Vol. XXII, No. 18

Ithaca, N. Y., January 29, 1920

Price 12 Cents

QUITE independently of the fight on the high cost of living the men of the senior class have adopted corduroy trousers and knickerbockers as the insignia of their rank. Corduroy trousers, ordinarily considered a sensible and economical garment for those who toil, have jumped enormously in price as well as value since they have acquired this elevated social standing. The edict has not been complied with to any noticeable extent, thus far, because the supply has been wholly inadequate for the sudden demand. It is expected, however, that by the opening of the second semester, or perhaps in time for the combined Junior and Farmers' Week, reinforcements will arrive and save the situation. The senior women have not yet officially adopted corduroy skirts, but are ordering the conventional cap and gown.

STUDENTS WHO PREPARED at Culver Academy have organized a Culver Club, adopted a constitution, and elected officers for the present year.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN in a noteworthy address at the centennial celebration of the University of Indiana on January 20, urged scholastic reform in American universities. He advocated a more vigorous selection of students at the beginning of the college course, the careful grading of successful candidates, more robust and strenuous intellectual discipline, the elimination of those who fail to reach and maintain the required standard. Especially should students who fail in their examinations be excluded by the end of the first year. "Schools in this country are not on a parity with those in Europe," Dr. Schurman said, "because the public render lip homage to education, but it pays the men who train the mind less than the men who mind the trains." This allusion to the semi-annual competition between the colleges and the railroad companies has in it food for thought on the part of more than one faculty.

DR. KARL J. SEULKE will leave the service of the College of Agriculture at the end of the present term. He has taught at Cornell since 1914, first as instructor and since 1917 as assistant professor of animal husbandry. He now becomes the Eastern representative of the American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association, having his headquarters in Ithaca, the approximate center of the Eastern District. His office will be at 101 South Aurora Street. Of this association Professor Seulke organized the division of meats and has been in charge of the management of live stock and meat production since his coming to Cornell.

AN INTERESTING SERIES of preliminary designs for Bahai Temple (Mashrak-el-Azkar) to be erected in Chicago, was on exhibition last week in the University Library. The designs are the work of Charles Mason Remey '97, now assistant professor of architecture at George Washington University. There are nineteen drawings in all, nine elevations, nine ground plans, and one plan of the entire site. The elevations show each a different composition and treatment of the problem in nine styles of architecture, Roman classic, Byzantine, Arabian-Moorish, Persian, Indian, Renaissance, Modern, Romanesque, and Gothic; in each of which except the last two the dome is a conspicuous feature. The designs have been exhibited at several colleges and schools of art and in the National Gallery at Washington. The temple, with its various auxiliary institutions, educational and philanthropic, is to be built by voluntary offerings of those interested in the Bahai movement for universal religious brotherhood and service to humanity.

FINDING INADEQUATE their present offices in the same building with those of the ALUMNI NEWS, The Cornell Annuals have moved to 211 East State Street. Here is ample room for both the editorial and the business department, the new offices taking the entire front on the third floor of the building, formerly occupied by the Empire State Housefurnishing Company.

CITY TICKET OFFICES will be reopened in Ithaca as soon as is practicable after the Government turns the railroads back to the companies. The Lehigh Valley will return to its old quarters at State and Aurora Streets, office rooms of which the railroad still retains the lease. The Lackawanna, having given up the lease of its former office, will be obliged to seek a new place. Citizens and students alike will welcome the change after two years of inconvenient trips to the Inlet.

THE WEEK'S PUBLIC LECTURES include "Fighting Famine Through Scientific Agriculture" by Mr. Sam Higginbotham, superintendent of Allahabad Agricultural Institute and agricultural adviser to the State of Gwalior; "Some Personal Views of Life" by Dean Albert W. Smith before the Cosmopolitan Club; "The Propagation of Grouse and Quail" (illustrated) by Herbert K. Job, of the National Association of Audubon Societies; "Automatic Telephones and the Operation of Machine Switching" (illustrated) by Clyde A. Berry '99; "The Quarrying and Milling of Indiana Limestone" (with moving pictures) by George B. McGrath, of the Metropolitan Bureau of the Indiana Quarrymen's Association; "The Making of a Newspaper" (with moving pictures) by Lee A. White, editorial secretary of The Detroit News; "Termites in British Guiana" by A. E. Emerson, before the Jugatae Society.

