WHILE the football team was smiting St. Bonaventure in the crowded Crescent, the soccer team, in the adjoining lot, was fighting a magnificent battle with Pennsylvania before a throng of fifty-three spectators. (This reckoning was made in the middle of the second quarter.) The score, as you may have forgotten, was 4 to 3 in Penn's favor. The game, a most crucial one in the college series, was the first defeat of Nicky Bawlf's versatile and valiant team.

SOCCER, everywhere outside of America, is accepted as the most spirited and enlivening game Man has devised. All England is in anguish while supremacy is contested by the Tottenham Hotspurs and the Wolverhampton Wanderers. In Japan Patagonia, and imperial Spain, on unploughed pampas and in tilt-yards once used for jousts and tournaments, soccer is played in a hundred languages but with only one set of rules. Do we turn from the heart-stirring peripeteias of soccer to the mass-ruckuses of American Rugby because our football is a better game or merely because we are more used to it? Probably it is because more of the thrills arise from united feeling in the grandstand than from the evolutions of two dozen players on the field.

THE LOSS of a game does not seem especially important when one stands with only fifty-two spectators. When one sits with forty thousand Cornell rooters one's enthusiasm, multiplied by 40,000, would generate enough power to light and heat Philadelphia. For this reason attendance on the Pennsylvania game is urged. There will be forty thousand Cornell rooters.

AN AUTOMATIC traffic direction system, centrally controlled, has been installed at all the principal downtown street intersections. The police are now busy training autoists and pedestrians to obey the red, green, and yellow lights. Autoists and pedestrians, fascinated by the new game, are docilely obeying instructions. The autoists, obedient mechanical units of a mechanical civilization, will continue to heed the lights. The pedestrians, in whom some tradition of independence persists, will disobey the signals and the police regulations whenever they desire. The police will then strengthen the regulations, insert strongly-worded warnings in the newspapers, and enforce the ordinances rigorously for a time. They will then bow to the public will, and will let the pedestrians do as they please. The stern regulations will remain on the books, unrepealed.

A NEW DOMECON baby, Louise, has been installed in the nursery of the Domecon practice house. Louise is seven months old, healthy and normal. It is expected that she will uphold the record of the ten preceding practice babies, of whom only one has ever been ill, and that for only one day. The babies are not kept long at Cornell, partly because the supply of fresh babies remains steady and partly because the affectionate attentions of all the students of House Practice 126 (required of all seniors in the college) would end by giving the child an undue sense of his own importance.

PETER DOMECON, Louise's predecessor, has been quoted as saying, in an interview exclusive with this journal: "My college days were the happiest of my life. Now that I am caught in the daily grind of Reading, Spelling, and Arithmetic, I often think of the happy days at Cornell, when I used to demonstrate the care and feeding of babies. I may say without false modesty that I scored a personal hit, and that my courses were popular. I had some painful moments, of course, as when an F-student, using me in an exam, busted flat in Safety-Pin Technique. Whatever complaint was made about the other courses, no one ever said that Baby-Handling was dry."

A SERIES of sixteen lectures on child hygiene, child feeding, and the fundamental principles of child psychology as they apply to child behavior, to be given in Ithaca beginning November 10, has been announced by the College of Home Economics. The speakers will be Dr. Helen Bull '11, physician of the Nursery School, Professor Helen Monsch, head of the Department of Foods and Nutrition, Professor Paul J. Kruse of the Division of Education, and Dr. Nellie L. Perkins, director of the Nursery School.

NATIONAL APPLE WEEK was celebrated in Ithaca by a gift from the Pomology Department to the school children of fifty-five bushels of New York grade A apples. Professor Joseph Oskamp made the presentation, mentioning the old slogan of the daily apples' power to give a doctor leisure.

THE CORNELL CHAPTER of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, were hosts over the week-end to the sixth annual conference of the Eastern Interscholastic Publications Association. About seventy-five delegates attended, representing high and prep school publications in New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. Round table discussions, visits to the Cornell Daily Sun offices and the Empire State School of Printing, and the awarding of prizes to newspapers and magazines were on the business program, and through the courtesy of the Cornell Athletic Association, the delegates saw the St. Bonaventure game.

THE NEWLY APPOINTED CABINET of the C. U. C. A. for this year is headed by Victor L. Butterfield '27 of East Lansing, Michigan, who was vice-president last year. Ralph T. Seward '27 of New York is vice-president and Donald E. Huntington '27 of Webster Groves, Mo., is secretary. Other cabinet members, representing special committees are Karl D. Wood '20, vocational council; Imre Domonkos '27 of Irvington, N. J., dormitory and rooming house discussion group; Frederic W. Hodge '27 of Owego, librarian; Samuel P. Mason '27 of Meyersdale, Pa., fraternity discussion group; Frederic W. Huntington '28 of Webster Groves, Mo., union meetings; Henry S. Krusen '28 of East Orange, N. J., editor of The Barnes Hall Bulletin; and Donald A. Nesbitt '28 of Dayton, Ohio, conferences.

