MIDYEAR examinations began Monday morning of this week. They will end next week Wednesday, and on the same day the Junior Week festivities will begin, to conclude Friday night—or rather early Saturday morning—with the Junior Promenade. That same Saturday will be registration day for the second term. This week, also, entrance examinations are taken by applicants for admission to the University in February. Last year sixty-one new students registered at the beginning of the second term. Their number this year is expected to be a little smaller, for not so many are taking the examinations. Last year ninety-five degrees were conferred in February, out of a hundred applicants. This year there are, up to date, sixty applicants for degrees in February.

A CANVASS of the undergraduates to raise money to help meet the expense of an interscholastic track meet in Ithaca next spring was begun last week. In a single night enough was obtained among the rooming houses to make it certain that more money would be raised than was used last year. The members of the junior class society Aleph Samach undertook to canvass the rooming houses. In the first night they were at work they got $275, and most of the territory was only scratched. It is expected that about $700 will be subscribed by students who are not members of fraternities, and about $550 is expected from fraternity men, who are to be canvassed by the senior societies. The work will be resumed after Junior Week. About 350 preparatory schools have been asked to take part in the meet. Nine of them have provisionally promised to enter. The result of last year's meet was to attract many individuals to Cornell,

THE TWO ANNUALS, Cornellian and Class Book, are carrying out the plan which was adopted last fall and under which they will ultimately be published by one board. The final cut in the Class Book competition from the class of 1914 was made during the week. It leaves Paul E. Green, of Buffalo; Nathaniel Lester, of Brockport; M. R. McMicken, of Seattle; R. E. J. Summers, of Kansas City, and C. W. Worcester, of Canton, Ohio, as candidates for election to the editorial board. Immediately after Junior Week a class election will be held and the class of 1914 will select three of these five men. The names of the five will appear on the ballot in order of merit, but this order has not yet been announced. Thus far the new system has worked admirably. The 1914 competition has been a lively one. At the same time a competition has been in progress in the class of 1915 for the Cornellian board, and the final selection of editors will soon be made in a similar way. In the spring the two boards will incorporate as one body to publish the year books, and thereafter only one competition will be held each year, the Cornellian board holding over to publish the Class Book as senior members of the corporation.

THE CLUB formed by undergraduates who are paying their way through the University wholly by their own energies completed its organization last week. Twenty-one upperclassmen are charter members of the society. Their purpose in organizing is to aid needy underclassmen in obtaining work and to provide some social life for themselves. Underclassmen will be admitted to the new club as associate members only. It is proposed to invite faculty men who worked their way through college to join the club as honorary members. The club has not yet decided on a name for itself. Among the designations which have been proposed are "Brain and Brawn" and "Hammer and Tongs."

THE Sun has put into practice its new custom of electing its managing editor, as well as its editor-in-chief, from the junior class to serve in his senior year. Heretofore the managing editor has been a junior, elected in his sophomore year, and has generally succeeded to the office of editor-in-chief. The greater experience that is necessary in getting out the new Sun, with its many more columns and its Associated Press service, may be the reason for its decision to put its news columns, as well as its editorial page, under the supervision of a senior. Elections were made last week. For editor-in-chief the board chose Emerson Hinchliff, of Rockford, Illinois, and for managing editor Lynn Byron Timmerman, of Lima, Ohio. Hinchliff was managing editor under the old system. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity, Aleph Samach, and Book and Bowl. Timmerman is a member of Theta Delta Chi, Aleph Samach and Gemel Kharm, and is president of his class. The new board will take control of the paper in April.

MORE TROLLEY CARS will run up East Hill on Saturday nights. They will run at ten minute instead of twenty minute intervals, and after 11 o'clock two cars will be sent up the hill every ten minutes. That means three will be twelve cars after 11 o'clock, instead of only three. The result, of course, will be that the cars will not be so crowded as they have been. The managers of the Ithaca street railway line have tried to give a good service, whatever the attitude of recent owners of the line may have been toward the public, and the present receivers are showing a desire to improve the service. There has been disorder on late East Hill cars at various times. After a recent case of this kind the senior "conference committee" held a meeting with Roger B. Williams, jr., '01, one of the receivers. The decision to run more cars is a result of that meeting. Another result is a determination by the senior committee to stamp out rowdyism. Last Saturday night members of the committee rode on the late cars and everything was quiet.

PROFESSOR A. B. FAUST, of the German department, will leave Ithaca on February 15 to work six months in German Austria and in the German and Italian cantons of Switzerland during his sabbatic leave of absence. He is sent by the department of historical research of the Carnegie Institution at Washington to search the archives of the two countries for manuscript material which may be of subsequent use to historians of the United States. There is said to be in the records much material bearing on the history of emigration to America. Professor Faust will publish a guide to the useful documents he discovers. Similar guides, already published, cover material in England, France, Spain and Italy.

Alumni Fund Now $26,500 a Year

Meeting of the Cornellian Council

There was a meeting of the Cornellian Council in New York City last Saturday at which an encouraging report was made of the progress of the Alumni Fund for the general support of the University. The Fund continues to grow, and there were on January 22d 2,798 subscribers giving annually $26,567.50.

