VOL. XXIV, No. 19

ITHACA, N. Y., FEBRUARY 9, 1922

PRICE 12 CENTS

MAIN features of Junior Week are the opening concert of the Musical Clubs in Bailey Hall on Wednesday night, followed by a number of fraternity house dances; Thursday has its performances of "Listen to Me," the Junior Week musical comedy, with tea dances in the afternoon and more formal ones at night; Friday sees international intercollegiate wrestling when McGill meets Cornell in the afternoon, and in the evening the Junior Prom provides indoor exercise; Saturday, Pennsylvania meets Cornell in hockey and basketball in the afternoon, followed by the Independents' tea dance. With twenty-four houses entertaining, those who desire to dance continuously, with forenoons out for sleep, may keep up the pace from Wednesday to Saturday inclusive.

PROFESSOR LEROY BURNHAM of the College of Architecture is responsible for the decorations for the Junior Prom, as the result of the effective plan he used at the inaugural dinner to Dr. and Mrs. Farrand, which was held in the Armory. Through the use of simple and inexpensive draperies he obtains an effect of richness and elegance. Instead of covering the ceiling beams, he leaves them open but allows no light to reach above the walls, and this gives the impression of great height and mystery.

FISHERMEN near the lighthouse on Cayuga Lake have reported some good catches through the ice. Last week a twenty-one pound pike forty-two inches long was landed.

THE GROUND HOG saw his shadow in Ithaca on Candlemas Day, and students are looking forward to a continuation of the best winter sports that Cornell has had for some time. Except for an untoward thaw it is proposed to hold a winter carnival on Beebe Lake for Junior Week visitors.

CORNELL'S SEISMOGRAPH was among those in which the recording needle was thrown out of position by the earth tremor recorded by instruments all over the country last week. It was one of the severest disturbances ever recorded by the Cornell instrument, which was one of the few that indicated the source of the quake as in the West, rather than South or Southwest.

PARAGRAPHS in The Cornell Daily Sun referring to the given name of Dr. Preserved Smith, who comes as a lecturer to take up some of the work relinquished by Professor Burr, have congratulated Dr. Smith's parents on the selection of an unusual appellation to go with a common patronymic, and have also conjectured whether there might be a relationship between Preserved and "Hard-boiled" Smith. It is understood that the present holder of the name Preserved is the eighth in direct line, and that the original holder received it from a grateful Puritan mother after surviving a tempestuous voyage from England.

FEBRUARY 1 was moving day in the 100-block on East State Street. The dry goods store of William C. Blackmer, the haberdashery run by L. Burr Keegan, and the Elite billiard parlors changed places. Mr. Keegan moves his store into the former abode of the cue artists at No. 140, the billiard parlor moves to the site of the Blackmer store at No. 112, and Mr. Blackmer will store his goods for a few weeks until Keegan's old store at No. 128 is ready for his occupancy.

DR. AND MRS. JACOB GOULD SCHURMAN announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Rose Schurman '21, to Frank Lincoln Campbell, Jr., '21, of Omaha, Nebraska. Miss Schurman is now in China with her parents, where Dr. Schurman is American minister.

THE EXTENSION STAFF of the College of Agriculture held a jollification in the club room of the Cornell Foresters last Saturday night. Songs, stunts, and coffee and doughnuts around the big open fireplace proved so enjoyable that a plan is under way to make these gatherings come once a month for the better acquaintance of the Extension family.

ITHACA THEATRES, recently inspected as a reflex of the disaster in Washington, are reported as being of substantial construction and fully safeguarded against accidents.

CEMETERY SIDEWALKS of concrete are promised in the "Boneyard," the burying ground that lies between University and Stewart avenues, and gives a favorite short cut for students up and down the Hill.

A REVIVAL of the Cascadilla Association, made up of students in Cascadilla Dormitory, is planned for the next term. An informal meeting outlined the purpose of the association for the advancement of the athletic and social aims of the residents in Cascadilla. It will affiliate with the Independent organization.

ANOTHER BILL changing the name of the Department of Home Economics in the College of Agriculture has been introduced at Albany. A similar bill was introduced two years ago, to designate the courses as the New York State College of Home Economics, with provision for a college dean. It is understood that the new bill provides for a New York State School of Home Economics at Cornell University, without provision for a dean, but separating the school from the State College of Agriculture. The bill has the approval of the Trustees.

OF THIRTY-THREE varsity contests since the beginning of the year, including football, cross-country, soccer, basketball, and hockey, only four have been lost. Three of these are league games in basketball, and the other was a single game in the soccer season.

