

Ezra's Archives

A Cornell Undergraduate
Historical Society Publication

Acknowledgements

The Editorial Board of this journal is deeply grateful for the generous support of our faculty advisor, Chen Jian, who has been an enormous help throughout the publication process. We would especially like to thank the editorial board for their advice and guidance in preparing this issue. Finally, we would like to thank the SAFC, the many students across the country who took the time to submit their work to this publication, and the History Department at Cornell University for its continued support of Ezra's Archives.

On the Writers

SARAH SADLIER is a sophomore at Stanford University majoring in History, American Studies, and Iberian and Latin American Cultures. Next year, she will be writing an honors thesis on the lives of U.S. military widows in the late nineteenth century. She is also intrigued by the relationship between American political thought and revolutions in Latin America, and hopes to become a professor of American History.

SERENA COVKIN is a senior studying History at the University of Pennsylvania. She is primarily interested in nineteenth-century American political and intellectual history, and particularly the history of women and gender. She lives in Short Hills, New Jersey with her parents and two golden retrievers.

HANNAH MCKINNEY is a junior at Cornell University majoring in American Studies. Her primary interests include human rights and social justice, and her academic focus includes 19th and 20th century American social and cultural history. She hails from Ithaca, New York.

CHRISTOPHER JUNE is a junior at Seattle University double majoring in history and art history. His primary focus of study is early 20th Century Europe, specifically Art Nouveau, Art Deco art, and architecture and their functions and evolutions in society. His paper on the art of Tintoretto in relation to Venetian society was previously published through the National Conference on Undergraduate Research. After graduating Christopher plans to pursue a career in museum work.

MORGAN WANG is a sophomore in Cornell University's College of Arts and Sciences, majoring in history. Her primary interest is in the French Revolution and the history of aesthetics and design.