ATMOS, MECHANICAL ENGINEERING honorary society, has elected Charles S. O'Neil '27 of Ithaca, William S. Schneider '27 of Fulton, William W. Starke '27 of Warsaw, Theodore U. Blake '28 of Cleveland, Elmo Caruthers, Jr., '28 of Fort Smith, Ark., Gordon L. Carson '28 of Buffalo, John W. Fitzgerald '28 of Brooklyn, Harold Hoekelman '28 of New York, Edward C. Howe, Jr., '28 of Denver, John D. Mickle '28 of Chatham, Edwin O. Tupper '28 of Upper Montclair, N. J., and Richard V. Wakeman '28 of Quincy, Mass.

THE FIRST of the newly organized Sunday Forums for Women, held this week, was addressed by Miss R. Louise Fitch, Dean of Women. These meetings are for students who are interested in questions of social, civic, religious, and international importance.

RICHARD H. EDWARDS, Executive Secretary of the C. U. C. A., was the Sunday evening speaker at the informal gathering in Willard Straight Hall this week. He spoke on "Undergraduate Life on Twenty-four Campuses." Under the auspices of the Institute of Social and Religious Research, Mr. Edwards made an intensive study of a comprehensive list of problems at twenty-four universities, the results of which are soon to be published. Associated with him were Professors J. M. Artman of Chicago and C. F. Rugh of California, and Galen Fisher, secretary of the Institute. Mr. Edwards also will conduct an open Forum on the many problems suggested by his research, at Sunday morning meetings held in Barnes Hall after the Sage Chapel services.

Alumni to Hear of Plan

Trustee's Program for Physical Development of University Will be Presented by J. DuPratt White '90

Although alumni generally have knowledge of the fact that the Board of Trustees has been for some years engaged in the preparation of a comprehensive plan for the University's physical development during the next fifty years or so, there is little definite information as to the philosophy behind the planning and the concrete aims of the Trustees.

J. DuPratt White '90, chairman of the University Committee on Buildings and Grounds and vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees, will discuss the plan at the convention of the Cornell Alumni Corporation. Mr. White will appear on the program on Friday afternoon, November 26, and with the aid of lantern slides will trace Cornell's growth from 1868 to 1976.

Another subject of no little moment at the Philadelphia convention will be the consideration of a plan that will practically guarantee several candidates in the field each year in the elections of Alumni Trustees of the University. Under the existing custom almost every spring sees only one more candidate than there are positions to be filled: three candidates for the usual two places, four candidates on those relatively rare occasions when there are three places to be filled.

The Board of Directors of the Cornell Alumni Corporation has appointed a committee on ways and means of remedying the present unsatisfactory situation. Andrew J. Whinery '10 is chairman of the committee that will present its proposal to the convention. The other members of Whinery's committee are Margaret L. Stecker '06, R. W. Sailor '07, and Harold Flack '12.

Round Table Discussions

The round table discussions scheduled for Saturday morning, November 27, promise to introduce a novel note into Cornell conventions. Alumni interested in these special subjects will have their choice between discussions of the relations between the University and the business world, of athletics in its broader aspects, and of alumni and undergraduate publications.

The Board of Directors of the Corporation will be elected at the business session on Friday morning. The following nominees have been presented by various clubs:

District No. 1, Central New York: Thomas I. S. Boak '14; District No. 2, Metropolitan New York: Mrs. Arthur R. Coelho (Katharine Rodger) '17, and Winthrop Taylor '07; District No. 3, Eastern New York: Charles A. Taussig '02; District No. 4, Western New York: Dr. Floyd S. Winslow '06;

District No. 5, New England: Arthur P. Bryant '00; District No. 6, Middle Atlantic: Alfred D. Warner '00; District No.

7, Keystone: C. Rodman Stull '07; District No. 8, Southern: Henry M. Eaton '90;

District No. 9, Great Lakes: Conant Van Blarcom '08; District No. 10, Central: Newton C. Farr '09; District No. 11, Western: Oliver A. Reller '15; District No. 12, Pacific: Mrs. F. E. Yoakum (Wilhelmine Wissmann) '11 and Paul Overton '00.

William M. Irish '90, general chairman of the convention committee, is receiving a gratifying response to the publicity which has been going out to several thousand alumni during the last few weeks. There is every indication at the present writing that the records of past conventions will be exceeded, with greater number of out-of-town visitors and a greater number of delegates from the constituent clubs. The high water mark for the clubs was reached in New York two years ago, with 47 clubs represented. It seems likely that the favorable geographical location of Philadelphia, coupled with the attractions of the Pennsylvania game and the Sesqui-Centennial, will give the honors to this Seventh Annual Convention.