CLOG DANCING has superseded the esthetic kind for the past few weeks, when the women of the University have had the one-hour-a-week period formerly given over to the rhythmic cadences of the pseudo-Greek, strenuously devoted to the staccato buck-and-wing stuff of the Afro-American.

LOST AND FOUND articles on the Campus may reach rightful owners with more certitude as a result of the recent notice that the Treasurer's office is the official repository. Heretofore, there has been much confusion as to whether such articles should be reported to the nearest building, the dean of the college, the Superintendent of Grounds, the Proctor, Barnes Hall, or the Sun.

SENIORS IN AGRICULTURE were recently given an opportunity by Dr. Cornelius Betten, vice-dean of resident instruction, to offer suggestions that might lead to improvement which they felt to be desirable in the curriculum.

THE SAGE CHAPEL Preacher for February 12 will be the Rev. Dr. Hugh Black, Presbyterian, of Union Theological Seminary, New York.

PROFESSOR AND MRS. OLAF BRAUNER announce the engagement of their daughter Gertrude to Hibbard F. Johnson, Jr., '22, of Racine, Wisconsin.

PROFESSOR EMILE M. CHAMOT '91 and Mrs. Chamot have returned to Ithaca after several months in Bermuda and the American tropics.

PROFESSOR JACOB R. SCHRAMM of the Department of Botany has been granted a leave of absence for work in Washington on the technical publication Botanical Abstracts.

SEVERAL FRATERNITIES have flooded the tennis courts adjoining their houses, and these improvised skating rinks are in use for interfraternity hockey practices.

PROFESSOR ORTH SUED

A suit for damages in the sum of $5,000 brought by Miss Grace Seeley, warden of Sage College, against Professor Samuel P. Orth, has caused more Campus comment than any other recent event in Faculty circles. The suit is the outgrowth of the accident last April when Professor Orth's sedan, which he was driving, plunged off the approach to the South Cayuga Street bridge over Six-Mile Creek, turned in the air, and alighted upside down, after a fifteen-foot fall, in the bed of the creek. Miss Seeley, Professor Orth, and Mrs. Orth sustained such severe injuries that it was at one time thought they might not recover. Professor Orth had an especially slow recovery, and has been at Atlantic City for some time, in an effort to regain his health.

Miss Seeley's complaint alleges negligence on the part of Professor Orth, who was generally reputed to be a somewhat erratic driver.

It is understood that trial has been asked in Schuyler County in the interests of an unprejudiced hearing. Miss Seeley's attorney is from Elmira, and the lawyers for Professor Orth represent an Ithaca firm.

These are the barest facts in the case. Statements in favor of both complainant and defendant arise at almost any gathering at Cornell, particularly among members of the Faculty, some alleging one set of circumstances, and some quite a different explanation. The actual trial may be delayed for some time, pending a trip which the Orths plan to Egypt.

PROFESSOR JOSEPH Q. ADAMS, Ph.D. '06, lectured at Yale University on January 25 on "Shakespeare."

ATHLETICSBasketball Prospects

The basketball team must be reorganized for the balance of the season since two veterans, James H. Porter, left forward, and Edward H. Cornish, right guard, are no longer eligible to play. The time limit ran against them after the first term. It is considered probable that in the reorganization Barkeley will be moved up from guard to forward, and that Wedell and Capron will play guards.

The team at present is safely tied with Yale at the bottom of the ladder in the Intercollegiate League race. After winning six non-league games in a row, Cornell was beaten by Columbia, Dartmouth, and Princeton successively. Unless the team manages to take a big brace it is going to finish lower down in the league standing than Cornell teams have been accustomed to in a good many years.

Boxing and Wrestling

Athletic contests are to be resumed on February 10, when the wrestling team makes its debut in a match with McGill University of Montreal. On Saturday afternoon the basketball team which has been badly shaken in the first three league games, is to face Pennsylvania, champions of the league for several years, and judged by the form shown so far this season, quite likely to repeat this year.

Both matches are scheduled for the afternoon. The Penn game has become one of the attractive features of Junior Week. Last year the Cornell five defeated Penn by one point in a spectacular engagement, the only league defeat that the Quakers suffered throughout the season. He would be a bold prophet who would predict that history will repeat itself this year.

The annual university boxing and wrestling championship games were held January 25 in the Drill Hall. As usual they were featured by a number of interesting contests. The summary follows:

Boxing

Featherweight: Tinio vs. Worthington; decision to Tinio; 2 rounds.

Bantamweight: Lazaros vs. Frank; decision to Lazaros; 3 rounds.

Lightweight: Thoms vs. Reichart; decision to Thoms; 3 rounds.

175 class: Becker vs. Strack; decision to Becker; 3 rounds.

