STATION NOTES

Anna Marin

Donald Cox

TWO FST GRADUATE STUDENTS RECOGNIZED WITH CASH AWARDS

An international award from the United Kingdom and a student award from the American Society of Enology and Viticulture will help finance the future educations of a pair of FST Cornell grad students currently working in Geneva.

Anna B. Marin was named first runner-up in a scientific writing competition sponsored by the firm of Barnett & Foster International based in Wellingborough, England. The native of McMinnville, OR, who attended Oregon

State U. (B.S. Botany; M.S. Food Science), is working with Terry Acree.

Marin's prize carries a cash award of 100 English pounds.

Framingham (MA) State College grad Donald J. Cox, currently working with Thomas Henick-Kling, has received $1,000 from the ASE&V in recognition of his research on the physiology of the malolactic conversion in lactic acid bacteria of wine.

GOLF TOURNEY SIGNUPS DUE BY WEDNESDAY

Station Club golf tournament co-chairperson Liz Capozzi reminds golfers of all levels of ability that entry forms and fees are due by this coming Wednesday, July 26.

This year's tournament, a five-player scramble, will allow new players, as well as those with more experience, a chance for team prizes. Play will begin Friday, July 28 at 4:30 p.m. at Seneca Lake Country Club (shotgun start). Each Station player may bring one guest. Cost for greens fees and post-tourney snacks is $8.

SAFETY-WISE ADVICE

A recent fire injured four people and four townhouses causing $500,000 in damage. The origin was determined to be a window ornament which concentrated the sun's rays to such an intensity that the window draperies ignited. Caution - be aware if you have any of these ornaments in your home and where they are placed so that it doesn't happen to you. A safety message from Cornell Life Safety Services.
