CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS

Vol. XXIII, No. 19

Ithaca, N. Y., February 10, 1921

Price 12 Cents

A BRIDGE across Cascadilla Gorge from the head of Eddy Street to West Avenue has been provided for by a contingent appropriation of $5,000 by the Ithaca Common Council, provided a like sum pledged by Eddy Street property owners is paid and that the University appropriates a sum equal to that furnished by the city toward the total cost of the structure. The estimated cost is $50,000.

PROFESSOR FRED A. BARNES, one of the speakers at the engineers' banquet in New York, referred to the fact that Willard Straight had left money to help make Cornell a more human place; "but you ought to see what President Smith is doing in that direction, even without money."

THE ANNUAL POCKET "Junior Week Guide," which has just appeared, presents, as usual, an attractive appearance. It contains a history of Junior Week, which began forty-five years ago, the committee, the complete program of events of the week, pictures of the twenty-one houses whose occupants will entertain, and the hours of incoming and outgoing trains. The book is on sale at the bookstores at fifty cents.

WALTER O'CONNELL, wrestling coach, is quoted as saying that the headlock, a hold which has been much discussed in sporting circles recently, is no more injurious than the toe hold or the body scissors. He says that the head scissors is even more dangerous than the headlock, against which there has been so much agitation.

THE CITY OF ITHACA reduced its total debt $122,432.42 during 1920 and had a balance of $45,413.90 on January 1, 1921, according to financial statements of city officers.

THE NEW MINISTER of the Tabernacle Baptist Church is Dr. J. D. Brehaut, who came to Ithaca from Muncy, Pennsylvania, and preached his first sermon here last Sunday.

SIGMA DELTA CHI promises a small and select banquet to enable certain favored ones to hear John Rodemeyer, editor of the Greenwich, Connecticut, News and Graphic, and founder and past-president of the Bald Head Club of America. The date is set for Friday, February 18.

A SECRETARY for the State Federation of Farm Bureaus has been found in E. Victor Underwood '13, for many years county agent for the Erie County Farm Bureau with headquarters at Buffalo. For the past year H. L. Creal '21 has been an able acting secretary, but has persisted in his intention to go into active farming.

THE WOMEN STUDENTS' Loan Fund has been augmented by about $75 as the result of a benefit card party given by the Ithaca branch of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae.

COACH MOAKLEY is quoted as reporting that the recent meeting of forty university track coaches, the College Track Association, has recommended that the two-mile race be eliminated from all interscholastic meets and that no high school boy be entered in more than two running events in the same meet.

ON THE RECOMMENDATION of Mayor Stewart, the Ithaca Common Council has passed a resolution suggesting that one of the present fire companies be disbanded in the interest of economy.

AFTER AN ACCIDENT on Buffalo Hill in which Felix A. Peekham '23, of Washington, D. C., was slightly injured, the Ithaca police department has again issued its annual edict forbidding coasting on the city's hills.

ACCORDING TO REPORTS, the varsity track team is likely to compete against one representing the combined universities of France at the Penn relay carnival on Franklin Field on April 29 and 30.

SPORT WRITERS just won't let Gil Dobie alone. Now Herbert Reed '99, in the New York Evening Post, tells of discontent among alumni about the outcome of last season. The plain fact is that Dobie, with an admittedly inferior lot of material, in one season changed from a record of six defeats and two victories to six victories and two defeats. At Cornell this is generally looked upon as a creditable showing and an augury of better things. Al Sharpe, who is extolled by Reed, did not at first obtain any such complete reversal. The members of the football squad, who are naturally most eager to win, want Dobie.

STEPHEN B. HORRELL '21, center on the Cornell football team, presided over the business sessions of the Delta Kappa Epsilon annual convention in Havana, Cuba, during the holidays. This was the seventy-sixth annual convention. President Menocal '88, a member of the Cornell chapter, took part in the sessions and helped swell the number from the Cornell chapter, which had the largest representation.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSES in certain agricultural subjects have been authorized by the Faculty of the College of Agriculture, with a certificate for completion of advanced study from standard texts. The work is carried on through the office of publication of the extension service, with the departments of the college in charge of the subject-matter.

EVEN BEFORE the request from the University Faculty for an expression of sentiment on the honor system, the College of Agriculture had taken a letter ballot on the subject. The sentiment expressed in the ballots was almost unanimous in favor of a continuance of the system in that college, though certain improvements were suggested.

THE SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER for February 13 will be the Rev. Dr. Hugh Black, of Union Theological Seminary, who has been a popular visitor for many years.

TWO WOMEN now perform the duties of truant officer and school nurses for the city schools. They are Miss Elsie Sarge, the present nurse, and her new assistant, Miss Lydia G. Cotton, both of whom saw service in France as nurses.

THE CONCERT by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, the third in the University series, has been changed from February 12 to February 14.

SINCE FEBRUARY 2 Ithaca weather has been spring-like, notwithstanding the fact that the local weather bureau said the ground-hog saw his shadow.

TWO CORNELLIANS, Frank K. Foss '17 and Walker Smith '20, are placed on the All-American track team for 1920 by sport writers.

VASA PRIHODA, the young Bohemian violinist, gave what was said to be a remarkable concert on February 2 at the Lyceum.

A PUBLIC PARK and the new biological station, together with the existent bird sanctuary in Renwick Park, promise to give Ithaca a lake-front park system that should be the envy of many a larger city.

DR. HARRY WARD, of New York, defended organization of labor and condemned the open shop at the Current Events Forum on January 30.

Moakley on Cross Country

Recommends Addition of Jumps, Fences, and Plowed Land to Standard American Courses.

A change in the American cross country running, involving the lengthening of the course and the inclusion of jumps, fences, and plowed land, so that in the main the sport in this country shall conform to the English scheme is recommended by Jack Moakley in a statement recently given to the press. Coach Moakley's views are based on his impressions and study of the English system, while abroad with the Cornell team last December, his experiences as head coach of the Olympic team, and his long intimate association with the sport in this country.

Cross country running in America is now largely road running. Coach Moakley would retain that feature, but in addition he would add the steeplechase features and running over plowed land.

In his view, the type of course he suggests would make the sport of cross country more interesting to the runners and thereby increase its popularity. From the technical point of view it would improve their form and thereby develop a better grade of distance running than we have now.

Going over the jumps and fences would develop the upper body, shoulders, and arms, as well as the legs, making the runners better all around athletes, he maintains; but it is the running over plowed land which he stresses most.

