Vol. XXII, No. 37

Ithaca, N. Y., June 17, 1920

Price 12 Cents

WITH the Syracuse and Columbia rowing squads settling to work on Cayuga Lake, the Postmasters' convention here, the alumni expected in large numbers, the visitors from Syracuse, New York, and Philadelphia coming in hordes, as well as relatives and friends of Ithacans from the near-by centers, it looks now as if there would be many more people in Ithaca on Saturday than have ever been here at one time before. Conservative townspeople figure that at least twenty-five thousand visitors will be in town to see the races. Students finishing their final examinations do not seem to be inclined to leave with their customary haste, but are using the few moments of leisure to talk up the new fraternity rules, rowing dope, and examination escapades. Betting on the races is rare. Cornell is distinctly the favorite, with a few bets that the Cornell freshmen will row faster than the varsity of the other universities, or that Cornell will make a clean sweep, with few takers at present.

THE DEANS of the colleges, constituting a committee on University policy, with the approval of the President, have authorized members of the staff to give special term examinations to men on the crews. The stated "block week" began on June 9 and ends to-day, June 17; the races come on June 19; the rowers have the option of taking their examinations at the time previously set or at such other times as may be arranged with the various professors. The latest date for these special examinations is June 26, except, of course, that seniors must complete their work by Commencement Day, June 23.

THE FACULTY of the College of Agriculture held on June 4 its annual supper and reunion. Provision for the entertainment of adults was made in the cafeteria of the Home Economics Building; upstairs a committee looked after the children, serving a bountiful meal and directing games. The attendance was nearly five hundred. Among the speakers were several members of the agricultural staff, Dean Mann, Acting President Smith, and Mrs. Anna B. Comstock '85, whose topic was "The Geological Development of the College."

The pleasure of such gatherings as this, and the helpful spirit of comradeship which they engender, commend them to imitation in other colleges.

TWENTY-SEVEN CADETS of the Cornell R. O. T. C. leave this week for Camp Knox, near Louisville, Kentucky. Here the War Department will maintain an artillery camp from June 17 until July 28. The cadets, all of them in training as future officers, will unite with students from Harvard and the University of Chicago to form a battery of one hundred men. It is stated that the total enrollment at the camp will be five hundred, from twenty-two educational institutions. The Cornellians are in charge of Captain T. J. J. Christian and R. J. Southern of the local military staff.

THE WOMEN'S REGATTA was held on Beebe Lake on June 5. In the preliminary contests the sophomores defeated the freshmen and the juniors defeated the seniors; in the final race the sophomores were again victorious. The course was a quarter of a mile and the time of the winners two minutes. A deterring wind prevented a better record. The winning crew was stroked by Imogene Guion of Seneca Falls, N. Y.; the other members were Olive E. Northup of Ithaca, Anne M. Millspaugh of Brooklyn, and Bertha H. Funnell of Huntington, N. Y.

MRS. SCHURMAN was the guest of honor at a reception given in Sage College by the Campus Club on June 9. The Campus Club is a social organization among the women of families of professors, administrative officers, and Trustees. Since its formation about twenty years ago Mrs. Schurman has been the president. At the meeting last week, in the nature of a farewell, the club presented to Mrs. Schurman a handsome antique silver inkstand accompanied by a scroll bearing the signatures of the members. The presentation address was made by Mrs. Comstock.

THE SUMMER CAMP of the civil engineers is this year situated at Sheldrake Point on Cayuga Lake. Thither the surveyors went on Monday, June 14, to remain until Saturday, July 17. Their work is to be a continuation of a new survey of the entire lake, a survey begun several summers ago by the College of Civil Engineering and carried forward by preceding classes. This field work at the end of the sophomore year is a regular part of the course. The student officers include F. W. Lake of Buffalo as chief engineer; A. H. Kohler of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., as assistant engineer; and W. G. G. Cobb of New York City as quartermaster. The camp is in charge of Professor Paul H. Underwood, who is assisted by Professors George Lawrence, and Weber, and by Instructors O'Rourke, Pendleton, and Perry.

THE UNIVERSITY FACULTY, at the request of the Faculty of Sibley College, has voted to recommend to the Trustees that upon students who have specialized in electrical engineering there be conferred this year the degree of Electrical Engineer. This degree as such has not been given hitherto, although it was once the practice to indicate the specialization by a predicate, as Mechanical Engineer (in electrical engineering). It is intended, however, that the one college of engineering which is soon to come into being shall confer three engineering degrees, civil, mechanical, and electrical. The conferring of the specific degree upon members of this year's class will therefore, if the Trustees approve, merely anticipate by two years the proposed regular procedure.

THE REPUBLIC INN at Freeville, closed during the war, is now to be reopened under new management. A new committee of direction is headed by Daniel Rothschild of Ithaca. All the profits are to go to the George Junior Republic. The inn was formerly much used by social parties from the University and the entire neighborhood; it is a convenient and attractive stopping place for travelers by automobile. It has accommodations for about seventy guests.

AMONG THOSE injured in the New York Central wreck near Schenectady on June 9 was Nellis M. Crouse, a graduate student in history. His son Daniel, twelve years old, and an infant daughter were killed. Mr. Crouse, a graduate of Yale, came to Cornell last autumn, living at 3 Central Avenue. He had intended to bring his family here next year. Whether the accident will lead him to change his plans is not yet known.

ASSOCIATE ALUMNI NOMINEES

No opposition nominations have been made by members of the Associate Alumni, so that the ticket of the nominating committee is therefore unopposed. Nominations are as follows:

President, Erskine Wilder '05, Chicago.