INTEREST IN SWIMMING continues keen. There is practice every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evening in the Old Armory pool under the direction of Carl F. Eschweiler '20, of Milwaukee, Wis. Thus far candidates have been so numerous that teams for intercollege matches have been formed in all the colleges except Veterinary Medicine; and these teams competed in the first meet on Wednesday of this week. The prospects are thus bright for a creditable varsity team.

THE MINOR SPORTS COUNCIL has ratified the election of Norwood H. Andrews, Agriculture '22, of Morristown, N. J., as captain of next year's soccer team. Andrews, for his play at right fullback, won a place on the All-American team. The Council has awarded soccer insignia to thirteen men and the minor sports C to three: John F. Brady, jr., '20, of Kansas City, Mo.; Harold M. Florsheim '20, of Chicago; and Emin Hassan '20, of Brooklyn. Hassan was captain of this year's team.

THE SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER for Sunday, February 1, is Rabbi Louis J. Kopald, of Temple Beth Zion, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Endowment Campaign $2,350,195 to Date—Old and New Eng- land Organize

The Endowment Fund Committee announced on January 26 that a total of $2,350,195 had been subscribed to the Endowment Fund. The income from this sum will be available to increase the salaries of Cornell professors.

The total of $2,350,195 represents an increase of $214,281 over that announced two weeks ago. New York State is still in the lead with a total of $1,036,757; Ohio is second with $289,575; Illinois third with $261,962; and Pennsylvania fourth with $195,734. Cornell women's organizations have collected $38,944, of which $31,441 comes from Rochester and $6,970 from New York City women.

The States which have subscribed over $25,000 with the total amount subscribed by each are: New York, $1,036,757; Ohio, $289,575; Illinois, $261,962; Pennsylvania, $195,734; Wisconsin, $76,475; Minnesota, $76,000; Michigan, $59,445; California, $28,945.

The annual dinner of the Cornell Club of New England this year was used to mark the start of the campaign to raise $1,000,000 for the Endowment Fund. The dinner was held at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, on the evening of Friday, January 23, and the attendance marked a new record, both in the number present and in the enthusiasm displayed.

Richard O. Walter '01 presided and the speakers were Professor Dugald C. Jackson '87, now professor of electrical engineering in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, whose subject was "The College Man and Our Day," Romeyn Berry '04, who spoke on the subject of "Undergraduate Life at Cornell in 1920 as Seen by an Old Grad," and Professor C. L. Durham, whose subject was "Visions."

At the close of the dinner, every man present rose and pledged to the campaign not only his financial support but also his personal service.

The dinner was preceded by a meeting of the executive committee at which final plans for the systematic operation of the campaign in New England were arranged.

A fraternity dinner is to be held February 3 in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York. Invitations have been sent to approximately fourteen hundred fraternity men living in and around New York by the New York Committee. A recent letter from Jansen Noyes '10, expresses the hope that every fraternity man in the vicinity of New York will attend this dinner. Since the announcement of the Psi U. Professorship, several of the larger fraternities have announced that their campaigns had passed the $50,000 mark.

Professor S. P. Orth spoke three times in New York Friday and Saturday, January 24 and 25, at dinners of the New York alumni of the Psi U. Fraternity and of Cornell engineers and architects at the Hotel Astor on Friday evening and at the New York campaign committee luncheon at the Cornell Club on Saturday.

A letter recently received from England announces the organization of the Endowment Fund Committee there: H. N. Spurburg '99, head of the British Thomson-Houston Companies, is chairman; Sao-Ke Alfred Sze '02, Chinese Minister, is honorary secretary; Duncan Campbell Lee, formerly assistant professor of public speaking here, is honorary legal adviser; and James Hughes Massie '01 is treasurer.

E. M. Travis, Comptroller of New York State, has announced that the State Income Tax Law follows the Federal law in that contributions to New York charitable, religious, and educational institutions (including Cornell) up to 15 per cent of the net income are not taxable.

The mother of one of the Cornellians who lost his life in the war has sent in a contribution to the Endowment Fund to cover her son's debt to Cornell as set forth in Bulletin No. 9, "The Money Debt of an Alumnus."

One friend of Cornell sends in a modest contribution to the Endowment Fund with the explanation that it is in no way designed to represent the measure of his indebtedness to Cornell, but is as much as his income permits. He remarks, "If your statement is accurate when you say that $125,000 will feed a Prof and his family for a million years, then my modest donation will keep a family going for four hundred years. I regret that living expenses are so much greater in this part of the country, because if I could live that reasonably it would enable me to give much more liberally to a good cause."

