alumni with similar undergraduate backgrounds as there would be between wholly dissimilar persons. Whether a majority of the alumni would be interested in renewing their intellectual contacts is not really the question. One would guess that a majority would not. Many would resent the suggestion that they had ever been broken. Others would reject the idea on the ground of inexpediency, preoccupation, or some overpowering personal inhibition not subject to modification through group action.

Many others will welcome the offering. This attitude will not be dependent wholly on their measure of success as undergraduates in scholarly effort, nor wholly on their tendencies since graduation. The decision in many cases will depend on the manner in which the proposal is offered, its convenience, its likelihood of being pleasing as well as beneficial.

If an institute is organized, as suggested in the report, either directly by the University, or indirectly by the alumni association, and if it embodies lectures and courses that would have an appeal to the general public, it is highly probable that it will appeal also to Cornell alumni in sufficient numbers to make the plan feasible.

The problem at first will be, not how to interest everyone, but how to work out the institute practically so that it will attract enough subscribers to insure its success, and broadly enough so that it can find usefulness year after year.

This proposal is certainly in the minds of many. It has seemed important enough to many colleges to be worth considerable effort and expense. It has had successful trials often enough to justify a certain amount of confidence. We hope the Alumni Corporation will follow their preliminary discussion through to definite, specific offers of some such institute, will begin broad and easy, and follow through with subsequent sessions if warranted by enthusiasm of the sort that brings repeat orders.

MCGRAW HALL

Those who tread the Campus today are apt to think of McGraw Hall as "just one of the original buildings." It is more than that.

After Ezra Cornell had persuaded the New York Legislature to accept his gift of $500,000 to be joined with the Morrill Land Grant Fund to found a University at Ithaca, his friend John McGraw provided for building the Hall that now bears his name; therefore it is a memorial to the friendship of these two distinguished men.

When the walls of this building were rising, John Henry Comstock—then a student earning his way—helped to unload stone for the walls. Between loads he studied biological science, to which later he became one of the most distinguished contributors; also, when the building was completed, he lived in a tower room as master of the chimes; therefore into the walls there was built, and into the bells there was rung something of the life blood of one of the greatest of the sons of Cornell.

In the tower through many years the Jennie McGraw chimes rang joyously, and the clock that John McGraw gave marked the swift hours.

In the lecture room—second floor north—students listened to the inspired and inspiring lectures of Professor Burt Green Wilder; even students of engineering and agriculture took "six lectures in hygiene" and learned not only how to care for their bodies, but also gained high ideals of the clear and effective use of language.

In the lecture room—first floor south—Professor William A. Anthony, assisted by Professor George S. Moler, told us of the physical world, with admirable illustrative experiments which in such skillful hands, never failed.

The University Library and Reading Room in those meager days were in the central section of McGraw Hall, first floor. Professor Willard Fiske not only was professor of North European languages, but also was Librarian. I remember that he used to take groups of students whose work was chiefly in field or workshop, through the book stacks, showing collections, and trying to awaken something of the enthusiasm for printed pages with which, even then, he was filled.

In those days the janitor of McGraw Hall was an old Englishman called familiarly "Uncle Josh." His back was bowed and his gait was uncertain; a Gladstone-like beard fringed his wrinkled old face, and his voice quavered in a senile treble. He was responsible for the heating of McGraw Hall, and he bent his weary old back shoveling coal into the basement furnace and shoveling out ashes. Occasionally enthusiasts for ventilation opened Library windows. One day I met Uncle Josh and he pointed to an open window and said, with tears in his voice, "You see they're heatin' up the Campus again." A. W. S. '78

VASSAR NOW HAS faculty and officers group insurance. The cost to members of the staff is $7.20 per thousand a year; but the trustees pay the entire premium for the initial $1,000 for each member of the faculty and administration for the first three years.

THE WEEK ON THE CAMPUS

DAVY HOY'S DEATH is the last of the series that has made 1930 a black year in Cornell history. Since he came to Ithaca in the summer of 1877 his life was associated with our University without a break; he was active in service as registrar up to the time of his death. I need not tell you what an extraordinary impression he made upon Cornellians of the past forty years. There is probably no other name which is such a household word wherever the thought of Cornell brings memories of days upon our stony hills. The familiar words of the Bustonian Chorus helped make "Davy" a byword for ferocity; a ferocity which has been affectionately and proudly cherished in recollection. Freshmen, aghast at the terrific legends, would tremble so that they could hardly sign their names when they progressed in line toward the Registrar's office. And yet those who knew him well had no experience of the famous ferocity. It is not too much to say that the baseball teams of the last thirty years loved him. The boys of his fraternity, Kappa Sigma, gave him a watch only a couple of months ago, as a small indication of their regard and appreciation of his unwearying labor in their interest. And there must be many who, like the writer, first entered his office with quaking knees but with lips muttering uneasy defiance ("he can't pull any of his stuff on me!") and who were disarmed by a kindly and helpful consideration which it would be hard to match anywhere. Teefie Crane is dead; Zinck has been dead these many years; now Davy is gone; and how many of the voices that used to sing the Bustonian Chorus are silent now! We are getting old, my friends, getting old. Let us be glad that the heedless young voices are still bellowing that merry doggerel, "Give my regards to Davy. . . ."

FRIDAY THE FIFTH was Polo Day. The Sun ran a double-page spread on the achievements of polo in Cornell and its prospects (with a nice bit of advertising to fill out). You may be surprised to know that $47,000 has been raised for the construction of a new riding hall. Such a hall, with stables, would cost about $150,000. Robert E. Treman '09 and Major Ralph Hospital have been chiefly instrumental in obtaining the pledges. Of course the local R.O.T.C. is ardently supporting the project. The Army has supplied the polo horses (no, not ponies; horses) and presumably will continue to do so. It would be a pity if we should get our riding hall built about the time the Army discards its last horse. Probably there is no reason for alarm. The Army will always keep at least one horse to justify 5,000 officers in wearing spurs. Also, one will be necessary as a model for equestrian statues of generals. There is no sense in putting up a marble statue of a general riding in a sedan.