This was the regular winter meeting of the Council and was well attended. Of the fifty members forty-four were present or accounted for by letter or telegram. Those present were:

Frederic Schoff '71, M. E. Haviland '77, Calvin Tomkins '79, H. J. Messenger '80, Ira A. Place '81, H. D. Schenck '82, Franklin Matthews '83, Henry J. Patten '84, Robert J. Eidlitz '85, Elias A. de Lima '86, George C. Miller '87, Leon Stern '89, Raymond F. Almirall '91, Robert T. Mickle '92, E. V. Stebbins '93, Woodford Patterson '95, Newell Lyon '97, Edward

L. Stevens '99, Maurice R. Whinery '02, Edward Burns, jr., '03, Harland B. Tibbetts '04, Robert E. Coulson '09, and R. O. Walbridge '10, as class representatives, and the following members at large: Charles W. Wason '76, George W. Bacon '92, and Frank O. Affeld, jr., '97, together with the secretary, Eads Johnson '99.

A report of the executive committee was read by the secretary. It gave the present status of the Fund, as above, with some other figures. Included in the subscribers are those of the classes of 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912, which four classes have pledged a total of $132,530. These class subscriptions were made under a form of pledge by which the contribution is regarded as a principal sum, and by which interest on this sum is payable annually at 5 per cent. The interest on this total sum (about $6,600) is therefore included in the $26,567.50 which represents the yearly amount of the fund at present.

The net result of the Council's work is represented as follows: There has been paid in and sent to the Treasurer of the University, to date, $38,704.59. From that has been deducted, for the operating expenses of the Council, including office rent, salaries, printing, postage, etc., $23,077.10, leaving a cash balance with the Treasurer of the University of $15,627.49. To this last sum may be added $6,183.00 due from subscribers and not yet paid, giving the Council a ledger balance of $21,810.49. In comparing these figures to ascertain the cost of collecting this money, it should be borne in mind that the twenty-six thousand dollars which the Fund now amounts to is an annual income to the University, and that the twenty-three thousand dollars for disbursements represents the expense of operating the Council from its beginning, nearly three years ago. And that expense is diminishing, while the income of the Fund is growing. The first year's operation, from April 1, 1910, to July 1, 1911, cost $11,467.91. In the second year, from July 1, 1911, to June 10, 1912, the cost was reduced to $7,273.89. For the year ending next June it is expected to be still less. In comparing the cost of the Council with the returns it is also fair to consider the $100,000 which has been pledged by a group of alumni for the Schoellkopf Memorial training house, because this gift was obtained through the efforts of the Council.

Mr. Place, the president of the Council, gave a short explanation of the executive committee's report. He said that, considering that the Council had been working less than three years, the committee felt that good progress had been made. Its present goal was $50,000, and he thought that was a moderate goal, in view of the fact that more than half that sum was already coming in yearly.

Mr. Bacon told about the approaching completion of the $100,000 equipment fund for Alumni Field and said that after those subscriptions were paid the Council might expect many of the subscribers to give generously to the Alumni Fund. He estimated that from such persons, who had been giving to the field for several years, the Council might expect an addition to the Fund of as much as $20,000 a year.

There was a discussion about ways and means of getting new subscribers, and some talk of what the sense of the Council was as to the disposition of the money that has been paid in to the University treasury. This money, it was said, has not been expended by the University, but is invested and is drawing interest at 5 per cent. Some members of the Council expressed the opinion that, insomuch as the University was accumulating a deficit, this money, representing now an annual income of about twenty-five thousand dollars, should be used for current expenses. Other members held the contrary opinion; they thought it should be allowed to accumulate, for the present at least, and be treated as an addition to the endowment. The question did not go to a vote.

In the course of this discussion, reference was made to the recent action of the Trustees in increasing the tuition charges in two of the colleges after 1914. This was an additional reason why some members of the Council felt that the money in the Alumni Fund should be used at once; the opinion was expressed that perhaps the Trustees might find it possible, if they used the Fund now, to postpone the increase in tuition and perhaps to avoid it altogether. Mr. Place explained, however, that the Trustees regarded their action as a readjustment of the tuition: in two colleges, Arts and Law, the tuition had been comparatively low and it had been increased so as to distribute the burden more equably upon the colleges. He reminded the Council that it had always refrained from attempting to dictate how the Alumni Fund should be used. Any subscriber, he said, could prescribe the purpose for which his contribution should be used; but the Council had encouraged subscribers to give without any restriction, so that the Fund need not be split up into a number of small sums, any one of which could be used only for a specific purpose.

Two members of the Council, William Horace Corbin '73, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Henry Schoellkopf '02, of Milwaukee, had died since the last meeting, and resolutions of sorrow were adopted. The one recited that "in the death of Mr. Corbin this Council and Cornell University have lost a faithful and ever helpful friend and adviser, who was always interested in Cornell affairs and, despite the pressing duties of an unusually successful legal career, cheerfully gave of his time and money to the service of Cornell University and its interests." The other said of Mr. Schoellkopf: "Apart from the splendid success he achieved since his college days through his tireless energy, his distinct ability and his winning personality, we of Cornell will always remember him as the loyal classmate and trusted friend whose daily ideals were a constant inspiration, whose bigness of heart and mind a never ending source of strength to all who knew him, and whose record for clean ways and noble standards left an ineffaceable imprint in the University."