A JOURNALISTIC FRATERNITY

The Cornell Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the national journalistic fraternity, was installed last Saturday by the national president, F. M. Church, managing editor of the Cadillac, Michigan, News, and by the editor of the fraternity's publication, L. A. White, editorial secretary of the Detroit News.

Two members of the University Faculty, Bristow Adams and M. V. Atwood, and fourteen students are the charter members. These latter include officers of the various student publications. The purpose of the organization is to foster Cornell publicity.

Cornellian Council Meets

Oddie '99 and Gass '12 Elected—$63,000
Turned Over to University Treasurer

The semi-annual meeting of the Cornellian Council was held at the Cornell University Club in New York on Saturday afternoon, January 24. A complete report was made by the executive committee of the progress of the work of the Cornellian Council since July 1, 1919.

Clarence M. Oddie '99 was elected to the Council to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of E. S. Sheppard '02, and Karl W. Gass '12 was elected to represent the class of 1912, to fill the vacancy created by the non-election of a representative of the class of 1912 at its last reunion meeting.

The executive committee reported total collections for the fiscal year 1918-19 of $70,729.07, with expenses of $7,744.45. The net balance was turned over to the Treasurer.

The expectation had been that for the year 1919-20 collections would be about a hundred thousand dollars, but the determination of the Endowment Committee to accept subscriptions however small, and payable in instalments, made it advisable for the Council to abandon its plans for a campaign. For this reason it is expected that the results for the current year, 1919-20, will also be somewhat disappointing. Receipts to date from annual subscriptions have, however, increased about $1,000 over the corresponding period of last year, and nine new annual subscriptions totaling $595 have been received. Only in a few instances have Endowment Fund contributors discontinued their Cornellian Council subscriptions.

The committee recommends that Council members from the classes of 1909 on assist in collection of delinquent subscriptions, which, although materially improved since the termination of the war, are nevertheless capable of considerable improvement.

Members of the Cornellian Council have been active in the work of the Endowment Fund Campaign. The facilities of the Council's office have been at the service of the Endowment Campaign.

The executive committee feels that the work of the Council is handicapped by incomplete and inaccurate address lists maintained by the University. It reports that a resolution has recently been addressed to the University endorsing the suggestion that a new University office be created the incumbent of which shall have as his primary duty the preparation and preservation of adequate records of alumni and former students. The committee expects the Board of Trustees will act promptly in this matter and that work on the mailing lists will begin at once.

WOOD'S CAMPAIGN MANAGER

Congressman Norman J. Gould '99, of Seneca Falls, N. Y., has been appointed Eastern manager of the Leonard Wood National Presidential Campaign Committee, and opened headquarters at the Hotel Imperial on Monday, January 26. He will have charge of the campaign in the New England states, New York, and the Atlantic states south to Maryland.

Gould graduated from Sibley in 1899. He was manager of the Cornell Navy, and a member of Sigma Phi and Quill and Dagger. He was a member of many social clubs and was prominent in undergraduate affairs. At that time he was best known by the nickname "Bunk".

C. U. C. A. SPEAKERS

The Current Events Forum recently instituted by the Christian Association has already attained to a deserved popularity. The executive secretary, Richard H. Edwards, has secured several speakers whose observations, experiences, and convictions make their opinions authoritative and their discussions of current questions conducive to an enlightened public sentiment. The speaker last Sunday was Clayton R. Lusk '02, chairman of the investigating committee of the New York Legislature. On Sunday, February 1, Professor Samuel P. Orth will discuss "The Anti-Sedition Laws." Other speakers already secured include President Schurman, whose topic is not yet announced; Captain Walter Pettit, late of the Intelligence Bureau of the Army and now associate director of the School of Social Work in New York City, on "The Malformation of Public Opinion in the United States"; Harry F. Ward, of Union Theological Seminary, on "Christianizing Community Life"; E. Ray Petty, of the Judson Memorial Church, New York, who will discuss social and industrial conditions among women and children in the neighborhood of Greenwich Village; Arthur Gleason, holder of various posts in the Red Cross and in the Y. M. C. A. in France and student of the English labor movement; J. Stitt Wilson, former mayor of Berkeley, California, and a well-known speaker on labor both here and abroad; Dr. Howard Bliss, president of the Syrian Protestant College at Beirut and authority on the racial problems of the Near East. Many other men of prominence and students in special fields have signified their willingness to come to Ithaca and bear a part in the forum if their other engagements will permit. The wide range of topics, the present interest in the questions of which they are a part, and the special qualifications of the speakers make the enterprise of great value to the University community.