"I regard such running as very essential," he says, "because it will compel what I regard as the ideal form for the distance runner, a low quick leg action that keeps the runner close to the ground. The bounding style of runner would soon find that he could not keep up with the procession. In other words running over plowed land would mean improved form. Some runners come by that correct form naturally. In the amateur ranks I cite John Paul Jones as an example; in the professional ranks, Shrubbs (who is coaching Oxford). The type of cross country running I favor would help our ten-mile runners, our Marathoners, indeed our distance men generally."

Jack also emphasizes the value of such running to the school boy athlete. It will build up and strengthen his body and put spring into his stride. And he cites the Cornell interscholastic race last fall, a two-and-a-half-mile steeplechase affair as a feature, where every one finished in very good condition.

"No great amount of extra training would be required," he continued, pointing to Cornell's experience across the water. "Our boys did not have a great deal of extra preparation for that race. Some of the English sportsmen thought that because the race was longer than we had been accustomed to running (seven and a half miles against six) we might fall down, but we didn't."

Jack also suggests a standard course for the Olympic games like that outlined above. He would have every team know in general terms at least the nature of the course it was training for, and then the day before the race he would allow the runners to walk over the course. The present practice of trying to keep the course secret does not work, he said, because it is impossible to keep it secret from all of the contestants.

VERSES BY A SEPTUAGENARIAN

Dr. David Starr Jordan '72 passed milestone of three-score years and ten on January 19. Many Cornellians, among them some who had known him when students or faculty members at Stanford University, sent letters of congratulation and of gratitude for his teachings. To them he has sent the following poem:

MEN TOLD ME, LORD

Men told me, Lord, it was a vale of tears
Where Thou hadst placed me, wickedness and woe
My twain companions whereso I might go;
That I through ten and three-score weary years
Should stumble on, beset by pains and fears,
Fierce conflict round me, passions hot within,
Enjoyment brief and fatal, but in sin.
When all was ended then should I demand
Full compensation from Thine austere hand;
For 'tis Thy pleasure, all temptation past,
To be not just but generous at last.
Lord, here am I! My three-score years and ten
All counted to the full; I've fought Thy fight,
Crossed Thy dark valleys, scaled Thy rocks' harsh height,
Borne all Thy burdens Thou dost lay on men
With hand unsparing, three-score years and ten.
Before Thee now I make my claim, O Lord!
What shall I pray Thee as a meet reward?
I ask for nothing! Let the balance fall!
All that I am or know or may confess
But swells the weight of my indebtedness;
Burdens and sorrows stand transfigured all;
Thy hand's rude buffet turns to a caress,
For Love, with all the rest, Thou gav'st me here,
And Love is Heaven's very atmosphere!

Three Landmarks Pass

Homes of Pioneers Being Demolished to Make Room for New Chemistry Building.

Of the houses on the knoll east of Rand Hall which are to be torn down to make room for the new Chemistry Building, the three facing East Avenue are the first to go. The material in them has been sold to an Ithaca syndicate which plans to use it for the construction of five small residences on the west side of College Avenue from Mitchell Street north. Motor trucks are now busy carrying their rich old "clear stuff" pine timbers, wide cedar shingles, and even the stones from their foundations across the Campus to the site of the new houses.

The picture shows the house which has been occupied by the last two presidents of Cornell partially demolished. Unlike the two which flank it, this house has long been owned by the University, and was occupied by Professor Herbert Tuttle until it was improved and enlarged by the Trustees for President Charles Kendall Adams when he came to Ithaca in 1885. He lived in it until President Schurman took office in 1892, when more additions were made to it. The Schurmans have occupied it ever since.

The house at the left of the picture, now occupied by Professor Charles L. Durham '99, was built on land leased from the University by Professor John H. Comstock '74, who lived there until 1911.

Immediately to the right of the President's house is the site of the home of Professor Ernest G. Merritt '86, which was burned about two years ago. This was occupied in the early nineties by Professor Benjamin Ide Wheeler and later by Professor John H. Barr '89.

Still further to the right, marked in the picture only by a pile of refuse, is the site of the house which was demolished first. This was built by Professor Isaac P. Roberts in the days when instruction in agriculture was given in Morrill Hall, and was occupied by him until he retired and went to Palo Alto to live. Since then it has been occupied in succession by Professors William A. Stocking, jr., '98 and Edward A. White.

Thus Cornell progresses; the homes of men whose names are known to every Cornellian as leaders in the early days are removed to make room for new buildings to care for the constantly increasing numbers attracted to Cornell by the work these men started. And the walls that knew these men mayhap will presently echo to the chiding voice of the Ithaca landlady, training freshmen in the way they should go.

WHERE THE NEW CHEMISTRY BUILDING GOES

A pile of refuse at the extreme right marks the site of the first building demolished; the President's house is being razed; and Professor Durham's is the next to go. Photo by J. P. Troy

But it is progress—clearing away the old to make room for the new—to increase Cornell's usefulness to the world. Just another indication of the passing of the time when few full professors lived off the Campus and each was known to every student well. Cornell is bigger now.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. JORDAN

On the occasion of the seventieth birthday of Dr. David Starr Jordan '72 on January 19, the following letter was sent to him by Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution:

On the occasion of your seventieth birthday, permit me, on behalf of the Smithsonian Institution and the National Museum, to offer my congratulations as well as thanks for your faithful cooperation during half a century.

For fully fifty years you have labored for the high ideals expressed by the founder of this institution in the words "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men," and for nearly the same period your work has been in close association with the institution and its staff.

Your work has also been intimately connected with the National Museum since its organization as such, and your scientific papers are among the most valued contributions to the Museum's publications from its very first volume to the latest. Your early associations were with Baird, Gill, Brown, Goode, and Tarleton Bean, and your name will go down in the Museum's history linked with theirs. No wonder we have always regarded you as one of us, and we know that this sentiment is being reciprocated by you.

As a slight token of my appreciation of your services to science and to the Museum, may I not ask you to accept the designation as honorary associate in zoology?

I trust that you may be spared for many more years to continue your work.

ROSS HILL RESIGNS PRESIDENCY

Albert Ross Hill, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1907-8, has resigned the presidency of the University of Missouri to become director of foreign affairs of the American Red Cross, an organization which has 17,000,000 members. His headquarters and home will be in Washington, D. C., but he will spend much time in Europe and the Orient.

President Hill received his A. B. degree at Dalhousie University in 1892 and his Ph. D. at Cornell in 1895. He subsequently studied at the universities of Heidelberg, Berlin, and Strasbough.