Address of the Acting President

The Cornell Dinner at Chicago

The twenty-ninth annual banquet of the Cornell University Association of Chicago was held last Wednesday evening in the Empire Room of the Grand Pacific Hotel. Paul P. Bird '00 presided and Maurice Connolly '97 was toastmaster. About two hundred were present. The only speakers were Mr. Connolly and the Acting President of the University. Mr. Clare Briggs, the famous cartoonist of the Herald, drew some clever caricatures of the guests, and moving pictures of the Regatta, football games and views of Ithaca scenery were exhibited.

Acting President Crane said in part:

"Three important events in which I have lately participated have left a deep impression on my mind, and what I have to say tonight clusters around these events.

"The first was the 7th of last November, when the Trustees, Faculty, alumni and undergraduates celebrated at Ithaca the eightieth birthday of Mr. Andrew D. White. That celebration, which re-echoed throughout this country and Europe, has passed into history and will never be forgotten by those who shared in it. Mr. White in his touching and inspiring reply to the address of the undergraduates recalled the time when he had stood upon that spot and his eyes had beheld but a single building which in 1868 composed the entire material equipment of the University. There were then 412 students, distributed as follows: Agriculture, 30; Arts, 40; Chemistry, 10; Elective, 81; Engineering, 39; Mechanic Arts, 27; Natural Science, 14; Philosophy 28, and Science, 143. There were 17 professors, 4 assistant professors, and 4 instructors. May I read to you from the comparative statistics published by Professor Tombo of Columbia University in Science for December 27 of last year.* Such growth in forty-five years is amazing and I shall appropriately close my statistics by the number of degrees conferred by Cornell, down to and including last June. Twelve thousand four hundred and eleven first degrees had been conferred and 1333 second degrees, so that there were at that date 13,744 alumni of Cornell.

*Of 29 leading universities and colleges, including summer sessions, Cornell stands sixth (Columbia 9,007, California 6,457, Chicago 6,351, Harvard 5,729, Michigan 5,620, Cornell 5,412); if summer sessions are omitted Cornell stands fifth. In Agriculture Cornell leads with 1185, then Wisconsin 802, Illinois 732, Ohio 720. Cornell is third in Architecture. As for scientific schools Cornell continues to lead with 1419, Cornell is second in Veterinary Medicine, and sixth in summer sessions. In the number of teachers Cornell is second with 825, Columbia first with 867, then Harvard 771, Wisconsin 595, Illinois 577 and Pennsylvania 549.

"The second event to which I alluded above was the meeting of the Board of Trustees in New York last Saturday (January 18), when the tuition in the Colleges of Arts and Sciences and of Law was raised from one hundred to one hundred and twenty-five dollars, and fees of twenty-five dollars were imposed in Sibley and Civil Engineering. This momentous action was taken, I am certain, by what seemed to the trustees the pressure of dire necessity. I am sure it was taken most unwillingly, for sitting in that board are alumni trustees who won their education at Cornell by noble self-sacrifice and heroic struggles. But the University is every year confronted by a deficit, which has now accumulated to the large sum of over one hundred and seventy thousand dollars. The sum which the increase in tuition is expected to raise is twenty-two thousand dollars only, the interest on about five hundred thousand dollars.

"Now, gentlemen, in my addresses to the alumni this year I have not mentioned the subject of athletics. My reason was that it is the one subject connected with their Alma Mater on which the alumni are fully informed. It will be a happy day for American colleges and universities when their graduates take an equal interest in their administrative affairs and have an equally intelligent knowledge of the efficiency of the teaching staff and of the material needs of the institution. I can say this to you without fear of offense, for you know that I have always been ready to promote in a reasonable way college athletics, and no man living has welcomed so many crews after a triple victory at Poughkeepsie. I have encouraged athletics, and I include in the word both college, intra-college and intercollegiate athletics, because I believe them to be useful from three standpoints. From the standpoint of a great university like Cornell they afford a valuable means of breaking down the distinctions of the separate colleges and of increasing the solidarity of the student body; from the standpoint of the undergraduates they do, whatever may be said to the contrary notwithstanding, increase individual interest in outdoor sports, and promote health; and, finally, from the standpoint of the alumni they afford a topic of common interest and cultivate the quality of generosity.

"Now it is the last point of view I have in mind at the present moment. The differences between the alumni and the trustees in regard to the athletic fields at Ithaca have been happily settled, and at the last meeting at New York the final adjustment was made. The grading has been largely completed and the needed buildings are in course of construction or provided for. I am now beginning to look forward to the time when the liberality of the alumni will extinguish deficits, raise salaries, reduce tuition, and enable the University to perfect its material equipment. (President Crane also alluded to Mr. Boldt's generous hospitality at the meeting of the Trustees in New York and his particular interest in the proposed residential halls, mentioning also President Taft's eulogy of Mr. White and the latter's reply, as given in last week's ALUMNI NEWS).