SPORT STUFF

The regular scribe for this mirror of customs and fashions is busy this week. Most of his time is spent answering letters in which the prospective spectator cancels all his gifts to the University because the seats seem to be outside the County. The worst thing ever happening to football ticket sellers was when the field was shortened to a hundred yards. This abolished the fifty-five-yard line and one of the fifty-yard lines.

T. S.

MEMORIAL COMMITTEE MEMBERS

E. Vail Stebbins '93, Eads Johnson '99 and Antonio Lazo '07 have been added to the Cornell War Memorial Committee.

PROFESSOR BRISTOW ADAMS spoke on "French Farm Life" and Professor Emery N. Ferriss spoke on "What High Schools are For" at the annual Farmers' Week held at Canton this week.

MISS MARY E. DUTHIE, Professor Dwight Sanderson '98, and Professor Ralph A. Felton, of the Rural Social Organization Department are attending the national meetings of the Country Life Association held in Washington, November 11 to 15.

DEAN WILLIAM A. HAMMOND attended the inauguration on November 4 of Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin as president of the Union Theological Seminary in New York. The next day he attended a meeting of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Cornell Grandchildren

More in Entering Class Than Ever Before
—94 Children of Cornellians
Matriculated

An analysis of the ancestry of the freshman class provides convincing evidence that Cornell has well passed the period of its swaddling clothes. During each of the past four years, the Alumni Office has scrutinized the list of entering students, to ascertain the number of new matriculants who are sons or daughters, grandchildren, or other relatives of Cornell alumni. More grandchildren are represented in the entering class this year than ever before.

Mary E. Schoonover is the granddaughter of the Rev. George F. Behringer '69; Dorothy W. Stuart is the granddaughter of Alvah B. Wood '75; James H. Ayer is the grandson of John W. Babcock '78; Sprague Garlock is the grandson of Dr. William D. Garlock '80; and Elnora Hungerford is the granddaughter of Nye Hungerford '81. Of these Dr. Garlock is still living.

Of these grandchildren, three are third in a direct line of Cornell descent. Ayer is the son of Lynn F. Ayer '07 and Carrie L. Ayer '07; Garlock is the son of Morgan B. Garlock '04; and Miss Elnora Hungerford is the daughter of Roy E. Hungerford '99 and Maude Palmer Hungerford '03.

Among the new students there are ninety-four children of Cornellians. Sixty-nine are sons, and twenty-five are daughters. By an odd coincidence these figures are identical with those of last year's entering class.

There are ten freshmen both of whose parents were at Cornell before them. Mrs. Helen Brown Lyall '02 is distinguished in having twin freshman sons. Edwin S. Browne '99 also has two sons who have just entered, one as a freshman, the other as a junior.

Out of some 1400 members of the new class 438 indicate that they have 723 Cornell relatives. Last year 622 Cornell antecedents were represented by 377 matriculants. Among the relatives represented there are 164 brothers, 61 sisters, 110 uncles, 26 aunts, and 252 cousins. These figures all show an increase over those of last year.

In the following list are given the names of the Cornell parents and their freshman children:

CLUB ACTIVITIES

New England

The annual banquet of the Cornell Club of New England will be held at the University Club in Boston on Saturday, December 11. More details will follow, but at this writing, the chairman of the Committee, Frederic S. Auerbach '04, announces that President Farrand will be the guest of honor, and invites any and all Cornell men to attend the party. Visiting alumni planning to attend should communicate with Auerbach at 6 Beacon Street.

St. Louis

The Cornell Club of St. Louis will on November 12 make its annual presentation of the Cornell Club Cup, given each year to the school winning the track meet held by the St. Louis high schools. Soldan High School was the winner this year, and the meeting will be held in the auditorium of that school. This school has won the cup four times and has only to win it once more to retain permanent possession.

The program will be short, with two abbreviated speeches, and songs by the Cornell Club quartet. Hender C. (Shorty) Schuyler '10 will play the piano, while Edward Holmes '05, Alvin F. Griesedieck '16, and William B. Ittner, Jr., '23 will sing. Two reels of new Cornell motion pictures that were taken last spring will be shown.

Harry R. McLain '02, president of the club, has appointed the following committee to handle the presentation: William P. Gruner '07, chairman, Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., '24, and the members of the quartet.

Maryland

The new administration of the Cornell Alumni Association of Maryland is already showing signs of activity. Mitchell Price '11 had been in office only a minute when he appointed Frank H. Carter '16, the retiring president, as chairman of the committee to arrange a feather party and dance for November 16 at the Hotel Altamont in Baltimore. Carter's committee makes the following announcement: "It is for you and your wives, your friends and their wives, and if you are single,—well, we will leave that to you. Tickets are $1. They entitle the owner to ten games. Each game has two prizes. Turkeys and ducks will be the choice of the first prize, and for the second prize several miscellaneous things are lined up. The services of Lederer and his gang of WBAL musicians have been obtained for the dance."