In 1885-7 he taught in the schools of Nova Scotia. From 1895 to 1897 he was professor of psychology and education in the State Normal School at Oshkosh, Wis. From 1898 to 1903 he held a professorship of philosophy and was director of the psychological laboratories at the University of Nebraska. For four years, thereafter, he was dean of the Teachers' College and professor of educational psychology at the University of Missouri.

While at Cornell, Dr. Hill was also professor of the philosophy of education and director of the School of Education. Since leaving the University in 1908 he has been president of the University of Missouri.

Dr. Hill is the author of several books on philosophical subjects. He is a trustee of the Carnegie Foundation, and was recently president of the Association of American Universities. He has acted as secretary and president of the Western Philosophical Association, and is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the American Philosophical Association, of Phi Delta Kappa, of Phi Beta Kappa, and of Sigma Xi.

THE HAWAIIANS CELEBRATE

Reports from the mid-Pacific have just reached Ithaca telling of the successful Founder's Day banquet held by the Cornell Club of Hawaii on January 10. Thirty-six attended, twenty-two alumni and alumnae, thirteen parents of Hawaiians who are attending Cornell at the present time, and one alumnus's wife.

The attendance was excellent considering the fact that about half of the members of the Cornell Club of Hawaii reside on the other islands. A. L. Marks '12, president of the club, introduced J. M. Watt '19, who spoke on "Recent Observations at Cornell," and F. F. Ohrt '11, who read Ithaca letters from President Albert W. Smith '78, Foster M. Coffin '12, Alumni Representative, and E. P. Tuttle '18, publicity director of the Endowment Campaign and a native of Hawaii. Professor A. L. Andrews '93 read poems by President Smith, and for the first time in Hawaii motion pictures of Cornell were shown.

At the business meeting, A. R. Keller

'03 was elected president, H. A. R. Austin '13 vice-president, and W. L. Morgan '17 secretary-treasurer.

The Hawaiians have started lunches at the University Club the first Tuesday of each month at twelve o'clock. A standing invitation to attend is extended to all Corellians.

DETROIT BANQUET

Alumni in Michigan will gather in force at Detroit on February 17 for the annual banquet of the Cornell Association of Michigan, when President Smith will be the guest of honor. The fathers of Detroit men who are now at Cornell will be invited, and advance notices from R. W. Standart, jr., '09, chairman of the committee, indicate a record-breaking attendance.

The toastmaster will be James Schermerhorn, editor of one of the Detroit papers.

Tickets are on sale at Grinnell Bros. Music House, in charge of Lloyd Grinnell '16, and will also be sold at the door.

The place will be the University Club; the hour, seven p. m. Dress for out-of-town men will be informal.

BUFFALO DINES FEBRUARY 19

The annual banquet of the Cornell Club of Western New York will be held at Buffalo on Saturday, February 19. President Smith will come from Ithaca to make the principal address, accompanied by Coach Moakley, and a feature of the evening will be stunts by undergraduates from the Musical Clubs and from the Masque. To increase the Ithaca flavor, moving pictures of the campus will be shown, with a minute or two of film of the cross country race in England.

The Buffalo alumni are fine hosts, and they have not only invited representatives from the Cornell Club of Cleveland, and extended a general invitation to all Cornell men, but they will have representatives present from other university alumni associations in Buffalo.

Carl H. Bowen '13 is chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements.

TRENTON HOLDS SMOKER

The alumni in the vicinity of New Brunswick and Trenton are planning a smoker for the night of February 26, when all the Cornellians will gather in New Brunswick for the Cornell-Rutgers basketball game.

ST. LOUIS'S PARTY

The Cornell Club of St. Louis tells of a most successful celebration of Founder's Day on January 11 at the University Club in that city. With forty-five members present the party was the most successful since pre-war times. All of the old songs were sung many times over, and it was a simple matter to imagine one's self back in Ithaca, attending an old time party at the Dutch. Cornellians were present from classes ranging from 1877 to 1920.

H. C. (Shorty) Schuyler '10 was back at his old job at the piano and contributed much towards the evening's success. O. A. (Ollie) Reller '15 organized a quartette which rendered several "soul stirring" selections, the pathos of which was softly (?) brought out by Ollie's tenor.

NEW ALUMNI CLUB OFFICERS

At recent meetings held in Cincinnati, Milwaukee, and St. Louis, new officers of Cornell clubs were elected as follows:

Cornell University Association of Southern Ohio: president, James Morrison '03; vice-president, Bleecker Marquette '15; secretary, Joseph M. Gantz '17; treasurer, Raymond L. Kaiper '14; governors, Tell S. Berna '12, Otto E.

Hilmer '07, Clyde P. Johnson '93, Henry M. Wood '04.

Cornell University Association of Milwaukee: president, W. C. Stevens '06; vice-president, A. C. Eschweiler '13; secretary-treasurer, A. L. Slocum '13.

Cornell Club of St. Louis: president, Theodore White '10; vice-president, J. C. Nulsen '14; secretary, Alvin Griesedieck '16; treasurer, F. E. Niedringhaus '18.

PITTSBURGH HEARS McILVAINE

At the regular luncheon meeting of the Cornell Club of Western Pennsylvania, held at Pittsburgh on February 4, George A. McIlvaine spoke to thirty-five Cornellians on the subject of business cooperation.

GOFF ON THE CHANCES

Attendance at the weekly luncheons in Cleveland hits the eighty-five mark consistently. That number heard Fred H. Goff, president of the Cleveland Trust Company "and a lot of other things," produce figures to show that of a hundred men of average ability starting in life without a fortune only two will acquire wealth, while nearly sixty will not be self-supporting by the time they are sixty-five. He quoted from Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller as to their difficulties in disposing of their fortunes in such a way as not to cause injury to their children, and from William K. Vanderbilt and John D. Rockefeller, jr., as to the embarrassment they found in their inheritances, which killed incentive to effort.

Guests from out of town were H. I. Schenck '03, vice-president of the Dayton club, H. J. Williams '03, Dayton, Ohio, and J. C. Sibley, jr., '10, Franklin, Pa.

TALKS ON ROADS

At the Cornell luncheon held in Detroit on February 3, Edward Hines, county road commissioner and past president of the Detroit Auto Club, talked to about forty Cornellians on "Wayne County Roads."