"The third and last event to which I have alluded was Founder's Day (January 11) and Professor Hart's admirable address on Ezra Cornell. Especially illuminating is that part of the address in which the speaker dwelt on Mr. Cornell's broad-minded policy in establishing no mere land-grant college but a veritable seat of general learning, concluding with the wish that the spirit of the Founder may never depart from the University. Alumni of Cornell, it behooves you to ask yourselves what that spirit was and how you can aid your Alma Mater to perpetuate it. Mr. Cornell wished to found a true university where any person could find instruction in any study. As the realm of knowledge widens from day to day the task of the University becomes increasingly difficult. Mr. Cornell was moved to his noble purpose by the memory of his own lack of opportunity for an education when he was young, and the determination that so far as he could he would provide that opportunity for others. See to it that Cornell is never even suspected of being a rich man's college, and do what you can to keep its doors forever open to the class Mr. Cornell had in mind when he made his noble gift to education."

THE NEW DORMITORY for women, Prudence Risley Hall, across the gorge from Sibley College, is to be completed next fall if the contractors can do it. Some parts of the building are now roofed over. Work has gone along pretty steadily, on account of the warm weather. The building will house about 175 students.

Alumni Associations

First Annual Banquet of the Maryland Association

The Cornell Association of Maryland held its first annual banquet at the Renert, in Baltimore, on the evening of January 3. There were forty men present. Ezra B. Whitman '01 was the toastmaster.

The guests of honor were Acting President Crane and the Hon. James H. Preston, Mayor of Baltimore. In his speech Mayor Preston laid particular stress on the fact that more than twenty Cornellians are in the employment of the city of Baltimore in the various engineering departments. He said that the taxpayers of Baltimore were extremely fortunate in obtaining such well trained men. He said also that Ezra B. Whitman '01, Water Engineer, and Levin J. Houston, jr., '01, engineer in charge of new paving, were the best heads of departments in the City Hall. In closing his address the Mayor turned to Acting President Crane and asked him to give Baltimore many more Cornell-trained engineers.

Professor Crane spoke on the Cornell of today, of its needs and its deficit in a financial way. He said that the agricultural college was growing so rapidly and with so many of its students taking the many advantages of the other departments, that the New York Legislature would be asked for a million dollars for the agricultural college. In conclusion he said to Mayor Preston that Cornell would continue to send out men of the calibre that all municipalities are proud of.

The address of welcome was made by Eugene Norton '01. L. J. Houston '01, president of the association, gave a very interesting talk, using as a subject "What the alumnus owes to Cornell." Being an engineer, he filled his talk with statistics, in that way impressing the more mathematical minds of the thirty-odd engineers who were there.

One of the surprises of the evening was the rendering of a violin solo by Levin J. Houston, 3d, of the class of 1928, the seven-year-old son of the president of the association. He played the "Alma Mater" wonderfully well, and with a spirit worthy of a mature Cornellian.

Walter G. Distler '12, the 1911 varsity stroke, gave an interesting talk on the crew. He said that 1913 ought to be a lucky year for another clean sweep (great applause).

The evening ended with the singing of the "Evening Song" and a rousing Cornell yell. The banquet was a great success from every point of view.

Civil Engineers' Annual Dinner

There were a hundred and forty present at the eighth annual dinner of the Cornell Society of Civil Engineers, held at the Hotel Imperial in New York January 17. The older classes were well represented and members of all classes were pleased to greet both Professor Crandall and Professor Church, the ranking members of the Civil Engineering Faculty in length of service. An hour was spent in renewing acquaintances and then the men filed into the dining room by classes. The toast list was found to be a blueprint, rolled and tied with the Cornell colors. The music committee had arranged a good selection of songs, including some written for this dinner. L. J. Sieling '07 was at the piano, and W. L. Bowman '04 led the singing.

H. G. Balcom '97, president of the society, was toastmaster. He sketched the history and aims of the society and presented Professor Church as the first speaker. Professor Church gave some entertaining sidelights on the relation of teacher and student. Acting President Crane was the next speaker. He told of attending a Cornell banquet in Baltimore at which the Mayor of Baltimore was present, and he gave a list of Cornell civil engineers who hold important places in that city's municipal service. He also referred to the recent gift of Charles H. Baker '86 as a foundation for a prize in public speaking open to students in engineering and architecture. Professor Crane commended the donor for his generosity and his loyalty to the University. He was not aware, until he had concluded his speech, that Mr. Baker was seated at the speakers' table. Professor Crandall then spoke of the needs of the College of Civil Engineering. The greatest need, he said, was funds sufficient to provide salaries that would attract and hold good men as instructors and professors. He said that Mr. Baker's gift had been accepted by the trustees and that arrangements would be made so that members of the class of 1913 would compete for the prize. The toastmaster asked Mr. Baker to speak, and in his response he told of the young engineer's need of facility in public speaking and related some of his early experiences. Dr. A. H. Sharpe came in after the Columbia-Cornell basketball game and explained the situation in football.

The committee in charge was composed of Henry A. Young '99, chairman; G. E. Waesche '95, Malcolm A. Rue '99, William L. Bowman '04, E. E. Seelye '04, Victor F. Hammel '07, L. J. Sieling '07, and C. H. Davidson '11. Among those present were Willard Beahan '78 and James H. Edwards '88, of the Board of Trustees; E. H. Hooker '94; John G. Shillinger '92, chief engineer of the Rutland Railroad; J. E. Wadsworth '90, resident engineer of the American Bridge Company, and Arturo Rodriguez '91, of Porto Rico, first vice-president of the society.