Vice-Presidents, Mrs. George D. Crofts '05, Buffalo, and Foster M. Coffin '12, New York.

Secretary, R. W. Sailor '07, Ithaca.

Treasurer, W. W. Macon '98, New York.

Directors for three years, Miss Eleanor Gleason '03, Rochester; Joseph P. Harris '01, Cleveland; Ezra B. Whitman '01, Baltimore; Barrett Smith '04, Boston; and Gleeson Murphy '05, Detroit.

Nominating Committee for three years, Creed W. Fulton '09, Boston; Charles A. Taussig '02, New York; and Karl W. Gass '12, Pittsburgh.

ALUMNI BASEBALL ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Cornell Alumni Baseball Association will be held at Ithaca, on Saturday, June 19, 1920, at 12 o'clock noon, at Schoellkopf Memorial Clubhouse for the purpose of adopting by-laws and electing the Executive Committee. All former varsity baseball men are members of the association and are urged to attend, participate, and vote.

Temporary Chairman.

The Endowment Campaign
Committee Expects to Announce Over Five Million by Commencement

Well up on the program for Commencement Day this year, according to the plans of the National Endowment Committee, will be the announcement of the raising of $5,000,000 endowment for Cornell. Although the committee is laying plans along these lines, it is more necessary than ever that every worker for Cornell finish strong in the last effort to reach the halfway mark in order that the hopes may be realized. District leaders are recognizing this immediate need. Buffalo Cornellians are undertaking this week to revive the campaign in this great Cornell center with the hope of reaching every non-subscriber before the end of the month. Charles R. Marsh '07, who has been campaign director in Chicago during the last six weeks during which time the Chicago total has been boosted more than $125,000, will cooperate with J. F. Schoellkopf, jr., the Buffalo chairman, in re-organizing the campaign.

Cornellians in Connecticut held a wind-up rally in Stamford on June 15, for which Prof. D. S. Kimball made a special trip from Ithaca to present Cornell's need. It is too early to speak of the results of this meeting, but the fact that W. R. Webster, district chairman, sent for fifty subscription blanks—special delivery—augurs well for Connecticut. Other districts are in the process of gathering up the loose ends of their campaigns, so that their reports may help to swell the total before Commencement Day. No total figures for the campaign are given this week because everybody is too busy collecting the money even to send in a report; but by special arrangement, next week's issue of the ALUMNI NEWS will carry the grand total as announced at Commencement; if the signs do not fail and the workers don't get writer's cramp, it will be safely past the $5,000,000 mark.

Last Friday Chicago reported a grand total of $506,307, and Peoria reported $21,560 from sixteen of its eighteen Cornellians—an 88 per cent subscription. This puts Peoria at the top of the list in percentage subscribing and furnishes another evidence of the value of presenting the facts.

A telegram received on Tuesday morning from Professor Durham tells of a total from Chicago of $511,057 from 303 subscribers. The total number of Cornellians in the territory is 697.

When the campaign re-opens for the second half of the goal of $10,000,000 next fall, there will still be many Cornellians who have not subscribed because they haven't known the facts and seen the need. The summer's rest will be welcome to everyone, but it is expected that next fall's campaign will be more active than ever and that subscriptions will come in with renewed vigor until the final goal is reached and Cornell's future is assured.

Conversation these days often turns to the subject of Cornell's need, and sometimes such conversations bring results to Cornell's Endowment. One New Yorker, not a Cornellian, sent in a check the other day as a result of his conversation with a Cornellian friend. He says, in his letter of transmittal: "When you incidentally mentioned to me the other day the fund being raised to provide endowment for increase of salaries of the professors and educational corps of Cornell, it touched a subject upon which I have very strong convictions and sympathies. It really sets one's blood aflame to note the sacrifices, devotion, and self-abnegation of this noble class of educators who rock the intellectual cradles of the world. I am very happy to add my modest contribution to the Endowment Fund, and you will find it herewith in the form of a check."

The Class Campaigns

The honor roll of the ten highest classes in amount subscribed contains this week a representative assortment of classes from '84 down to '15, with '08 still in the lead, reporting $232,310, a gain of over $3,000 in the week. The gains throughout have been greater than usual, '05, the leader in progress, reporting a gain of $16,015 over last week's report. 1895 has gained over $9,000, and '15 over $6,000 with the others ranging down to $125.

The class of 1900 has crowded past '84 during the week into third place in amount subscribed, leaving their older brother Cornellians at fourth. 1905 holds the record for number of new subscribers for the week, with '16 second and '95 and '17 tying for third place. The ten classes which have added the largest number of names to their lists during the past week are as follows:

'05 -----	16
'16 -----	15
'95 -----	14
'17 -----	14
'13 -----	12
'14 -----	12
'03 -----	12
'15 -----	11
'12 -----	11
'00 -----	10

The final spurt is producing results in the mail of the various class secretaries as well as in the offices of the district leaders and it is hoped that Commencement Day will see the completion of the first half of Cornell's journey to security, with some over to start on the second $5,000,000 in the fall.

DR. ROBERT G. REESE, Virginia '90, chief ophthalmologist of the Medical College in New York, has just been elected to alumni membership in the Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

MEDICAL COMMENCEMENT

Thirty-eight men and thirteen women received the degree of Doctor of Medicine on June 10 at the annual commencement of the Medical College in New York. The diplomas were awarded by President Schurman. In his address to the graduates Dr. Schurman pointed to some of the wonders of medical science developed by the Japanese, brought about, he said, by a careful selection of students, and aided to a marked extent by a close relationship between the medical college and the hospital.