Herbert Long '18 is general chairman of the committee to handle the musical Clubs' Concert and Dance to be held at the Maryland Casualty Company Club House on New Year's night.

HIGH HONOR FOR CORNELLIAN

The John Fritz Gold Medal for 1927, the highest honor bestowed by the American engineering profession, has been awarded to Elmer A. Sperry, vice-chairman of the Engineering Foundation of New York. Mr. Sperry is a member of the Cornell chapter of Sigma Xi, and is the father of Edward G. Sperry '15 and Elmer A. Sperry, Jr., '17. The medal is given to Mr. Sperry in recognition of his "development of the gyro-compass and the application of the gyroscope to the stabilization of ships and airplanes."

The formal presentation will be made on December 7 at the Engineering Auditorium in New York, in connection with the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, at which Charles M. Schwab will be inaugurated as president.

The members of the John Fritz Medal Board, composed of sixteen representatives of the American Societies of Civil, Mining and Metallurgical, Mechanical, and Electrical Engineers, voted the medal unanimously to Mr. Sperry.

About thirty years ago Mr. Sperry turned his attention to the gyroscope and soon saw its practical possibilities. Although the present award concerns the gyro-compass and gyroscope, Mr. Sperry is famous for many other inventions, among them the high intensity searchlight which has played an important part in the filming of indoor moving pictures, and in the field of electrochemistry for a process of producing caustic soda and bleach, and an electrolytic process for producing white lead from waste products of copper mines.

Maj. L. L. Seaman '72 Gives $15,000 to War Memorial

Former Alumni Trustee Subscribes in Memory of His Wife Who Also Had Distinguished War Record

IN memory of his wife, who died on August 30, Major Louis Livingston Seaman '72 has subscribed fifteen thousand dollars for an entry way in the War Memorial group. Mrs. Seaman had a war record almost as notable as that of her distinguished husband, who has been an active participant in no less than seven wars.

Two days after war was declared in August, 1914, Major and Mrs. Seaman were in their way to Europe. They arrived in Belgium in time to be present at the capture of Brussels and the bombardment of Antwerp. Mrs. Seaman is understood to have been the first woman, as was Major Seaman the first man, to enter active service as representative of a neutral power.

Under the personal direction of the Queen of the Belgians, Mrs. Seaman served for two years in field hospital work. For her service in this connection and for other war work, she was decorated by both France and Belgium.

Mrs. Seaman was a member of the Red Cross, the Huguenot Society, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Colonial Dames of America, and the Holland Dames. Her maiden name was Mary Huntington. She was a daughter of the late John M. Huntington of Norwich, Connecticut, and among her ancestors were Colonel Jabez Huntington of Revolutionary fame and Thomas Wells, a governor of the Colony of Connecticut.

With this gift, Major Seaman has inseparably connected his name with Cornell University. When Robert E. Treman '09, chairman of the War Memorial Committee, called upon him in New York, Major Seaman was visibly affected by the opportunity to contribute a lasting memorial to Mrs. Seaman's distinguished services. This gift is one of many which Major Seaman has made to Cornell. As a part of the campaign for a healthful military ration, a fight which he has been waging ever since the Spanish War, Major Seaman has established two annual prizes at Cornell of two hundred dollars and one hundred dollars for the perfection of the best army ration for peace and war. It was through Major Seaman's efforts that the tank "America" was presented to the University last spring by the British Government. The tank had been originally presented to England by the British War Relief Association of which Major Seaman was elected president after his return to this country in 1916. The Seaman Trophy has been awarded to the winner of the varsity race at Poughkeepsie ever since Major Seaman first put the cup in competition in 1898.

The World War was the seventh in which Major Seaman saw active service. He served in the Spanish-American War in 1898 and 1899 as major surgeon of the First United States Volunteer Engineers, a regiment that contained many Cornell men. In succession, he served in the Philippines, in China as surgeon major, and for two years as military observer in the Russo-Japanese War. He was in the campaign of the Germans in East Africa and was in South Africa in the Boer War.

Major Seaman has probably received a greater number of the highest decorations of different nations than any other living man. In recognition of his surgical work among the troops of many countries, he was awarded the Order of Leopold by the King of Belgium, The Order of the Crown by the King of Roumania, the Order of the Rising Sun by Japan, as well as the highest awards in the gifts of France and Italy.

Major Seaman made a tour of the world in 1888 for the study of contagious and infectious diseases in the Orient, and he contributed numerous articles to The North American Review, The Forum, The Century, the Journal of the Military Service Institution, and various medical journals. He was a delegate to the International Medical Congresses held at London in 1881, at Moscow in 1897, at Paris in 1900, at Madrid in 1903, at Lisbon in 1906, at Buda-Pest in 1910, and at London in 1913. He was made a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London in 1908. Lincoln Memorial University made him an honorary doctor of laws in 1919.