Cornell Women's Club of New York

The annual luncheon of the Cornell Women's Club of New York will be held at the Hotel Breslin at one o'clock on Saturday, February 8. All Cornell women and their friends are urged to attend and make this the occasion of a reunion. As all classes will be represented, the meeting of friends is assured. Miss Maud Minor, secretary of the New York Probation Association; Professor George L. Burr, and a guest of the medical alumnae will be the speakers. For reservations notify Miss Clara Hart, 163 West 105th Street, New York City. The price is two dollars a plate.

Schenectady

Among the things discussed at the January meeting of the Cornell Alumni Association of Schenectady was the question of a renewal of athletic relations between Cornell and Syracuse. It was decided that this was a matter for the Faculty and the Athletic Council to settle and therefore no action was taken by the association. The meeting took place on January 18, a dinner being held at Glenn's restaurant, after which all those present went to a theatre. The following men were present: H. W. Peck '00, L. H. Schenck '00, G. S. Whitney '01, W. A. Reece '06, Walker Reid '06, W. G. Taylor '07, R. D. Glennie '08, W. B. Lindsay '08, J. D. Buchanan '09, H. A. DeWitt '09, G. N. Frisbie '09, A. M. Hamilton '09, H. C. Bossinger '10, J. Kirkman '10, L. W. Riggs '10, R. F. Sturgis '10, W. H. Treene '10, F. K. Atkinson '11, C. S. Coggschall '11, A. G. Darling '11, H. W. Dix '11, R. W. Finch '11, R. P. Heath '11, H. M. Platt '11, W. H. Reid '11, C. A. Rohr '11, W. W. Woodruff '11, R. J. Johnston '12, M. J. Salas '12, H. N. Williams '12, W. W. Wolff '12, W. S. Wright '12.

THE HARVARD MUSICAL CLUBS will be in Ithaca the night before Spring Day.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Buffalo Alumni Scholarship

The award of the Buffalo Alumni Association Scholarship will be made at the annual meeting of the Buffalo alumni to be held on February 15, such award being for the scholastic year beginning in the fall of 1913. This scholarship amounts to $200 a year and is awarded to some student residing in either Erie or Niagara County, who is registered for a four year degree and has been at least one year in Cornell or some other university and who is wholly or partly self-supporting. The basis of the award is excellence in scholarship, as shown by the University records, combined with an honorable record of self-help, and the appointee's need of financial aid. The scholarship is in the form of a loan, payable in three equal annual installments, beginning three years after leaving the University, without interest. Applications are to be sent to Frank H. Callan, the chairman of the scholarship committee, 907 D. S. Morgan Building, Buffalo. An application should contain a history of the efforts made by the applicant to obtain an education, a statement of his financial condition and need of help, and a transcript of the University records showing his standing in examinations, and it should be accompanied by testimonials of his need and worth from his professors or former teachers.

Brooklyn

A smoker will be held under the direction of the Cornell Association of Brooklyn on Thursday evening, February 6, at the University Club of Brooklyn, Lafayette Avenue and South Oxford Street. All Cornell men are invited to attend. Dr. Herbert D. Schenck '82 is chairman of the committee in charge.

Dr. Sharpe has been invited to attend and to talk on the athletic outlook at the University. Arrangements are also being made to have a member of the Board of Trustees present to tell of the University's financial condition. Stereopticon views and moving pictures of scenes at the University will be exhibited.

Notices will be sent to all the many hundreds of Cornellians on the association's list. There are so many hundreds of Cornell men in and near Brooklyn, however, that the mailing list is never absolutely correct, and those who see this notice but fail to receive word from the association are urged to consider themselves invited.

ITHACA, NEW YORK, JANUARY 29, 1913

AN INCOME of twenty-five thousand dollars, equivalent to an endowment of half a million, is a pretty fair accomplishment for the Cornellian Council in less than three years. And it should be remembered that this much has been accomplished in spite of the fact that the Alumni Field committee has been collecting about $20,000 a year during the same time. The cream had already been skimmed for the field when the Alumni Fund was started. The readiest givers had been pledged. Next May the final payment on the equipment fund for the field will be due, and after that the Alumni Fund will have no considerable rival. The secretary of the Council has found many alumni who were giving generously to the field and who expected to do as much for the Fund when they had discharged the former obligation. Mr. Bacon, chairman of the field committee, at the meeting of the Council last Saturday, estimated that as much as $20,000 a year might accrue to the Alumni Fund when the money for the field was all in.

THE CORNELLIAN COUNCIL began its work in 1910. During the first year its expenses were heavy. The work had to be organized. During the second year expenses were greatly reduced. A still further reduction in the cost of collection is promised for the current year. If the cost still seems to be large in proportion to the net result, let us get a correct notion of what the net result is. Almost three thousand Cornellians are giving directly to the University. How many of these would be contributing to Cornell's support if the Cornellian Council had not encouraged and urged them to do so? Most of them could not give much. They were encouraged to give by knowing that if they could not help the University much in an individual way they could help it very much in a collective way. Twenty-three thousand dollars has been expended not merely to give the University an addition of twenty-five thousand to its income in the year 1913 but also to effect an organization which is going to continue to give the University twenty-five thousand, and more, every year through all the years to come.