"The Japanese advance in medical science has been wonderful since the world first recognized them as masters of sanitation during the Russo-Japanese war. Although the Japanese can no doubt learn from us, there is much beneficial knowledge which we can get from them.

"I was especially impressed, while on a visit to the University of Kyoto, by the manner in which I found the Japanese selected their students of medicine. There is a selective process which develops the best material, and it is only after a most thorough examination that the student is permitted to proceed with his work. Many Japanese professors were students in Germany before the war."

The John Metcalfe Polk Price of $300 for general efficiency in medicine was awarded to Alexander G. Davidson, who led the honor roll. Sam Zachery Levine took the second prize, and Louis Hodes the third. Louis Hodes also won the first prize for efficiency in otology, and Russell S. Ferguson the second. The William M. Polk Prize in gynecology was awarded to Ralph Blumberg, Emma Irene Boardman being second.

THE CORNELLIAN ON SALE

The fifty-second issue of The Cornellian appeared recently. It forms a very handsome volume of 713 pages of which 101 are advertising. The cover design is a neat reproduction of the seal and the words "The 1920 Cornellian." The words "Class Book" have been omitted from the inscription on the back. There are two styles of binding, ooze sheep, at $7.50, and keratol, at $6. The paper is slightly thinner than in last year's annual, but is quite good enough, and takes the half-tone cuts admirably.

The sections are separated one from another by inserts of a gray color.

There is a final instalment of the Roll of Honor begun in last year's annual, followed by a list of men decorated in the service.

The fraternity lists are this year supplemented by chapter group pictures, which add much to the usefulness of the lists. The house pictures are retained. There are sixty-four fraternities and thirteen sororities represented. The number of social clubs listed is eighteen, of societies, honorary and professional, men's, thirteen, women's, four. A noteworthy and highly regrettable omission is that of Phi Beta Kappa, probably the slip of the business manager, rather than the editor.

The combination of Cornellian and Class Book continues to work out to the satisfaction of both the editorial board and the public and there is no disposition to return to the old plan of two separate books with their inevitable and numerous duplications.

A NEW GUIDE BOOK

There has just come from the press a new "Guide to the Campus of Cornell University." It is a handsome volume of ninety pages, size 7x4 $\frac{3}{4}$ , convenient for the pocket, in stiff brown paper covers. There are many admirable illustrations by Troy, a large number being full-page, and a good map of the campus and fraternity-house region. No name is given of author or editor, but internal evidence indicates it to be the careful and accurate work of Woodford Patterson '95, secretary of the University and for many years editor of the ALUMNI NEWS.

The plan of the text is that of the conventional Baedeker; but fortunately there is no such necessity for rigid condensation as is the case in Baedeker's books; and there are many historical and descriptive notes which add much to the usefulness of the volume. Even old Cornellians will doubtless find here some things they did not know about Cornell. For the stranger who wishes to orient himself quickly on the campus, it is indispensable. And we know of no other book which gives so much historical matter about Cornell in compact form at anything like the price of this book, which is only fifty cents. The book is on sale at the Co-op. and Corner Book Stores.

NEW FORESTRY ANNUAL

The Cornell Forester, the new annual published by students of the Department of Forestry, has just made its initial appearance. Volume i is a handsome illustrated pamphlet of forty-eight pages, exclusive of advertising matter, filled with matter of various sorts pertaining to the study and practice of forestry. There is a message of greeting from the Nestor of foresters, Dr. Fernow, followed by these contributions: "Management of the National Forests," W. B. Greeley; "Nemesis," a poem, Professor Bristow Adams; "The Reclamation of Pennsylvania's Desert," Gifford Pinchot; "The Woodhick," "Cheer Up," "Duff and Diff," "Klim!" poems, F. L. Du Mond '20; "Forest Conservation in New York State," George D. Pratt; "How Can Prospective Foresters Become of the Greatest Use to the Lumber Industry?" Bolling Arthur Johnson; "The Human Element as Revealed in the Timber Census of New York State During the War," Professor A. B. Recknagel; "Truth versus Buncombe," Professor S. N. Spring; "Instruction in Topographic Mapping in Rolling, Brushy Country," H. H. Chapman; "Oregon Beaches and Coast Forests," Professor John Bentley, jr.; "Opportunities in Forest Research," Samuel T. Dana; "The Student of Forestry and State Service," Edgar C. Hirst; "Saint Murphius," a poem, Samuel J. Record; "Edward Iley Tinkham," a poem, A. B. Recknagel; "Forestry at Cornell," Professor Ralph S. Hosmer; "Rebirth of the Cornell Forestry Club," Professor Walter Mulford; "Forestry as a Profession," Robert M. Volkert '20; "Practical Experience in the World's Largest Sawmill," Perkins Coville '18 and S. C. Sweeney '18. There are interesting camp and club notes and a record of student activities.

The book is sold for a dollar a volume, and a few are still to be had. Address Professor R. C. Hosmer, Department of Forestry, College of Agriculture, Ithaca.

ITHACA played the host this week to the New York State Postmasters' Association. The annual convention began on Monday and ended Wednesday evening. Business meetings were held in the Conservatory of Music. The visiting postmasters, all of whom hold their offices by Presidential appointment, numbered about 350. On Tuesday the wives were guests of the University, taking luncheon at the College of Agriculture and attending a special organ recital by Professor James T. Quarles. Among the speakers were John C. Koons, First Assistant Postmaster General, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

TWO CLASS PERIODICALS

The Naughty Naught, the journal of the class of '00, for May has just appeared. The class plans to live in Founder's Hall and to have meals together. The classes of '98, '99, '01, and '02 are invited to share the class headquarters and to unite their interests with those of '00 for the reunion period. This is a capital idea.