WEST VIRGINIA REORGANIZES

On January 16 the Cornell Club of West Virginia University was reorganized at a meeting held at the home of Professor and Mrs. L. D. Hayes, 728 University Terrace, Morgantown. The following officers were elected: president, Dr. Charles A. Lueder '02; vice-president, Professor John B. Grumblein, M. M. E. '14; secretary and treasurer, Professor Alexander H. Forman, M. M. E. '09.

In all there are about thirty members of the West Virginia faculty who are eligible to membership in the club. Those present at this meeting were Dean Clement R. Jones, M. M. E. '00, and Mrs. Jones, Professor Roland H. Patch, M. S. A. '16, Dr. Charles A. Lueder, Professor and Mrs. A. H. Forman, Professor and Mrs. John Grumblein, Dr. Richard R. Armstrong, '13-14 Grad., Professor Walter S. Frost, '16-18 Grad., and Mrs. Frost, Professor Chauncey W. Waggoner, A. M. '05, and Mrs. Waggoner, and Professor Leslie D. Hayes '03 and Mrs. Hayes.

THE CHICAGO CLUB

At the regular weekly luncheon of the Chicago association at the City Club on January 22, A. G. Strattan '16 was scheduled to speak on "Working Under Herbert Hoover in Turkey."

The annual banquet of the club is to be held on February 7 and the secretary writes that they "expect to have a big time in spite of the latest Amendment to the Constitution of these United States."

The club has had about two hundred different men at its luncheons in the last three months.

PITTSBURGH WOMEN

The Cornell Women's Club of Pittsburgh celebrated Founder's Day with a luncheon at the Fort Pitt Hotel. The committee in charge consisted of Miss Marion Armstrong, Mrs. C. A. Carpenter, and Mrs. P. H. Curry.

CLEVELAND GOING VERY STRONG

At the luncheon of the Cornell Club of Cleveland at the Hotel Statler on January 22, one hundred and ten were present; it was "the largest yet." O. P. Van Sweringen spoke on "Public Square Terminal Development."

THE ROCHESTER CLUB

The annual meeting of the Cornell Club of Rochester was held on December 13 at the home of the Monroe County Medical Association on Chestnut Street, Rochester, N. Y. Something less than one hundred members of the Cornell Club were present. The following were elected officers: president, James K. Quigley; vice-president, Frank E. Gannett; secretary, George C. Wright; treasurer, J. Arthur Jennings; governors, one year, term expires January 1, 1921, Frank E. Gannett, Stearns S. Bullen, James J. Carmichael, Charles W. Curtis, James F. Barker, David C. Munson, Fred M. Whitney; governors, two years, term expires January 1, 1922, John R. Armstrong, Arthur W. Beale, N. Adelbert Brown, Edwin B. Nell, Louis B. Swift, Perley Wilcox, Edward L. Wilder.

Romeyn Berry gave an interesting talk on the prospects for athletics in the future and some of the conditions he had been up against in getting into shape since he took office. Professor Samuel P. Orth gave a most interesting and optimistic discussion on the proposition that the world is coming out of the war in good condition.

The Cornell Club in the past year has held functions to interest the high school boys from Rochester and the vicinity in Cornell. On these occasions there were representatives from the Faculty and Major Meissner, Cornell's ace, to talk to the young fellows who are prospective Cornellians. These affairs have been very successful and instructive to the high school boys and beneficial to the University. The club proposes to continue these functions this coming year.

MATHEMATICAL PAPERS

At the recent meeting of the American Mathematical Society, held at Columbia on December 30-31, Professor William B. Fite '92, of Columbia, discussed "Properties of the Solutions of Certain Functional Differential Equations," and Professor Walter B. Carver and Mrs. E. F. King presented a paper on "A Property of Permutation Groups Analogous to Multiple Transitivity." Dr. Helen B. Owens was elected a member of the society; Professor John H. Tanner '91 was elected treasurer; and Professors Virgil Snyder, '90-2 Grad., and John W. Young were elected to membership on the committee on publication. The society is prosperous, having a total membership of 733 and a balance in the treasury of $10,692.23.