Major Seaman's principal activities since the war with Spain have been concentrated on the obtaining from Congress of legislation to increase the efficiency of the U. S. Army Medical Corps. At the 1918 session of Congress such legislation was enacted. He has published several books and contributed many magazine articles on the subject.

Major Seaman is president emeritus of the China Society of America and president of the Surgeons' Travel Club. He is a member of the Metropolitan Club of Washington, the Royal Societies Club of London, and the University, Authors', and Cornell Clubs of New York. In 1919 he was elected by the alumni to serve out the unexpired term of Willard Straight '01 as Alumni Trustee of the University, and he was re-elected for the full five-year term in 1920. He declined to stand for re-election when his term expired in 1925.

THE SAGE CHAPEL Preacher for November 7 was the Rev. Henry H. Tweedy, D.D., of the Yale Divinity School.

LITERARY REVIEW

The Flowers of Evil

Les Fleurs du Mal. The Complete Poems of Charles Baudelaire, Translated by Lewis Piaget Shanks '99, Ph.D. '08, Professor of Romance Languages and Literatures in Johns Hopkins University. New York. Henry Holt and Company. 1926. 20.8 cm., pp. xvi, 277.

Professor Shanks has executed a task by no means easy with great success. His translations are in general smooth and agreeable. His technique is on the whole good, though not invariably above reproach; for that matter few poets or translators are impeccable. Instead of corpse (p. 54) he should have used corse to rhyme with remorse. Enow and now (p. 65) form only an eye-rime. Precipice hardly goes with somnambulist (p. 218). On page 177, driven to the point of writing an' for and to rhyme with can, he might have made a virtue of necessity and thrown in a bit more of dialect to go with it. Rhythm is thrice misspelled (pp. xii, 66, 161; likewise unforeseen (p. 29). But these are not serious blemishes.

The poems here presented in English dress represent the fruit of a misspent life. It would be interesting to speculate as to what Baudelaire might have become had his father lived or had his mother and step-father not opposed his plan of becoming a poet. As it was, he lived the short and merry life of a young Romanticist in a devil's world, using his remarkable powers to extract what beauty was possible from the lees of life and the dregs of humanity. "Les Fleurs du Mal" shows the shipwreck of Romantic theory as a philosophy of life."

One cannot deny, however, that his work is shot through with gleams of beauty. With wizard magic he transforms, at least sometimes, the tawdry scene, and we are transported to fairy palaces—but not for long. We shall quote one of his best sonnets, "L'Aube Spirituelle," or "Spiritual Dawn":

When to the drunkard's room dawn, rosy white,
Brings the Ideal, a vision ravening,
She wakes, by a mysterious reckoning,
In the besotted brute an angel bright.
Blue depths of heaven, height on virgin height,
Before the dreamer, prone and suffering,
Open and deepen, gulf-like, beckoning:
Thus, my divinity, pure child of light,
Over the orgy's sordid dregs of woe,
Brighter and lovelier, thine image flies
In fluttering rays before my dazzled eyes.

The sun has slain the flaming candles; so,
Ever victorious, thy face grows one,
Resplendent spirit, with the eternal sun!

Books and Magazine Articles

In The Modern Language Journal for October "Practical French Composition" by President William W. Comfort, of Haverford, formerly professor of French at Cornell, is reviewed by Merle J. Protzman.

Professor Joseph N. LeConte, M.M.E. '92, of the chair of engineering of mechanics at the University of California, is the author of a treatise on "Hydraulics." It is published by the McGraw-Hill Book Company of New York at the price of $3. It is reviewed by Robert Sibley, California '03, in The California Monthly for October.

Die neueren Sprachen for September 26 included a review of "A Register of Bibliographies of the English Language and Literature" by Professor Clark S. Northup '93. The notice was written by Dr. Walter Fischer of the Technische Hochschule, Dresden.

Professor Frank E. Rice, Ph. D. '13, of the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, completed his serial article on "Sweetened Condensed Milk" in The Journal of Dairy Science for July; it ran to six instalments. In The Alpha Chi Sigma Hexagon for April he wrote on "Some Little Things of Great Importance in Life." In the North Carolina State Board Health Bulletin for January last he had an article on "Condensed and Evaporated Milk," and in the same publication for February he discussed "The Value of Milk and the Cost of Bottled Milk."

5,531 Students Enrolled in University

The total registration of students in the University is now 5,531. The number of students actually enrolled in Ithaca is 5,238, since we must subtract 60 from the grand total for double registrations, and 233 for students enrolled in the Medical College in New York. The grand total of 5,531 is 84 more than last year and 171 more than two years ago at this time. The number of women students tends to be about stationary, being 58 more than at this time last year and 60 less than the enrollment of women for 1925-26.