THE OFFICER'S BALL, an important social fixture, was held in Willard Straight Memorial Room on Friday, December 5. The committee was headed by William D. Hamilton '31 of Cleveland.

THE DETROIT Symphony Orchestra played a double-header here on Wednesday. In the afternoon an "educational" concert was given, under the leadership of Victor Kolar, assistant conductor. The audience was composed largely of school-children, but of course plenty of adults seized the opportunity to hear Wagner, Haydn, Saint-Saëns, Schubert, Ravel, and Liszt. In the evening Gabilowitsch led his orchestra, with a program in which Franck's Symphony was the high spot. Every seat in Bailey Hall was taken, and about a hundred or more people were turned away. This is interesting. What with hard times, what with the competition of the radio, what with a matinee and evening performance, the Music Committee is getting the biggest audiences in its history.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB put on three one-acters, Eugene O'Neill's "Bound East for Cardiff," Essex Dane's "Happy Returns," and George Ade's "Speaking to Father." Awards of the Order of St. Ginesius, second class, to James F. Hirshfeld '34 of Detroit, Mich., and Stephen H. Tolins '34 of New York.

THE MEN'S DEBATE CLUB argued with Harvard in Boston on Saturday night. The subject was "Resolved that the Foreign Indictment of American Culture is Justified." This was the resolution debated with the German students a few weeks ago. Harold F. Drake '31 of Montreal, Can. and Edward T. Horn '31 of Ithaca upheld Cornell's contention. The debate was broadcast from WNAC.

THE ART GALLERY is showing an interesting exhibition of the work in oils and water colors of Randall V. Davey '09. Mr. Davey, whose work appears in some of the best American Galleries, is an artist of established position whose native point of view and novelty of treatment have been favorably received by the critics.

THE SECOND CAMPUS CHEST drive for various good causes, with the backing of the C. U. R. W., got under way toward the end of the week. The quota is $5,000; of this the C. U. R. W. will receive half; the American Red Cross will have $1,200, Cornell-in-China $500, the Student Council General Fund $250, the cheerleaders $240, and overhead $210. Robert C. Groben '31 of Buffalo is in general charge of the campaign.

MYRON TAYLOR HALL, the great new Law School, lifts its huge bones into the sky. The steel work will be done in about a month.

DR. G. CANBY ROBINSON, director of the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical College Association, spoke here on December 2. It was nice to have this visit from our New York division, with which we Ithacans feel out of touch. "The purpose of the Medical Center," said Dr. Robinson, "is to be come with the Rockefeller Institute the greatest center of medical research in the world. We have this as our goal and it seems a fair one, for we have every facility at our disposal. . . . Not only do we have our own laboratories but our own hospital with one thousand beds, doctors' and nurses' quarters, and in the future we dare to hope for dormitories for the students and for Faculty apartments."

CHARLES W. MANLY '34 of Ithaca is to receive the Langley Memorial Medal, as a posthumous award to his father, Charles W. Manly '98, who was the first pilot of the first airplane, that of Dr. Langley. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes will present the award, and at the same time will give an identical medal to Commander Byrd. This honor has hitherto been awarded only five times.

PROFESSOR James K. Wilson of the Department of Agronomy is one of the three scientists who are to share the $5,000 annual award of the American Society of Agronomy for nitrogen research. The same award was made to Professor Lyon '91 in 1928.

"ELIZABETH, Alice, Gladys and Rose Went to the game and they damn near froze.

'Pumps and silk stockings are not enough clothes,'

Said Betty to Alice and Gladys to Rose.

"Who is that large and fleshy hero
Who's wearing linen pants at zero?
Don't worry, dear, them referees
Is always much too dumb to freeze.

"Of all the pests who homeward roll
From Crescent, Stadium, or Bowl,
The one who always makes me mad
Is the inebriated grad.
You'd hardly think he'd feel so proud
To snap his luncheon in the crowd."

—Robert Browning in The Ithaca Journal-News.

Your Business and Your Family

You don't have to be an egotist to wonder what would happen to your business without your guiding hand at its helm, or your constructive energy pushing it forward. Man power is admittedly the mainspring of business, and loss of man power usually means loss of capital or earning power.

You can replace that loss in the event of your death, or the death of a partner, through Business Life Insurance.

Their words have wings as swift as light

An Advertisement of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company

WE LIVE and work as no other people have ever done. Our activities are pitched to the swiftness of the instantaneous age.

Whatever happens, wherever it happens and however it may affect you, you may know it immediately over the wires or the channels of the air that carry men's words with the speed of light. Business and social life are free from the restrictions of time and distance—for practically any one, anywhere, may at any time speak with any one, anywhere else.

The widespread and co-ordinated interests of the nation depend upon an intercourse that less than sixty years ago was not possible in a single community. This is the task of the telephone wires and cables of the Bell Telephone System—to make a single community of our vast, busy continent wherein a man in Los Angeles may talk with another in Baltimore or a friend in Europe as readily as with his neighbor.

It is the work of the Bell Telephone System to enable friends, families and business associates to speak clearly and immediately with one another, wherever they may be. Its service is as helpful and accessible on a village street as in the largest cities.

To match the growing sweep and complexity of life in this country, to prepare the way for new accomplishments, the Bell System is constantly adding to its equipment and bettering its service.

To this end, its construction program for 1930 has been the largest in its history. This System at all times accepts its responsibility to forward the development and well-being of the nation.