TWELVE REUNIONS

Besides the reunion of the class of '71 mentioned in last week's ALUMNI NEWS, ten other classes will gather in Ithaca on Alumni Day during the next Commencement, and one, the three-year class, '18, on Spring Day, May 21. According to the custom, each of the nine fifth-year classes after '71 will hold its reunion in June, with the general alumni rally in charge of the fifteen-year class, '06. In addition, the class of '90 will hold its reunion which was postponed from last year.

Six secretaries or other officers in charge of arrangements for these classes are this year in Ithaca. They are Robert G. H. Speed '71, George L. Burr '81, Dr. Luzerne Coville '86, Arthur N. Gibb '90, Willard Austen '91, and George G. Bogert '06.

SPORT STUFF

There are signs unmistakable that examinations are about over. State Street has been deserted for three weeks, but yesterday students began to trickle down again by twos and threes weak, wan, and blinking. They had little on their minds and seemed content languidly to inspect the shop windows favoring displays of haberdashery and lingerie. Again at the movies one hears inflated pop corn bags exploded when the heroine is kissed in the final, rapturous fade-away. This bag-popping is proof conclusive of the presence of undergraduates. The resident population doesn't go in for it at all. Neither is it keen about the custom.

Three days of Junior Week, twenty-four hours of continuous sleep, and then everything starts again on high. Track meets, hockey, basketball, wrestling, baseball in the cage, rowing on the machines, and the intensive preparation of petitions to the Faculty for the reconsideration of unfortunate decisions on new and highly pathetic facts!

John Carney, the new baseball coach, arrived yesterday. On Monday there will be a general gathering of candidates. On Tuesday practice starts.

Word comes from Poughkeepsie that there can be no observation train for the regatta on June 22. This is unfortunate. However, when one considers that about sixty thousand people generally see the regatta and that an observation train holds less than four thousand it doesn't seem fatal. One can recollect some very sporting contests on the water long before observation trains were thought of. When you come to analyze it the only elements absolutely essential to a boat race are water and another crew.

Come early and yet a good rock to sit on. R. B.

FELLOWS AND SCHOLARS

Following is the list to date of appointments to fellowships and scholarships in the Graduate School for the current year:

Fellowships.

The Cornell Fellowship in English: Leah Lazar Lowensohn, A. B. '21.
 The McGraw Fellowship in Civil Engineering: Nee Sun Koo, B. S. C. E., Government Institute of Technology '18, M. C. E. '19.
 The Sage Fellowship in Chemistry: Frank Howell Pollard, B. Chem. '16.
 The Schuyler Fellowship in Entomology:

William Harold Brittain, B. S. A., McGill '11.
 The Sibley Fellowship in Mechanical Engineering: Archer Olin Leech, B. S., Oregon State College '18.

The Goldwin Smith Fellowship in Botany: Robert Morris Volkert, B. S. '20.

The President White Fellowship in Physics: Ruth Agnes Yeaton, B. A., Mt. Holyoke '13.

The Erastus Brooks Fellowship in Mathematics: vacant.

The University Fellowship in Architecture: Kenneth Carver, B. Arch. '20.

The University Fellowship in Romance Languages: vacant.

The University Fellowship in German: Cornelia P. H. Zeller, A. B. '16.

The University Fellowship in Agriculture: Thomas Kennerly Wolfe, B. S., Virginia Polytechnic Institute '14, M. S., same '15.

The Charles Bull Earle Memorial Fellowship in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering: Vartkes Migrdichian, A. B. '19.

The President White Fellowship in Modern History: Ernest William Nelson, A. B., Clark '16, A. M., same '20.

The President White Fellowship in Political and Social Science: vacant.

The Susan Linn Sage Fellowships in Philosophy: Eve Tenney Knower, B. A., Wisconsin '18, M. A., same '19; Joseph Harry Griffiths, B. A., Lawrence College '18, A. M., Northwestern '20.

The Susan Linn Sage Fellowship in Psychology: divided into two scholarships for the academic year of 1920-21; see Scholarships.

The Fellowships in Political Economy: Chu Hsiao, A. B., Missouri '20; one vacant.

The Fellowships in Greek and Latin: Marion Elizabeth Blake, B. A., Mt. Holyoke '13, A. M. '18; Helen Margaret Connor, A. B., Indiana State Normal '11, A. M., Indiana '12.

The Fellowship in American History: vacant.

The Edgar J. Meyer Memorial Fellowship in Engineering Research: Frias Prudencio Esquivel, B. S. C. E., University of the Philippines '19.

Special Fellowships.

The Du Pont Fellowship in Chemistry: Arthur Walker Bull, B. Chem. '19.

The Grasselli Fellowship in Chemistry: Emil Kline, A. B. '20.

The Chautauqua County Tomato Improvement Fellowship: Ridgely Wilson Axt, B. S., Maryland State '20.

The Eden Valley Fellowship: L. O. Gratz, A. B., Bluffton '15.

The Hampton Potato Growers' Fellowship: O. C. Boyd, B. S. Agr., Oklahoma A. and M. '16.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

STANFORD has received from Professor Paul Miliukoff, the Russian historian, the gift of his private library, including one of the most complete collections of Russian history in existence. Russian books are now becoming very scarce in the markets. In Petrograd and Moscow books and valuable documents are being burned for fuel.

AT THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS the Ben Hur Temple of the Order of the Mystic Shrine will next year offer two scholarships of the value of five hundred dollars each.

MICHIGAN will send her track team to the Pacific Coast to compete in a dual meet with the University of California on April 9.

THE BROWN Daily Herald in a recent editorial vigorously attacks certain modern dances, specifically "the toddle, the shimmy, and the worst offspring of jazz—the camel walk." The writer believes that "the college man, supposedly the most cultured and the most reasonable member of society, is in a position to call the halt. We want positive reaction on the part of college men, an approbation of this editorial, and a firm stand against the looseness that is becoming too characteristic of our modern good society."

Published for the Associate Alumni of Cornell University by the Cornell Alumni News Publishing Company, Incorporated.

Published weekly during the college year and monthly during the summer; forty issues annually. Issue No. 1 is published the last Thursday of September. Weekly publication (numbered consecutively) continues through Commencement Week. Issue No. 40 is published in August and is followed by an index of the entire volume, which will be mailed on request.

ON LIMITING NUMBERS

Much excellent investigating as well as much loose talking has been done on the subject of the limitation of the number of students at the University. The Trustees and Faculty, we understand, are making a careful study of the situation at present. Many other colleges and universities have arranged for a limitation of numbers on one basis or another, in much the same way that the number of women students at Cornell has been set at the number that can be properly housed. Princeton has placed its limit at two thousand, a figure that is somewhat in excess of their maximum enrollment to date.