The President's TourTo Boulder and Back—Meets Many Hundred Enthusiastic Alumni

Traveling practically without stopover from the time he left New York on Saturday afternoon, January 21, until the Black Diamond pulled into Ithaca twelve days later, President Farrand on February 2 completed a notable alumni tour. He spent most of the nights on sleeping cars, spoke at the annual banquets of Cornellians in ten different cities, met several hundred others who could not get to the banquets, attended luncheons at city clubs, chambers of commerce, at meetings of preparatory school principals, and house warmings of women's clubs. Letters which preceded him to Ithaca from points along the way were all apparently written from the same copy book, with a remarkable similarity of phrasing whether written from Philadelphia or Omaha or Milwaukee. "Took the crowd by storm," "magnetic personality," "are with him to a man," typified the reports of all the meetings.

The luncheon in New York on January 21, when 290 women welcomed the President at the luncheon of the Cornell Women's Club of New York was reported in the issue of the ALUMNI NEWS of January 26. That night he was the guest of the Cornell Club of Philadelphia at a banquet at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, "the most notable gathering of Cornell men ever held in the city." One hundred and twenty-five attended the dinner. The seating was by classes, with fathers of undergraduates, most of them non-Cornellians, well represented. Singing between the courses was led by Andrew R. (Andy) McCown '13. Samuel B. Eckert '08 as toastmaster introduced, in addition to President Farrand, Professor William A. Hammond, dean of the Faculty and chairman of the Committee on Student Affairs, Benjamin C. Frick '02, of Philadelphia, and Howard S. Seaman '09, of Wilmington. Moving pictures showing winter scenes at the University, and glimpses of the inauguration of President Farrand and the laying of the corner stone of the Laboratory of Chemistry, with ten or a dozen plays of the Pennsylvania football game on Thanksgiving Day, were a feature. The movies went on to the next cities of the tour, to be shown in Chicago on Monday night and in Milwaukee on Tuesday.

Continuing his custom of breaking attendance figures, the President spoke before 250 alumni in Chicago. Louis A. Fuertes '97 was imported from Ithaca for the special duty of acting as toastmaster, a function which he performed as only Louis can. An old Savage Club member, he called on the talent in the audience: Erskine Wilder '05 to sing the "Alumni Song," Lincoln N. Hall '20 to produce his banjo and some Southern ditties, Ralph D. Huszagh '20 to dance in soft shoes, Robert A. Anderson '16 to perform on his Hawaiian guitar, and Charles D. (Ceedy) Albright '12 to surprise the crowd with the knowledge that he was a ventriloquist as well as a sleight-of-hand performer. Community singing was led by Roger S. Vail '06, the music provided by John L. Dole '18 and his Cornell band.

More than a hundred Cornellians, not to mention seventeen guests, welcomed President Farrand to Milwaukee. In the words of one enthusiastic Cornell reporter, it was "the biggest and best party ever pulled off." William H. Schuchardt '95 was the toastmaster, and a volunteer chorus sang Cornell songs. On the day of the banquet Mr. Schuchardt gave a luncheon at the Milwaukee Club for the President, to which he invited the officers of the association and several of the older alumni.

It was a full day in St. Paul on Wednesday, January 25.

From a Cornell point of view, the Twin Cities have been a bit quiet of recent years, but they proved conclusively that the better organized Cornell towns to the southeast could not outstrip them in showing due honor to the new leader. As a direct result of the president's visit, steps were taken that night, after his hurried departure for his sleeper, to effect a permanent alumni organization of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The banquet table was arranged to form a huge C, with fifty-two Cornell men seated around it. Professor Everett W. Olmsted '91, now of the University of Minnesota but well-known as "Ev" to generations of Cornell men in his teaching days at Ithaca, was toastmaster. Speeches by three alumni preceded the President's address: Judge Frank M. Catlin '82, Judge Frank T. Wilson '81, and Professor George P. Conger '07.

The President was the guest at noon at an informal luncheon at the Minnesota Club which was attended by President Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota, and by Senator James D. Denegre, who was an undergraduate at Princeton with L. Farrand of the class of '88, as well as by many Cornellians. In the afternoon President Farrand spoke at an assembly of 125 boys of the St. Paul Academy.

SPORT STUFF

Since Thanksgiving Day it has been possible to produce such steam as was needed to keep the machinery moving with one boiler. Next week the spring season opens with all six fired up, the engine room red hot, and a group of competes sitting on the safety valve. Little children, timid old gentlemen, and Pro Bono Publico will kindly step back of the ropes. Cornell is about to step out—high, wide, and handsome.