LITERARY REVIEW

Hiram Corson's Spirit Band

Spirit Messages. With an Introductory Essay on Spiritual Vitality. By Hiram Corson. With a Prefatory Note by Eugene R. Corson '75. New Edition. Boston. Christopher Publishing House. 1919. 8vo, pp. xiv, 279. Price, $1.50, net.

This book, a new edition of a work which appeared some years ago, but which has become rare, will appeal to two groups of readers. Those who knew Professor Corson, whether or not they followed him in his faith in spiritualism, will be interested in this, his final message to the world. And secondly those who are interested in or believe in the phenomena of alleged spirit communications will find in this volume some food for reflection.

It is not generally known that Professor Corson was through much of his life a believer in spiritualism. As far back as 1874 he attended Mrs. Andrews' séances at The Cascade, on Owaseo Lake. After Mrs. Corson's death he drew great comfort from this belief, and during nine years thought he received frequent messages from her, their three children, and other members of a "Spirit Band" which his wife founded in the spirit land. The members of this Band were the shades of Frances Bennett, Goldwin Smith, the Brownings, Tennyson, Walt Whitman, Phillips Brooks, Frederic W. H. Myers, and Longfellow. A message was also received from Gladstone, and one from Dr. Valentine Mott to Dr. Eugene Corson '75. Some messages were received at Cascadilla Cottage, the medium being Professor Corson's Swedish housekeeper, Mrs. Mathilda Sjoegren. At the request of the Band, Professor Corson went to Boston in September, 1910, and had sittings with Mrs. Minnie Meserve Soule, lasting twenty-four days. The messages in this book are a part of the result of these sittings with Mrs. Soule.

The evidential value of these messages is trifling. So far as internal evidence goes, it would seem to be against rather than for belief. Tennyson, for example, is made to say, "The honors England heaps upon the dead laureates have to be slipped out from under, in order to get a breath of free air." Shades of Murray! It is a fearful mediocrity into which the Brownings, Hawthorne, Longfellow, and Goldwin Smith have fallen and which, if we grant these messages to be genuine, is most depressing. We trust these good spirits will pardon us if we say that the best part of the book is Professor Corson's introduction, written in his characteristic manner and expressing many views with which we shall all gladly agree.

The book is badly printed. There are several misprints, and between pages 101 and 102 something has been left out.

Meyer Wigdor '17, while engaged in the Parke-Davis Research Laboratories and the Government Zoological Laboratories, has written the following papers. These have appeared in The American Journal of Veterinary Medicine: "Gastro-intestinal Lavage in Dogs—Its Value in Removing Worms and in Other Respects"; "Canine Coccidiosis, with a Note Regarding other Protozoan Parasites from the Dog"; "A New Fluke from the Dog"; "A Note on the Effect of Cold on the Degree of Parasitic Infection"; "The Anthelmintic Treatment of Equine Intestinal Strongylidosis"; "Some Notes on the Treatment of Equine Ascariasis and Oxyuriasis"; "Two New Flukes from the Dog"; "A Bothriocephalid Tapeworm from the Dog in North America, with Notes on Cestode Parasites of Dogs"; "Notes on the Acanthocephalid and Arthropod Parasites of the Dog in North America"; "A Physoloptera from the Dog, with a Note on the Nematode Parasites of the Dog in North America"; "A Study of the Fecal Examinations of 1,000 Imported Dogs"; and "A Study of the Character of the Feces Due to Various Foods in Connection with Anthelmintic Investigation." "Two New Nematodes Common in Some Fishes of Cayuga Lake" appeared in The Journal of Parasitology for September, 1918. "Some Studies on Belascaris marginata and Toxascaris limbata" appeared in The Cornell Veterinarian for October, 1918. "An Experimental Study of Serum Therapy in Trichinosis" appeared in Archives of Internal Medicine for November, 1918. "Some Studies on the Resistance of the Ova of Toxascaris limbata" appeared in The New Orleans Medical and Surgical Journal for December, 1918.

The North American Review for January includes an article on "America and Europe in Reconstruction" by Jerome Landfield '94.

In The Romanic Review for July-September, recently issued, Professor Elijah C. Hills '92, of Indiana University, publishes "A Catalogue of English Translations of Spanish Plays," and Professor George L. Hamilton furnishes "Additional Notes Concerning the Descendants of Ganelon and of Others."

Professor Walter W. Hyde '93, of the University of Pennsylvania, has recently completed a work on "Olympic Victor Monuments and Greek Athletic Art," which is to be published by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D. C.