Cornell's State Colleges, agriculture and veterinary, offer a problem in any flat limit, in that their enrollment can probably be limited only to those who are properly prepared. Any increase in enrollment of agricultural students would then have to be offset by a decrease in enrollment in the other colleges. Conceivably, an impossible situation could be reached where any arbitrary limit could be equaled by the enrollment in agriculture, with no students in any of the other colleges. A permanent limit would therefore be intolerable for the University as a whole and would have to be determined for the separate colleges, or in its loosest interpretation, for those colleges not supported by the State. The obvious danger is that Cornell might easily be dominated by its State-supported schools.

Limiting the enrollment is therefore an expedient that, if resorted to at all, must be done anew from year to year, the case depending on the available funds, the housing facilities, and the class room capacity.

In a broad sense, as outlined in 1868 by Andrew D. White, Goldwin Smith, and Ezra Cornell, the function of Cornell is to prepare the youth of the country for the duties of citizenship. Virtually this means students as they come from accredited preparatory schools. A limitation requiring longer preparation than a graduation from the average preparatory school would be a subversion of the purposes and ideals of the Founders and of the University. An exception, of course, must be made in professional schools, where the interests of the profession require additional preparation.

The limitation of enrollment is almost altogether a financial problem. Given income enough, Cornell can handle all the properly prepared students that care to come, whether it be ten or twenty thousand. Cornell will never have a small-college atmosphere again. The best it can hope for is adequately to educate earnest students, properly prepared, in numbers that will maintain somewhat of a balance between its several colleges, so that it can be said that Cornell is truly a university and not merely an agricultural college with a pianissimo accompaniment of less mundane subjects.

How to meet the cost is a huge problem. Clearly tuition can be adjusted, from time to time, to a point where the income from all sources will provide adequate salaries, pay for the expansion of the instructing staff, and cover everything but the then needed housing and class-room facilities. The budget for salaries is now twelve per cent less than the fees received from students. Any increase in fees could be applied directly to increasing salaries without causing any decrease in other items of the budget. If each student's tuition, plus his pro rata share of the income from endowment, were greater than the expense of educating him, then an increase in tuition-paying students would produce a surplus instead of increasing the deficit. Gifts from alumni and friends of the University would have to be relied on to provide buildings for housing and instruction, and for something less tangible but more essential, progress.

But tuition cannot be raised to any great extent. It is already $200, in common with that of Amherst, Williams, Brown, Smith, Pennsylvania, and Harvard. Dartmouth is raising to $250. Columbia charges $256. Yale, Princeton, M. I. T., Bryn Mawr, Vassar, and Wellesley are asking $300. The objection to increasing tuition fees is that some excellent students who cannot raise the funds are excluded. The answer usually given to this is that more scholarships could be provided, notes taken for the difference, or special consideration given to special cases.

Another proposal comes from a Western alumni club, that the facts about the eleemosynary aspect of a low tuition rate should be made known to the prospective matriculate, who would then be permitted to pay regular, sustaining, or contributing tuition, by arrangement made confidentially with the University, an arrangement either voluntary or based on the scholastic record made and maintained.

A survey of the situation reveals, therefore, that the decision reached by the Faculty, or by the Trustees, will be reached only after a very earnest and difficult bit of research. No uniformity of opinion exists. The decreasing cost of living may solve some of the problems involved before a decision on the present basis can be reached.

OBITUARY

James S. Lehmaier '78

James (formerly Jacob) Schwartz Lehmaier died suddenly on October 28 in Washington, D. C.

He was born in New York on May 19, 1859, and entered Cornell in 1876, receiving the degree of Ph. B. in 1878. He was a member of the Curtis Literary Society. Then he entered Columbia University, where he received the degree of LL. B. in 1880. He immediately took up the practice of law in New York City, and for a number of years had been in partnership with William W. Pellett, LL. B. '01, with offices at 132 Nassau Street.

He was a member of the Bar Association of the City of New York, and of the American Bar Association, and took an active part in the civic and public affairs of the city. In 1895 he served as commissioner of accounts for New York City, and from 1887 to 1889 was secretary of the State League of Republican Clubs. He served as chairman of the executive committee of the National Republican Club longer than any other member. He maintained his interest in all these affairs until a few years ago, when his health began to fail.

He married Miss Isabel Macy in 1889, and there were two children, Alan Louis, born in 1890, who was in the service and spent several months in France, and Isabel Macy, born in 1891, who is now a teacher in the public schools of New York.

He was an active, useful citizen, who gave his strength and talents to his city and to his time. He took a most active interest in the transit conditions which menaced the growth of New York, and in every civic betterment. A member of his class, who is also a lawyer in New York, said of him: "He was highly esteemed, and his standing at the bar was excellent."

Dr. Walter J. Freeman '83

Dr. Walter Jackson Freeman, a physician and surgeon, of Philadelphia, died at his home, 1832 Spruce Street, on December 20, after a long illness.

Freeman was born at Beverly, N. J., in 1860, a son of Walter and Virginia Victoria March Freeman. He entered Cornell in 1879, remaining until 1882, and was a member of Psi Upsilon. In 1885 he was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, and during the following year was an interne in the Episcopal Hospital. From 1886 to 1889 he studied medicine in Berlin, Munich, and Florence.

He was professor emeritus of laryngology of the Philadelphia Polyclinic Post Graduate School, and had served as consulting laryngologist to the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb. At the time of his death he was laryngologist to the Orthopedic Hospital.

Dr. Freeman was a member of the American Medical Association, the American Laryngological Association, the American Laryngological, Rhinological, and Otological Society, and the Pennsylvania State and Philadelphia County Medical Societies. He was a fellow of the Philadelphia College of Physicians and was a member of the board of governors of the American College of Surgeons.

In 1892 he married Miss Corinne Keen, daughter of Dr. W. W. Keen, of Philadelphia, who survives him with seven children.

Algernon S. Norton '86.

Algernon Sidney Norton, a prominent lawyer of New York, died at his home in Suffern, N. Y., on December 8. He had been ill only a few days, and had undergone an operation for cancer of the intestine from which he failed to rally.

Mr. Norton was born in Homer, N. Y., on February 22, 1860. He entered Cornell in 1882, and graduated with his class in 1886, receiving the degree of A. B., in spite of the fact that he was able to spend only two and a half years at the University, having taught school during the other year and a half and in the summers. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He achieved much fame in his sophomore year by engineering the confiscation of the freshman banquet into the sophomore camp at Trumansburg, Mr. Teal, of Rochester, being the caterer. Later he studied law at New York University, where he became a member of Psi Upsilon.