The totals, given below, of the several grand divisions of the University show increases of 101 in Arts and Sciences, eight in Architecture, four in Engineering, eight in the Veterinary College, ten in Home Economics, and fourteen in the Graduate School. The enrollment is 24 less in the Law School as a result of its change to a graduate school, 37 less in Agriculture, mainly because of a decrease of thirty in the number of women students in that college, and six less in the Medical College.

MAJOR SEAMAN'S GIFT

THE GIFT of Major Seaman to the War Memorial is particularly pleasing for several reasons other than that it is the largest single gift received to date. Major Seaman has two supreme interests, military matters and Cornell. He is proud, as is anyone who take time to read, of Cornell's part in the World War. His services as a military surgeon and as an alumnus and a trustee of the University have been wholehearted and effective.

Now, in the fulness of a long and useful life, Major Seaman has given as part of Cornell's War Memorial a memorial to his wife, whose war record is distinguished by the same energetic response to emergencies that characterize that of her warrior husband. The gift is a generous one and typifies the Major's devotion to an ideal.

BURNETT ON TOUR

In his capacity as president of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, Archie C. Burnett '90 has made another "swing around the circle." The trip just completed marks the second substantial contribution of his time and money which Mr. Burnett has made towards the advancement of Cornell's alumni interests. A year ago last spring he made a trip of two weeks duration through the Middle West.

Burnett left his home in Waban, Massachusetts, on Sunday, October 16. He attended a luncheon meeting in Schenectady on Tuesday, the 19th, a dinner meeting in Utica on that same evening, the luncheon of the Cornell Club of Rochester on October 20, and the luncheon of the Cornell Club of Buffalo on October 22.

Mrs. Burnett made the trip with her husband. They spent the week-end of October 23 and 24 in Ithaca. On Monday, October 25, Burnett attended the luncheon of the Cornell Club of Binghamton, and on Tuesday evening went to Geneva for the annual meeting of the Finger Lakes. He and Mrs. Burnett left Ithaca early Wednesday morning, winding up the program with a meeting of the Cornell Club of Dutchess County, in Poughkeepsie, on October 28.

In his talks, Mr. Burnett spoke of general alumni and University activities, with special reference to the seventh annual convention of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, to be held in Philadelphia at the end of the month.

FAVORS STUDY OF PROHIBITION

Too ready acceptance of propaganda statements for and against prohibition was warned against by Professor George E. G. Catlin '24 in an address before the members of the Saturday Lunch Club. He urged the necessity of a scientific investigation into all the facts before any new legislation is attempted.

Professor Catlin has made a study to learn if it is possible to find any facts on problems relating to prohibition, and now believes that such reliable information is ascertainable if sought for in the proper manner.

In his speech he said that the part of his information on prohibition in America that was not public knowledge was confidential, and could not now be made known. He compared the British and American attitudes, saying that the former are concerned with the legal aspects of drunkenness and its effect on public order, while in America there is more concern with the public health and moral effects of drinking on social well-being.

A Try-Out for Material

Cornell defeated St. Bonaventure Saturday by a score of 41 to 0, in a game characterized by some good football and some that was quite ordinary. Twenty-three men were used at various times, the game serving as a final try-out of material before the eleven that is to face Dartmouth is chosen.

At times the team showed flashes of brilliancy that brought the crowd to its feet: Gassner's break through the line and run of fifty-five yards for a touchdown in the second period; a neatly executed running pass from Isaly to Molinet, which made thirty yards, and another pretty pass over the line of scrimmage, Isaly to Wramplemeir, in the fourth period. Usually Cornell relied on the off-tackle, reverse, and fake pass, a conservative attack generally adequate against the sort of opposition furnished by St. Bonaventure, but not always powerful enough and sufficiently well executed to keep going steadily forward. Defense against line plays was always adequate and Schoales played an especially alert game at left end. But St. Bonaventure made at least six passes good, one for thirty-five yards and another for twenty. Of the eight first downs credited to the visitors, six were made through the air. The St. Bonaventure team was fairly light, but it played aggressively, and had several players above the ordinary.

Impressions of Cornell's play were that the lack of outstanding backs makes imperative consistent coordination and steady if short progress that must be continuous to offset the shortcomings in individual brilliancy and the failure to develop a passing game that is deceptive and sure of execution.

At the start of the game Rothschild, substitute, was at right tackle; and in the backfield were three men who had been classified as second stringers, Carpenter and Isaly at halfback and Gassner at full

Man-power

Four millions of the best man-power of Europe perished in the Napoleonic conquests. Military conquest is non-creative, while industry is always creative.

The laboratories and shops of industry are the sources of many of the enduring attainments of our times. In the General Electric organization is an army of 75,000 persons, co-operating to make electricity do more and better work for you.