The wrestling team opens with McGill on the eleventh, the track team with Harvard and Dartmouth at Boston on the twenty-fifth, the baseball team is being measured for two-bagger bats, and the crews are on the machines. All the dressing rooms are crowded to the guards and have that complex smell of hot bodies, liniment, leather, and disinfectants that brings to fat old war horses the memories of conflict and makes them long again to be in action.

Farmers' Week brings thousands of visitors to the Hill—some in Fords, some in Packards, and some on the E. C. & N. One of these days some great mind will evolve a scheme whereby that crowd can be lured away from Bosco, the prize bull, and the patent cream separators and the early potatoes, and can be run through a turnstile at Schoellkopf Field at four bits a head. To date, this problem has me stumped.

R. B.

In Omaha on January 26 the President spoke at a banquet of both sexes, and of wives and husbands of Cornellians. The toastmaster was Ernest C. Page '89, and John W. Towle '94 told of his visit to Ithaca at the time of the inauguration on October 20.

At luncheon that noon, at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, the President spoke before three hundred of the business and professional men of the city.

When the President reached Denver on Friday, January 27, he was in his old home country. He was president of the University of Colorado, in Boulder thirty miles to the northwest, from 1914 until he went to France for the International Health Board in 1917. After the Cornell banquet at the University Club, which was attended by many of his non-Cornellian friends, the President spent Saturday in Boulder. He left for the East Sunday noon, arriving in Kansas City on Monday, January 30.

The Kansas City banquet, held at the University Club, was preceded by a luncheon with the principals of the local high schools and the president of the Board of Education. Otho C. Snyder '94 presided as toastmaster at the banquet, and John C. Swift '93 gave the speech of welcome to the President.

The crowded day was January 31, in St. Louis, the windup of the tour. The Cornell banquet at the University Club followed an address by President Farrand at a convocation hour of Washington University, another address at the City Club, where the President was the guest of honor, and a talk at a reception of the College Club of St. Louis before two hundred fifty college women, most of them non-Cornellians.

The banquet attendance in St. Louis was eighty-five. The guests included Dr. Frederic H. Hall, chancellor of Washington University, and several fathers of undergraduates now at Cornell. George J. Tansey '88, Alumni Trustee, officiated as toastmaster. Letters were read from the Yale and Illinois alumni clubs and a large bouquet of roses was the gift of the Harvard Club of St. Louis. On the speaking list with President Farrand were Chancellor Hall and Perry Post Taylor '89, president of the Cornell Club of St. Louis.

TRUSTEE COMMITTEE MEETS

The Committee on General Administration of the Board of Trustees of Cornell University held a regular meeting in Morrill Hall Saturday morning. Those present were Chairman Van Cleef, President Farrand, Charles E. Cornell, Roger B. Williams, Robert H. Treman '78, John L. Senior '01, Simon H. Gage '77 and James P. Hall '94.

Announcement was made of the election Albert L. Brockway of Syracuse as president of the New York State Agricultural society for the year 1922. While he holds that office Mr. Brockway is ex-officio a member of the Board of Trustees.

Preserved Smith was appointed lecturer in medieval history for the second term of the academic year to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Professor Burr.

Dr. Smith is forty-one years old and a graduate of Amherst, class of '01, and of Columbia, A. M. '02, Ph. D. '07; he has also studied at the University of Berlin and the Sorbonne. His wife was Miss Lucy H. Humphrey, of New York. He is a member of Chi Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, the American Historical Association, and the American Society of Church History. He was an instructor in political science at Williams in 1904-6, fellow in history at Amherst in 1907-14, and lecturer in history at Harvard in 1919-20. He is the author of "A Critical Study of Luther's Table Talk" (1907) and "Life and Letters of Martin Luther" (1911, second edition 1914), and has edited, in collaboration with others, "Luther's Correspondence and Other Contemporary Letters" and "Conversations with Luther." He has also contributed to the Britannica and the New International Encyclopedia.

Announcement was made that the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company had decided to continue the Du Pont Fellowship of $750 at Cornell for the academic year 1922-23.

A meeting of the Agricultural College Council was held on Saturday afternoon. Trustee George J. Tansey '88 came from St. Louis to attend it.

LITERARY REVIEW

Two Dante Translations

La Divina Commedia. The Divine Comedy of Dante Alighieri: a Line-for-Line Translation in the Rime-Form of the Original, by Melville Best Anderson '74. Yonkers-on-Hudson, N. Y. World Book Company. 1921. 8vo, pp. xiv, 449. Special edition, Italian boards with vellum back, handmade paper, autographed, 390 copies only, price, $20. Regular edition, 12mo, in press.