THE ACTING PRESIDENT, in his address at Chicago, wished that Cornell graduates would become as interested in the University's larger welfare, its financial problems and such, as they are interested in the success of its athletic teams. They were accurately and fully informed about athletics, he said, but not so fully informed about University finances. Now the way to make a person interested in anything is to give him a stake in it, an interest in it. Alumni have neglected to inform themselves about Cornell's financial need because it was a thing in which they had no personal concern. They are beginning to show a desire for more information. Almost three thousand of them are contributing directly to the University's income. They will want to know what is done with their money. Their opinion in the future is going to be worth something because they have taken a helpful and not merely a critical attitude toward the University and because they will wish to be informed.

IN MATTERS of undergraduate conduct the hand of the Faculty rarely appears nowadays. Acts which call for correction are dealt with by a committee of upper-classmen, called the conference committee. That body disposes of most cases finally.

The Faculty's committee on student affairs has become a court of appeal so far as individual delinquencies are concerned. Of course the knowledge that it may appeal to the faculty committee strengthens the arm of the student committee. But it appeals only as a last resort. It chooses to be the representative not so much of faculty authority as of the majesty of public opinion among the undergraduates. The latter is the stronger corrective for the undergraduate, who, when he offends, does so simply because he has not stopped to think.

Less Drinking, Says the Proctor

(From the Cornell Daily Sun.)

That drinking among undergraduates is on the decrease is the opinion of Lieutenant Twesten. When questioned yesterday concerning the intemperance of the student, he said:

"Numerous reasons can be given that account for this decrease, but probably the chief factor in causing this inclination toward temperance is that undergraduates are no longer allowing their false ideas concerning college spirit to overcome their good sense. The undergraduates are coming to realize that they do not come to the University for a good time alone. They recognize that an undergraduate in an intoxicated condition is a disgrace to the University. I have had many men come up to my office following a night's drunkenness and apologize to me for their ungentlemanly conduct.

"Freshmen especially are prone to think that it is in accord with college spirit for them to become intoxicated and to be seen in that condition. They soon get over this idea and are ashamed of ever entertaining it.

"Moving picture shows," continued the Lieutenant, "are partially the cause for this turn for the better, but do not of course account for all of it. When an undergraduate goes down town for the evening, he will generally take in one or two of the 'movies', thus spending the time that he might have spent in a saloon. The saloons are almost empty during the shows.

"The 'no treat' system, which was in vogue last year, helped in a way to bring about this decrease, since it was aimed against the habit of 'setting up' for the 'bunch,' which would result in taking more than the 'occasional glass.' Another of the reasons is that undergraduates probably better realize that drinking is injurious both to the mind and the body."

The Schedule

Feb. 15—Dartmouth at Syracuse.

Yale Game Cancelled

The Yale-Cornell hockey game, scheduled to be played at the St. Nicholas rink in New York last Saturday night, was cancelled. There having been no ice for practice in Ithaca since Christmas, and the team consequently being in poor condition, the Cornell management asked to be released from the engagement and the Yale team was not averse to calling the game off. There is only one game left on the schedule, the one with Dartmouth, and that may not be played. Early this week the weather had turned slightly colder and about a quarter of an inch of ice had formed on Beebe Lake. It was perfect ice and a few days of freezing weather now would make fine skating.

Basketball

Cornell Team Now Leads the League, Having Defeated Pennsylvania

By defeating Pennsylvania 26 to 18 in a fast, rough game in the Armory last Thursday night, the basketball team secured undisputed possession of the leadership of the league for the time being, and took a long stride toward capturing the intercollegiate trophy. Cornell has now beaten all the teams in the league except Princeton, whom she has not met, and who went down to defeat twice before the Red and Blue.

Twelve hundred spectators watched the important contest. The game was hard fought and spectacular. Close guarding was the rule and both teams made many long and pretty shots for the basket. The score was nearly tied all through the first half, with Cornell ahead only part of the time, and the half ended 9 to 8 in Cornell's favor. In the second, the team kept the visitors well on the defensive.

Captain G. C. Halsted started the scoring by making good a foul by Reisner, and followed this up the next moment with a field goal from a difficult angle. A successful foul goal by Reisner and Seelbach's basket tied the score. The crowd groaned when Freed, after falling down in a scrimmage, tossed the ball in for Penn with one hand. Another free shot for the Red and Blue made things look dark. Jourdet had his knee injured, but resumed play after ten minutes rest. Lunden's basket and Halsted's free goal tied the score again. For the rest of the half, the only field goal was secured by Lunden, and the period ended—Cornell 9, Penn 8.

A successful free shot and a spectacular throw by Cross sent the score up to 12-8 in the first few moments of the second half. Seelbach and Reisner then scored one apiece and the tally was again even. Cross handily tipped the ball into the basket from a toss-up, and another foul made the total 15 points, but Penn added two more goals from fouls.

Freed was put out for four personal fouls, and his place was taken by Bloom. G. C. Halsted and Lunden passed the ball cleverly to Cross, who dropped it in over his head. Now Reisner had four personal fouls called on him, and Crane came in. Jourdet had a moment's opportunity and scored a beautiful goal from the center of the court. Haeberle contributed two points for Cornell. Then he was put out on fouls, Captain Halsted took center position, and Riley came in as guard. After more free scoring the score stood 22-18 for Cornell. The Halsted brothers took another basket apiece, and the game was over—26-18.