In the last ten years one American manufacturer—the General Electric Company—has created machines having a man-power forty times as great as that of all the lives lost in the Napoleonic wars.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

back. Butterfield, regular quarterback, was back in the line-up for the first time in three weeks. He seems to have recovered from the ankle injury that has kept him on the sidelines, but lacked vigor and dash. When he left the game, Hoekelman, substituted at right half, called signals; and later on Isaly directed the play. Rosenberg, who ran the team in the Columbia game, played only for a few minutes and had no part in team direction. Balderston and Molinet, regulars hitherto, played in the second half. Of all of the backs, Gassner, Carpenter, Beck, Butterfield, and Isaly were the most useful.

Cornell scored after five minutes of play after a series of rushes from midfield, Gassner making the touchdown. A fumble on the ten-yard line prevented another touchdown, but when time was called the Cornellians were on the five-yard line and after the second quarter had opened in two plays scored again, Isaly going through. A little later Gassner at midfield cut through a hole in the left side of the visitors' line and tore down the field for a touchdown. Some effective plunges by Carpenter and Hoekelman put the team within scoring distance again and Gassner skirted left tackle for the count.

In the third period the drive slackened, and a clever passing game by St. Bonaventure, plus two penalties against Cornell for offside play, put the ball on Cornell's twenty-five-yard line. But Kneen intercepted a pass and ran the ball to the thirty-yard line, thus averting possible trouble.

In the fourth period, with practically a new team on the field, Cornell scored two more touchdowns. The running of Beck, Molinet's rushing, and the two passes hereinbefore mentioned, were big factors in this result. The game was played on a soft field which was badly cut up before the final whistle blew. The line-up and summary:

First Soccer Defeat

For the first time this season the soccer team has tasted defeat. Pennsylvania won an exciting game on Alumni Field Saturday by a score of 4 to 3, winning in the second of two extra periods. The Red and Blue scored first, and ran up the count to three to one in the third period, but a Cornell rally in the last quarter, Shaw and Hall shooting goals, evened the score. The first extra period was scoreless but in the second Buswell, of Pennsylvania, bounced the ball off his head out of Allen's reach into the Cornell net.

Freshmen Tie With Pennsylvania

The freshman football team, which defeated the Columbia yearling last week by a score of 10 to 0, played a tie game with the Pennsylvania freshmen on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday. The score was 13 to 13. The Cornell yearlings were first to count, a forward pass, Jameson to Davies, taking the ball 25 yards for a touchdown. Cornell's other scores were made on two drop kicks by Levy. Pennsylvania scored two touchdowns in the second half.

How Opponent Fared

Pennsylvania had a close call with Penn State Saturday, but came through with a 3 to 0 victory. A field goal in the first period was the only score of a tightly played game. Dartmouth had an easy time with Boston University, winning by a score of 32 to 0.

OBITUARY

George Bell, Jr., '94

Major General George Bell, Jr., one of the best known of Cornell alumni, died of pernicious anaemia at his home in the Belden-Stratford Hotel, Chicago, on October 28.

He was born at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, Md., on January 23, 1859. His father was Brigadier General George Bell. After getting his early training, he entered West Point and graduated from there in 1880. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States Army and assigned to the Third Infantry.

After serving in the Army for a time, he left to study at the University of Minnesota. From 1892 to 1896 he was professor of military science and tactics here. In 1894 he graduated with the degree of LL.B. He became a member of Delta Chi. Soon after graduation he was admitted to the New York State Bar and married the daughter of the late Major General Robert Ransom of New York.

But army life appealed to him more than being an attorney and he now went back into active service. He was in campaigns in Cuba and the Philippines and received numerous promotions. In 1903 he attained the rank of major with the Twelfth Infantry. During those early years of his Army life he directed the capture of General Vicente Lukban, head of an insurrection in Leyte in the Philippines.

In 1913 he was promoted to a colonelcy in the Sixteenth Infantry and on July 17, 1914 became a brigadier general. On August 5, 1917, the day that the National Guard was federalized, he received the two stars of a major general. During the World War he commanded the 33d or Prairie Division of the American Expeditionary Forces and won the title of "Do-It-Now" Bell.

His command won fame in three sectors in France, taking thirty-six kilometers of territory under fire and capturing sixty-eight officers, 3,924 men, ninety-three field pieces, and 414 machine guns, besides important stores. His was the only American division brigaded with both the French and British and later fighting under its own flag. For his service in the War he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the Croix de Guerre with palm, and was made a commander of St. Michael and St. George (British), and Commander of the Legion of Honor (French).

After the War, he was placed in command of the Sixth Corps Area, with headquarters in Chicago. Three years ago he was retired on reaching the age limit of sixty-four, and became president of the Hill State Bank in Chicago. He held this office until his death.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William Scott Wood, whose husband is a colonel in the Army with headquarters in San Francisco. He was buried with full military honors from his home on November 1.