The Divine Comedy of Dante Alighieri. The Italian Text with a Translation in English Blank Verse and a Commentary by Courtney Langdon, Professor of Romance Languages in Brown University. Cambridge. Harvard University Press. 1918-21. Large 8vo, 3 vols. Price, $15.

Cornellians will be much interested in both of these admirable translations of the Divine Comedy. Professor Anderson, for many years head of the department of English in Stanford, and since 1910 professor emeritus, was a student here in 1870-2; and Dr. Langdon was instructor in Romance languages here from 1886 to 1890.

We shall not presume to settle the question as to which is the better of these translations, both of which we regard as highly successful each in its own way. Professor Langdon believes that the conditions and acquired associations of poetic forms have given the qualities of blank verse the nearest position in English to those sustained by terza rima in Italian, notwithstanding the rimes of the latter; and there is certainly much to be said in favor of this position. Dr. Anderson admits that the late Charles Eliot Norton very strongly advised him against the choice of the English triple rime. To argue, however, that because no one had succeeded with terza rima in English, failure was necessarily a foregone conclusion, seemed to him a plain begging of the question. The arguments against it were to him like those raised against the conquest of the Poles and the air, both of which are now accomplished facts. And we believe that the labor of twenty-one years now amply justifies itself.

Perhaps the best way to indicate the difference between the two translations is to give some specimens. In the thirtieth canto of the Purgatory there comes the moment of joy at the appearance of Beatrice mingled with anguish when Dante realizes that Virgil has left him. It is, says Mr. Anderson, "the most humanly significant moment in the poem. Virgil signifies for him all grace of art, all serenity of reason, all human amenity,—all that the Parthenon typifies in contradistinction from the Cathedral of the Christian. It is not without a pang that the poet can give up all this, even at the moment of the fulfillment of his unexampled quest, even now when he stands at last in the presence of Beatrice." Here is Norton's prose rendering:

I have seen ere now at the beginning of the day the eastern region all rosy, while the rest of heaven was beautiful with fair clear sky; and the face of the sun rise shaded, so that through the tempering of vapors the eye sustained it a long while. Thus within a cloud of flowers, which from the angelic hands was ascending, and falling down again within and without, a lady, with olive wreath above a white veil, appeared to me, robed with the color of living flame beneath a green mantle. And my spirit that now for so long a time had not been broken down, trembling with amazement at her presence, without having more knowledge by the eyes, through occult virtue that proceeded from her, felt the great potency of ancient love. Soon as upon my sight the lofty virtue smote, which already had transfixed me ere I was out of boyhood, I turned me to the left with the confidence with which the little child runs to his mother when he is frightened, or when he is troubled, to say to Virgil, "Less than a drachm of blood remains to me that doth not tremble; I recognize the signals of the ancient flame,"—but Virgil had left us deprived of himself; Virgil, sweetest Father, Virgil to whom I for my salvation gave me. Nor did all which the ancient mother [Eve] lost avail unto my cheeks, cleansed with dew, that they should not turn dark again with tears.

I've seen ere now when day began to dawn, the eastern skies all rosy, and the rest adorned with beauty and serenity; and then the sun rise with its face o'er-shadowed in such a way that, through the tempering of mists, the human eye could long endure it; so likewise standing in a cloud of flowers, which rose from angel hands, and fell again within and out the Car, a Lady, crowned with a wreath of olives o'er a pure white veil, appeared before me, 'neath a cloak of green, clothed with the color of a living flame.

My spirit hereupon, which for so long a time had not been trembling in her presence, or felt itself all broken down with awe, with no more knowledge of her by mine eyes, but through a hidden virtue issuing from her, felt the great power of the olden love.

As soon as that high virtue smote my sight, which formerly had pierced me through and through ere I had passed beyond my boyhood's years,
round to the left I turned me with the trust
wherewith an infant to its mother runs, whenever terrified or in distress,
to say to Virgil: "Less now than a drachm of blood remains in me that is not trembling;

I feel the tokens of the olden flame."

But Virgil now had left us of himself deprived, Virgil, my dearest father, Virgil, to whom for my salvation I had giv'n me;
not yet did all our ancient mother lost avail to keep my cheeks, though cleansed with dew,

from turning dark again because of tears.

Finally, Professor Anderson's version:
How often have I seen at break of day
The region of the East all roseate,
And else the limpid sky in fair array,
While overshadowing mists so mitigate
The rising splendor that these eyes of ours

Encounter it awhile with gaze se-date,—

So in the bosom of a cloud of flowers Flung in the air and drifting to the ground

From the angelic hands in blossom
showers,

In veil of white, with olive fillet crowned,
Appeared to me a Lady in mantle
green,

With color of living flame invested round.