He was admitted to the New York State bar in 1890, and practiced law in New York until his death.

In 1892 he married Miss May Lacy, of Freehold, N. Y., who survives him with two sons, Curtis Lacy Norton, and Algernon Sidney Norton, jr., both of whom are members of the class of 1918.

Carl D. Stephan '94

Carl Dyer Stephan died at his home, 61 Irving Place, Buffalo, on January 7.

He was born in Dansville, N. Y., fifty-seven years ago, and was graduated from the Cornell Law School in 1894, with the degree of LL. B., receiving the degree of LL. M. in 1895. He was a prominent lawyer of Buffalo, having practiced his profession there since his graduation. He was at one time a member of the firm of Dolson & Dolson, but at the time of his death was engaged in private practice with offices at 122 Pearl Street.

He was unmarried. Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Caroline D. Stephan, a brother, H. Claude Stephan, and a sister, Mrs. Helena S. Hengerer.

Woodward W. Sears '01.

Woodward Wixom Sears died on January 20 at Albuquerque, New Mexico. He had had an operation for the removal of his tonsils, and an infection caused an abscess in his lung which resulted in his death.

Sears was born on August 18, 1878, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ossian Sears, of Searsburg, N. Y. He prepared at the Trumansburg High School, and entered the Cornell Law School in 1897, remaining one year; he re-entered in 1899, receiving the degree of LL. B. in 1901. He was a member of Delta Chi. He was president of both the junior and senior Law classes, and in his junior year was a member of the Masque cast.

For some time he was with the American Book Company, in Chicago; later he became associated with the W. H. Hopkins Company, brokers of Ishpeming, Mich., and in 1908 he went to Buffalo where he began the practice of law. For several years he had been in partnership with Sylvanus B. Nye '98 of Buffalo.

He was a member of Parish Lodge, F. and A. M., of Buffalo, and of the Buffalo Consistory. He was also a member of the Buffalo Club, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Park Club, and was treasurer of the Nye Park Corporation.

He was married on June 30, 1909, to Miss Agnes Hayden, of Buffalo, who survives him with a daughter, Ida, and a son, Hayden. He leaves also his mother, Mrs. Kate Sears, a brother, Dr. Keith Sears '03, of Trumansburg, and a sister, Mrs. R. P. Davis, of Douglas, Ariz. The funeral was held from the Sears home in Buffalo on January 25, and burial was at Trumansburg on January 26.

Stephen A. Repko '14

Stephen Albert Repko died of typhoid fever on November 29, 1920, at Medellin, Colombia, South America.

He was born on July 11, 1892, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Repko, of Queens, Long Island. He prepared at DeWitt Clinton High School, entering Cornell in 1910 in the course in arts and sciences, and receiving the degree of A. B. in 1914. He served on a number of undergraduate committees. At the time of his death he was in the employ of the National City Bank of New York.

LITERARY REVIEW

'Wisdom in Education

The Trend of the Teens. By Michael V. O'Shea '92, Professor of Education in the University of Wisconsin. Chicago. Frederick J. Drake & Company. 1920. Small 8vo, pp. 281. The Parent's Library, No. 2. Price, $1.50.

This is one of a series of volumes which Professor O'Shea has written for the Parent's Library, of which he as educational director and Paul E. Watson as editorial director of Mother's Magazine and Home Life are the joint editors. The other books are "First Steps in Child Training," "The Faults of Childhood and Youth," and "Everyday Problems in Child Training."

The volume before us is a book for fathers and mothers, and the author has not assumed that they are familiar with or interested in technical psychology, biology, or hygiene. He has dealt with the most practical "problems of guiding children in their intellectual, physical, ethical, and temperamental development."

It is hard to see how the book could have been made more practical. The author might, as he says, have dealt much more at length with theory, before arriving at the conclusions he sets forth; but he has refrained. Instead we have a large number of the most pressing problems relating to the development of boys and girls attacked and discussed in the most profitable way, in the light not only of the author's researches in educational theory, extending over many years, but also of his practical experience in dealing with the puzzles constantly brought to him at parent-teacher gatherings and in the Personal Service Bureau of the magazine mentioned above.

Professor O'Shea strongly defends the mixed high school and, by implication, the coeducational college. "The American high school," he asserts, "has accomplished more than any other institution in the world in the way of developing friendship and comradeship among boys and girls. It has removed artificial barriers which in other countries make boys and girls after they reach the teens strangers to each other. . . . The American girl, mainly because of her training in the public high school, has gained resourcefulness, courage, and efficiency in every-day affairs."

Another interesting chapter deals with "Distractions in American Life." The life of boys and girls in the public schools tends to become more and more distracting—with dances, moving pictures, motoring, and other amusements. Too much of this kind of thing causes the school tasks to become dull and distasteful. The author believes that "the community should join with the school to make the things for which the school stands supreme in the life of young people. The school cannot do it alone."

The last chapter gives a useful classified list of important books for both parents and teachers.

As an Australian Sees Us

The American University: an Australian View. By E. R. Hulme. Sydney. Angus & Robertson. 1920. 8vo, pp. 242.

An observer from the other side of the globe made a tour of American universities in the winter of 1918-19. Now he has made a book of what he gathered. The book is "The American University: an Australian View," by E. R. Holme, professor of the English language in the University of Sydney, who was attached as a major to the Education Service of the Australian Imperial Force. Major Holme's object in his tour was to discover how far American methods were applicable to or instructive for the British type of university established in Australia. His book contains 242 pages; it is published by Angus & Robertson of Sydney. He calls it, modestly, only "a first impression of a very great subject." But, sketchy though it necessarily be, it is remarkably correct, and it is valuable too because of the novelty of its point of view. This Australian teacher was looking for merits, not for faults, in our institutions. Yet he is searching in his examination of some faults, such, for instance, as "the confusion existing between the work of the secondary school and the work of the university in America." He has kindly but refreshing things to say about many of our practices and customs. The University Library has a copy of his book.

Books and Magazine Articles

In the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association for January Professors Simon H. Gage '77 and Pierre A. Fish '90 collaborate in a paper on "The Presence of Micro-Particles in the Blood and Other Body Fluids." Dr. Earl M. Pickens '11 collaborates with M. F. Welsh and L. J. Poelma in a paper on "The Susceptibility of Young Pigs to Hog Cholera."