The summary:

Cornell	Pennsylvania
Cross.....r. f.....	Freed
Lunden.....l. f.....	Reisner
Haeberle.....c.....	Seelbach
G. C. Halsted...r. g.....	Jourdet
H. C. Halsted...l. g.....	Wallac

Field goals—Lunden, Cross (4), Haeberle, H. C. Halsted (2), G. C. Halsted (2), Reisner (2), Seelbach (2), Jourdet.

Goals from fouls—G. C. Halsted, 6 out of 13; Reisner, 6 out of 9; Seelbach, 1 out of 3; Jourdet, 1 out of 2.

Following is a table showing the comparative standing of the teams in the league:

	Won	Lost	Per cent
Cornell.....	4	0	1.000
Pennsylvania....	3	1	.750
Princeton.....	2	3	.400
Dartmouth.....	1	2	.333
Columbia.....	0	4	.000

The submerging of the Columbia five is the surprise of the season. For several years the team from New York City has led the league right up to the close of each season.

Captain G. C. Halsted of Cornell has caged eleven field goals thus far this season—more than any other player in the league. The Cornell team has one other distinction, if it can be called that. More fouls have been called on it than on any of the other teams.

Wrestling and Fencing

Several Dual Meets to Precede the Intercollegiate Contests

The next wrestling event is scheduled for February 15, when the Pennsylvania mat men come to Ithaca for the home team's first Intercollegiate Association meet. A few days later the team will take a trip, meeting Lehigh at South Bethlehem on February 21, another Association match, and the Navy at Annapolis the following day. The Navy is not in the association, but promises to give one of the best matches of the season.

Penn State comes to Ithaca on March 1. Another trip includes a meet with Columbia on March 7 and one with Princeton on March 8. The Intercollegiate on March 21 and 22 will be held in Ithaca, as the home of last year's champions. Columbia, Princeton, Pennsylvania, and Lehigh will compete with Cornell.

Good freshman material was brought out in the university championship wrestling meet in the Armory recently. In two bouts, in which the heavyweight and 175-pound championships were contested, E. W. Kleinert '16 and F. M. Tibbitts '16 gave their respective veteran opponents, Clyde Bame '13 and E. J. Gallogly '15 a lively tussle. The experienced men got the decisions, but not without a fight that indicated that next year the varsity will have some new heavy material. Kleinert showed exceptional promise. Each bout went to nine minutes.

The university championships in the several weights were won as follows: 115 pound, H. A. Tassinari '14, New York; 125 pound, T. I. S. Boak '14, Jamestown; 135 pound, Robert Levy '13, Woodmere; 145 pound, W. R. Culbertson '14, Mount Vernon, Ohio; 158 pound, M. A. Lightman '14, Nashville, Tenn.; 175 pound, E. J. Gallogly '15, Albany; heavyweight, Clyde Bame '13, Auburn.

The university fencing championship matches, held in conjunction with the wrestling meet, were the last fencing event until almost March. Captain F. B. O'Connor '13, of the fencing team, secured the foils championship, winning over H. W. Sibert '14, who had just defeated F. E. Burton '13. Sibert is a practically new man this year, but now ranks a good second on the varsity team.

Sibert won the single stick championship by defeating W. H. Upson '14. H. W. Wadman '13 took the sabre championship away from Frank Short '13, who held it last year.

The varsity goes to New York February 28 to meet Columbia, thence to Annapolis on the next day to meet the Navy.

The preliminaries and finals in the intercollegiate take place on March 8 and 22, respectively, in New York.

Cross-Country Captain

Harold Kinsley '14 was last week elected captain of next year's cross-country team. Kinsley came to Cornell without previous running experience, and has not yet won his "C". He began his track career as a freshman by winning the two-mile run in the underclass track meet. Then, when a freshman cross-country team was sent down to Mercersburg, Kinsley finished fourth. In a 1914 run with Colgate he was fifth in the race and fifth Cornell man. In the spring he accompanied the 1914 team to Philadelphia and won third place in the two-mile run against the Penn freshmen.

Misfortune attended Kinsley's running in his sophomore year. In the dual cross-country meet with Pennsylvania he was seventh Cornell man, owing to a pulled tendon. That and a sprained ankle in the spring kept him out of running for the remainder of the year.

In the cross country race with Harvard this fall he was again seventh Cornell man; then in the race with Penn he finished third Cornell man. In the intercollegiate cross-country race he just missed winning his "C", being the sixth Cornell entrant to finish.

The other two juniors, C. J. Evans and F. M. Frederiksen, who might have been chosen, have not run so well as Kinsley. A. G. Cadiz, who beat him in the intercollegiate, is a sophomore.

Intercollege basketball.—The Veterinary and Agricultural college teams led the intercollege league at the end of the week's play, each with three victories and no defeat. Civil Engineering was third, Arts fourth, and Chemistry and Law tied for fifth place. After Architecture came Sibley without a single victory.

Bowling.—Sigma Phi and Alpha Tau Omega are now tied with the highest score in the interfraternity bowling league.

THE MASQUE is not planning any out-of-town trip this year.