And to my spirit that so long had been Out of her presence, which did ever move

Me to stand trembling and abasht
of mien,

Virtue descending through her from above
Attested, without witness of the eye,
The great tenacity of early love.

No sooner smote my sight the virtue high
Which had already pierc'd me through the breast

Before my early boyhood had gone
by,

Than to the left as trustfully I pressed
As to the mother does the child, distraught

By terror or by grief, to manifest

To Virgil: "In my pulses beats no jot
Of blood that does not quiver; I perceive

The early flame beneath the ashes hot."—

But gone was Virgil, leaving me to grieve,
Virgil, to me a father passing dear,
Virgil from whom salvation I retrieve,
Nor all that lost our ancient mother here
Availed to keep my cheeks, though cleansed with dew,

From being stained again with many a tear.

In the nature of things, a translation in rime is bound to be less literal than one in prose or even in blank verse. Those who care greatly for literalness, therefore, will prefer Norton, or Langdon, or some other. But it is certain that Professor Anderson has achieved a great feat, and that, in our judgment, at least, at no sacrifice of the real spirit of the original. When Dante says, di sangue m'è rimasto, che non tremi, he is obviously using a construction which will yield him a rime (dramma) with mamma and fiamma. Anderson's "no jot of blood that does not quiver" is the substantial equivalent of this and is sufficiently close.

Men che drama

Professor Anderson has wisely not aspired to reproduce the feminine rimes of the original, but has introduced these rimes only occasionally. This is of course in accord with the genius of English versification.

Some readers of Langdon will deplore the peculiar impression which the rather frequent use of the colloquial "I'll," "I've," "I'd" produces. Not that it is exactly lacking in dignity; but it detracts from the stateliness and the intensity which are in evidence in the original.

Anderson has added useful though brief explanatory notes at the side of the page. Langdon has furnished an elaborate interpretative summary by way of introduction; that of the Purgatory, for example, fills 115 pages. Many will welcome this.

Both translators are to be congratulated on the completion of renderings which will certainly take their place among the most notable of English versions of the great religious epic of the Middle Ages.

Books and Magazine Articles

Through some unintentional error, the name of the book edited by Wallace Notestein and Frances Helen Relf which was reviewed on page 214 of last week's issue was printed as Commons Debates for 1620. The proper title of the book is, of course, Commons Debates for 1629.

"Typha Insects: Their Ecological Relationships," a doctoral dissertation by Peter W. Claassen, Ph.D. '18, has been reprinted from the Memoirs of the Experiment Station.

In Modern Language Notes for January Professor George L. Hamilton reviews Miss J. Murray's edition of "Le Château d'Amour de Robert Grosseteste, Evêque de Lincoln."

President M. Carey Thomas '77 prints in The Woman Citizen for November 19 and December 3, under the titles "This New Generation" and "Opening Doors," her Founder's Day address at Mt. Holyoke College. The article is illustrated by a portrait of her. In the issue of December 31 "New Women in China" are described by Mrs. Mary Roberts Coolidge '80. There is likewise a portrait of the author.

CLEVELAND HEARS SHAW

Archer S. Shaw, associate editor of The Cleveland Plain Dealer, was the guest at luncheon of the Cornell Club of Cleveland at the Statler on February 2. He spoke on "What to Expect from the Washington Conference." "Professor" Shaw crammed more facts about this momentous affair into the heads of the "studes" in twenty minutes than all the newspapers in the country have been able to do in the last three months. More than sixty attended, despite the fact that it was Ground Hog Day.

Dr. Charles F. Thwing, retiring president of Western Reserve University, will speak at the luncheon on February 16.

The club will hold its annual banquet on March 1. William H. (Bill) Forbes '06 has been appointed chairman of the committee on arrangements.

BAKER ACCEPTS ELECTION

George F. Baker, donor of the residential halls which bear his name and of the new Chemistry Laboratory, has accepted his election as an honorary member of the Cornellian Council in a cordial letter to Harold Flack '12, secretary of the Council. President Farrand has also accepted his election to a similar position.

In his letter to Flack, Mr. Baker says, in part:

"I appreciate the honor conferred upon me and which I am pleased to accept. It is a great pleasure to have the distinction of being associated in a class with President Farrand and my dear old friend, Mr. Boldt, who first interested me in Cornell."