The Nineteen Tent for June is also at hand. 1910 will be housed in South Baker Hall, the non-fraternity men having the preference, since the others can if necessary stay at the fraternity houses. The class has challenged '00 and '05 to baseball games; and there will also be a track meet with Jack Moakley as clerk of the course.

Both classes announce that there will be a good crowd here for the reunion.

CLUB SECRETARIES TO ORGANIZE

A meeting of the secretaries of Cornell clubs will be held in Barnes Hall on June 19 at 8.30 a. m. for the purpose of getting acquainted, exchanging ideas, and forming an Association of Club Secretaries. The call is signed by Foster M. Coffin, secretary of the New York club, and Dr. I. J. Kerr, secretary of the Cleveland club.

DETROIT CARRIES ON

Detroit Cornellians will hold their last luncheons of the season on the 17th and 24th and have an outing on the 26th. Concerning the Big Day K. P. Royce, the secretary, writes:

"Doc Beaman '08 is chairman of the Outing Committee. The Outing will be Saturday, June 26. He is thinking of having it somewhere on the Canadian Club side of the river. If you have any suggestions as to location, amusement, etc., write or 'phone them to the secretary. And be sure to save the date, because it's going to be a good party."

Royce's address is 1904 Dime Bank Building; 'phone Cherry 1203.

NEW YORK GOLFERS

The annual golf tournament of the Cornell Club of New York will be held at the Cherry Valley Club on June 24. There will be prizes for both 36 and 18 holes medal play handicap, best gross and net scores. The four members who return the best gross scores in the 36 will qualify for the club championship to be competed for at a later date at match play. In the 18 there will be a morning round, starting 9-11, and an afternoon round, starting 1-3. Contestants may play in both morning and afternoon rounds, or, at their option, in one round only. The entrance fee, including ground fee, is $4. All entries must be made on the official card and sent to Henry Bogert Clark, chairman of the committee, 30 W. 44th Street, New York, before six p. m. on June 21. No entry will be accepted after this hour.

OBITUARY

Lester S. Kennell

Lester Spruce Kennell, an instructor in Romance languages in the College of Arts and Sciences, was drowned on June 10, while fishing in Enfield Glen.

Although his body was recovered within ten minutes, all efforts to resuscitate him failed.

Kennell was born on January 17, 1892, and was the son of Mrs. Mary L. Kennell, of 507 Brooks Avenue, Rochester, N. Y. He was a graduate of the West High School, Rochester, and of the University of Rochester, having received the degrees of A. B. and A. M. in 1913 and 1915, respectively. He attended the Cornell Summer Session in 1916, and had been instructing in the Arts College since 1917. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Besides his mother, he leaves a sister, Miss Mildred Kennell, also of Rochester.

Francis M. Burdick

Francis Marion Burdick, from 1887 to 1891 professor of law at Cornell, and the father of Professor Charles K. Burdick of the College of Law, died suddenly on June 2 at his home in DeRuyter, N. Y.

Professor Burdick was born in DeRuyter on August 1, 1845, the son of Albert G. and Eunetia Wheeler Burdick. He was graduated from Hamilton College in 1869 and took the degree of LL. B. there also in 1872. After editing The Utica Herald in 1870-1 and practicing law in Utica for eleven years, in 1882 he became professor of history and law in Hamilton, whence he was called to Cornell. From 1891 to 1916 he was Dwight professor of law at Columbia, retiring as professor emeritus in the latter year.

He was a member of Delta Upsilon, Phi Beta Kappa, the Authors' League, and the Barnard, Century, Columbia, Patria, and Clergy Clubs; also of the American, State, and New York City Bar Associations. He had been since 1907 a member of the Commission on Uniform State Laws.

He had written "The Essentials of Business Law" (1902), "Cases on Torts" (1905), "Cases on Sales" (1901), "The Law of Sales" (1913), "The Law of Partnership" (1917), "Cases on Partner" (1898), "The Law of Torts" (1913), and many magazine articles. He edited the department of law in Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia, and, as a representative of the American Bar Association, the department of law and jurisprudence in "The American Year Book."

Charles N. Baker, Jr., '19

Lieutenant Charles Nott Baker, jr., and his brother, Corporal Cornelius V. Baker, were killed in an automobile accident at Glenmont, near Albany, N. Y., on June 10, 1919.

Lieutenant Baker was born on November 25, 1895, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Baker, of Selkirk, N. Y. He prepared at the Albany Academy, and entered the Cornell Law School in 1915. He remained only two years, entering the Army at the end of his sophomore year. In September, 1917, he was assigned, as a second lieutenant, to the 309th Infantry, 78th Division, under Captain Jacob Gould Schurman, jr., '17. In May, 1918, he was chosen among the officers to precede the division to France to receive instruction in trench mortar service. He rejoined the division in July of that year when it was brigaded with the British forces behind Ypres, and took part in the action at Arras. Just before the division was transferred to the St. Mihiel front, he was sent for additional instructions in trench mortar operations, but returned in time to take part in the St. Mihiel offensive. His platoon was practically wiped out, having six of the fifty-four men left after the battle. During the Argonne offensive he had charge of the transport service, and his successful accomplishment of the difficult task assigned to him so impressed the commanding officer that he was promoted from second to first lieutenant when in action, one of the highest honors that can be given a soldier. He participated also in the final actions of the division, and had many miraculous escapes from death.

