
LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

Sharon Bessell is pursuing her doctorate in the Politics Department at Monash University.

Susan Blackburn is a senior lecturer in the Politics Department at Monash University.

Mark Cammack is a Professor of Law at Southwestern Law School, specializing in comparative law.

Jeffrey Hadler is completing his PhD in History at Cornell University.

Patricia B. Henry is an associate professor of Indonesian language and literature in the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, Northern Illinois University. Her research interests are modern and traditional Indonesian literature and computer-aided language instruction.

David T. Hill teaches in the Asian Studies Program, Murdoch University, Western Australia.

Vincent J. H. Houben is currently a lecturer of Southeast Asian history in the Department of Languages and Cultures of Southeast Asia and Oceania, Leiden University, The Netherlands. He has published mainly on Javanese and Indonesian economic history.

Hjorleifur Jonsson recently completed a PhD in Anthropology at Cornell University.

Krishna Sen teaches in the Communications Studies Program, Murdoch University, Western Australia.

Takashi Shiraishi is Professor, Center for Southeast Asia Studies, Kyoto University.

John Sidel is a Lecturer in South East Asia Politics at the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), University of London.

Michael Tenzer teaches composition, ethnomusicology, and music theory at the University of British Columbia.