NEW HEATING PLANT

Messrs. Henry R. Kent & Company of Rutherford, N. J. as engineers, and Messrs. Day & Klauder of Philadelphia, Pa., as architects, are completing plans for the new central heating plant and steam distributing system for the University. The boilers, coal and ash handling devices, and other machinery in the central heating plant will be installed by Messrs. Kent & Company, the engineers. The Comptroller of the University expects, in the near future, to be ready to furnish the plans and specifications for the building to contractors, so that the contract can be awarded and the work of construction commenced early in the spring. The building will consist of a steel frame with brick facings and will be about fifty-six feet in width and one hundred eighteen feet long. It will be situated east of the Dwyer's Mill Bridge adjacent to the new siding and trestle now being erected.

UNIVERSITY AND ALUMNUS

For some time interest has been shown by members of the Faculty and graduates of the University in the question as to the possibility of some provision that might assist in maintaining and fostering the intellectual and scholarly interests of alumni. There can be no doubt that the most valuable thing that the University does for its students is to give them something of the spirit of truth and to open up to them new fields of interest while at the same time equipping them to carry on and develop these interests after they leave the University. But, as everyone knows, the 'carrying on' is not an easy matter, especially during the years immediately following graduation. The question that has been under discussion, as yet mainly informally, is whether there is any practical way in which the University can assist those who have gone out from its halls. Would it be possible to provide any agency for helping to maintain an intellectual bond between the University and those of its graduates who feel the need of its continued help and inspiration?

It is interesting to note that at Dartmouth College alumni lectureships have lately been established by the gift of Mr. Henry Lynn Moore, of the class of '78, and a trustee of the College. The first series of lectures was delivered in the summer of 1921 by Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard Law School, and has just been published under the title, "The Spirit of the Common Law." The book is a notable contribution to problems of society and government, and sets a fine standard for future lecturers on this foundation. I have mentioned it, however, only for the purpose of quoting from the "Foreword" by President Hopkins of Dartmouth some sentences that state admirably the problem to which I am attempting to call attention:

"I am very sure that the contribution of the College to its graduates ought to be continued in some more tangible way than exists at present. The tendency of college men to seek careers outside the professions, the tendencies of the professions themselves to become so highly specialized as to necessitate the complete grossment of thought of the men who follow them, and the ever increasing demand of the age on all, requiring constantly greater intensity of effort and more exclusive utilization of time in men who wish to do their respective shares of the world's work, impose a duty upon the college which formerly belonged to it in no such degree, if at all. Contacts with what we broadly classify as the arts and sciences are less and less possible for men of affairs. In many a graduate the interest in or enthusiasm for these which the college arouses is, therefore, altogether likely to languish, or even die, for lack of sustenance. If the College, then, has conviction that its influence is worth seeking at the expense of four vital years in the formative period of life, is it not logically compelled to search for some method of giving access to this influence to its graduates in their subsequent years! . . . It is possible that something in the way of courses of lectures by certain recognized leaders of the world's thought, made available for alumni and friends of the College during a brief period immediately following the Commencement season, would be a step in this direction. Or it may be that some other device would more completely realize the possibilities. It at least seems clear that the formal educational contacts between the College and its graduates should not stop at the end of four years, never in any form to be renewed."

The question is a real one, of course, only on the assumption that there are graduates who feel the need of some contact with their Alma Mater that will assist them in maintaining and developing their scholarly interests. If that assumption may be made, as I believe it can without hesitation, there is no problem better worth considering. From alumni themselves suggestion must come as to steps that might be possible and practicable.

At the University a small beginning looking in the direction that has been indicated was made by the establishment of "Honor Societies Day" during Commencement Week. The four honor societies, Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, Tau Beta Pi, and Phi Kappa Phi, united for a common dinner, to which graduates who had been members of these societies were invited to return, and for an address in Bailey Hall, at which all alumni were welcomed. It is hoped this year to continue these arrangements for celebrating "Honor Societies Day," and perhaps to extend them somewhat. It may be possible, starting with this as a nucleus, to develop some organization with broader and more inclusive functions.

He had been associated with the White Company of Cleveland for a number of years, and was secretary and treasurer of the company until his retirement from active business several months ago; at the time of his death he was a director of the company. He had also been a member of the advisory board of the Guardian Savings and Trust Company, and a director of the Universal Crane Company and the Rubay Company. He was a member of the Union Club, the Roadside Club, the Country Club, and the Chagrin Hunt Club.

Charles S. Williams '98

Charles Spencer Williams died of pneumonia on January 20 at his home in Hudson, N. Y.