In The Survey for January 22 "The Nation and the Schools" by John A. H. Keith and Professor William C. Bagley, Ph. D. '00 (Macmillan), is reviewed by Joseph K. Hart.

In the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science for January, which is devoted to the general subject of "Present-Day Immigration with Special Reference to the Japanese," Carol Aronovici '05, late director of housing of the California State Commission of Immigration and Housing, writes on "Americanization" and Frances A. Kellor '97 writes on "Immigration and the Future." Of the latter the editor, Professor Kelsey, of the University of Pennsylvania, says that it "strikes a new note in immigration discussion."

An edition of Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus" prepared by Professor Clark S. Northup '93 has just been published by Harcourt, Brace & Howe, of New York.

President M. Carey Thomas '77, of Bryn Mawr, is contributing a serial entitled "The Mediterranean Basin: Impressions of a Sentimental Traveller" to The Bryn Mawr Alumnae Bulletin; it began in the January number.

In The Cornell Era for January 25 Roger W. Hooker '21 and John C. Atwood, jr., '21, discuss the honor system. Professor Bristow Adams, under the heading "Extending Inward," discusses the significance of Farmers' Week, mentioning two of the speakers—Asbury F. Lever, father of the Lever Act for agricultural education, and Senator Henry M. Sage—who are to be here next week. "In Time of Dulness Prepare for Business" is the slogan of Jaime Clarana Gil (formerly James Bertram Clarke) '12, of Rio de Janeiro, who discusses the export situation in South America and makes valuable suggestions for students of international business methods.

In Science for January 28 Professor Willard J. Fisher, Ph. D. '08, of the University of the Philippines, writes on "Star-Time Observations with an Engineer's Y-Level."

Professor Albert H. Washburn '89, of Dartmouth, writes in The Columbia Law Review for January on "The Legality of the Pacific Blockade."

Professor Graham Lusk has the principal article in the Journal of the American Medical Association for January entitled "The Influence of the French Scientists on Medicine." In it, he cites Lavoisier as the father of modern physiological chemists, since all more recent men in this field were pupils of pupils of Lavoisier. Pasteur was one of these, also Voit, Liebig, Ludwig, and many others.

In The Sibley Journal of Engineering for December there is reprinted from The Electrical World a letter from Professor Vladimir Karapetoff on "The Shortage of Instructors."

Professor Elijah C. Hills '92, while traveling in Spain last summer, was invited to address the 1920 Summer School in Madrid. His address was published in Spanish in the November number of Hispania and in English in The Indiana University Alumni Quarterly for January.

Professor Edwin W. Kemmerer, Ph. D. '03, is to contribute to Administration, the new magazine to be published by the Ronald Press Company of New York.

"The Liberal College" by President Alexander Meiklejohn, Ph. D. '97, is reviewed in The Weekly Review for January 26 by Professor William Haller, of Columbia.

In The Nation for February 2 Professor Carl Becker reviews "Alexander Hamilton" by Professor Henry Jones Ford.

"Applied Colloid Chemistry" by Professor Wilder D. Bancroft has just been published in the International Chemical Series by the McGraw-Hill Book Company. It is an illustrated octavo of 345 pages and sells for $3.

"The Airplane" by Professor Frederick Bedell, M. S. '91, recently published by the D. Van Nostrand Company, is reviewed in Science for February 4 by Professor Lionel S. Marks of Harvard.

In the Transactions of the Illuminating Engineering Society for November 20 Dr. Ernest Fox Nichols, M. S. '93, publishes a paper on "Modified Views on the Theory of Light." In the issue for December 30 Drs. Clarence E. Ferree, Ph.D. '10, and Gertrude Rand (Mrs. Ferree) '08 publish their paper on "The Effect of Variation in Intensity of Illumination on Functions of Importance to the Working Eye," presented before the fourteenth annual convention of the society in Cleveland October 4-7.

The leading article in The Philosophical Review for January is by Dr. Marion Crane Carroll '16, and is entitled "The Principle of Individuality in the Metaphysics of Bernard Bosanquet." Professor Alfred H. Jones '07, of Brown, discusses "The Basis of Significant Structures." Professor William K. Wright, of Dartmouth, formerly of Cornell, reviews "The Religious Consciousness: a Psychological Study" by James Bissett Pratt (Macmillan). Professor G. Watts Cunningham, Ph.D. '08, of the University of Texas, reviews "Les Problèmes de la Philosophie et Leur Enchaînement Scientifique: le Donné et l' Objectif" by Paul Dupont (Paris, Alean). Professor Radoslav A. Tsanoff, Ph.D. '10, of the Rice Institute, reviews "La Filosofia Contemporanea: Germania-Francia-Inghilterra-America-Italia" by Guido de Ruggiero (Bari, Laterza). Professor Ernest Albee, Ph.D. '94, reviews "The Development of British Thought from 1820 to 1890, with Special Reference to German Influences" by M. M. Waddington (Toronto, Dent). "The Psychology of Nationality and Internationalism" by Professor Walter B. Pillsbury, Ph.D. '96, is reviewed by Professor Thilly. Summaries of articles are furnished by H. R. Smart, Eve T. Knower, J. H. Griffiths, Margaret R. Nysewander, and Glenn T. Morrow, of the Graduate School.

In The Psychological Review for November Professor Edwin G. Boring '08, of Clark University, writes on "The Control of Attitude in Psychophysical Experiments."

The American Mathematical Monthly for February includes a discussion of "The Teaching of Limits in the High School" by Professor Joseph V. McKelvey '06, of Iowa State College.

Professor Paul R. Pope in Modern Language Notes for January reviews "Romain Rolland, Henri Barbusse, Fritz von Unruh: Vier Vorträge" by Walthér Küchler. Professor James F. Mason's edition of Pierre Loti's "Le Pêcheur d' Islande" is reviewed by Horatio E. Smith, of Amherst.

The fifth instalment of "An American in Asia" by Louis Graves in Asia for January has to do with Willard Straight '01 as consul-general at Mukden. The illustrations are interesting, as usual. Marjorie Latta Barstow '12 writes on "Bronze Voices of Buddha."

FACULTY NOTES

PROFESSOR WALTER F. WILLCOX has been called in as a statistical expert to help decide how the seats shall be apportioned in the national House of Representatives. Members of the Senate census committee, which is considering the reapportionment bill, are said to be in a quandary over the matter.

