

iron bridges, as all wooden trestles on the Union Pacific system are designed with 16-foot spans. There are, however, a number of such trestles with one or more 20-foot spans; but no separate classification is made of such spans, as they are gradually being replaced with trestles of the shorter length.

Yours very truly,

V. G. Bogue
Chief Engineer.

G-W.