He was born near Rochester, N. Y., on March 30, 1870, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Williams. He attended the local public schools, then entered the Brockport Normal School, graduating in 1888 with high honors. The following September he entered the University of Rochester, leaving at the end of his sophomore year to become principal of the grade school in Hilton, N. Y. In 1891 he became principal of the high school in Livonia, N. Y., remaining five years. Then he entered Cornell, graduating in 1898 with the degree of A.B. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

After leaving Cornell, he accepted the principalship of a school in Groton, N. Y., leaving in 1901 to become superintendent of the public schools in Chatham, N. Y. Three years later he went to Hudson, N. Y., as head of the public school system of that city, and during his term of service there he had developed one of the most efficient school systems in the State. Under his direction three brick grammar school buildings, a high school building with every facility and convenience, and a temporary school building were constructed.

Professor Williams was widely known as a public educator, and was a leader in many educational organizations. He was prominent in the Associate Academic Principals and the Hudson Valley Teachers'

Association, having served as president of the latter for several years. He was a Past Commander of Lafayette Commandery No. 7, Knights Templar, Past High Priest of Hudson Chapter No. 6, R. A. Albert G. F. Buehler '11

Albert George Frederick Buehler, who was killed in the collapse of the Knickerbocker Theatre in Washington on January 28, is described as the outstanding hero of the disaster. The New York Herald says: "Many brave deeds were reported by rescuers. They said Buehler gave his own life that others might live. He could have been taken from the debris fully an hour before he was, but directed the rescuers to aid others who he declared were more seriously hurt than he. He died after being taken from the building."

Buehler was born on June 5, 1890, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Buehler of Washington, D. C., and prepared for college at the McKinley Manual Training High School in Washington. He entered Cornell in 1907, receiving the degree of C.E. in 1911. For several years he had been with the Patent Office of the Department of the Interior, and during the war he was a first lieutenant in the Ordnance Department, on duty at the plant of the Chalmers Motor Company, in Detroit.

ALUMNI NOTES

'77 BCE, '90 CE—Theodore L. Mead is still living in Oviedo, Florida, where he is growing hybrid orchid seed in quantity and variety to supply material for Professor Lewis Knudson's highly successful experiments in germinating and growing these difficult subjects without the aid of the symbiotic fungi long supposed to be indispensable. The seeds germinate and grow for several months in test tubes on nutritive agar jelly and are not removed until well established with roots and leaves. The germination thus obtained often reaches one hundred per cent. The average amateur grower gets about three plants from every million of seeds sown. The Federal quarantine absolutely bars the importation of orchids, so seeds will be their only source in the future; the seedlings require from five to ten years' growth before they bloom.

'81—After forty years of service with the Solvay Process Company as engineer, general manager, and vice-president and chief engineer, Edward N. Trump has retired from active service under a retainer as consulting engineer, and will take up other consulting practice. During his connection with the Solvay Process Company he was active in the beginning and development of the manufacture of soda and its by-products, and in starting the by-product coke ovens industry. He lives at 1912 West Genesee Street, Syracuse, N. Y.

'82 BLit—Mrs. Florence Kelley, secretary of the National Consumers' League, is now actively engaged in getting the New York Legislature to adopt the Shepard-Towner Law for the welfare and hygiene of maternity and infancy, and appropriate $70,000 to match Uncle Sam's gift of $85,000 under the terms of that law to reduce the mortality of mothers and babies in upstate New York. Her address is Room 1102, 44 East Twenty-third Street, New York.

'87 CE—Julius von Briesen is engaged in railroad and highway engineering in Kansas City, Mo. He lives at 2600 Wyandotte Street.

A. chaplain with the American Expeditionary Forces.

'94 CE—Clarence W. Marsh is engaged in consulting, designing, and construction engineering, specializing in that phase of the industry which includes chemical and electrochemical processes. He is now introducing Marsh Electrolytic Cell Batteries in municipalities for chlorine sterilization. "I am greatly interested," he writes, "in the practical application of methods and equipment in industries to make them more self contained, thus avoiding overspecialization and congestion to that extent in other industries. There are many flagrant examples of economic waste in preparing things for the market when such things can just as well be used in a less finished state. This is particularly true where electrochemical processes can be used which turn out very pure products that need no refining and can be used in the plant without further treatment. Labor is saved because power is used instead of human labor to obtain the reactions direct instead of through the roundabout purely chemical methods. Transportation burdens are much relieved by the act of making things in a self-contained factory." Marsh's address is Cos Cob, Greenwich, Conn.

A Book Many Cornellians Are Reading

WE ARE basing this statement on our sales of the book since Christmas. You are interested in the University. You may know about conditions existing while you were in college, but that is not enough, you should know the University better. Leather binding $5.00. Cloth binding $3.50.

An Ideal "Gift-box" of Chocolates

WE SOLD several hundred pounds of "Whitman's" candy at Christmas time. The "SHIELD" box was the one that went to people out of town. It is a distinctive college package and contains only the best quality chocolates. The price is $1.50 per pound.