PROFESSOR OLAF BRAUNER'S portrait of his daughter is reproduced in full color on the cover of the January 1 issue of Town and Country, which says it "is reproduced from a portrait called 'Geirtrud Nikoline' by Olaf Brauner, which was shown at the spring exhibition of the National Academy of Design, held last year at the Brooklyn Museum. Mr. Brauner, as his name and the title of his picture suggests, is a Scandinavian born at Christiania, Norway, February 9, 1869. As his picture and his name do not suggest, he was a pupil of Benson and Tarbell in Boston and has been professor of painting at Cornell since 1900."

PROFESSOR DEXTER S. KIMBALL represented the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the federated American engineering societies last week at the annual convention of the Engineering Institute of Canada, at Toronto.

PROFESSOR JAMES H. ROGERS says he considers the indemnity required of Germany as not exorbitant in itself, but that the addition of a twelve per cent export duty not only is ruinous to Germany but is likely to affect adversely other countries as well. Professor Rogers is conducting classes formerly under Professor Allyn A. Young, who was a member of the economic committee at the Versailles Peace Conference.

THE HONOR agricultural society of Gamma Sigma Delta recently elected to honorary membership several men who have rendered distinguished services to agriculture, among whom was Dr. L. H. Bailey.

MRS. HENRY A. SILL, who now lives in New York, recently visited Professor and Mrs. Charles K. Burdick and other friends in Ithaca.

C. TRACEY STAGG, now legal adviser to the Governor, has been made deputy grand high priest of the Royal Arch Masons, which is said to be the second highest office in the organization.

PROFESSOR GEORGE G. BOGERT '06 of the Law College addressed the Women's Club of Ithaca January 17 on "Woman's Influence on Legislation." He said that neither men nor women should be interested in legislation from the point of view of a class.

ALUMNI NOTES

'71 AB—Judge James O'Neill is a candidate for re-election as circuit judge of the 17th Judicial Circuit of Wisconsin. Judge O'Neill, although one of the first to graduate from Cornell, is still in excellent health, and equal to many years of usefulness on the bench. He has gained a splendid reputation for patient and sympathetic interest in all matters before his court, and his painstaking efforts to be fair and just have won the respect and admiration of lawyers and litigants. Judge O'Neill's candidacy is endorsed and advocated by many newspapers, and by prominent members of the bench and bar of his State.

'74 BCE—Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Tomlinson are spending some time in Los Angeles. Their address is in care of A. G. Simpson, 800 Citizens National Bank Building, Los Angeles.

'78 BME—Robert H. Treman has been re-elected a Class A director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, for a term of three years from January 1, 1921. Mr. Treman has been a Class A director since the organization of the Federal Reserve Bank in 1914; from July 1, 1916, to October 31, 1919, he served as active deputy governor, and during the absence of Governor Strong, served as acting governor of the bank.

'84 BS—Edward Maguire is in the material and process engineering department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; he lives at 810 Holland Avenue, Wilkensburg, Pa.

'94 ME—Since his graduation, Eugene B. Clark has been connected with engineering and manufacturing in the steel industry and the automotive industry. He is now president of the Clark Equipment Company, manufacturers of motor truck parts, the American Sintering Company, and the American Ore Reclamation Company, engaged in treating iron ores. His business address is 86 East Randolph Street, Chicago.

'97 ME—J. Ralph Wilbur, secretary of the Continental Insurance Company, has recently been made second vice-president of the company. He will continue as supervisor of the Western department. Wilbur became associated with the Continental in 1898, as an inspector, later becoming department engineer, covering both Western department and Pacific Coast territory. He was called to the Chicago office in 1908, in 1912 was made assistant secretary, and in 1916 became secretary. In November, 1917, he was given charge of the Western department. Thus his promotion comes as a result of constructive work of the highest order in his department.

'98 AB, '99 LLB—In addition to his practice as attorney, James B. Fenton is president of the Buffalo Box Factory and the Fenton Fibre Box Company. His offices are at 503 Erie County Bank Building, Buffalo.

'02—George W. Slocum, of Milton, Pa., was elected president of the Dairymen's League, Inc., at a meeting of the board held in New York on December 21. Mr. Slocum owns farms in New York and Pennsylvania, covering three thousand acres. He is director of the First National Bank of Milton, and has served as president of the Northumberland County, Pa., Farm Bureau. In 1916 he organized the West Branch Milk Producers' Association, which later became a part of the Dairymen's League.

'03 MEE—Leonard G. Shepard and Mrs. Shepard, of 593 Hackett Avenue, Milwaukee, announce the birth of a son, Leonard Griffin Shepard, 3d, on October 29. Shepard is secretary of the Milwaukee-Western Fuel Company.

'04 AB—Charles L. Rand, secretary and chief chemist of the Mitchell-Rand Manufacturing Company, of New York, manufacturers of electrical insulation specialties, waterproofing products, etc., has relinquished his duties as factory superintendent to devote his entire attention to important research work in the chemical and allied fields for the company. Rand was with the Du Pont Company for a short time, and was also employed at one time in the analytical laboratories of the General Chemical Company. '05 MSA, '09 PhD—Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert is one of four men whom agricultural interests throughout the country are considering as their choice for the office of Federal Secretary of Agriculture, which President Harding will fill when he is inaugurated in March. Commenting on the matter, Dr. Gilbert said he had learned that the choice of a Massachusetts man would be agreeable to Western farmers, in view of the fact that the big problems in which farmers are interested are now being worked out in this section of the country. Dr. Gilbert now holds the office of Commissioner of Agriculture, having been appointed by Governor Coolidge at the time of the consolidation of the State departments. Previously for ten years he was an instructor in the College of Agriculture at Cornell, and later at the University of Maine. He is now a trustee of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, a director of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and the author of a number of books on agricultural subjects.

chines. A staff of surgeons and nurses will be on duty at all times. The surgeon in charge is Dr. T. Wallis Davis, who has been associated with the Hospital for the Ruptured and Cripples, and the Manhattan Maternity Hospital. For the past two years, Dr. Davis has been house surgeon of the second surgical ward of Bellevue Hospital. Injured employees of the company's policy-holders in the metropolitan district will receive at this hospital complete and skilled medical and surgical attention, which will tend to reduce the severity of the injury and insure the injured a more prompt recovery. A branch of the company's compensation claim department has been established at the hospital so that injured employees can receive payments they are entitled to without incurring additional expense. Claimants whose injuries are such that they are confined to their homes or other hospitals will be visited by the company's surgeons from time to time so as to be assured they are receiving the very best medical or surgical treatment.