He had just returned from France, and was spending a short leave with his parents prior to his discharge, when the accident occurred.

A FAREWELL TO PREXY

Alumni returning this year will have an opportunity, of which many hundreds of them will doubtless avail themselves, to bid farewell to President Schurman, to congratulate him on the prosperous condition of the University for which he has labored so faithfully during more than a third of a century, and to extend to him all good wishes for the success of whatever he may interest himself in when he leaves Ithaca this summer to reside in New York City. Many of the classes holding reunions will also, probably, pass resolutions of respect and appreciation.

The best opportunity for the individual alumnus thus to pay his respects to the President will be at the Alumni Luncheon in the Drill Hall on Saturday, from 1 to 2 p. m. Tickets for the event will be given to alumni registering at the Old Armory Friday and Saturday. It is hoped that all alumni in Ithaca at the time, whether here for the regatta only, or for the reunions, or both, will register, and arrange to be present at the luncheon. Prexy has the good wishes of his thousands of "alumni and former students" and their attendance at this function will perhaps be the best method of expressing this appreciation and Godspeed.

LITERARY REVIEW

Why Greece Fell

Hellenic Conceptions of Peace. By Wallace E. Caldwell '10. New York. Columbia University. 1919. 8vo, pp. 139. Columbia University Studies in History, Economics, and Public Law lxxxiv, 2. Price, $1.25.

That history so often repeats itself, while a pathetic fact, is easy to explain. It is because men refuse to heed the obvious lessons of history. They go on making the same old blunders, yielding in the same old way to their passions, hatred, lust for power and for gold, jealousy, and so on. What can history do but repeat itself—reenact the tragedies of war and tyranny?

Thus at least reflects one reader as he puts down Dr. Caldwell's book. Caldwell's study of Hellenic ideas about peace obviously grew out of our latter-day thought about preventing war; he has reread the history of Greece to see if her sages and statesmen have anything to contribute to world-thought on the momentous question of how to keep the peace. And as was to be expected, he finds much. So far as thinking on this subject goes we have scarcely got beyond the Greeks even yet. Have we in practice?

Homer presents both sides of war; its glory and its ghastliness—but chiefly—representative as he is of a princely court—the former. Hesiod, voicing the common man, "protested against that strife which exulted in evil and multiplied wars and contentions through the will of the immortal gods. The fault lay in the wickedness of man." When we come down to the times of Æschylus, we find war justified only when waged for native land or for suppliants. "By righteous dealings at home and with aliens the government which seeks the common weal may keep the state without calamity in peace." Pindar, while not over-fond of praising warriors, glories in the praise of peace; but not in peace at any price. For Bacchylides, "mighty Peace brings forth wealth for mortals and the full bloom of honey-tongued song."

Heracleitus, on the other hand, that ancient Nietzsche, recognizes "that war is common to all things, justice is strife, and all things come through strife and necessity."

The easy-going Sophocles spoke rarely on war but always in condemnation. "The well-born and the good, Ares loves to seize, while the bold of tongue, fleeing from danger, is free from harm; for Ares cares not for the coward." Herodotus puts the thing in a nutshell: "Since in war fathers bury their sons, while in peace sons bury their fathers, no one is so senseless as to choose war in place of peace." Almost every play of Aristophanes was a tract in behalf of "perpetual peace for Hellas." "He accused as perpetrators of war the demagogues who were seeking position, power and graft the professional soldier, the manufacturers of munitions, all who pretended that they were seeking the best interests of the state while they were actually pursuing personal gain. In the final analysis the cause of war was the desire for money." General Thucydides, though he regarded the Peloponnesian War as inevitable, was a strong opponent of war in general. Euripides "inveighed against useless war and counseled prudence, the choice of discretion as the better part of valor."

The wars of the fourth century B. C. brought greater emphasis on the righteousness of justifiable wars. Though Socrates doubted if preparedness was any guarantee of protection, Plato strongly championed it as a necessity, as did Aristotle. Isocrates, "the great champion of Hellenic peace," saw "the endless wars, the wasting of lands, the enslavement of cities, the destruction of property, and the country full of exiles wandering and serving in armies for hire." Yet "statesmen were so taken up with petty interests that they were not moved by the actual calamities of Greece." Have we improved on his wise conclusion? "Be warlike as concerns knowledge of war and preparations for it, but peaceful in committing no unjust aggression. Let your intercourse with weaker states be such as you would require that of stronger states to be with you."

With all this wealth of wisdom on the subject of peace and war, why did the Grecian states fail? For precisely the same reason why Eastern Europe has failed: they could never put aside their petty jealousies and organize—"settle the basic problems of interstate relations." With the spectacle before them of fallen ancient Greece and that of the success of the United States in avoiding wars through organization, what are the countries of Central and Eastern Europe doing to-day? What are the Allies doing? What are the enemies of the League of Nations doing? There is but one answer. By their failure to put into effect Isocrates' Golden Rule of nations, they are working as hard as possible to bring on new wars. And thus history is to go on repeating itself, to the end of the melancholy chapter.

Dr. Caldwell, now a Columbia instructor, has produced an interesting and well written book. It is dedicated to the memory of Henry A. Sill, a Columbia graduate and a Cornell professor, and of George Willis Botsford, a doctor of Cornell and a Columbia professor. Thus it illustrates the ties that bind together what we modestly venture to call the two chief universities of the Empire State. May their achievements in science and education always deserve this description!