Herbert T. Thornburg '95

Dr. Herbert Thayer Thornburg was accidentally killed in the Longview Hospital at Cincinnati, Ohio, on May 23, 1926.

He was born at Rock Island, Ill., on March 27, 1872, the son of William and Annie Fischer Thornburg. He attended Brooks Military Academy at Cleveland, Ohio, and then entered Cornell in 1891 for a year of work in biology. Later he took up medicine and was practicing in Cincinnati at the time of his death.

On October 9, 1922, he married Miss Natalie Merrill, who survives him with a son, William H. Thornburg, and a brother.

THERE is a significance in the annual convention of the alumni which reaches far beyond the renewal of personal memories and associations. The University needs the touch with national life and civic affairs which can best come from the experience of her graduates. The intelligent and even critical interest of the alumni is one of the factors contributing to the vigor of Cornell. The convention offers an admirable forum for the expression of that interest. For these reasons a large attendance at Philadelphia will be another encouraging step in the University's rise and progress.

Livingston Farrand

THE MAN who knows most about Cornell . . . its present needs and future plans . . . has spoken. Surely, if you can possibly make it you will be in Philadelphia from November 24 to 27.

That you will meet many whom you have wanted to see for a long, long time is assured. For the number of early returns saying "I will be there" far exceeds those of any previous year. Your notice was mailed two weeks ago. And probably you have sent back your card. But, have all the Cornellians you know done likewise? A brief recital of the Convention's outstanding features will "sell" your man the idea.

As preliminaries for creating a real Cornell-in-Philadelphia there's a Football Smoker on the evening of the 24th. Then the Penn Game on the 25th. Convention sessions start the next morning and continue through the afternoon. In the evening President Farrand will deliver his message in person at the All-Cornellian Banquet. Saturday morning's session will bring the Convention to a successful close with round-table discussions.

Pared down to essentials, the programs will hold your interest with such topics as a plan to assure several candidates for each vacancy as alumni trustee each year; plans for the general advancement of University projects; the presentation, by J. DuPratt White '90, vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees, of the plans for the physical development of Cornell during the next fifty years; and consideration of any point on which you yourself have given thought.

We know you will make every effort to come.

SEVENTH ANNUAL CONVENTION

CORNELL ALUMNI CORPORATION

Philadelphia, November 24 to 27

Please tell

WILLIAM M. IRISH
Cornell Club of Philadelphia
310 S. 15th St., Philadelphia

that you'll be there!

Bryan Hendon, '22-3 Grad.

Bryan Hendon died on August 18, 1926, in Maracaibo, Venezuela, of peritonitis following an operation for appendicitis.

He was born in Earlsboro, Okla., on January 27, 1896, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Hendon. After graduating from the University of Oklahoma in 1919 with the degree of A. B., he came to Cornell in 1922 and spent a year in graduate work. For the past three years he had been geologist for the Standard Oil Company.

Mary J. Forbing '24

Mary Josephine Forbing died on April 21, 1922, it has just been learned, at Colorado Springs, Colo.

She was born at Kenton, Ohio, on December 13, 1900, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Forbing. After graduating from Kenton High School, she entered Cornell in 1920 and for one year was a student of the arts and sciences.

THE SUNDAY AFTERNOON musicale series at Willard Straight Hall opened last Sunday with a concert by Miss Gertrude Nye and Jerome A. Fried '10. With Miss Nye at the piano and Mr. Fried at the 'cello, they played the Allegro moderato and Allegretto movements from Rubenstein's "Sonate in D Major," "Kol Nidrei" of Max Bruch, "Supplication" of Ernest Block, and a Gavotte by Perrin.

What is SERENITY Worth?

BUDDHA, who was born a prince, gave up his name, succession, and his heritage to attain serenity.

But we are no Buddhas; for us the serenity of mind is the happiness of human beings who are secure in the enjoyment of what they possess, whether it is much or little.

We do not have to give up the world; we have only to see a life insurance agent, who can sell us security for the future, the most direct step to serenity of mind.

The next John Hancock agent who calls on you may be able to put you on the road to serenity.

Isn't it worth while to see him?

A STRONG COMPANY, Over Sixty Years in Business. Liberal as to Contract, Safe and Secure in Every Way.

When you return to Ithaca

Our first aim is to serve students and you know from past experience what that amounts to. We can still be of service to you. When you get back drop in. Ask questions. See what we have. An increasing number are doing this every year. They find it worth while to do so.

Books

Books on engineering are not found in the average bookstore. Fifteen minutes spent at the Co-op would enable you to study the table of contents and determine its value to you. Books on agricultural subjects will interest many more and then there are the better books for general reading.

Stationery

You will find that the Co-op has a full line of stationery and like supplies. You may want smokes or candy. The Co-op is centrally located and not out of your way. A good assortment of Campus postcards and Station No. 2 for selling stamps makes a good combination.