Hosmer's "Geodesy, Including Astronomic Observations, Gravity Measurements, and Method of Least Squares" (John Wiley & Sons).

Power Plant Engineering for January 15 includes a three-page sketch, with portrait, of Lieut. Col. Bion J. Arnold, '88-9 Grad., of the Air Service, by Walter Painter. "At the time the armistice was signed," says Mr. Painter, "he was associated with the inventors and had command for the Army of the development of the aerial torpedo, an automatically controlled airplane, propelled by its own power, designed to fly without the guidance of a human hand, to carry from two hundred to one thousand pounds of high explosive, and to be aimed at an enemy from fifty to one hundred miles distant. This device had reached the quantity production stage at the time the armistice was signed and would have been in use by the thousands on the Western front had the war lasted a few months longer."

In The Journal of Philosophy, Psychology, and Scientific Methods for January 15, "Studies in Psychology, Contributed by Colleagues and Former Students of Edward Bradford Titchener" is reviewed by A. T. Poffenberger, of Columbia.

The Cornell Law Quarterly for January contains an article by Justin Du Pratt White '90, of the New York Bar, on the question, "Is There an Eighteenth Amendment?" White contends that the Eighteenth Amendment, involving an infringement upon State sovereignty, is unconstitutional. The Thirteenth Amendment, which is analogous in its effect, he says merely confirmed what the war had actually effected, that is, depriving the South of its negro property. One may reply that after all, the war had nothing to do with the strictly legal aspect of the case; still, we give this only as a layman's view, not as a lawyer's. Randall J. Le Bocuf '92 writes of "National Banks as Fiduciaries in New York." Dean Edwin H. Woodruff '88 reviews Sir William R. Anson's "Principles of the Law of Contract," third American copyright edition, edited by Professor Arthur L. Corbin, of Yale. Professor J. P. Bretz reviews "Freedom of Speech in War Time," by Zechariah Chafee, jr. There are about sixty-two pages of summaries of important law cases.

In School and Society for January 10 Professor Boyd H. Bode, Ph.D. '00, writes on "Educational Aims and Methods."

"The Professor's Wife," the article which we reprinted from The Evening Post on January 1, is having a wide circulation. It was reprinted from our columns by The Minnesota Alumni Weekly in its issue for January 19.

THE PROFESSORIAL GROUCH

The first thing to do to make Cornell a more human place is to do away with the grouch.

We are using the word, of course, in a large sense, to include not only that sourness of demeanor and brusqueness of manner which are often traceable to a disordered digestion, but also that browbeating, bullying, cavalier attitude toward the student which seems to say that he is the scum of the earth, the one object that darkens the landscape for a bored professor who, if it were not for the pesky students, might manage to find life fairly tolerable.

Why not recognize and make the best of the situation? Professors and students are in the same boat, and have got to live together for the duration of the voyage. Why should they not cut loose from the traditional and childish attitude of regarding each other as natural-born enemies, as intellectual degenerates or loafers, and treat each other with at least the semblance of respect and courtesy? In the end it will pay.

There are very few students who come to college with the deliberately formed plan of loafing and of merely working for D. If they become loafers it may be that they themselves and even their comrades are not wholly to blame. The professor himself, by planning a too easy course, or by piling on the work so that even the student with the endurance of an ox could not do it, may be at fault. When two-thirds of the class flunk a prelim, the professor probably is at fault, and the sooner he goes into his retreat and experiences a change of heart and plan, the better for his hold on the class.

Students are human, as much so in most cases as professors, and if they have many of the faults characteristic of the imperfect offspring of Adam, by the same token they have some of the virtues of humankind. They have been known to "work their heads off," as they express it, for a professor whom they like. They rarely like the sarcastic, brutal type of professor. That is why this breed has all but disappeared.

The number of students who do not respond to good teaching is negligible. The number of students who do not appreciate and remember courteous treatment from an administrative official approaches zero.

University officers and teachers should not be above profiting by the experience of a great industrial corporation as summed up in the easily remembered words, "The voice with the smile wins."

The professor who allows a barrier of ill will to grow up between himself and his class is his own worst enemy. If his trouble is due to dyspepsia, it should be taken in hand in time.

The grouch may be due to various causes—ill health, financial worries, a natural disposition grouchward. From the University point of view these causes are controllable. An adequate salary for the professor will (1) enable the professor in ill health to take a needed rest; (2) remove financial worries; (3) make it possible for the University to eliminate those who are "ill to live with" and replace them with others who are more urbane.