Books and Magazine Articles

In Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering for May 19 Edwin F. Northrup, '91-2 Grad., writes on "The Galvanometer."

Dr. George F. Zook '14 in The Survey for May 29 reviews "The New American Thrift" in the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science and S. W. Straus's "History of the Thrift Movement in America" (Lippincott).

In The Physical Review for May Professor George W. Stewart, Ph. D. '01, of the State University of Iowa, writes on "The Function of Intensity and Phase in the Binaural Location of Pure Tones."

In The Journal of Educational Psychology for December, lately issued, Dr. Edgar A. Doll '12 discusses "The Growth of Intelligence," and Professor Louis C. Karpinski '01 furnishes an abstract of his article "Origines et Développement de l'Algèbre," contributed to volume xxvi of Scientia.

"Common Sense in Business and Government," an address by Elon H. Hooker '94 before the Rochester Chamber of Commerce on April 21, has been printed in an eight-page pamphlet, which is being used for campaign purposes.

In Modern Language Notes for April Professor Louis Piaget Shanks's "Anatole France" is reviewed favorably by D. S. Blondheim. In the issue for May Professor Albert B. Faust reviews Professor T. M. Campbell's "Life and Works of Friedrich Hebbel" (Badger).

Visual Education for April includes an article on "New Films for Teaching Americanism" by Dean William F. Russell '10, of the State University of Iowa, College of Education.

In The Journal of English and Germanic Philology for January, lately issued, Professor Leslie N. Broughton, Ph. D. '11, reviews Julia Patton's "The English Village" (Macmillan).

The American Journal of Philology for January-March includes "A Pun in the Rhetoric of Aristotle" by Professor Lane Cooper.

In The Philosophical Review for March Professor Frank Thilly reviews Ralph B. Perry's "The Present Conflict of Ideals" (Longmans). Grace N. Dolson '96 reviews Henri Bergson's "L'Energie Spirituelle, Essais et Conférences" (Paris, Alcan). Professor Ellen B. Talbot, Ph. D. '98, of Mt. Holyoke, reviews A. de Gramont Lesparre's "L'Idée de Finalité" (Alcan).

Professor Robert M. Ogden '01 contributes to The Psychological Review for March an article on "The Tonal Manifold."

The American Historical Review for April includes a review by Professor Charles H. Hull '86 of Fernand Engerand's "Le Fer sur une Frontière: la Pratique Métallurgique de l'Etat Allemand" (Bossard), and a review by Professor Albert B. Faust of the Jahrbuch der Deutsch-Amerikanischen Historischen Gesellschaft, vol. xvii, for 1917.

The Bulletin of the Geological Society of America for December, lately issued, includes a monograph by Professor Herman L. Fairchild '74, of Rochester, on "Post-Glacial Uplift of Southern New England."

In Natural History for January-

February, lately issued, Dr. David Starr Jordan '72 describes "A Miocene Catastrophe"—the burial of about a billion and a third of herring under 350 feet of diatoms, the tragedy occurring about two million years ago. Frances Harper '07 writes on "Okefinokee Swamp as a Reserve." His paper has been reprinted separately.

In The Journal of Applied Psychology for March, lately received, Professor Elsie Murray '04, of Sweet Briar College, writes on "Psychological Tests as Diagnostic of Vocational Aptitudes in College Women," and Edgar A. Doll '12 discusses "The Degree of Ph. D. and Clinical Psychology."

In The Quarterly Journal of Economics for May Professor Allyn A. Young reviews R. G. Hawtrey's "Currency and Credit" (Longmans) and Irving Fisher's "Stabilizing the Dollar" (Macmillan).

A new and enlarged edition of "A Short History of American Literature" by Professor Walter C. Bronson, A. M. '90, of Brown University, is announced by the publishers, D. C. Heath & Co. The chapter on recent literature and the bibliography and reading lists have been brought down to date. The book now contains five hundred pages and sells at $1.48.

Volume xiv of the Publications of the American Sociological Society, which is devoted to "The Problem of Democracy," includes a paper on "Democracy and Our Political System" by Professor Ulysses G. Weatherly, Ph. D. '94, of Indiana University, and one on "The Religion of Democracy" by Professor Charles A. Ellwood '96, of the University of Missouri. These papers were read at the annual meeting of the society in Chicago on December 29-31.

The Cornell Civil Engineer for April, just published, includes the following articles: "Two Recent Methods of Proportioning Concrete" by Professor Herbert H. Scofield '05; "Steel Replacing Wood for Farmwork" by Cecil B. Hopkins '07; "Concreting Plant and Operations" by Frank W. Skinner '79; "Concrete Road Specifications" by Hubert K. Bishop '93; "Soundings Through Water and Mud" by John C. H. Severance, by James H. Coyne.

NEWARK CORNELLIANS

The Cornell Club of Northern New Jersey held the last spring luncheon of its season at Newark on June 2. There were thirty Cornellians in attendance.

The luncheons will be resumed in the early fall.

ATHLETICS

The Intercollegiate Regatta

The crews of the four universities that are to take part in the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, transferred this year from Poughkeepsie to Ithaca, had completed the long grind of rowing training by mid-week and all were in readiness for the word that will send them away over the Cayuga Lake course next Saturday. A crowd of 25,000 persons was expected to arrive here Friday and Saturday for the regatta.

The crews of Columbia and Syracuse have been here for ten days. The Pennsylvania oarsmen were scheduled to arrive Wednesday. On Thursday all three groups of visiting oarsmen and the Cornell crews will become the guests of the Cornell Athletic Association, will live in Baker Tower, and will eat at a common training table in the mess hall.

