To: Faculty and Students in Civil Procedure, Administrative Law, Evidence, Lawyers & Clients

From: Peter Martin (for the Legal Information Institute)

Subject: Searchable, Printable, Annotable Versions of Course Materials

Date: October 1995

The law school's Legal Information Institute publishes electronic versions of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Federal Rules of Evidence, the Administrative Procedure Act, and the Rules of Professional Responsibility (as well as the core statutes in Intellectual Property and Commercial Law). All are available in the Law School network, through the Windows "Legal Views" Program Group icon. (Faculty members, if you don't see that icon let me I know and I'll have it added to your machine.)

When the program group is opened it should look like this. A double-click on the LII Course Materials icon causes the LEGAL VIEWS software to open to a menu linked to all LII materials (shown on the following page).

The LEGAL VIEWS software allows users to move through core statutes or codes -- entering at any point, following cross-references, checking definitions, moving to official comments (and back) -- all by means of a simple hypertext "point and click". The software also enables full text search. Beyond these "navigation" possibilities, the software allows print on demand of any section or rule and extraction of portions in the form of text files or a copy and paste for incorporation in your notes. More significantly the software permits users to add marginal comments, highlight text, create their own hypertext links -- with these elements of personal annotation residing in a separate file not shared with others.

More detailed documentation is available on a handout that can be picked up in room 116. All LII disk publications are available for individual use in both DOS and MS Windows versions -- at a price of $20 per course. Anyone interested in a personal copy should drop me a note or send an e-mail message.