THE PROBLEM OF RESEARCH

Professor Winterton C. Curtis of the University of Missouri, writing in School and Society for January 10 on

"The Promotion of Research by College and University Teachers," has some wise things to say about this most important part of the work of professors. He first discusses the difficulties in the way. Too often in American practice the term "university" is applied "to a group of flourishing professional schools surrounding the surviving remnants of an old-fashioned college, to which has been added a graduate school composed largely of subsidized students." The result is that most professors teach undergraduates, to whom they can only offer instruction of an elementary sort, or professional students, for whom there is a constant demand for instruction of the trade-school variety. And too often the teaching schedule leaves no time or energy for research. And the situation is not likely to improve soon, or rapidly.

Mr. Curtis now considers the conditions necessary for research. The first is time. "Research cannot be continued year after year and by large numbers of men, if it must be done over and above a full schedule of teaching and clerical routine." The great majority of men cannot long do such double work. To promote research we must "recognize the working time which must be allowed, and paid for." How shall we do this when in some institutions it is hard enough to justify even such a teaching schedule as is necessary for really high-grade teaching?

Then there must be ability to conduct research. This is not likely to be found among mediocre men such as will certainly prevail among our faculties unless the burden of teaching is lightened and the position of the college teacher, with reference to leisure for study and investigation, is rendered more attractive to the young men who are now deciding upon their life work.

Thirdly, there must be an intellectual atmosphere in which to work. A first class investigator may not always need it or be handicapped in the absence of it; but it is most assuredly needful for the stimulation of lesser men. "If a man of good training and average ability is thrown into an intellectual atmosphere which stimulates the best that is in him, he may surprise even himself." And we need the work of all kinds of men. "The architect and the master workmen are needed, but without the 'hewers of wood and the drawers of water' the completion of the structure would be impossible. The far-reaching generalization in any field of knowledge commonly depends, both for its conception in the mind of genius and for its final demolition of verification, upon the patient accumulations of lesser men. To this great class most research men belong. To them the atmosphere they breathe is a matter of vital importance." And they should be made to feel the necessity of research not by a formal requirement of productivity measured by pages but rather by the constant suggestion "that they should be growing intellectually and should be making contributions to knowledge. The man should be carried forward by the spirit of his associates and by the feeling that he is one of that select company who strive to light the feet of men with the lamp of knowledge."

ATHLETICS

Dartmouth Beaten Again

The basketball team defeated Dartmouth by the score of 35 to 9 last Wednesday night, thereby improving its standing in the Intercollegiate League. The second victory over the Green was won in impressive style, the team giving the best exhibition of the year, and if the standard of play set in this game could be maintained for the balance of the league schedule Cornell would be a strong factor in the championship race, despite defeats by Princeton and Yale in the early part of the season.

The home team took the lead at the start and soon had a 20-point advantage. The first half ended with a 23 to 3 score in Cornell's favor, Dartmouth having made but one field goal. In the second half the Green's defense tightened and for a time they managed to hold Cornell, but the home team was able to pick up 12 more points before the game ended. Porter led in field goal scoring and his foul goal shooting was also an important factor in Cornell's victory. The summary:

Cornell (35).	Dartmouth (9).
Molinet ----- McDermott
Left forward
Porter ----- Yuill
Right forward
Rippe ----- D. M. Sample
Center
Sidman ----- Browne
Left guard
Bastian ----- Schulting
Right guard

Goals from field: Porter 5, Molinet 4, Rippe 2, Sidman, Yuill 2, Browne, Schulting. Foul goals: Porter 11 out of 13, Browne 1 out of 3. Substitutions: Cornell, Cornish for Bastian. Dartmouth,

P. S. Sample for D. M. Sample, Deane for McDermott. Referee: Metzdorf, of Rochester. Umpire: Messer, of Albany.

Two More Victories

The team won two more games on a week-end trip to the western part of the State, defeating the University of Buffalo at Buffalo by the score of 18 to 16 and the University of Rochester at Rochester by the score of 30 to 11. Captain Molinet starred in the Buffalo game and Molinet and Sidman were the principal scorers against Rochester. Porter and Rippe who suffered injuries in the Buffalo game did not enter the second contest, Sidman and Spader playing the forwards and Molinet going back to center.

Hockey Revived

Cornell will revive intercollegiate hockey after several years' suspension of the sport. A schedule of three games is announced by the Athletic Association. The University of Buffalo seven will play Cornell on Beebe Lake in the early part of February, while in March the Cornell team will journey to Philadelphia to play Pennsylvania and Lafayette.