Eligibility Rule Changed

More Time for Athletics Allowed to a Certain Class of Undergraduates

A change has been made in the Faculty's rule concerning eligibility for university athletic teams. The change was recommended by the committee on student affairs. Under the new rule a certain class of men will be able to play on varsity teams who have heretofore been excluded. They are the men who have attended another college or university before coming to Cornell and have had to count their term of residence at that other college as a part of the three years allowed here for participation in varsity athletics. For example, a man who had attended some college for two years as a member of the class of 1914 and then entered Cornell for an undergraduate four year course ending in 1916 would, under the old rule, complete his first year of residence here and then have only one year to play on a varsity team. Under the new rule he will have, after the probationary year of residence, three years for varsity athletics, provided, of course, he was not a member of a team representing his former college. The purpose of the rule has been to give every student three years of varsity eligibility, but the Faculty committee found that a strict interpretation worked unfairly in many cases because it permitted only one or two years. The amended rule now reads:

IV. Varsity rowing, baseball, football, and track teams—No student shall represent the University on a Varsity athletic team in rowing, baseball, football or track athletics:

- a. If he does not conform to the above rules:
- b. For more than three years, including therein the years in which he has represented another college or university in any one of these four sports.
- c. If he has received a college degree.
- d. After the class in which he entered this institution has graduated, unless he has been out of residence for one or more terms for reasons other than failure in work or breach of discipline.

Note: In applying Rules IV, b, c, and d, only those degrees and years are to be counted which are regarded as an equivalent of the degrees and college years in this University.

DR. BURT G. WILDER spoke before the Cornell Women's Club of Washington last week on early days at Cornell.

University Preachers

Following is the list of University Preachers for the second term of this year:

ALUMNI NOTES

'76, B.C.E.—Carlos Paes de Barros has just returned to his coffee plantation in Santo Paulo, Brazil, after a trip around the world. He sailed from San Francisco to Yokohama and home by way of India and Europe.

'77, B.S.—James S. Milford is advertising manager of the Melbourne Daily Argus, Melbourne, Australia.

'89, B.L.—Frederick L. Durland has left the Lawyers' Title Insurance & Trust Company and is now practicing law at 15 Wall Street, New York City.

'99, Ph.B.; '08, Ph.D.—L. P. Shanks, formerly professor of Romance languages at the University of Tennessee, is now connected with the Romanic department of the University of Pennsylvania.

'00, B.S.—Robert Morris Ogden is professor of philosophy and psychology in the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

'00, Ph.B.—The firm of John Muir & Co., stock brokers, of which Gardiner S. Dresser is a member, has moved its main office in order to gain larger quarters and now occupies the sixth floor at 74 Broadway, New York.

'04, A.B.—A sonnet by Thomas S. Jones, jr., "As in a Rose Jar," is included in "American Lyrics," a new anthology, edited by Edith Rickert and just published by Doubleday, Page & Co. This collection differs from anything which has hitherto been published, in that it makes the first attempt to sift out the distinctively American poetry from the mass of verse written by Americans but largely influenced by English traditions. The poems have been grouped by themes, in an endeavor to show the tendencies of our literature and also to furnish a clue to the study of the characteristics and promise of individual writers.

'05, A.B.—A second son, Robert P. Butler, jr., was born December 27, 1912, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Butler of 41 Girard Avenue, Hartford, Conn.

'05, M.E.—A son, their second child, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Wilder, of Elmhurst, Ill., on December 15, 1912.

'06, B.Arch.; '07, M.S. in Arch.—A daughter, Anne Elizabeth, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Reginald E. Marsh on January 14. Marsh is now associated in the practice of architecture with Trowbridge & Ackerman, 62 West Forty-fifth Street, New York.

'06, A.B.—Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Schoellkopf, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., announce the birth of a daughter, Jessamine, on January 12.

'06, C.E.—Henry Ryon was elected commissioner of public works of the city of Bridgeton, N. J., at the annual meeting of the city council on January 1. He entered upon his duties at once. His address is City Hall, Bridgeton, N. J.

'08, M.E.—R. C. Folger is superintendent of the Benson Mines Company, Benson Mines, N. Y.

'06, A.B.—Mary A. Bell has been appointed principal of the Eureka high school, the largest high school in northern California, at a salary of eighteen hundred dollars a year. This is the first time that a woman has been made principal of a high school in Northern California.

'09, M.E.—A. V. S. Lindsley is not with the Westinghouse Company, as was stated last week. He resigned from that company on January 1 to take up work in the power department of the Syracuse Lighting Company.

'09, A.B.; '11, LL.B.—Edwin L. Ryon, who has been in the law office of William E. Butler, New York, during the last year, has left that office and is associated

THE DIRECTOR of the Veterinary College has submitted his annual report to the Legislature. He asks for $145,000 for the coming year, to be apportioned as follows: $65,000 for maintenance; $5,000 for equipment to increase the output of hog cholera serum and for a short course in horse shoeing, and $75,000 for adding a south wing to the main building. The appropriation for the college last year was $45,700.

WINTER SPORTS have not had much of a chance this winter. In fact, the Ithaca papers reported that canoeing parties were on Cayuga Lake last Sunday, the 26th of January. A year ago at that time the lake was under a foot of ice. The new steel toboggan slide at Beebe Lake, completed late last winter, has not yet been used.

A. B. RECKNAGEL, the new professor of forestry, has arrived in Ithaca. He has been in the United States Forest Service and comes here from New Mexico.