Up to this time the Columbia crews have been staying at Glenwood, while the Syracuse party has been located at the Alhambra. Columbia's shells have been housed at the Cornell boathouse; the Orange crews have made the inter-college boathouse their headquarters. After Thursday all of the crews will use the Cornell varsity boathouse.

Both the Columbia and the Syracuse crews have been rowing twice daily since their arrival, going out about 10.30 o'clock in the forenoon and again at 5.30 or thereafter in the afternoon. Except for one or two uncomfortably warm mornings and early afternoons, weather conditions have been ideal.

The Cornell oarsmen have been fairly busy preparing for final examinations. They have confined their practice to the late afternoons, and usually they have kept to the west shore. Columbia also has stuck to the west shore most of the time, but Syracuse has frequently gone along the eastern shore and over the course of the race.

Mr. Courtney persists in his policy of keeping the public guessing as to his choice of crews, but it is pretty well understood at the boathouse that the heavy varsity crew, which so far has not appeared in intercollegiate competition, will row the varsity race, with Knight's crew the junior varsity entry. The heavy eight, stroked by Kirkland, is reported to be a powerful and also a fast combination.

The course has been surveyed and properly marked. It is a mile nearer Ithaca than the two-mile course with which most alumni are familiar. McKinney's Point, instead of being the finish, is the one-mile mark. The race will end a few hundred feet north of the Renwick pier. It is perfect straightaway and should be absolutely fair for all the entrants.

It is expected that the first race will not be rowed until late afternoon, and that the order of events will be freshmen first, junior varsity second, varsity third. Julian W. Curtiss of Yale will be referee.

Although no observation train can be provided, there will be plenty of room for spectators on the banks just north of Renwick, in back of the salt block, and further along the course. A grandstand is being erected as a private enterprise opposite the finish, but it is by no means either necessary or especially desirable to make use of it. Naturally those who come early will have the best chance to obtain a satisfactory place to see the race, but there is plenty of room for thousands.

Harriers to Go to England

Cornell has accepted the invitation of Oxford and Cambridge to send a cross country team to England next December to meet a joint team from those two institutions in an international cross country race. The University Faculty last Wednesday sanctioned the trip and the next day Graduate Manager Berry sent the following cablegram to B. G. D. Rudd of Oxford University:

"Cornell cross country team is permitted to accept with pleasure the invitation of Oxford and Cambridge for race in England next December."

The team will leave here early in December and will race shortly after Christmas, returning before the end of the Christmas vacation on January 5.

There will be seven men in the team which will make the trip, in charge of Coach John F. Moakley, who recently was elected president of the American Track Coaches' Association.

The invitation was extended by Rudd in behalf of the two English universities when he was in Ithaca with the other British athletes early in May. It was tentatively accepted subject to a Faculty consideration. The Faculty committee on student affairs sent the question before the whole Faculty, which gave its emphatic approval.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN was one of the principal speakers at the exercises held on June 11 in commemoration of the founding fifty years ago of Syracuse University. Other addresses were given by Chancellor James R. Day; Harry H. Farmer, mayor of Syracuse; Charles F. Wheelock, Cornell '73, of the State Department of Education; and Professor W. H. Chawshaw, dean of Colgate. The memorial ode was read by Chancellor Day. Dr. Schurman's topic was freedom, "the most precious thing in the world." He declared that "Socialism and every other -ism menacing the foundations of the Republic to-day should have complete freedom of speech. Don't ever think to suppress treachery by force. As long as the advocates of the theories which are flooding the world uphold the law, let them set forth the theories. It is for the colleges and universities of the country to keep the flame of humanity alive. It is for the colleges calmly to discuss these experiments which are being made in Russia. Have confidence in the economic system which has made your country great, but watch the progress of other lands. You cannot suppress Socialism by force. I am not afraid of results. I am not one of those who want force to prop up the existing system of government."

THE CANDIDACY of Elon H. Hooker '94 for Governor is heartily supported by Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks, formerly of the Department of Economics, in a letter to The Ithaca Journal-News. Surveying the more vital features of State administration, particularly taxation, the canal system, good roads, and industrial problems, Professor Jenks commends Mr. Hooker's capacity, experience, and success as a business man and as an engineer; and without disparaging other candidates, raises the question whether the circumstances and needs of the time do not call for a man of Mr. Hooker's special qualifications. The letter very well supplements other statements already issued in the candidate's behalf.

PROFESSOR HALLDOR HERMANNSSON, who is in charge of the Fiske Collection of Icelandic prose and poetry, recently gave a lecture at a regular meeting of the Icelandic Society of New York on the significance of the old historic sagas as a factor in moulding the present political and intellectual life of the homeland.

ALUMNI NOTES

'74 BCE, '90 CE—Horace B. Robinson has retired after forty years of service with the Standard Oil Company and its predecessors. Robinson is a veteran of the Civil War, and was on the Red River Expedition and at Key West until mustered out by a special order of the Secretary of War. In 1881 he went to Bradford, Pa., where he was with the United Pipe Lines; later he went to Oil City, Pa., and superintended the construction of the first natural gas lines in Buffalo, N. Y. Surveys of the principal pipe lines, both oil and gas, in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, and as far west as Chicago, were made under his direction. He was at one time city engineer of Oil City.

'74 BCE—Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Tomlinson, who have been spending some time in California, left Los Angeles on June 6 for Seattle, whence they sailed on June 12, on the S. S. Spokane, for the trip to Dawson, Alaska, and return to Seattle. Their mail address is in care of the New Richmond Hotel, Seattle.