Intercollegiate hockey was abandoned in 1916 for financial reasons and because fickle weather conditions had made the sport here uncertain and unstable. This year, however, weather conditions have been ideal for out-door hockey, Beebe Lake having been available for skating ever since winter set in. Many undergraduates have come out for the sport and a tentative team is practicing daily.

Baseball Schedule

The baseball schedule of 21 games has been announced by the Athletic Association. Four of these are to be played early in April on a short Southern trip. The list follows:

- April 1—Georgetown at Washington.
- April 2—University of Virginia at Charlottesville.
- April 3—Johns Hopkins at Baltimore.
- April 5—Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.
- April 24—Colgate at Ithaca.

- April 30—Amherst at Amherst.
- May 1—Harvard at Cambridge.
- May 5—Colgate at Colgate.
- May 8—Columbia at Ithaca.
- May 11—Columbia at New York.

Athletic Notes

The freshman basketball team defeated Lafayette High School of Buffalo last Friday night by the score of 36 to 15.

A triangular indoor track meet between Harvard, Dartmouth, and Cornell has been arranged for February 28, at Boston. Graduate Manager Romeyn Berry attended a conference at Boston Friday at which details and the program of the meet were arranged.

The annual University wrestling and boxing meet held in the Armory last Friday night was well attended. The matches as a rule were closely fought and interesting. The wrestling team will open its schedule here Saturday with a dual meet with Penn.

The twenty-first annual "get-together" of track men was held in the Home Economics Building last Thursday evening. The principal feature of the meeting was Coach Moakley's survey, illustrated with lantern slides, of twenty-one seasons of track athletics, training, meets, records, and stars. Other talks were given by various track captains and managers.

ALUMNI NOTES

'80—A strange story is told in a recent number of The New York World concerning Charles J. Pennock, at one time State ornithologist of Delaware, who disappeared from home on May 15, 1913, while suffering from an attack of aphasia. His photograph was posted in every city of the United States and Canada, and the ablest detectives were employed in the search for him, but it proved fruitless. After eleven months, in 1914, S. Jones Philips, Mr. Pennock's former partner and close personal friend, was appointed receiver of the Pennock estate. On December 30 last Mr. Philips received a letter in Pennock's handwriting, postmarked in Philadelphia. Through this and through a magazine article, he was traced to a small village among the swamps of western Florida, where he was earning his living by keeping books for the fishermen and where he had continued his studies and his collection of birds. Some years ago, it is said, he was sent by Cornell University to study bird life in Florida.

Electricity— the Master Force in Manufacturing

THE marvels of electricity have revolutionized our manufacturing industries. With belts and pulleys replaced by electric motors operating automatic—almost human—machines, many a slow and tedious process has been eliminated. The factory worker's task of yesterday is made pleasant by his command of this magic power.

The Crane Company's plant at Chicago—electrical throughout—is a model of industrial efficiency. Its 10,000 horsepower of driving energy is brought by three small wires from a distant power plant. Then electricity drives the machinery which handles the coal for heating, cuts the steel, sifts the sand and sorts the material—in fact does everything from scrubbing the floor to winding the clock.

Such an institution is marvelous—superhuman—made thus by the man-multiplying force of electricity. The General Electric Company has been instrumental in effecting this evolution. First, by developing successful electric generating and transmission apparatus to furnish economically this modern form of power. Secondly, through many years of active co-operation with hundreds of manufacturers, it has mastered the art of applying the use of electrical energy to a multitude of needs. And finally, through branch offices and other distributing channels, its products are made accessible to all.

ROXBURY

Roxbury's success has been due to the efficiency of teaching method. There are no forms. After a careful physical and psychological test each boy is assigned to classes no larger than 5. The number of hours' instruction in each course, the size and character of class entered, and the number of courses a boy may carry are determined by his ability and state of preparation.

Large faculty—one master for each five boys. One hundred and fifty-acre campus and farm. Three dormitories. All athletic teams, gym work, boxing, wrestling, under expert coaches and instructors. Ten saddle horses for boy's use. A large open-air swimming pool to be constructed next spring. Two months' summer session for boys who need additional work, and boys preparing for September examinations.

Roxbury's record has been extraordinary. This summer only two out of over one hundred final candidates failed to enter college.

Students admitted any time during the year when there are vacancies.
