A CORNELL HISTORICAL SOCIETY PUBLICATION

Acknowledgements

The Editorial Board of this journal is grateful for the generous support of our faculty advisor, Holly Case, who has been an enormous help throughout the publication process. We would especially like to thank the graduating seniors on the editorial board for their advice and guidance in preparing this issue. Finally, we thank the SAFC, the many students across the country who took the time to submit their work to this publication, and the History Department at Cornell University for its continued support of Ezra's Archives

On the Contributors

MARY BALZER was born in Los Angeles and will graduate from Princeton University in June 2013. She is a history major with a concentration in the Middle Ages. She hopes to pursue a professional dance career in the coming years.

BEN COHEN is a senior at Brown University concentrating in history. His primary focus of study is in early modern British history. He also enjoys running and swimming.

MAYA KORETZKY is a senior at Cornell University majoring in history and minoring in biology. Her historical interests include Russian cultural and intellectual history, the history of science, and World War I. She recently finished a history honors thesis on the intersection of literature, science, and radical politics in the Russian 1860s. After graduation this May, she will be serving for two years as a bioethics fellow at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, MD.

ETHAN MCCOY is a junior at Brown University concentrating in American history. His academic interests lie in the study of race, slavery, and the Civil War and its legacy in American memory. Ethan is currently beginning a senior honors thesis project investigating freedom suits of slaves and free blacks in antebellum South county courts. He is from Melrose, Massachusetts.

JORGE SARMIENTO was born in Barranquilla, Colombia. He and his family moved to the United States when he was thirteen. He believes his experience in both countries has, to a certain extent, defined his research interests as he explores how Colombia and the United States interact with and affect each other. After graduating from the Cornell College of Arts & Sciences in 2012, he joined Teach for America in New York City.

DEVIN TARK is a junior in Cornell University's College of Arts and Sciences, pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in History. He is a cadet in the U.S. Army Reserve Officer Training Corps and plans to commission into the Army upon graduation from Cornell. He is primarily interested in 20th Century American history.