'77—At the meeting of the Illinois Society of the Sons of the Revolution on March 15 Professor William F. E. Gurlley, president of the society, delivered an address on "Andrew Jackson," the day being the one hundred and sixty-third anniversary of the birth of President Jackson. The address, which closed with a poem on "Old Hickory," is printed in the May number of The Minute Man, the organ of the Illinois Society.

'78 BLit—The speeches delivered at a luncheon at the Minnesota Club, St. Paul, on November 12, 1919, the occasion being the conferring of the Cross of the Legion of Honor upon Charles W. Ames, have been printed in a handsome volume of thirty-nine pages. The speakers were Governor Burnquist, who presided, Dr. Marcel Knecht, of the Legion of Honor, representing Ambassador Jusserand, M. Julien Potin, "an important captain of industry in France," who acted as Mr. Ames's godfather in the Legion, and Mr. Ames himself. The luncheon was attended by 138 persons.

'86 BS—Announcement has been made of the engagement of Mrs. Estelle Barbour Stillman, of New York, to Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, of Santa Barbara, Calif.; the wedding will take place at an early date. Mrs. Stillman is the daughter of George H. Barbour, a Detroit manufacturer.

'91 ME—Augustus Wood is chief engineer at the Putnam Machine Works of Manning, Maxwell and Moore, Inc., Fitchburg, Mass.

'93 ME—Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Isabel Sheffield Blake and Frederick A. Tennant, of Newtonville, Mass.; Miss Blake is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy M. Blake.

'94 PhD—The American Association for the Advancement of Science has granted Professor Margaret F. Washburn, of Vassar College, two hundred dollars for a study of emotional characteristics of certain racial groups in New York City.

'97 MD—Dr. Ida S. Scudder is head of Vellore Medical College, at Vellore, India. It was largely through her influence that two years ago the Government permitted a medical college for women there.

'98 ME—Among Cornell's recent visitors was Alberto F. Larco-y-Herrera, one of the most prominent citizens of Peru, who has always been greatly interested in Cornell. He has been engaged during recent years in cattle business in Peru, having made his home in Trujillo, and has been prominent in public life. Larco was accompanied on his visit to Cornell by Mrs. Larco and their son, who plans to enter the University in the fall. He has been invited by the University to give an illustrated address at Cornell next year. He is now staying in New York.

'00 BS—Louis C. Gratton is with the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company, Calumet, Mich.

'02 AB—Richardson Webster has been elected president of the University Club of Brooklyn, N. Y.

'03 AB—Irving I. Goldsmith has been appointed by Governor Smith of New York to a commission to revise and codify all of the laws of the State relating to children. He is a member of the firm of Slade, Harrington and Goldsmith, attorneys, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

'04 AB, '05 MSA—Charles S. Wilson has resigned as State Commissioner of Agriculture. He is giving up his official duties partly on account of ill health, partly in order to manage his father's extensive fruit farm at Hall, N. Y. As commissioner during the past five years he has been ex officio a Trustee of the University. His resignation takes effect on July 1.

'04 AB—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bryant announce the birth of a son, Henry, jr., on May 21. Bryant is head of the firm of Henry Bryant and Company, iron and steel merchants, of Milwaukee.

'04 AB, '05 AM, '09 PhD, '12 LLB; '09 AB—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gordon (Alice Holbert '09) and their son, of Buenos Aires, Argentina, are spending some time in Ithaca, and expect to be here for the Intercollegiate races on June 19. Gordon, who was formerly an assistant professor in the Department of Romance Languages, is now representing the Todd Protograph Company in South America.

'05 ME—Andrew J. Haire, of the Haire Publishing Company, has just purchased Notion Trade Topics, a magazine in the notion field, and has consolidated with it his Notion and Novelty Review, making but one trade paper in the notion field. Haire's address is 1170 Broadway, New York.

'06 ME; '09 AB—Mr. and Mrs. Horace P. Sailor (Sarah M. Bailey '09), and their daughter, Annette, who have spent the past year in Ithaca, the guests of Mrs. Sailor's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Liberty Hyde Bailey, will return in the fall to Shanghai, China, where Sailor will be representative of Buck and Stoddard, an American exporting and importing company. He is at present in New York, and is living at the Beta Theta Pi Club, 40 East Fortieth Street. Mrs. Sailor is spending some time in Chicago and Lansing, Mich.

'08 PhD—Dr. Willard J. Fisher, assistant professor of physics in the University of the Philippines, and since last July acting head of the department, will return this summer to the United States.

'09 BSA; '13 BS—A son, Avery Russell, was born on May 8 to Professor and Mrs. Kenneth C. Livermore (Madeline S. Avery '13), of Ithaca.

'11 AB, '15 MD—Mr. and Mrs. Julius Bachrach have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miriam, to Dr. Leo Edelman, of Brooklyn.

'12 AB—Miss Ethel M. Williams returned from France in May. She spent the winter in Paris, attending some lectures at the Sorbonne, and at the end of the first term went to Spain, where

ONLY a few years ago at big hotels and clubs, the demand was mostly for expensive, straight Turkish cigarettes. Today, men base their choice on taste rather than price—and so Fatima, with its common-sense, "just-enough-Turkish" blend, is the steady leader at Delmonico's and the Biltmore, New York, at the Ritz-Carlton, Philadelphia, at the Willard and Shoreham, Washington, D. # Entering the World Electrical

THE graduate of today enters a world electrical.

Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or the smallest country place.

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.
